A review of 1989 - issues born, resolved or continued

Some Charlevoix issues reached a conclusion in 1989. New issues quickly arose to replace them. Meanwhile, still other issues neither began nor ended in 1989, they just continued to hang around.

bulldozers brought down the old house at 108 Clinton Street, bringing a lengthy debate to an end.

The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Mesquite ran aground in Lake Superior and initiated an effort to bring a replacement ship to Charlevoix.

East Park still has an open area where the old bandshell and fish pond used to be and the old water tower still looms overhead.

Heavy machinery took over Bridge Street for several weeks in the fall - ripping up and then replacing sidewalks in the business district.

Charlevoix entered 1989 with a reputation as a politically contentious community. 1989 city council meetings featuring quarrels with the Chamber of Commerce and expedited board and commission appointments did nothing to jeopardize that reputation.

What 1990 holds remains to be seen. For now, on a day only speculate and perhaps gain some insight with the following brief month-by-month review of 1989.

January - Approximately 27 acres of sand dunes and 2,800 feet of Lake Michigan shoreline at North Point became a nature preserve under the jurisdiction of Charlevoix Township. The property was purchased with $300,000 in local contributions in combination with $400,000 from the state Natural Resources Trust Fund.

Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and school officials engaged in a well-attended public debate Jan. 18 in the high school gym. The debate triggered a series of meetings between city, school and county officials. The meetings, which were not disclosed to the public and therefore may have violated the state's Open Meetings Act, resulted in a proposed agreement to give the school and county more money while limiting the life span of the DDA. The proposed agreement was announced in May.

During budget discussions, councilmen debated how many miles the city should levy for operations and the city's infrastructure program, i.e., renovating the city's streets, sidewalks, sewer and water systems. In 1987 and 1988 the city spent a total of $640,000 on infrastructure projects. During budget discussions, city manager Mike Wiesner estimated 1989 infrastructure projects would cost at least $278,000. The council did not have to set the millage figures and adopt a budget until March.

Ending several months of debate, city councilmen confirmed an earlier decision to tear down an old house at 108 Clinton Street to create additional downtown parking. A group of people who supported additional downtown parking favored the council decision. A second group of people who claimed the house had historical value and should be renovated, opposed the decision.

February - While many people talked about the need for recycling, Charlevoix Middle School students went beyond talk and began a paper recycling collection program.

Charlevoix's Winter Carnival, something which over the years has had peaks and valleys in terms of popularity, was on the upswing in 1989. Approximately 1,000 people attended the thundertubing, snowmobiling and skiing competitions at Mount McSaubia.

Approximately 150 people signed a petition seeking to scale down the proposed bandshell to keep it from blocking the view of the harbor. The petition triggered a debate which is still ongoing.

Charlevoix's high school drama team captured first place among class C and D schools in the state drama competition with their performance of "Pirates of Penzance." The 55-member Charlevoix cast placed fourth among all schools.

1989 was also an active year for the area surrounding the city of Charlevoix

Courier headlines indicate that events in western Charlevoix county during 1989 accented the positive.

January - The year opened on a very positive note when it was announced that the North Point area of Charlevoix Township had been bought from its private owners by the Little Traverse Conservancy and turned over to the township for maintenance as a public nature preserve. More than $300,000 in contributions from individuals and other private sources was collected to match the $400,000 grant from the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund to make the purchase possible. Charlevoix Township has since built an access road and parking area and laid out nature trails for the public's enjoyment of the area.

February - By February, it was determined that the lower level of Lakes Michigan-Charlevoix was diminishing soil erosion along the shorelines. For several years, high water levels had sent lake shore property owners scurrying for rocks and other barriers to save their property from washing away. By summer, the water level was lower than it had been in a long time.

The problem of petty crimes by juveniles was also addressed in February with the establishment of the "Victim-Offender Restitution Program" (VORP)

New members assume council seats

Two new council members took office Tuesday evening at the city council's 1989 organizational meeting.

New council members Cheryl Hoffman of the first ward and Pat Gaskin of the third ward joined re-elected councilman Butch Russell in taking the oath of office.

The agenda for the organizational meeting was short. Unlike the final meeting of 1988, the council made appointments which were not disputed or controversial.

The appointment of school business manager Rich Kelly to the Downtown Development Authority was rescinded due to a possible conflict of interest. Mayor Gary Prober recommended Robert Lieberman be reappointed in the position Kelly would have occupied. The council unanimously approved Lieberman's appointment.

Councilman Bill Haggard was appointed mayor-protem. Haggard, Hoffman, Bill Dreyer and Earl Muma were appointed to the tax board of review.

Ahead-lines

Blood drive scheduled Jan. 4

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be operating from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 4 at the American Legion Hall.
Anyone in good health and between the ages of 17 and 66 and who weighs at least 110 pounds can safely give a pint of blood every 56 days.
Many former donors are being contacted for Thursday's drives. People wishing to donate blood for the first time are welcome.

Appointments to give blood may be made by contacting Nancy Fowler at 547-9314.
If for some reason you are unable to give blood, that doesn't mean you can't contribute in other ways.
Many people contribute things other than blood to the blood drive. The Charlevoix Lions Club helps unload and set up the Bloodmobile. Members of the Kappa Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority staff the canteen, serving fruit and homemade cookies to the blood donors. Fruit is donated by exercise classes at Vital Options. Cookies are baked by a number of people in the community.

Charlevoix's blood drive is staffed by registered nurses organized by Marge Malone. An-di Matthews coordinates the remainder of the volunteers.

Memorable events from 1989

Heavy equipment took over Bridge Street for a few weeks this fall as sidewalks on the west side of the street were torn up and replaced. The east side of the street will be done this year.

The city tore down an old house at 108 Clinton Street bringing to an end a lengthy debate about what to do with the building.

This is one of the designs proposed for the bandshell. This is not the current design. The current design features more stonework and a contoured roof.

Patty Sizema and John Martin display a new Heart Start machine, the product of one of Charlevoix's most successful fundraising efforts.

The fate of the old water tower still has not been resolved. A 60-day waiting period established by the council in August passed without a final decision being reached.

OPINIONS

REASONABLE TO ME
L. SCOTT SWANSON

A season to devour

When it comes to doing battle with Christmas goodies, the word retreat is not in my vocabulary. Attack. Attack. Always attack.

Cookies, fudge, chocolate bonbons filled with coconut, designer cheeses, boxes of Whitman's candies - hunt 'em down, close off all avenues of escape and bring them to justice. It's the Manuel Noriega policy of Christmas eating.

Whitman's Sampler boxes of candy are an adventure in eating. Surely you're familiar with the legendary Whitman's Sampler. It's the flat yellow box with the snazzy writing and gold trim. It's a box filled with a variety of chocolate-covered candies.

For me, the fun of a Whitman's Sampler is looking at the various pieces of candy and trying to figure out what's in each one and therefore which one would make the best selection.

As you check out the Whitman's Sampler and prepare to make your selection, you have to realize what's on the line. Choose well and could bite into an amaretto meltaway or a strawberry parfait. Choose poorly and you could find yourself chewing on an orange supreme or a peanut butter puff. What an ugly surprise that would be.

This Christmas, my wife behaved in a terrible fashion when confronted with a Whitman's Sampler. I felt embarrassed for her. Instead of looking at the various chocolates and guessing what they contained, she looked at the inside of the box top. The inside of the box top lists what type of candy is located where.

In my book, looking at the inside of the box top on a Whitman's Sampler is cheating and I didn't let my wife escape without being properly chastised.

"What are you doing?" I asked.

"I'm reading the box to find out where the raspberry jelly one is," she answered.

"Reading the box? Reading the box?" I fumed. "That's not how you eat candy out of a Whitman's Sampler. You're supposed to guess."

"I don't like to guess. I like to know what I'm getting."

"Well, what fun is that. Where's your sense of adventure?"

While the Whitman's Sampler represents a walk on the wild side of Christmas sweets, cookies are more conservative and traditional. I don't like eating cookies. I only do it because I wouldn't feel right neglecting tradition.

There have been times when I've paid so much tribute to tradition that I've almost made myself sick.

My mother used to make cookies at Christmas time and then hide them.

One time she made chocolate chip cookies that were great while they lasted. My dad and my brothers and I were eating them fresh out of the oven. Then we went away for a while to work on some project and when we came back all of the cookies had disappeared. Fragments of cookie dough, bowls and cookie sheets, the smell of fresh-baked cookies hanging in the air - all of the evidence indicated there had been more cookies baked while we were out. But where was the end product?

"So where are the cookies?" we asked.

"I hid them so you wouldn't eat them all," she answered.

"We thought that's what they were for," we said. "Silly us."

"That is what they're for, but you don't have to eat them all at once," she argued. "Do you know how many cookies you four ate this morning?"

We shrugged our shoulders. How could we be expected to keep a good count in the midst of a cookie eating frenzy?

"48!" she said, answering her own question. "Between the four of you, you ate 48 cookies this morning. That's a dozen cookies apiece. You're just going to have to wait a while for the rest of them."

I tried to make an argument about how another four dozen cookies probably would have brought us to our saturation point and negated the need for the shameful subterfuge of cookie hiding. But it was to no avail.

There's no point in arguing with a cookie maker in the kitchen. The home field advantage is too much to overcome. Time is better spent scouting for some other Christmas goodies. There are always plenty around at this time of year.

EDITH GILBERT

It was as much of a surprise to CHRIS ANDERSON when the Berlin Wall came down on the day she arrived in Berlin, as it was to the rest of us!

Chris works in the Purchasing Department of the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Born and raised in Berlin, Chris visits her parents and brother every year. On Nov. 9, the family was sitting around the dining room table when there was a newscast on TV at 10 p.m. announcing that people could travel from East to West Berlin without restriction for the first time in 28 years. Chris tells me she almost choked on her herring and her father shouted "Quiet!" and pounded his fists on the table so hard that he made the teacups dance.

Can you imagine what it would be like to have a wall erected between the north and south side of Charlevoix? If you couldn't cross the Bridge? Where armed soldiers were standing guard ready to shoot? Where people couldn't visit with friends and relatives for 28 years?

No wonder Berliners were shedding tears of joy! Chris tells me that two million people arrived in West Berlin the next day and it seemed as if they were all in her mother's living room. Friends and relatives slept on the floor and Chris made numerous trips to the store to help feed the guests. She gave all her makeup to her delighted cousins.

Of course Chris brought back little pieces of the wall, and said, "everyone is begging me for the tiniest crumbs."

Since Chris is home she's heard from her parents that the family home as well as the steel and iron mill, which was confiscated by the Communists, is to be returned to the original owners. The buildings have deteriorated, but she thinks the property may have some value.

How do the Berliners feel about reuniting East and West Berlin into one united form of government? The feelings are mixed - something like our unifying the City of Charlevoix with the Township! There are advantages and disadvantages. East Berliners like the western economy; telephones, clothing and foods like bananas, oranges, pineapples, chocolates, but don't want the drug and AIDS problems.

Well, neither do we. Happy 1990 to all!

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

Some good with the bad

When I was a kid, one of my routine winter jobs was sifting ashes from our coal furnace.

It was a nasty, dusty job but somebody had to do it.

The coal we used never burned completely and my father was not about to set out good coal for the trashman to haul away.

So he had me sift the ashes and the unburned chunks of coal went back into the furnace to be recycled.

I HOPE THE leaders of Eastern Europe's new democracies had to sift ashes when they were boys. I also hope they realize that a few good lumps of coal may remain in the cinders of their old governments.

Universal health care is a good example.

Socialized medicine of some form was a part of their old communist systems. True, the health care offered couldn't compare with the quality of health care available in the United States. But the healing arts weren't denied to anyone because of inability to pay.

If you got sick, the government picked up the tab for your care and treatment until you recovered or died. No families were forced into bankruptcy by grandma's final illness.

Great Britain and Canada, which are scarcely communist dictatorships, have similar health care systems in place and they seem to work, at least from the viewpoint of the average citizen.

I hope Poland, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and now Romania keep national health care in mind as they fashion their new democracies.

A nation which ignores the health of its citizens is neglecting its most valuable natural resource.

I ALSO WOULD suggest the new democracies consider keeping the child day care centers which are a part of life in many communist countries. If a nation is to benefit by having women in the workforce, provision must be made for taking care of their children while they work.

Working mothers - the same women who are providing the nation with its next generation of workers - should not be burdened with day care expenses in addition to the other costs of raising a family.

Enough is enough. School lunch programs are another legitimate government expense and I marvel that no one to date has filed a class action lawsuit forcing local school districts to give students their mid-day meal free of charge.

If the state demands that our kids attend school, it should also assume the responsibility of feeding them while they are there.

Furthermore, how can American educators expect schoolchildren to perform at maximum capacity if they are hungry or malnourished? To try to educate a hungry kid is a waste of tax dollars.

I ALSO HOPE the new democracies examine the United States government and other western governments for additional shortcomings that should be avoided.

Wouldn't it be a pity, for example, if Poland decided it were in the best interests of her citizens to subsidize the tobacco industry, as has been done in the United States since time immemorial thanks to a powerful tobacco lobby?

Wouldn't it be a shame if the new democracies decided to ignore the future by allowing the costs of higher education to skyrocket beyond the means of the average family, thereby denying the nation the services of its bright but impoverished young?

Will the new democracies be able to afford such broad social services under a free enterprise system and still remain solvent? A better question would be can they afford not to?

An even better question is whether the United States will ever be able to upgrade social services for the sick, the old, the young and working mothers?

Of course it will. With a less threatening global climate and more prosperous global economy, a small portion of the billions of dollars we now squander on defense and foreign aid could easily be diverted to social programs - and still cost American taxpayers less.

Happy New Year. May the Force be with you.

Delaney Phalen (left) and Tasha Morrison slipped and slid across the ice of the Charlevoix skating rink which is now open for the winter. The rink is located at the middle school.

In Probate Court. Young offenders are brought face-to-face with persons they have harmed and work out a program to try to right the wrong. Bill Shumaker was hired by Probate Court as a part-time coordinator of the program, which continues to be a successful one.

District Health Department No. 3 asked high school students to fill out a comprehensive and confidential questionnaire about their health. A $20,000 grant from the state was used to study the health problems and needs of area adolescents.

March - In mid-March, the Oddfellows-Masons Cribbage Tournament ended its 50th year of competition. The tournament, which is not limited to members of either lodge, provides local men with a pleasant way of passing the winter months.

Charlevoix Coast Guard Cutter, the Mesquite, was in warm Caribbean waters patrolling for drug traffickers. Nine months later, the Mesquite ran aground in the cold waters of Lake Superior while placing buoys. The Coast Guard decided the ship is damaged beyond repair and re-assigned most of the crew. Whether or not another cutter will be based in Charlevoix is yet to be decided.

April - Members of the swimming pool committee addressed the Charlevoix School Board, reporting on survey results indicating an interest in a swimming pool and suggested that it be located near the elementary school. The committee is still working on providing a local swimming pool, but hopes of breaking ground this (1990) spring will not be realized.

May - The warmer weather of May brought news of an 18-hole "world class" golf course development on 700-plus acres in Hayes Township. Located along and north of the Boyne City road, the property includes the old Windmill Farm. The golf course was laid out during the summer months, with plans for opening play in the spring of 1991. However, plans for residential development of the property have been held up by problems relating to the Hayes Township zoning ordinance.

The Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Plan forced its first challenge when the City of Boyne City objected to the perceived limitation the plan would put on the number of boat docks the city could have. The problem was solved when it was found that Boyne City had made plans for dock expansion before the lake plan was written.

June - The Barnard Grange, one of the most active Granges in the state, celebrated its 100th anniversary with several events.

MARIAM CUTLER AND JEFFREY ONGEMACH

Cutler - Ongemach

Mariam Kay Cutler and Jeffrey Wade Ongemach will be married April 21 at the United Methodist Church in Bellaire.

The intended bride, who has been living in Traverse City, is the daughter of Charles and Lois Cutler of Charlevoix. Her fiancé, who lives in Williamsburg, is the son of David and Sandy Ongemach of Waupaca, Wisconsin.

She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1981 and later attended Northwestern Michigan College, where she received a Licensed Practical Nurses degree. At the present time she is employed by Munson Medical Center in the Coronary Care Unit and also attends college, working toward a A.D.N.

Her fiancé is a 1985 graduate of Appleton High School. He later attended the University of Wisconsin, where he joined Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. He is a licensed emergency medical technician and fire fighter with the Acme Fire Department and is currently enlisted in the United States Coast Guard, stationed in Traverse City.

Sheriff's deputy Sherry Sproul presents bicycle safety packets to Vasco Zucchiatti, Department of Social Services Supervisor.

Contributions bring joy to many

"The assistance of groups, organizations and individuals was a big help to the Charlevoix County Department of Social Service this holiday season," reports Vasco Zucchiatti, volunteer services supervisor.

Many individuals and families received food baskets for Thanksgiving and food baskets and gifts for Christmas. Carrying the bulk of the load were the Community Christmas for Boyne City Area Residents, a joint effort of St. Mary's Church of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry for Charlevoix Area Residents; and the Care 7 Share Program for the East Jordan Area Residents.

Zucchiatti added, "There were so many caring efforts, it makes me feel good to see so many people contribute their time, support, and donations."

An example of an individual-group effort was the donation of bicycles from both persons known and unknown to Bill Parton, who prepares them all year long for Christmas giving. A total of 14 bicycles were donated. To help promote bicycle safety, Sherry Sproul of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department prepared bicycle safety packets for each bicycle recipient, and each one will be encouraged to participate in the bicycle safety program given each year.

An addition to this year's holiday endeavor was WJML's "Coats for Kids."

"This program involved many individual donors and made it possible for many children to have a warm Christmas," Zucchiatti said. "Each year is a new experience with everyone joining in the holiday spirit. Everyone's help was accepted and welcomed. Thanks to everyone for their special effort to help others enjoy the holiday season."

Beatrice E. (Peg) Wells

Beatrice E. (Peg) Wells, 81, died Dec. 28, 1989, at her Charlevoix home.

Funeral was 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 31, at the Community Church of God. Pastor Bruce E. Hamilton officiated. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

The former Beatrice E. Samuels was born July 31, 1908, in Heart, Mich., the daughter of Lewis and Maud (Ward) Samuels. She grew up in Grand Rapids and graduated from South High School in Grand Rapids in 1927.

On June 5, 1929, she married Wilbur S. Wells in Grand Rapids. The couple moved to Charlevoix in 1929 and Mr. Wells preceded her in death on June 26, 1967.

Mrs. Wells was a member of the Community Church of God and was very active in church activities. She is survived by: four sons, Wilbur E., John L. and Donald E., all of Charlevoix; three daughters, Mrs. Robert (Peggy) Morrow of Fairfield, Calif., Mrs. William (Marilyn) Pardee of Charlevoix and Mrs. Earl (Dolores) Hart of Saginaw; 21 grandchildren; 26 great-grandchildren.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Wesley M. Meggison

Former Charlevoix resident Wesley M. Meggison, 73, died Dec. 26, 1989, at University of Michigan Hospital, Ann Arbor.

Funeral was at 11 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 30, at the Nie Funeral Home, Ann Arbor, and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Meggison was born Aug. 13, 1916, in Charlevoix, the son of William and Rachel Meg-gison. He retired from Ford Motor Co. in 1986.

Survivors include: his wife, Nora, of Redford; one daughter, Lynn Meggison of Redford; one brother, Arthur Meggison of Ypsilanti; two sisters, Winifred Meggison of California and Lillian Smith of Wyoming, Mich. Local arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Loren Holfeld

Charlevoix summer resident Loren Holfeld, 58, died Dec. 16, 1989 at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, Ill.

Mass took place at Our Lady of the Wayside Church.

Holfeld was an Office Manager for Chicago Northwestern Railroad with 39 years of service.

Survivors include: his wife Ann (Lagerman); three sons, Scott, Glenn and Todd; his mother Martha Kuhl; one brother, John Kuhl; two sisters, Jeanine Ramey and Jeanette Nelson.

Arrangements were handled by Lauterburg & Oehler Funeral Home in Arlington Heights.

Nazarene changes service times

The Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene will be changing their service times beginning Jan. 7, 1990. Sunday School and the morning worship service will remain at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. respectively. However, the Sunday evening service will move from 7 p.m. to 6 p.m. and the Wednesday service from 7:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. If there are any questions, please call 547-6711.

at the state competition. City councilmen turned down a $17,500 state grant which would have paid half of the cost of constructing a walkway under the south end of the bridge. Council members said they wanted to spend the $17,500 which would have been the city's share of the project on sidewalk repairs.

The city council also rejected a proposal by Charlevoix Development Company to remodel a building at 212 Bridge Street. The plan called for a door to be placed in the north wall of the building adjacent to a sidewalk on the southern edge of Bridge Park.

City councilmen also discussed terminating the employment of city planner Gerry Harsch, but following a subsequent meeting chose not to act.

March - The Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) sent the 212 Bridge Street building issue back to the council asking the council to cite a reason for denying the request.

Debate concerning the proposed bandshell took several turns. First the two factions moved toward compromise. Then the compromise fell through. Finally, a revised design was approved calling for a smaller backstage area, more stone work and a rounder roofline. At that time, the debate appeared to be over, but in subsequent months things broke down again.

Citing property value assessment increases averaging 11 percent throughout the city, the council reduced the city's millage levy and adopted a 1989-90 budget. In 1989-90, the city levied 9.6 mills for operations; 4 mills for infrastructure repair; and 2.38 mills for debt retirement. For 1989-90, those figures were reduced to: 9 mills for operations; 3 mills for infrastructure repair; and 2.1 mills for debt retirement.

April - The school board decided to put two millage increase requests on the June ballot. Initially, the board discussed a nine-tenths of a mill increase for two years to fund the purchase of six new school buses, two new pickup trucks and a mini van along with construction of a pole barn to house the school bus fleet. Later, the board added a second request for one mill to cover increases in operational costs. A 17.05 mill renewal request was also put on the June ballot.

The design for the proposed bandshell was modified once again and finally approved by the city council.

Appointments to the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and Planning Commission raised controversy. Mayor Gary Probert appointed Dennis Kusina to replace Jeanine Wallace on the DDA and recommended Curt Thompson to replace Russ Lewis on the Planning Commission. Probert said Lewis decided to resign from the planning commission. Councilman Jim Potter said he heard Lewis was pushed off the commission. Potter, Ken Whitley and Butch Russell voted against Thompson's appointment.

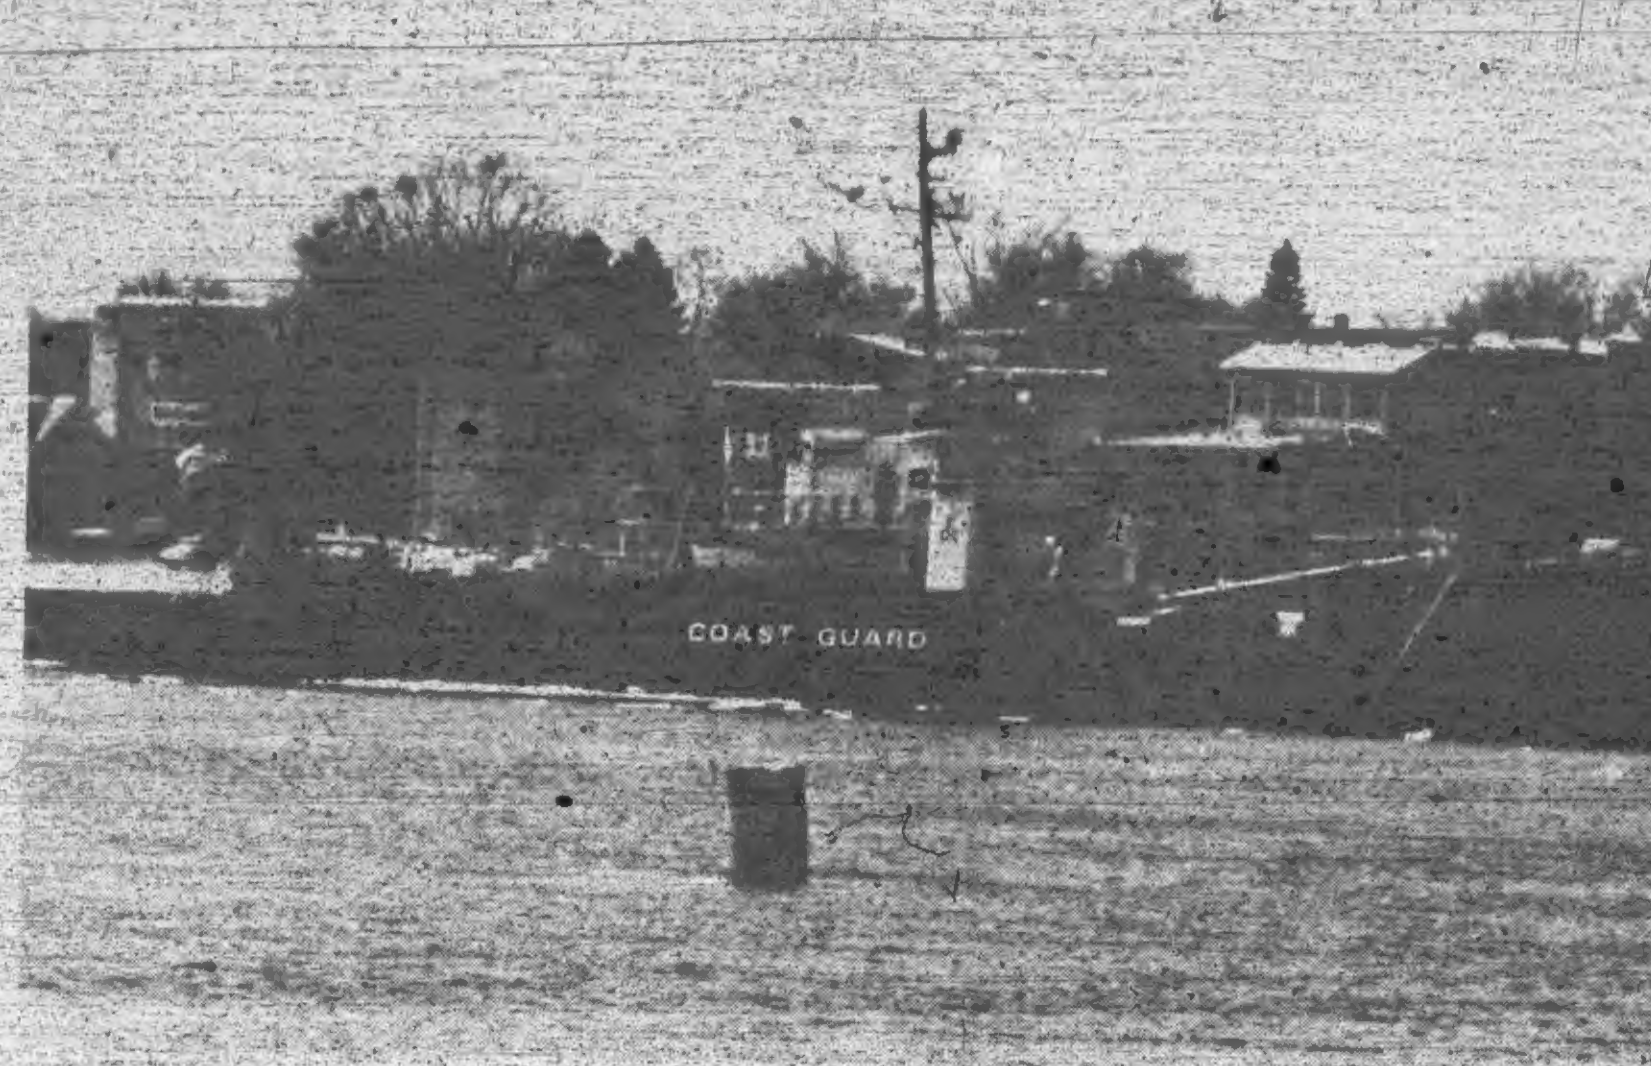

May - The city council proposed to have the fate of the old water tower decided in an election. Voters would have been asked if they were willing to pay an additional three-fourths of a mill for one year to have the old water tower repaired and left standing. The election never took place because the council received legal advice indicating they could not call for an election which would essentially be a straw poll.

Following a string of council decisions which displeased several business people, the chamber of commerce organized a political action committee. The council then began withholding a $558.32 monthly payment from the city to the chamber. Councilmen termed the payment a contribution. Chamber officials maintained the monthly payment, which had been made for decades, was compensation for services the chamber performed which otherwise would have to be handled by the city.

The council revealed a proposed agreement between the city, school and county which would give the school and county more money while limiting the life span of the DDA and Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA) districts. The agreement was formulated during a series of meetings which were not disclosed to the public. Following complaints about the closed-door meetings, councilmen decided to have a public hearing prior to acting upon the proposed agreement.

June - Following a public hearing, the city council amended and gave its approval to an agreement between the city, school and county concerning the DDA and TIFA districts. City councilmen amended the agreement so that instead of get-ling 50 percent of the DDA-TIFA revenue based on school millage, the school would get 25 percent of all DDA-TIFA revenue. Councilmen also extended the proposed life span of the DDA from 1996 to 1998. Later in the month, the school board complained about the amended agreement and invited an attorney to their meeting to discuss the possibility of legal action. Thus far, no legal action has materialized.

Former city attorney Jeff VanTreese was sentenced on drug charges. VanTreese was sentenced to six months in jail with 60 days to be served immediately and the balance held at the court's discretion. VanTreese was given credit for 50 days he served prior to the sentence and the remaining ten days were waived for good behavior while in jail. The sentence also placed VanTreese on probation for one year, and stipulated that he not practice law while on probation.

creases. The renewal was for 17.05 mills and included the renewal of a 1.6 mill increase passed in 1988. The renewal passed 737-343. Voters rejected the .9 mill request to purchase vehicles and build a bus garage by 102 votes, 588-486. Voters turned down the 1 mill increase for general operations by 257 votes, 669-412.

Charlevoix's first in-water antique and classic boat show took place. Approximately 20 boats were displayed. Organizers plan to make the show an annual event and hope it will grow in popularity.

July - The conflict between the city council and chamber of commerce was rekindled when the council requested a standing seat for a council member on the chamber's board of directors. Chamber officers said they didn't feel chamber members would go along with that proposal. A subsequent survey of chamber members confirmed that opinion. As of July, the council was still withholding monthly payments to the chamber, something the council began doing in May.

Reconstruction work on the south pier neared completion, but without a catwalk for fishing. After local fishermen complained in 1988, the federal government said a catwalk would be incorporated into the new pier. But as pier work concluded, there was no design nor specific source of funding for a catwalk.

Proponents of an indoor community swimming pool expressed a desire to apply for a state recreational bond grant, but couldn't find a municipal body which would sponsor the application.

The school board began discussing making another millage increase request to purchase new school buses.

Bids on the bandshell came in well above the estimated cost. The low bid was $285,000. An earlier construction estimate had been $186,000. At the time, there was about $110,000 available to finance construction. The proposed bandshell went back to the drawing board.

August - The city council reinstated monthly payments to the chamber of commerce, payments the council began withholding in May. The council did not receive a standing seat on the chamber's board of directors, but chamber officials said they did hope to have better communications with the council.

The city council appointed a committee to look into funding possibilities to preserve the old water tower. The council said it would wait 60 days before deciding the fate of the old tower. Although more than 60 days have come and gone, the ultimate fate of the old water tower is still unresolved.

In one of the most heated council meetings of the year, councilmen said no to new downtown streetlights. Before and audience which filled the council chambers and spilled out into the hallway, councilmen voted to delete the new lights from the amended list of DDA projects. However, councilmen later voted to allow conduit to be placed in downtown sidewalks, which will make it possible to install new lights in the future without tearing up the sidewalks.

September - Charlevoix Rayder athletic teams found a new mascot roaming the sidelines.

Mayor Gary Probert said he would like to see the city annex Charlevoix Township prior to additional sewer lines being extended into the township.

A two-car traffic accident which took the lives of Bob and Maxine Drenth stunned the community. The driver of the other vehicle, a downstate man, has been bound over to Circuit Court on manslaughter charges.

City councilmen said that rather than a pavilion in East Park, they would prefer a small platform and pond there while they would like to see a year-around fine arts center elsewhere in the community.

Construction of new sidewalks began in the downtown area. For several weeks, segments of the sidewalk along the west side of Bridge Street were torn up for replacement.

October - Monday, Oct. 2, school district voters passed a school millage increase of .79 mills. The two-year request was to replace several school buses and passed by 26 votes, 556-430.

The city council discussed the performance of city manager Mike Wiesner. Although some councilmen said they had problems with some aspects of Wiesner's performance, no action was taken.

A nature trail was completed in the woods behind Charlevoix Elementary School. The Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation Inc. funded the project, which will augment the school's science program.

November - City voters changed the face of the city council as they ousted incumbents Norm Probert and Earl Muma and replaced them with Cheri Hoffman and Pat Gaskin. Hoffman defeated Probert 312-197 while Gaskin defeated Muma 215-152. Incumbent Butch Russell retained his council seat.

Charlevoix voters joined with voters throughout the state in defeating two state tax increase proposals involving educational financing.

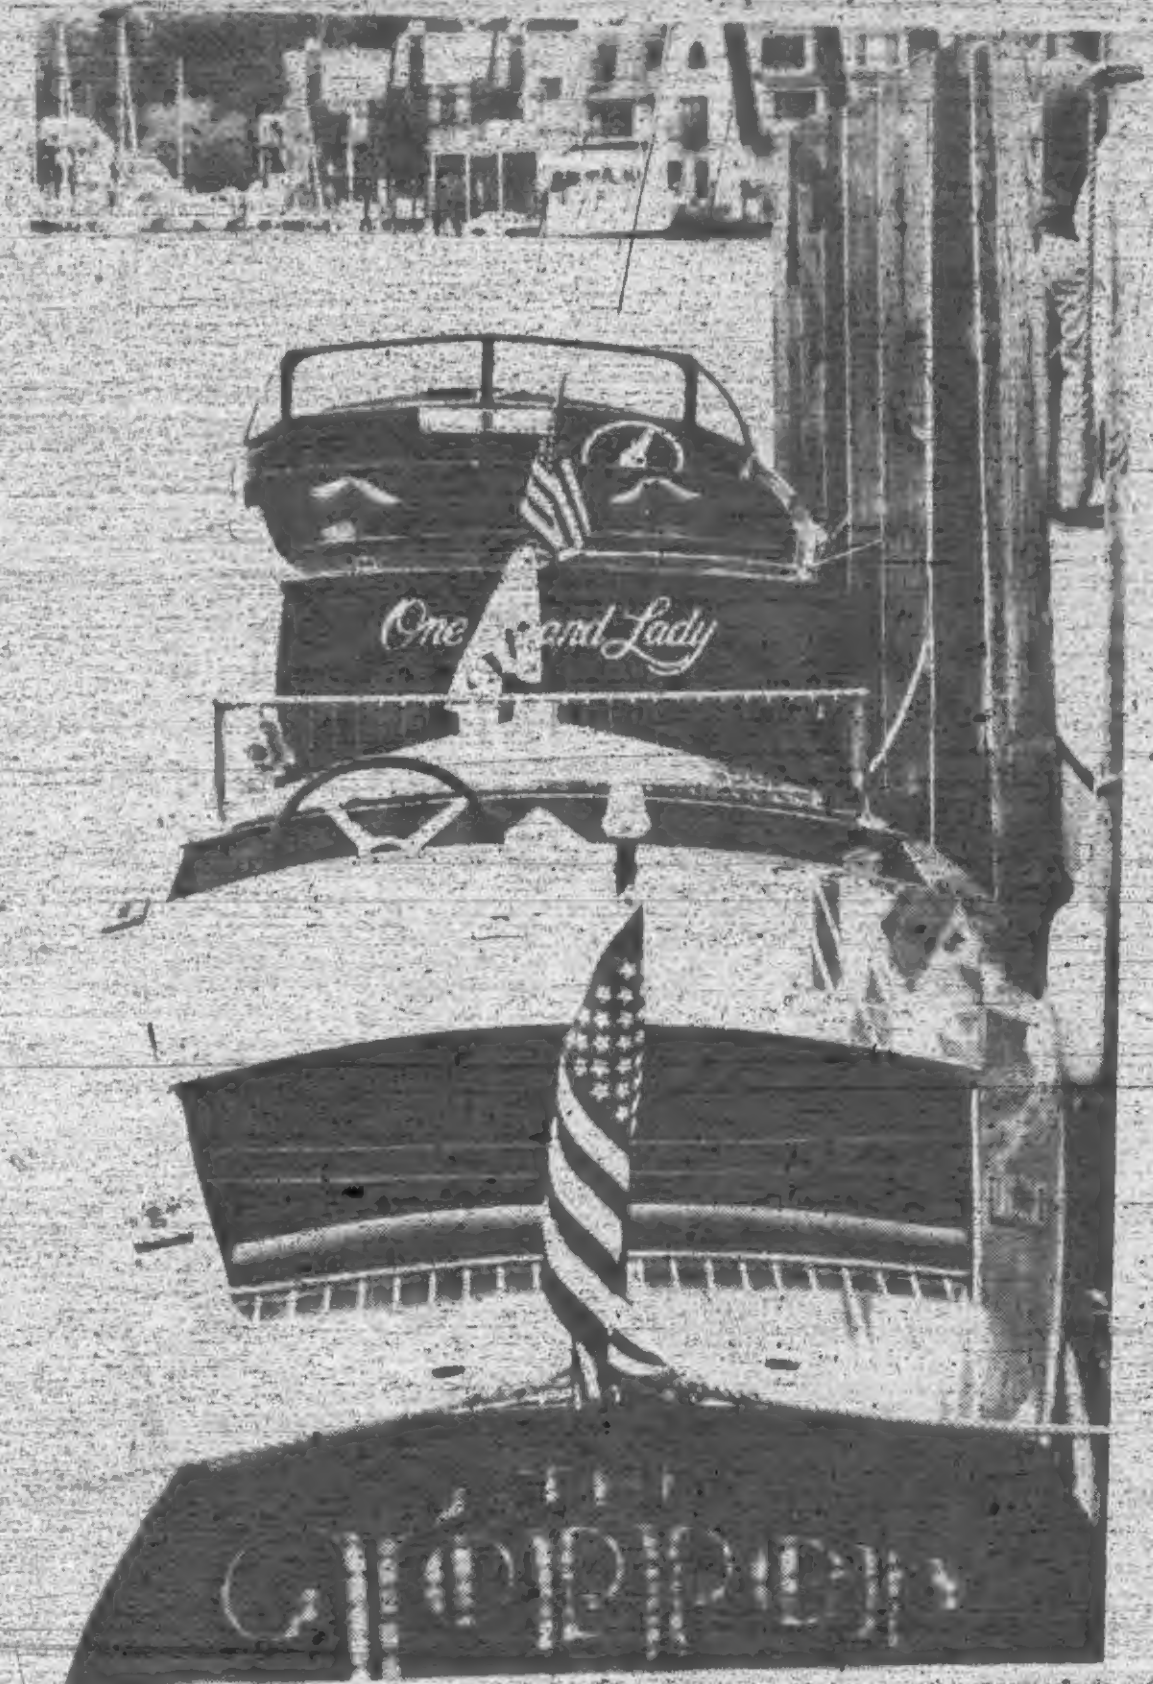

The Star of Charlevoix announced that it was pulling up anchor and closing up shop in Charlevoix. City business people say they hope another cruise ship line will replace the Star operation in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix's boys cross country team won the Class C state championship for the third straight year and for the fifth time in the 1980s. Scott Miller and Bill Crook made the boys all-state team. Julie Bush, Charlevoix's first all-state runner in the girls division, placed sixth individually at state and made the all-state team for the second time.

The Charlevoix School Board approved the proposed agreement for the school district and county to recapture taxes from the DDA and TIFA districts.

One of Charlevoix's most successful fundraising efforts concluded with the purchase of Heart Start machines for the city ambulance.

A new proposal was made for a study which could lead to modifications of Bridge Park. However, no study has been undertaken and some councilmen have indicated they want to resolve bandshell questions in East Park before studying changes in Bridge Park.

December - The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Mesquite ran aground in Lake Superior. The ship is still aground and is damaged beyond repair. Local business people and city officials are lobbying Coast Guard and federal officials, asking that Charlevoix continue as a port for a Coast Guard ship.

The bandshell debate was resurrected once again. City officials want to have some type of bandshell in East Park by early summer.

At the last city council meeting of 1989, mayor Gary Probert ousted some members of the DDA and planning commission and appointed new members in their place. In previous years, the appointments, which are made with the consent of the council, were not made until after new council members took office in January. In a related move, the council appointed councilman Norm Probert, who, following an election defeat in November, was serving at his last council meeting, to a seat on the zoning board of appeals.

$194.70 per month delivered

Take Advantage Of Holiday Values On Escort And Ranger From Your Ford Dealer And Ford Credit.

We know holiday giving is the job of the guy in the red suit, but we couldn't resist this one. Right now your Greater Michigan Ford Dealers and Ford Motor Company are giving cash back that you can keep or apply to your down payment.

Qualified buyers can get a 1990 Ford Ranger "S Plus" 4x2 with power steering, deluxe wheel trim, interval wipers and all-season tires for just $194.70 a month when you finance through Ford Credit.

Or, a 1990 Ford Escort Pony with front wheel drive, rear defroster and electronic stereo for only $172.05 a month. And that includes freight, tax, title, and license plate transfer!

So hurry to your Greater Michigan Ford Dealer for these great values and Ford Credit financing. Once Santa sees these new Fords, we're sure he'll understand.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE ON FORECLOSURE BY ADVERTISEMENT

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage made by SANDRA K. KROUSE, a single woman, of 313 Prospect Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, to FIRST STATE BANK OF CHARLEVOIX, a Michigan banking corporation; of Charlevoix, Michigan, dated December 22, 1988, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, on January 10, 1989, in Liber 206 of Mortgages, Page 0416. As of the date of this Notice, there is claimed to be due on said Mortgage for principal, interest, late fees, and other expenses paid by the Mortgagee on behalf of the Mortgagor, the sum of $48,927.77; and no proceedings at law having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said Mortgage has become operative.

NOW, THEREFORE, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described, or so much thereof as may be necessary, at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the County Building in the City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, that being the place of holding the Circuit Court in and for said County, on Wednesday, January 10, 1990, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, and said premises will be sold to pay the amount so as aforesaid then due on said Mortgage, together with 11.75 percent interest, legal costs, attorney fees as provided by law and any taxes and insurance that said Mortgagee, First State Bank of Charlevoix, does pay on or prior to the date of said sale, said premises being located in the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and more particularly described as follows:

Lots 80 and 81, Crouter's Addition to the City of Charlevoix, as recorded in Liber 2 of Plats, Page 3, Charlevoix County Records and also the North one half of the vacated alley lying adjacent to said lots as vacated in Liber 198, Page 444, Charlevoix County Records.

The length of the redemption period of said Mortgage as made and provided by statute is six (6) months from the time of the sale.

The federal Corps of Engineers completed reconstruction work on the south pier this fall. The old pier was built on wooden pilings and had developed a discernible list to the north.

November - After ten years of work and several false starts, every dwelling in Charlevoix County, no matter how remote, now has its own house number. The work was completed by Eileen McDonough, who worked within the Department of Building Inspection.

December - Charlevoix County's Solid Waste Plan was getting its final touchup before being sent to the Department of Natural Resources in Lansing for approval. The plan relies upon Cedar Ridge landfill in Eveline Township as a depository for most of the county's waste, but other methods of waste disposal, including recycling, are encouraged.

Charlevoix Senior Citizens are looking forward to moving into their new home in the old Charlevoix Township Hall. Architectural plans have been drawn for interior changes and enough money is available to begin work.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners presented its budget for the year 1990. For the first time, the budget exceeds $4 million ($4,246,900), an increase of 7.3 percent over last year.

K-5 students man their mice

Once the mouse gets rolling, it's sometimes difficult to get it stopped.

Last Thursday, elementary school computer room coordinator Judy Crook found herself trying to stop the mouse.

The mouse, actually mice, were in the clutches of a group of second grade students in the computer room. In this case, "mouse" is a term for part of an Apple computer. Students were using mice to make multi-colored designs on computer screens.

But this group's computer time was up and Crook was trying to shut them out the door, because another group of students was waiting.

It's not every classroom where the instructor faces a challenge in getting the children to stop working, but that's exactly what was happening. The children were in no hurry to get up and leave. They wanted to get a few last clicks.

Currently, each elementary school student is getting about 27 minutes a week in the computer room. The elementary school has three Apple II Plus computers, four Apple IIe computers and four Apple IIGS computers.

The fourth IIGS computer just arrived last week along with an Imagewriter printer. It was paid for with a $2,000 grant from the Charlevoix School Enrichment Foundations Inc.

Crook said she's been working on getting the additional computer for about six months. The IIGS is the most advanced of the three models of computers the elementary school has. It has a "megabyte" of memory, which means it will handle newer educational programs. The Imagewriter printer also allows the students to make hard copies (paper printouts) of their work.

Crook said the new computer helps round out the elementary computer program and will also allow one of the computers to go out to classrooms.

The main goal of the elementary school computer program is just to introduce students to computers and give them a feel for how the machines work. However, that introduction is made through programs which deal with math, science, painting and other educational subjects.

Students also use the computers for some practical applications. They typeset an elementary school newspaper and last year, fourth grade students used the computers to make an animated video.

Crook said that most of the students enjoy learning to work on a computer. "They're at home with it," she noted.

Mesquite replacement to be an identical ship

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Acacia will replace the Mesquite as of this coming May. Congressman Bob Davis announced that Charlevoix will receive a replacement cutter while speaking at a town meeting Tuesday morning at Nanny's restaurant.

The Acacia is a ship of the same length and design as the Mesquite. It is not unfamiliar to Charlevoix as it has spent time here in the past. Currently the Acacia is stationed in Grand Haven. In early December, the Mesquite ran aground near the Keweenaw Point in Lake Superior. The grounding and subsequent damage led the U.S. Coast Guard to declare the ship beyond repair. The ship is still resting in Lake Superior and will not be taken out of the water at least until spring.

Business people in Charlevoix became distressed at the economic consequences which would result from the loss of the ship and crew. City officials and business people contacted Davis' office and Coast Guard officials and also adopted resolutions and circulated petitions asking that Charlevoix continue to be a Coast Guard port.

Tuesday morning, Davis said, "Charlevoix, in my opinion, will always have a buoy tender." He said that as most of the Great Lakes buoys are in the northern portion of the Great Lakes, Charlevoix is a logical location for a ship to be based.

The Mesquite had been based in Charlevoix since 1980. The Coast Guard Cutter Sundew was stationed in Charlevoix for many years before giving way to the Mesquite.

City council members ascended Mount McSaubia Monday evening to look at a proposed location for a tower which would allow interactive television classes in several area school districts. Council members raised several questions about the tower, including: the number of trees which would have to be removed to accommodate the tower and support lines; problems which might be caused by disturbing the sandy hill; and whether the tower would limit future expansion of city ski facilities.

Future put in FOCUS

"Where Do We Go From Here?" is the question to be asked at the FOCUS Forum at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 17 at Charlevoix High School. There is no charge for admission. Charlevoix area public officials and representatives from planning committees in the city and surrounding townships are being invited to help answer questions about growth and development in the area and explain how planning is coordinated. Other questions expected to arise during the discussion will deal with the potential impact of area development on traffic patterns and downtown business, especially along the M-66 corridor. Members of planning bodies in the city and townships will be asked about the status of their master plans and if they're dealing with the growing concern about affordable housing.

Other topics for discussion are the question of a merger between city and township, sign and billboard controls and environmental impacts. The FOCUS Forum, an informational organization which promotes public discussion about current issues, urges the public to participate in the forum. Patti Ulrich will serve as moderator.

AA and Al-Anon meetings are held at the Charlevoix Alano Club, 104 Mason, Charlevoix. Contact club manager for days and times, 547-9184.

City to hear from state about $215,000 grant

Late this week, the city will learn of either the success or failure of a $215,000 grant application.

In March of last year the city applied for a state Land and Water Conservation Fund grant to help expand the park and recreational facilities at Ferry Beach.

Initially, Charlevoix applied for $323,535, a 75 percent matching grant. Later, Charlevoix revised its application to ask of $215,000, a 50 percent matching grant. The city revised the application because the state indicated a 50 percent match was more likely to receive approval. Since March of last year the grant has gone through preliminary and final reviews by Department of Natural Resources DNR staff members. Wednesday, Jan. 10 it will go before the Land and Water Conservation Fund board.

Bob Couvreur, the fund's program manager, said in a phone interview with the Courier last week that Charlevoix's grant application has received the recommendation of the DNR staff.

When asked about the chances for board approval, Couvreur replied, "I would say it looks promising."

If the application receives board approval, it would still need to receive final approval from the state legislature.

This is the third time Charlevoix has applied for a Land and Water Conservation Fund grant. If the city receives the grant, it will provide matching funds from the Tax Increment Financing Authority.

City manager Mike Wiesner says that even if the grant is approved, it is questionable whether work on the park would begin this year.

Currently, the city is doing other work in the Ferry Beach area to relocate Ferry Avenue.

Work the grant money would help pay for includes: constructing additional beach restrooms and a concession stand; reconstructing boat launches and adding a boat pumpout station near the launches; reconstructing a break wall north of the park; developing a new parking lot at the between the street and the park; installation of storm and sanitary sewer facilities in the park; placing a boardwalk through a marshy area north of the present beach; building a sidewalk through the park; installing park amenities such as children's playground equipment; and building a small dock for transient boaters.

Wiesner said the design is ready, but he views the project as something which will begin in the fall and conclude the following spring. It's something the city does not want to get half-done and have torn up all summer. With that in mind, the project will probably begin in the fall of 1991.

Plans to be made for Earth Day events

A meeting of the Earth Day 1990 planning committee will take place at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 17 in Room 5 of North Central Michigan College. The meeting is open to any individuals or groups interested in helping with the Earth Day 1990 celebration in northwest Michigan.

Plans to mark Earth Day are being developed by a coalition of local environmental groups. The goal of Earth Day 1990 is to focus public, media, and legislative attention on environmental concerns. Tentative plans are for a wide variety of educational programs, encouragement of tree planting, and an Eco-Fair on Earth Day itself, April 22.

County employees receive raises

Elected and appointed officials of Charlevoix County began the new year with a salary increase of at least four percent.

Regular salaried officials will receive a four percent increase and will be paid as follows: Prosecuting attorney, $48,684; Sheriff, $33,529; Planning Director, $31,258; Equalization Director, $29,331; Friend of the Court, $27,342; County Clerk, $27,342; Commission on Aging and Transit System Manager, $26,380; Register of Deeds, $23,858; Building and Grounds Supervisor, $22,244; Veterans Affairs Officer, $21,457; Assistant Commission on Aging and Transit System Manager, $21,112; Emergency Services Director, $20,708; Drain Commissioner (part time), $5,188.

The county's three judges, all of whom also serve Emmet County, are paid by both counties as well as by the state. The Circuit Court Judge will receive $17,358 from Charlevoix County and $22,068 from Emmet County. Last year, his total salary was $39,426.

The District Court Judge will receive $16,417 from Charlevoix County and $24,932 from Emmet County. Last year, his total salary was $41,349.

The Probate Court Judge will receive $22,110 from Charlevoix County and $24,932 from Emmet County. Last year, his total salary was $47,042.

The six members of the County Board of Commissioners will receive $2,400 for the year for attending two meetings a month. This is an increase of 14 percent over last year. They will also receive $75 per diem for each committee meeting they attend lasting four hours or more including travel. Meetings lasting less than four hours including travel will be compensated for at $50 per diem. County officials will receive 24 cents a mile for car expenses when using their vehicles on county business. They also will receive meal allowances for regular travel within the state as follows: Breakfast, $5; lunch, $6; and dinner, $12. However, there are certain hour restrictions for meal allowances.

There are also several county commissions and boards which meet regularly to conduct county business assigned to them: Road Commission, Welfare Commission, Election Commission, Building Authority, Economic Development Commission, Transit Committee, Transportation Authority Board, Parks Commission, Building Codes Appeals Board, Sanitary Code Appeals Board, and Commission on Aging. Members of these bodies will be paid per diem at varying rates ranging from $65 to $40.

OPINIONS

Charlevoix Sketchbook

Jan Glass

Rising above the snow-covered dunes is an array of beautiful winter flowers. The pitcher's thistle is now twisted and a lovely soft gray. The cinquefoil with its stiff branched stalks holds hundreds of tiny golden-brown egg-shaped seed pods and great stalks of mullein appear as giant candleabraums or a lone staff. Although the plants may appear dead and lifeless, this is far from the case. Its true, some stalks may be dead, but the seeds are very much alive, just waiting to be dispersed by wind or animals. Other plants remain alive underground as strong roots or about as living deciduous stalks.

Glass to teach art class

Jan Glass will be teaching a class titled "Exploring Watercolor." The class is offered through the McCune Arts Center, but will take place at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix. The class will meet from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. each Thursday for six weeks beginning Jan. 18.

The class is open to any adult interested in exploring watercolor painting. Each student will work at their own speed and level of experience. Beginning painters will have special projects to ease them into painting.

To register for the class, call the arts center at 347-4337.

Students must supply their own materials. A list of recommended colors and brushes is available by calling the arts center.

REASONABLE TO ME

Economic speculations

There was a time...and I remember it well...when a pack of gum cost a nickel and there were five sticks to a pack.

Then one dark day the price of a pack of gum doubled. Yes, it soared all the way up to a dime. Granted the number of sticks was increased from five to seven.

At the time, my knowledge of math wasn't too comprehensive, but what math I was familiar with told me that five sticks of gum for five cents was one stick of gum per penny while seven sticks of gum for 10 cents was...was...was, well it was something less and I wasn't happy about it.

I don't know what caused that particular price escalation in chewing gum. Maybe there was a bad crop of gum plants that year or something. But whatever the cause, the price increase in chewing gum was a rude awakening for me. It was an introduction to the world of higher economics and ugly, old inflation.

And I soon found that chewing gum wasn't the only thing this inflation stuff messed up. In my younger days, stamps and chewing gum started out on an even keel. Although stamps were licked and gum was chewed, both cost merely a nickel.

But apparently they used the same sticky stuff in both gum and stamps because when the price of gum went up, the price of stamps soon followed.

Humans aren't the only consumers affected by inflation. It also extends to the animal kingdom.

One day while I was in college, I got talking to a guy who liked to keep strange breeds of fish. He said he was thinking about buying a piranha.

"How much does one of those cost?" I asked.

"Oh, they're getting real expensive," he replied. "The price of piranha's got us all in a bind."

Left to my own devices, I probably wouldn't have taken "Macro-Economics" class in college, but my advisor recommended it.

Going into the class, I suspected economics, as a field of study, would be a stuffy and rigid thing without much room for creative thinking. But after listening to a few lectures and reading a few chapters of the book, I concluded that the whole field of economics is based on creative thinking.

The law of gravity is firm. Jump out into mid-air and you will fall. Laws of economics are speculative. Compare this to an economic law. Prices will generally rise...but not necessarily, because it depends on what people buy.

After only a few weeks of "Econ" class, I decided that economics was purely a speculative thing. This made the class more fun for me because I like to speculate.

By the time the prof got around to giving a test, I'd already formed some of my own economic philosophies. And I happened to slip a few of these philosophies into some of my test answers.

When I got my test back, the prof had written in red next to one of my answers, "This is not a theory held by prominent economists."

If kind of annoyed me, when I first read the note. But then I thought about it for a few seconds.

I figured "prominent economists" were the same people advising the federal government. Then, as now, the federal government was at least several hundred billion dollars in debt.

At that time, I was college student and had about $5 in my pocket. As I saw it, that put me way ahead of the federal government and the "prominent economists" who advise them.

I didn't argue with the prof. I quietly smiled to myself, folded up the test and slid it into my notebook. When class ended, I went out and bought a pack of gum.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

When days grow long

When are the days going to start getting longer?

They already are — but only at the top.

On Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 20 and 21, at the time of the winter solstice, the sun rose at 7:58 a.m. and set at 5:04 p.m., according to the U.S. Weather Service.

The next day, Friday, Dec. 22, the sun set at 5:05 p.m. Hooray, we gained a minute.

But not so fast: The sun rose that day at 8 a.m., meaning the hours of daylight were unchanged.

By Tuesday, Dec. 26, the sun set at 5:07 p.m., meaning we had gained three minutes at the end of the day from the previous Wednesday. But the sun continued to rise later. It came up at 8:01 a.m. on Dec. 26 and at 8:02 a.m. on Dec. 27.

For the next 14 days, the time of sunrise remained at 8:02 a.m. while the time of sunset continued to march ahead. By Tuesday, Jan. 9, the sun set at 5:20 p.m.

There must be a good reason for these astronomical inconsistencies but I have no idea what it is. Considering the perfect harmony of the solar system, you'd think the day would lengthen evenly on both ends, but it doesn't.

Perhaps Planet Earth is wobbling or something. Given the recent upheavals in Eastern Europe, I wouldn't be a bit surprised.

But I am sure the time of sunrise will start retreating before long. By the time of the vernal equinox March 21, we all should be driving to work in daylight.

In April, however, we'll go back to daylight-saving time and suddenly gain a full hour at the end of the day while losing an hour in the morning.

But no one will care because we'll have plenty of daylight to play around with.

I am a little concerned that the sunrise and sunset times I have quoted originated in the Detroit area. They obviously are not the same for Charlevoix, which is almost 300 miles northwest of the Motor City and one of the last outposts in the Eastern Time Zone.

How long does it take the sun to cross Michigan? A couple of minutes?

Some evening I'll run down to Lake Michigan with a stop watch to time the setting of the sun and I'll be sure to report back.

But don't hold your breath.

I DRAGGED the Motor City into this simply because I wanted to say a few words about the North American International 1990 Auto Show which is now under way at Cobo Hall.

I would love to attend the show — not to see the new models but for all the attendant hoopla.

The new cars wouldn't interest me because they all are out of my price range and I wonder who is going to buy them. I suspect the auto people make cars for each other.

Time was when you could call a dealership and order a car. Then call the bank and arrange financing if you needed it. On your way home from work you could drop off your old jalopy and pick up your new one.

Not any more. Many of the new models cost more — much more — than we paid for our house and lot. An automobile is not a purchase to be made lightly.

An acquaintance in Petoskey, whose job involves keeping track of how other people spend their money, entertains the same doubts about the future of the auto industry.

He claims that even folks who could easily afford to blow $20,000 on a new car aren't doing so because they have better sense.

Instead, he said, they are picking up used cars and saving a bundle.

Of course, you can still find a few models costing less than $10,000, but they are little more than mechanized skateboards.

The funny part of the whole business is that even foreign automakers are charging an arm and a leg for their products.

But it's not funny, since a big chunk of the Michigan economy rests with the auto industry.

Can't someone come up with a car that is reliable, roomy, fun to drive and affordable?

Letters to the Editor:

Commander appreciates support

Although over a month has passed since Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite's accident, we still wanted to take a moment to express our heartfelt gratitude to the community of Charlevoix. The response from community members was absolutely overwhelming, especially in light of the fact that we had not even lived in Charlevoix five months when the accident occurred. A very special and heartfelt thank you goes to Reverend Bruce Hamilton who, in the confusing aftermath of the incident, graciously opened the doors of the Community Church of God to all Coast Guard families for meetings, gatherings, etc. The support of the Mesquite crewmembers and Coast Guard personnel at Station Charlevoix has also been tremendous. Once again, our sincere thanks to each and every one of you who offered your prayers, assistance and support during such a difficult time in our lives. It's gestures such as these that truly make Charlevoix the Beautiful, just that.

Sliders need monitoring

this matter into consideration and hire someone to attend the hill.

Last year my sister and I took her son sliding. While we were there, a young girl and her father came to the hill.

He put her on the sled and down she went heading right for the street pole. We all started running down the hill trying to catch her because we knew she was going to hit it. We didn't get to her in time and she hit face first. How long would she have laid there unattended if adults had not been there?

If parents can take their kids to the skating rink and leave knowing there is someone to supervise them, then why not give the kids sliding and their parents the same consideration.

My suggestion would be to put an attendant at the bottom of the hill as we had in the past, a lower bank of snow at the bottom, removal of the street pole during the winter months and sand between the snow bank and Antrim street to stop the kids safely.

Sliding is exciting and fun to kids of all ages. Why not make it safe as well?

Flu can be beaten

Influenza has been reported in many parts of the United States including Michigan. Even though the best time of year to get the influenza immunization is in November, it is still not too late to receive the vaccine. Most people receiving this year's immunization should be protected because the strain of Influenza A producing disease in the country is similar to the type contained in the vaccine. It is for this reason the Health Department is providing additional immunization clinics for adults 18 years of age or older. Individuals less than age 18 should contact their family physician.

Influenza (or flu) is a viral infection of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes, and lungs that can make someone of any age ill. Usually the flu occurs from November to April with January, February, and March the worst months.

If you get the flu, you usually have an abrupt onset of fever, sore throat, chills, cough, and soreness and aching in the back, arms, and legs. Although most people recover in three to seven days, some individuals become seriously ill and require hospitalization. Thousands of people die each year in the U.S. from the flu or related complications such as pneumonia.

There is a vaccine and a medication (Amantadine) which can prevent and control influenza. Amantadine is not a substitute for vaccination and is recommended for use under specific circumstances such as unimmunized high risk persons.

High risk groups include:

1. Adults and children with long term heart or lung problems which cause them to see a doctor regularly.

2. Residents of nursing homes and other institutions housing persons of any age with serious long term health problems.

3. Healthy people age 65 years or older.

The influenza vaccine for adults is a single flu injection that provides protection against three strains of flu virus. Children less than 12 years of age may need two injections. The vaccine will not protect against other illnesses that resemble the flu and does not begin to provide protection until 1-2 weeks after the injection.

Local author's latest wedding book released

Charlevoix resident Edith Gilbert is the author of a book that could be the best news possible for any couple planning a wedding.

The author says of her book, "The Complete Wedding Planner," "It is not an etiquette book and it does not tell a couple what they have to do. Rather it points out choices in the whole wedding planning process and tells how to make the best choice for each individual."

Beginning with the engagement announcement, the book carefully takes the bride-to-be and her fiancé through the wedding day and on to the honeymoon.

This is a revised edition of "The Complete Wedding Planner" published in 1982, which sold over 100,000 copies. It is an attractive volume with a cover design by prize-winning Traverse City artist Lyn Boyer Pennington and offers considerably more material than the earlier edition.

Gilbert explains that this edition contains about 25 percent new material, much of it prompted by questions raised by her newspaper readers. Among the new material is a complete chapter, "Preparing for Marriage," for which the Reverend Philip Schairbaum of Charlevoix offered help. The chapter stresses the value of premarriage counseling sessions. Other new material includes discussions about videotaping the marriage ceremony and putting "still" photographs on tape, an evaluation of buffet and sitdown dinners, and a complete glossary of terms relating to marriage and marriage ceremonies.

An early chapter in the book is titled "The Wedding Budget." It leads off with a quotation from Lyndon B. Johnson: "Spend more imagination than money," and continues with the author's statement that the success of a wedding does not depend on a limitless budget, but rather on the thoughtful organization that creates the atmosphere of a perfect wedding day. Gilbert also notes that in today's modern families, almost any division of wedding expenses is acceptable.

As an example of how the book points out choices, the author answers the question, "My fiancé would like to be married in a church. I've always dreamed of a home wedding. How can we reach a fair decision?" as follows:

"Before reaching a conclusion regarding the place to be married, let's consider some other factors that may help you both. How many people do you plan to invite? If it is a small group, the guests may feel lost in a large church.

"What about the budget? There may be less expense being married in a church. For a home wedding, it may be necessary to rent numerous items, including arches, standards, and even a tent.

"What kind of a reception are you considering? Some churches have a social room and even offer catering services, which is a convenience. Or, if you are married in church, you may decide to have the reception at home.

"When you have weighed the pros and cons of the total wedding arrangements, including the time of day, the number of people, the budget, the type of reception, then you may both be better able to come to a mutual agreement on the place for the

And how about this answer suggesting choices of ways to introduce out-of-town wedding party members at the wedding rehearsal the day before the wedding:

"T-shirts may be your answer. On the front of the shirt, print 'I survived the wedding' and the date. On the back of the shirt identify each participant in the wedding party: BRIDE, GROOM, BEST MAN, MOTHER OF THE BRIDE and so forth. You can also have visored caps printed for the entire wedding party that identify everyone; make individual signs using a magic marker on poster board to be hung around each person's neck during the rehearsal; or simply staple a band of paper together and write the name GROOMSMAN, MAID OF HONOR, etc. on the crown."

Edith Gilbert is well versed in social customs and how they have changed over the last few hundred years. Her library on the subject is extensive and she has done research in the rare book department of the Detroit Public Library, at Greenfield Village, at the Stanford University Library, and at the Library of Congress.

This research has strengthened her belief that social affairs, including weddings, don't have to be the same for everyone, and that is why she offers choices to those planning weddings in the months and years to come.

The author is also a skilled writer, having produced stories for United-Features Syndicate and travel articles for the New York Times, Chicago Tribune, and Detroit Free Press. She has also written three other books about social customs: "All About Parties," "Let's Set the Table," and "Table Top—the Right Way."

Locally, Edith Gilbert is best known for her "Summer Resort Life," which chronicles the social life in Charlevoix in the days of resort hotels, trains, gambling casinos, chauffeured limousines, and full staffs of domestic help. This book has been out of print for some time.

BUSINESS

Bandshell estimate now $175,000

The bandshell committee is proposing to build a scaled-down pavilion in East Park for $175,000. The facility would not have a basement or public restroom. However, it would have a fish pond and leave approximately 400 square feet of storage area for pumps and park maintenance equipment.

Bandshell committee chairman Gary Stutzman made the proposal at Monday evening's council work session.

As proposed, funding for the projects would come from three sources: $100,000 which has already been raised; $50,000 from the Downtown Development Authority (DDA); and $25,000 through additional fundraising efforts.

Stutzman said the bandshell committee planned to go before the DDA Jan. 10 to make the $50,000 funding request.

Councilman Butch Russell asked if the bandshell committee felt $75,000 could be raised if the DDA chose not to contribute $50,000.

Bandshell committee treasurer Bob Hoffman said the committee doesn't see any difficulty raising $25,000 and that they also feel that in the near future additional funds could be raised to cover a sound system. He added that he believed that this past fall, when the council amended DDA plans, money was allocated for the bandshell.

When bids came in for the bandshell this past summer, the low bid was $285,000. The estimate has been reduced to $175,000 by eliminating the basement and bathrooms and reducing items including: support pilings; beams; certain walls; masonry work; a steel deck; waterproofing; tile; and some doors.

Council member Cheri Hoffman asked Stutzman if he feels the $175,000 figure is solid.

"We feel like the numbers are real. They're not picked out of the sky," Stutzman responded.

Council members were unanimous in supporting the new design, but said the latest plans should go before the city's planning commission and parks and recreation commission and then come back to the council.

Trade committee formed

Two state lawmakers have announced the formation of the International Trade Office Advisory Committee to help establish a trade office to assist Northern Michigan companies export goods and services.

The committee, selected by State Senator Mitch Irwin (D-Sault Ste. Marie) and State Representative Patrick Gagliardi (D-Drummond Island) held its first meeting Jan. 5 in Sault Ste. Marie.

"We've asked this committee to explore how we can open and operate an international trade office that will unlock the doors of opportunity for investment and trade," said Irwin.

The Sault Ste. Marie trade office will be one of three such facilities at Michigan-Canadian gateways — Port Huron and Detroit are the others. Governor James J. Blanchard announced the establishment of trade offices last summer as part of his export strategy.

"This office will provide assistance to firms wishing to export primarily to Canada, but worldwide as the global marketplace expands," said Gagliardi.

The committee will report its recommendations for establishing the trade office to the Legislature and the Michigan Department of Commerce by June 1.

Until the trade office is opened, Northern Michigan firms wishing export assistance may contact the Commerce Department's Marquette office.

City takes step toward denying rezoning request

Despite veiled threats of litigation, the city council took a step Monday evening toward denying a rezoning request by developer Lester Turner.

At Monday's council work session, the council unanimously supported calling a public hearing, a step necessary if the rezoning request is to be denied.

This past September, Turner appeared before the city planning commission and city council requesting that the Stroud property at the corner of Mercer and U.S. 31 be rezoned from Motel-Hotel (M-H) to Planned Residential (R-4).

Turner's preliminary drawings indicated a project which would place 37 buildings containing a total of 157 residential units on the property. Of those, 129 units would be in the city and the other 28 units would be on a portion of the property which is in the township and has already been rezoned.

At Monday evening's council meeting, Turner said he now has revised plans calling for a total of approximately 125 residential units.

When Turner appeared before the city planning commission in September, planning commission members demanded more information. The information demanded concerned: the density of the project; the project's effect on Lake Charlevoix water quality; landscaping and elevation plans; the percentage of wooded area which will be lost due to the project; and how harmonious the project will be with surrounding property.

Turner refused to provide all requested information. He maintained he was only applying for preliminary rezoning and therefore was not, and is not, required to provide all of the detailed information requested.

The planning commission refused to act without the requested information and the matter went to the city council.

At the city council's Sept. 18 meeting, the council supported the planning commission and sent Turner back to the planning commission with instructions to provide the requested information.

Between September and present, virtually nothing has happened with the proposed project. City planner Gerry Harsch sent Turner a letter outlining planning commission and city council requirements.

Harsch wrote a memo, dated Jan. 3, to city manager Mike Wiesner. In the memo, Harsch wrote, "Mr. Turner has had approximately 100 days to respond to Council's requirements. To date he has not, therefore, it is my suggestion that Council take action to verify that Mr. Turner's application for rezoning has been rejected."

Wiesner prefaced Monday

evening's council discussion by saying that city attorney Jim Young has indicated he feels the city is on firm legal ground in denying the request. Wiesner noted that there is nothing to preclude Turner from reapplying later with a new site plan.

When Turner addressed the council Monday evening, he said he disagrees with Young's advice that the council is on strong legal ground in denying the request.

Turner also said he is not going to refile another rezoning request and he reiterated that he won't furnish the city planning commission with all requested information.

Turner said that he has been out of the country, in Nigeria, almost continuously since the first week of October. He added that had this not been the case, he would have furnished the planning commission with some additional information.

Rather than denying the request, Turner suggested that the council keep the present request open and allow him to submit a revised plan, calling for fewer units, to the planning commission.

Mayor Gary Probert spoke in favor of allowing Turner time to submit a revised plan.

Wiesner spoke against the suggestion, saying that even though Turner was out of the country, his architect wasn't and yet the city has seen no progress.

Turner said that as he was in Nigeria, he was unable to give his architect direction. He said the direction couldn't be given over the telephone, particularly from Nigeria, a country which doesn't have particularly good phone lines.

Council members unanimously supported scheduling a public hearing early next month. The public hearing is necessary if the request is to be denied.

"100 days is plenty of time," councilman Bill Haggard said, then added, "If he really wants to do it (the project), he could resubmit (file a second rezoning request)."

"Or I could take another step," Turner said in response to Haggard's comment.

Library children's hour begins

The Annual Children's Activity Hour sponsored by the Charlevoix Public Library for students in the kindergarten through fifth grades will begin Saturday, Jan. 13, at the library.

All children in this age group are invited to attend the activity hour from 11 a.m. until noon each Saturday beginning Jan. 13 and running through Feb. 17.

Several area artists and craftsmen have volunteered to participate in the program. The program schedule is:

Jan. 13 - Storytelling, Music & Puppets, Patty Clark

Jan. 20 - Fabric Collages, Joy Halverson

Jan. 27 - Clowning and Clown make-up, Laurie Cornett and Phyllis Pidek

Feb. 3 - Vital Options, Candy Smith

Feb. 10 - Pottery, Barb Godwin

Feb. 17 - Block Printing, Cara Hochhalter

To participate in this program, students need only to show up at the Charlevoix Public Library no later than 10:55 a.m. Saturday so the hour-long class may begin at 11 a.m. sharp. If you have any questions call Dawn Fletcher, program coordinator at 547-4803 or the library at 547-2851.

IRISH Boat Shop

ANNOUNCES EMPLOYEES OF THE YEAR

David H. Irish, President of Irish Boat Shop, recently announced the selections of Employee of the Year. This recognition is awarded annually to one individual at each of the Company's two facilities located in Harbor Springs and Charlevoix.

Colleen Bosma, of Harbor Springs, was commended for her advancements and proficiency as Service Writer in the Harbor Springs yard. Mr. Irish noted that Bosma not only effectively managed the challenging and crucial service desk providing outstanding service and communication with customers, but also developed the techniques and procedures to be used as a model for similar functions at the Charlevoix facility.

Jeff Pulaski, of Charlevoix, was commended for his outstanding management of the Charlevoix yard's ship store and was recently promoted to Manager of Stores for the entire Irish Boat Shop operation. Mr. Irish pointed out that Jeff began working for IRS in 1985 while a Petoskey High School student and has progressed through various yard and store responsibilities working at both facilities before achieving his current management position.

Heating assistance available

Home heating assistance is available to income-eligible households who are experiencing extremely high home heating costs in relation to their income. Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency is currently operating the Targeted Fuel Assistance (TFA) program, one component of Michigan's 1990 Home Energy Assistance Program administered at the State level by the Department of Social Services and Department of Labor/Bureau of Community Services. TFA will provide a one-time fuel assistance benefit up to $200 per eligible household. NMHSA has been allocated a total of $84,000 to be spread across the ten county served region which includes Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Missaukee, Roscommon, Leelanau and Wexford counties.

Eligibility for this assistance is determined by: 1) The total annual gross income, before taxes and other deductions, and the number of people residing in that household. For a household of one, the gross total income must be less than $7,475 per year. For each additional household member, add $2,500 per year. The maximum gross income for a household of four, for example, would be $15,125. 2) The annual cost of all fuels used for heating the home (minus the Department of Treasury's Home Heating Credit or Department of Social Services Special Heating Allowance) must exceed ten (10) percent of the total gross annual income. Electric costs can be included only if electric heat is used. There are a few instances where, if the household income is sufficiently low, they may automatically qualify.

Because the eligibility calculations are difficult and somewhat confusing, it is recommended that those who want to apply for the program contact NMHSA by phone to help determine whether or not they qualify. For those areas where a local office is a long distance, call (Cadillac: 775-8781; Traverse City: 947-3780; Petoskey: 347-9070) the NMHSA Targeted Fuel Assistance toll free number is 1-800-632-7334. Those who do qualify for Targeted Fuel Assistance must be able to provide proof of income and documentation of fuel costs.

Volleyball team seeks consistency

Jody Kluczynski returns a ball during a volleyball game against Cheboygan last week. Charlevoix opened strong, but faded later in the match.

Volleyball team seeks consistency

Charlevoix's varsity volleyball team is looking for consistency. Against Cheboygan last week, the Raiders started strong, winning the first game 15-12, but then they faded, losing the next three games 15-7, 15-8 and 15-3.

Charlevoix got some good net play in the match, but had difficulty serving and getting the ball to their setters.

servers. Kluczynski and Ann DeGow played well defensively for the Rayders while Kluczynski and Ann DeGow led the Rayder hitters. Tricia Sutton and Stacy Tilton were the Rayders best setters.

During the weekend, Charlevoix played in the Petoskey Burger King Volleyball Invitational tournament, winning one match and losing three. The Rayders beat Central Lake, but lost to Inland

Lakes, Grayling and Sault Ste. Marie

Monday night Charlevoix lost three of four games to Elk Rapids, but kept all of the games close. Charlevoix lost the first game 15-11, but bounced back to win game two 15-10 before dropping the final two games 15-10, 15-11.

Tammy Holm turned in a strong defensive effort for the Rayders.

Forfeits hurt wrestling team

Charlevoix wrestlers lost to St. Ignace 41-29 last Thursday. A lack of wrestlers in the three lowest weight classes resulting in forfeits put the Rayders in a big hole before they even put a wrestler on the mat.

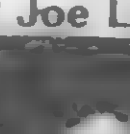

Brian Darrah, in the 152 pound weight class, recorded the only pin.

Rayder meet results by weight class follow:

103: loss by forfeit.
112: loss by forfeit.
119: loss by forfeit.
125: Shawn Young won by forfeit.
130: Paul Cunningham was pinned in 2:30.
135: Maki Hideyuki lost on a technical pin.
140: Chris McCallum won by a decision 2-0.

145: Jason Pajtas won on a technical pin.
152: Darrah won on a pin in 1:03.
160: Eric Emerson won by forfeit.
171: Joe Ehrcke won by forfeit.
189: Gabe Brock lost by decision, 13-9.
Hwy: Jim Marquardt was pinned in 1:03.

Charlevoix's varsity basketball team returned to action on high note: following Christmas break, beating St. Ignace 67-54 last Friday evening at St. Ignace.

The win brought the Rayders conference record to 3-1, one game behind Cheboygan in the Michigan Huron Shores League race. Charlevoix will host Cheboygan this Friday evening.

Charlevoix took the lead early and was ahead 19-3 at the end of the first quarter. Although the Saints gained a little ground in the second quarter, Charlevoix still went into halftime leading 36-29.

At one point in the second half the Saints closed to within five points, but they were never able to wrest the lead from the Rayders. Charlevoix went into the final quarter leading by 14 points and finished the game up by the same margin.

The Rayders were well-balanced in scoring. James Corwin had 17 points, Jason Corwin 16, Webb Friedly 15 and Todd Kovach 13. Kovach also had 10 rebounds.

St. Ignace fell to 1-3 overall and 1-4 in league play with the loss.

Charlevoix also won the junior varsity game 63-44. Brian Coolman led the Rayders in scoring with 24 points.

Skiers performing well

The Charlevoix girls ski team opened their season with a win over Gaylord and Harbor Springs Jan. 3 at Sylvan Resort.

Katherine Campbell finished first in giant slalom to lead the Rayder girls who finished with 47 points while Harbor totalled 53 and Gaylord 57.

Other Rayder girls finishing in the top 10 were: Campbell (3rd S, 1st GS); Heather Keller (5th S, 6th GS); Cynthia Boydston (8th S, 7th GS); Kim Keller (9th S); Kelly Heck (8th GS).

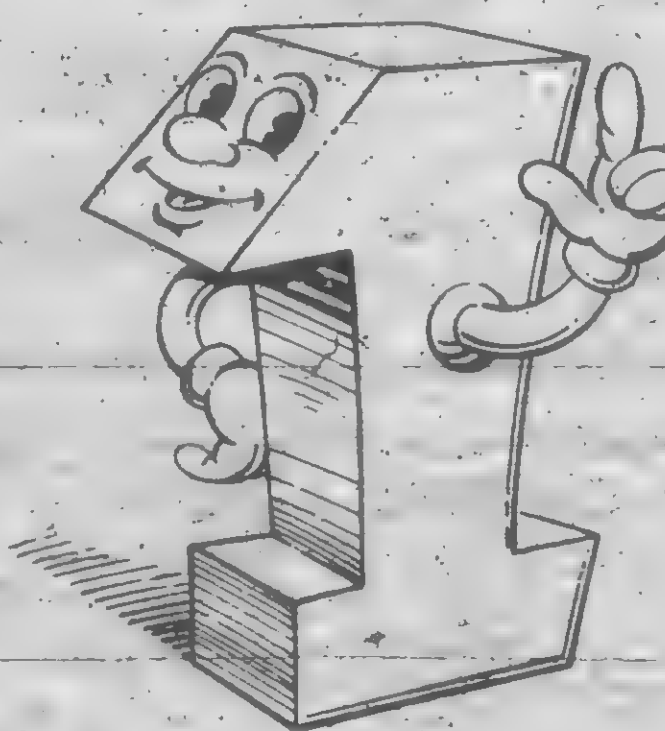

The Rayder boys did not fare as well in the meet finishing behind both Gaylord and Harbor Springs. Charlevoix's top racers in the boys race were: Jake Smith (7th S 7th GS) and Chris Pemble (6th GS).

Monday, Jan 8 the Charlevoix boys finished third while the girls finished fourth at a multi-team invitational at Boyne Highlands. Charlevoix's top finisher was Smith who finished tenth in the giant slalom.

Master gardening course offered

The Emmet County Cooperative Extension Service will be offering the "Master Gardener" program. The Master Gardener program has two goals: 1. To provide gardeners with up-to-date horticultural information and knowledge and 2. To furnish an opportunity for extending that knowledge to others in the community through volunteer activities.

To qualify as a Master Gardener, you must first complete a basic course offered through the local CES office. 30 hours of instruction are given by Extension Agents, Specialists and local resource people and then 40 hours of volunteer activity is required. The program will be held for 10 consecutive weeks on Tuesday evenings from 7:10 p.m. beginning January 23rd and ending March 17th. The classes will be held in Room 121 of the Petoskey High School, 1512 East Mitchell Street. Topics to be covered include:

Lawn Care, Soil Preparation, Fruit & Vegetable Production, Wildlife Habitat Improvement and Damage Control, Tree and Shrub Management, Flower Gardening, House Plant Care and Integrated Pest Management.

The course fee is $90.00 and includes all classes, materials and an excellent 500 page reference notebook.

For more information or registration forms, contact the Emmet County Cooperative Extension Service by calling 348-1771. Registration deadline is January 19, 1990.

HAYES TOWNSHIP AMENDMENT TO THE HAYES TOWNSHIP, CHARLEVOIX COUNTY, MICHIGAN ZONING ORDINANCE Ordinance #90-1 NOTICE OF ADOPTION

IT IS ORDAINED that the Hayes Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan Zoning Ordinance, adopted July 2, 1979, as amended thereafter, shall be further amended as follows:

ARTICLE II

SECTION 2.02 DEFINITIONS

BUILDING HEIGHT — The maximum height of a building or structure will comply with the following requirements:
Within 500 feet from a lake or stream — 25 feet
All other areas — 30 feet

The height will be measured from the median height between the eave and the peak or any other portion of the building, whichever is highest, except chimneys. Farm silos will be exempt from this height requirement.

Any roofline having an angle greater than 75 degrees is considered a wall, not a roof.

The building height for any structure or portion of a structure (having its ground floor in a single horizontal plane), is the vertical distance measured from the lowest elevation of the finished grade line of the ground around the structure to the highest point of the roof for flat roofs; to the deck line of the mansard roofs; and to the mean height level between eaves and ridge for gable, hip and gambrel roofs. Instructions below finished grade about the building for a stair or window wells, courts or yards designed in basements or cellars, to accommodate the minimum glazing area requirements of the BOCA/National Building Code shall not be considered when calculating building height. Building height for buildings having ground floors in two (2) or more horizontal planes at differing elevations may be calculated as if each ground floor plane area were a separate building.

Students learning now to say no later

Approximately 125 sixth grade students recently completed a 17-week DARE program. DARE is the acronym for Drug Abuse Resistance Education.

Trooper Charles Munyan from the Petoskey State Police Post taught the course in Charlevoix. He said subjects the students covered included: drugs, self-esteem, peer pressure, alternatives to drugs, consequences of drugs and ways to refuse them.

"We try to give them skills before temptations and pressures become a reality," Munyan explained.

DARE takes about one hour of class time during the 17 weeks it is taught. This is not the first year the program has been taught at Charlevoix Middle School, nor will it be the last. Munyan said the program will continue in the school for as long as it is desired by the school and community.

Other than the allocated time, the program costs the school nothing. Contributions from groups and individuals cover DARE instructional materials. The state police cover Munyan's wages while teaching the class.

Charlevoix St. Mary's students also go through the DARE program. Officer Sherry Martin of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department teaches the program at St. Mary's as well as in East Jordan and Bozette Falls.

Charlevoix Middle School students completing the program received certificates in a ceremony at the school Jan. 10.

People interested in learning more about the substance abuse education program in the Charlevoix school system are invited to a meeting sponsored by the Charlevoix Concerned Citizens group. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m., Jan. 18 in the high school study hall.

School faculty members Gayle Gennett, Connie Drury, Charlie Bentley and Toni Felter will explain programs offered in the elementary, middle and high schools.

...park study rejected

through increased assessed values in the DDA district and a special millage paid by property owners in the DDA district. DDA money becomes available when taxes are received.

The DDA is projected to have a $123,893 deficit at the end of the coming fiscal year (i.e. as of March 31, 1991).

At Monday evening's council meeting, DDA supporters contended there is a projected deficit because in the past year the city council has made the DDA shoulder the expense of sewer and electrical work which took place in the DDA district, but are for the benefit of other areas of the community.

Councilmember Ken Whitley said all of the council's decisions last year regarding which city funds would pay for which city projects were made in public meetings. He said the decisions were made following open discussions and nothing was hidden.

The council will have to decide how to cover the projected DDA deficit until DDA revenues come in. That could be done by loaning the DDA money from other city funds. That money would then be repaid with interest.

Against the backdrop of the DDA funding debate, councilmembers weighed their decision on the proposal for a study of Bridge Park.

Whitley and Russell wanted to know where funds for the study would come from. They also argued that even if the study made recommendations, there currently is no money available to carry out the recommendations.

Gaskin cited the importance of the city's waterfront area and said the council could go ahead with the study and determine how to fund it at a later date. Haggard said even though the city currently doesn't have funds to undertake a project in the park, a study would give the boat company an idea of the city's future plans.

Hoffman offered comments similar to Haggard's. She said the study would give the DDA planning commission and other city boards an idea of where they can plan on going with that entire area of waterfront.

Three engineering firms submitted proposals for the study. McNamee, Porter and Seely's was the most expensive at $22,000. Gourdie-Fraser and Associates, Inc. was the least expensive at $18,750.

City manager Mike Wiesner recommended accepting the McNamee, Porter and Seely proposal. He said that even though it would cost $3,250 more, McNamee, Porter and Seely are experienced in working with sewage treatment facilities and have done extensive work on the Charlevoix sewer system.

Gaskin made a motion, which Haggard supported, to approve the study and award the contract to McNamee, Porter and Seely. The motion failed 4-3. Gaskin, Haggard and Hoffman voted in favor. Russell, Whitley, Potter and Probert voted opposed.

Gaskin then made a second motion, which Hoffman supported, to approve the study and award the work to Gourdie-Fraser and Associates. That motion also failed by a 4-3 vote with councilmembers and the mayor voting along the same lines as in the previous vote.

In casting the tie-breaking vote, Probert said he was voting no because of questions as to where funding for the study would come from.

This past October, the Charlevoix Beta Mu chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi women's sorority hosted the Beta Sigma Phi state convention at Shanty Creek. In the process, the group raised $10,000 which they have contributed to charitable causes in Charlevoix.

Ann Hufford, who served as general chairman for the convention, said Beta Sigma Phi's international office was impressed in seeing a 16-member local chapter host a state convention. Approximately 700 women attended the convention which received mention in Beta Sigma Phi's international magazine.

The bid for the convention was decided two years ago. Charlevoix competed with chapters from several other communities for the bid.

Organizing the convention involved not only coordinating accommodations with the help of Shanty Creek, but also organizing dinners, guest speakers and entertainment.

Beta Sigma Phi has no affiliation with college women's sororities. The group began in the 1930s as a cultural and social group for women.

Beta Sigma Phi is broken down into three chapters: Kappa Sigma, Xi Epsilon Gamma, and Beta Mu. Charlevoix has one chapter of each and each Charlevoix chapter has approximately 20 members.

EDITH GILBERT

by Edith Gilbert

The curtain went up and lights went on for many happy children of the Char-Em School District this special week. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, a number of grades two through six were bussed by the schools to Petoskey High School Auditorium to see the live performance by the popular Prince Street Players in the "Wizard of Oz."

Now, on national tour, the Prince Street Players are celebrating their 25th anniversary this season. This professional group under the auspices of the Detroit Institute of Art charges $5 per person for performances in the DIA auditorium. Charlevoix and Emmet County youngsters are treated to the same show for free thanks to major funding from the Crooked Tree Arts Council, with additional funding from Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., Northwestern State Bank, First State Bank of Charlevoix and First of America Bank-Northern Michigan.

The children were dazzled by the costumes of the Tin Man, who is silver from his toes to his retractable head; the blue and red Scarecrow; by Glinda, the Good Witch, a vision in pastels; and the terrific looking soldiers in the Emerald City.

They laughed at the Cowardly Lion singing original lines like "No gals have I some klutz an' I" in a leonine manner.

Connie Tanner co-ordinated the difficult job of organizing the three day event. Says she, "We could have filled the auditorium for three more performances if we had the funding." Some area schools were most disappointed not to be able to send their youngsters. The Performing Arts Committee of Crooked Tree Arts Council tried very hard to give broad representation for this popular event. This year's lucky choices fell to the following schools. Monday, Petoskey Schools including Montessori; Tuesday, Charlevoix Schools and East Jordan's 4th grade; Wednesday, Alanson School and Petoskey's Lincoln School. In addition the cast from this year's Harbor Spring "Wizard of Oz" production attended the professional performance of the play as a comparative learning experience.

This is not the first time that Prince Street Players have been in our area. In previous years this outstanding group has performed "The Magic Flute," "Cinderella," and "Alice in Wonderland" in our schools. In those days their fee was $2000 compared to $5,500 today. CTAC has to think twice before making such a commitment. But when you hear a child telling his mother, "Mommy, mommy, there were real people on the stage!" it's worth all the fund raising effort.

We hear a lot about teaching our children how to say "No" to drugs and sex, but there are many of us who feel we also need to teach our children how to say "yes" to creative fantasy-to drama, dance, singing, music and all the performing arts.

The outstanding "Wizard of Oz" performance by the Prince Street Players has given us just such a delightful opportunity.

Entertainment on demand

Changing a diaper is something you can do and then move onto bigger and better things. Entertaining a baby, on the other hand, is an ongoing process.

"Ooh, ooh...oop, oop...baa, waa," she says impatiently with furrowed eyebrows.

"Don't start with me," daddy replies. "You're fine. Just sit there in your little chair, chew on your blanket and be good."

Daddy's admonitions carry no weight with a two-month-old. Like an engine starting on a cold morning, she spits and sputters a few times and then roars to life.

Prior to wailing, she usually waves one arm up and down. This is some type of baby respiratory warm-up exercise. Proper wailing volume requires the lungs to be filled to capacity.

"Blaaaaaa!!!"

"Fine. Come on we'll tour around the house for a few minutes," daddy concedes, lifting her up out of her baby seat. "But if you just keep hollering, I'm going to put you back down again."

She knows a hollow threat when she hears one, but she chews on her fist and scowls as she ponders it. At least she's stopped crying and that's an improvement. As she's carried into the living room, her little blue eyes dart back and forth.

Babies come equipped with a little gyro. The anatomical term for this gyro is the "infantile mobility mechanism." This gyro demands that the baby be carried around on a regular basis. If a parent who is carrying a baby has the audacity to stop and stand still for more than a moment, the little gyro alerts the baby and causes a reaction.

The reaction has no anatomical description, however there is a Latin term for it, "rageous majorous league," which, loosely translated, means "window-rattling fit."

Sometimes the baby doesn't demand that she, herself, be moved around. There are times when just being able to watch mom or dad move around is entertaining enough to keep her happy.

She likes to watch her mom sew. Bright colored materials are best. A sewing machine makes just enough noise to be interesting, but not frightening.

A computer is kind of like a sewing machine. The baby occasionally likes to sit on dad's lap and help him write. The computer makes little clicking sounds. It's also in the same room as the parakeets. Between the clicking and chirping, there are enough fun sounds to keep a baby amused for hours, sometimes up to 16 minutes.

Along with sounds, the computer also has stuff to watch. When dad taps the keyboard, little black spots flicker across the screen.

Helping dad write is not a passive thing for this baby. She participates in the process by offering her feelings on what's being written. Drooling on dad's arm means the last sentence passes muster. Spitting up on his shoulder means that last paragraph is just going to have to be reworked and the shirt changed.

She's a tough critic, particularly for someone who, as of yet, does not read.

The baby enjoys watching her mother cook. Sasquatch the dog also finds cooking to be an excellent spectator sport. While the baby is content to merely sit back and appreciate cooking for its artistic value, Sasquatch has some more tangible motives. Bits of warm food never cool when they drop to the kitchen floor in this household.

Currently, the baby is still not self-propelled so when bits of food are dropped, she just watches the dog go for them. Dad worries that once the baby starts crawling, she will feel an urge to compete with the dog when bits of food hit the floor. First come, first serve. Dad is already preparing and rehearsing a father-to-baby speech with the working title, "Pets are not role models, we don't eat off the floor."

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

Scotch to gather

Should auld acquaintance be forgot?

Of course not.

This is why a lot of auld acquaintances of the late Scottish poet Robert Burns will be getting together again this Friday night at the Holiday Inn in Petoskey to drink a toast to the poet, feast on Scottish delicacies and enjoy an evening of Scottish poetry, music and dancing.

Why in the world am I so wrapped up in things Scottish? My only link with old Scotland is a great-great grandfather, Alexander McMillan, who was born on the banks of the River Clyde almost 200 years ago.

He became a shipbuilder and when he got tired of building ships in the 1830s he hopped on one of them and moved to Canada with his wife and children.

That should have been the end of our Scottish connection, but Scots never forget who they are and where they came from.

His daughter, Agnes McMillan, was a haughty old Scot. She was a pillar of the Presbyterian Church in Windsor, Ontario, and named her son Robert Alexander after her dad, Robert Alexander. He returned the compliment by naming his daughter — my mother — Agnes McMillan after his mother.

They were so Scotch it hurt!

I REMEMBER visiting downtown Detroit with my mother when I was a kid and stopping reverently in front of the statue of Robert Burns that stood in a little park near Masonic Temple.

The best-laid schemes o' mice and men, my mother would intone as she started her Burns litany.

It was hard to avoid things Scottish when I was growing up. We lived in a Scotch neighborhood and attended a Scotch Presbyterian church. Sunday school lessons were taught in a Scots brogue by Scottish immigrants and a lot of my friends had Scottish accents. Even today I can't sing one of the old hymns or recite one of the familiar prayers without sounding like I just stepped off the boat.

And I am a Detroiter — born and bred.

IT WASN'T until I reached the age of majority — not necessarily maturity — that I began to appreciate having a few drams of Scotch blood in my veins. I discovered that Scots like to party and that Scotch bars were the most congenial in the entire city.

That was not true of the Irish pubs where there was always a fight brewing. Or Polish bars where you had to listen to accordion music and put up with a lot of foot-stomping. Or hill-billy bars where there was always a lot of whooping and hollering by guys who looked like they were wearing guns.

Scottish bars were warm, smoky and friendly — havens of urbanity and civility — at least until midnight. Then some old-differ in a kilt would climb up on a table with a set of bagpipes and the party would begin. The skirl of the pipes would bring additional customers in: off the street and before long the entire assemblage, arms around each other, would be singing "I Belong to Glasgow" and "Just a Wee Doch-an'-Dorris."

"SHOULD AULD acquaintance be forgot?" I should say not.

That is why I am looking forward to Friday night, Jan. 19. Chief Richard Kent, late of Edinburgh, promises a magnificent feast. The White Heather Dancers and piper Max Holden of Traverse City will be on hand, as will pianist Fran Tolles of Charlevoix and fiddler Krista Knight of Ironton.

There will be a recitation of "Holy Willie's Prayer" by Dan DeAgostino of the Little Traverse Civic Theater. There will also be other musicians and vocalists, and I plan to be there to talk a little about Burns and speculate on his probable reaction to recent political developments in Eastern Europe.

Some all-time Burns favorites like "The Cotter's Saturday Night" and "Tam-o'-Shanter" also are on the menu.

Tickets cost $20 and reservations may be made by calling the Holiday Inn at 347-6041.

The party starts at 7 p.m.

Bandshell funding changed

There was a time when fundraising was going to pay approximately half of the cost of building a new bandshell in East Park.

But that was yesterday and this is today. Things change you know. As things now stand, tax dollars will fund the lion's share, approximately 80 percent, of the bandshell project. Fundraising will contribute about 20 percent.

In April of 1989, early in the latest bandshell renovation effort, bandshell proponents estimated the project would cost $110,000 with about $56,000 coming from various city accounts and the rest from funds raised through private contributions.

Today, after some design and engineering costs have already been paid, the remaining estimated cost of the bandshell is $175,000. Proposed funding sources are: the aforementioned $56,000 from city accounts; $40,000 from a state grant; $50,000 from the city's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) funds; and the remaining $30,000 to be generated through fundraising.

Another interesting point is that the $110,000 and $175,000 won't buy the same thing. The $175,000 will pay for a scaled-back version of what was proposed when the price being quoted was $110,000. In other words, it's going to cost more to build less.

One of the more prominent design deletions in the current proposal is public restrooms. In and of itself, deleting public restrooms from the bandshell is no big deal. A pretty good argument can be made for putting public restrooms at the vacant lot on Clinton Street rather than in a park on the waterfront.

Deletion of the public restrooms only becomes significant when one takes a moment to recall the role public restrooms played in securing funds for the bandshell.

When the state grant was applied for, the indication at council discussions was that $40,000 from the state would help pay for the bandshell's public restrooms. But by the time the grant came through, the philosophy on spending it had changed. That $40,000 didn't necessarily have to be for public restrooms. Instead, it just went into the general bandshell pot.

The $50,000 from the DDA is being secured through similar circumstances. Initially, the city council opposed using DDA funds for the bandshell. But as time went on, the projected bandshell cost increased, people grew tired of talking about the bandshell and the council's position on using DDA funds for the project softened.

This past summer the council included $50,000 for the bandshell in the DDA proposed project list. The rationale was well, we're going to spend some money to put more public restrooms somewhere downtown anyway.

In recent weeks, there's been another of those changes in philosophy. No, that $50,000 doesn't necessarily have to be spent on public restrooms. Like the $40,000 state grant, the $50,000 from the DDA is now just in the bandshell's general pot.

The end result of all this is a proposed building with a price tag of $175,000. The pretense of funding public restrooms played a role in securing $90,000 of that $175,000. However, the building's not going to have public restrooms.

This is peculiar. The most disturbing part of the scenario is the DDA's $50,000 contribution, a contribution which will have to be covered by a loan for one year due to DDA funding problems. (See story page 1.)

Tax increment financing, which is the source of DDA funds, is a controversial funding mechanism.

At best, tax increment financing is a method of investing tax dollars to assure a strong community tax base for the future. Replacing sidewalks in the business district, or even funding a study to determine the future of city park and waterfront property could be used as local examples of that type of investment.

At worst, tax increment financing is a method of circumventing voters and establishing a tax-funded kitty to pay for whatever pet project pops up. Using $50,000 of DDA funds to pay for public restrooms in a building which isn't going to have any public restrooms certainly opens up the door for some skepticism.

Washburn-Wuepper

Kristina Washburn and Ed Wuepper exchanged marriage vows Saturday afternoon, December 30, at the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Sam and Jill Washburn of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Ken and Harriet Wuepper of Saginaw.

The Rev. Benton Heisler officiated at the double ring ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Approximately 75 guests witnessed the ceremony in the church sanctuary, which was decorated in Christmas colors and poinsettias.

The bride wore her mother's wedding dress of satin and lace and carried a bouquet of silk poinsettias.

Her twin sister, Kathy Washburn, served as maid of honor, and another sister, Kallie Washburn, was bridesmaid. They wore red ballerina-length gowns of satin and lace and carried silk poinsettias.

Tony Jablonski served the bridegroom as best man, and Corporal John Graham, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman. Jim Gibbs assisted in seating the guests.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Helen Moerland, who offered a solo, and by the Reverend Heisler, who joined her in a duet.

KRISTINA AND ED WUEPPER

A reception in the Church Hall followed the marriage ceremony. The bride's mother baked and decorated the wedding cake, and Jan Gibbs and Carolyn Olinger and aunts of the bride assisted with the reception.

The rehearsal dinner was held at Alexander's Restaurant. The newlyweds are at home in Saginaw, where the bride attends Saginaw Valley State College. The bridegroom will enter the Army in February. (Photography by Harry Gibbs)

Crafton-Hoffman

The engagement of Shauna Lynn Crafton to Paul William Hoffman is being announced. The bride-elect is the daughter of Lynda J. Farquhar of Okemos and Robert L. Crafton of Huntington Woods. She attended Okemos High School and graduated with honors from James Madison College, Michigan State University. She is presently working as a grants specialist and audience facilitator for the Mad Hatters in Kalamazoo.

Church of God honors Richardson

Delora Richardson was honored Sunday evening, Jan. 14, with a surprise birthday party given by her church family at the Community Church of God on Huribut Street.

Richardson was, last year, named Woman of the Year by the Women of the Church of God of Michigan.

She has been a very active member of the Community Church of God for approximately sixty years. Serving with the WOG on church committees, as church custodian, and opening her home for bible studies and committee meetings are a few of the many ways she has contributed to her church.

Richardson is known in her church and the community as a great cook and baker and has often used this talent to welcome new people into the church and to support several church projects, including the Church of God Campgrounds on Loeb Road.

Mary K. Jakielak

Funeral services for former Charlevoix resident Mary Katherine Jakielak, 29, and her infant son, Jared, were held Saturday, January 13, at St. Francis Catholic Church in Traverse City.

The two died of injuries suffered in an automobile accident in Mt. Pleasant on January 8.

The former Mary Katherine Skelly was born February 8, 1960 in Detroit and married Gary Jakielak September 29, 1984 in Dearborn Heights. She lived for a time in Charlevoix, where she was employed by Michigan Officeways and attended St. Mary's Church.

Survivors include the husband and father, Gary Jakielak of Sanford, and parents and grandparents Beulah (Bea) Jakielak of Suttons Bay and Dorothy Skelly of Livonia.

The Reynolds-Jonkhoff Funeral Home of Traverse City was in charge of arrangements.

Oddfellows lead cribbage tournament

Two weeks into the 80th annual Masons-Oddfellows cribbage tournament the Masons find themselves in a terrible hole. Following play Jan. 11, the Oddfellows lead by 110 points with eight weeks to play.

Last Thursday evening there were five and a-half tables in play with the Oddfellows outscoring the Masons 393 to 86.

The Masons poor showing couldn't be blamed on Ted Pennell. Pennell did all he could and was high Mason for the evening with 912 points. But Pennell's performance was offset by the likes of George Plumm and Bill Bergmann. Plumm and Bergmann shared the night's honors for the Oddfellows, each scoring 944 points.

Cribbage play resumes at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 18 at the Masonic Hall.

Correction

The Courier erred in reporting that the County Board of Commissioners received a 14 percent pay raise this year. That raise was given at the end of 1988, when their salary was increased from $175 to $200 a month. The Commissioners are still receiving $200 a month for attending two meetings each month.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Joe Johnston
Charlevoix Assembly of God
Have you ever sat still for an hour or two, just to think about God and try to fathom what he thinks about us? Every now and then I sit in my office and think. For many of us that would be unheard of; taking time out of our busy schedules to think. Well, I do it, and often the Lord reveals things to me. He lets me see things from a different perspective.

A few months ago we experienced a lunar eclipse and I spent some time relating an eclipse to God. Does God ever become eclipsed? Picture with me if you will, the sun shining brightly in the sky for all to see. Its radiance and glory is incredible. However, at certain periods in time the moon casually passes between the sun and our eyes.

As I view our culture and the changes we are experiencing here in America I am beginning to see possibly the era of a new dark age. The signs of the times all around us are gradually beginning to crowd out the thought, let alone the glory of God. Our knowledge, our wisdom, our abilities and intellect have taken the place of our faith in God. We are told not to trust in God but to trust in yourself. As Humanism and the "New Age" thought creeps into our society, God is slowly and continually being eclipsed by darkness.

The apostle Paul must have been looking ahead to 1990 when he wrote in Romans Chapter 1, Verse 21, "For although they knew God they neither glorified Him as God nor gave thanks to Him, but their thinking became futile and their foolish hearts were darkened." How appropriate is this passage for our time. In our minds we have become futile trying to rationalize and reason away God. However, much like the eclipse of the sun, the eclipse of God does not remove Him or make His existence extinct. He is still there behind the gloom and darkness of our minds. His glory is not less radiant now. We merely cannot see Him as we could, because of the moon that blocks His light.

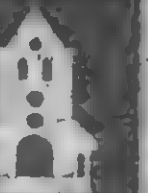

God is still here. He still loves us and wants to have intimacy with us. May we work harder than ever together to push the moon out of the way of our vision of God. God save America and the world from the eclipse and the "New Dark Age."

Area adult education thrives

Learning opportunities for older adults in northwest Michigan will be explored at a forum scheduled for Feb. 1 at Ferris State College in Big Rapids.

The gathering, sponsored by the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging, is being billed as an attempt to understand the learning needs and preferences of older adults who want to learn and the problems and concerns shared by those who are attempting to provide them with educational programs and learning services.

In Charlevoix, older adults are fortunate in having two different programs which offer opportunities for high school credits as well as enrichment experiences.

The Community Education program of the Adult Learning Center enrolls 25 to 30 adults, many of them older adults, each semester. This daytime program offers most of the courses required for high school graduation and other "just for fun" classes.

Last Year's Community Education graduating class included three older adults, two of them octogenarians. Interviews with these students at graduation time indicated that receiving their high school diploma was the climax to many years of wanting and wishing and finally working toward the goal already achieved by some of their grandchildren.

Most students in the Community Education program lack 10 to 16 credits, according to Sherry Black, program coordinator. This means it could take as long as three years to qualify for the high school diploma awarded by Charlevoix High School.

The subjects that last year's graduates mentioned as being their favorites were history, geography, psychology, current events, government, and drama.

Charlevoix High School also has an Adult Education program which offers high school completion courses and enrichment classes. Ken Bartley, who heads up the program, says that this spring's offerings will be typing, introduction to computers, United States history, and general education diploma preparation. He notes that older persons may be given credits for life experiences, military service, or general education diploma tests they have taken.

As might be expected, learning to use computers is a popular class for students of all ages, especially those who never heard the word during their earlier school years.

The high school Adult Education courses have about the same number of students enrolled as the Community Education program, but these classes meet during evening hours. Last year, one older adult received a diploma through the Adult Education program.

All interested persons are invited to attend the forum at Ferris State on February 1. Organizers hope that students as well as educators will present their suggestions to implement a better older adult education program. Among those serving on the planning committee for the forum are Rosemary Ternes of the Friendship Centers in Emmet County and Judith Shea of East Jordan, representing Northwest Senior Resources in Traverse City.

More information about the forum is available from Northwest Senior Resources, phone 947-8920.

Grange plans card party

The Barnard Grange would like to invite anyone interested in playing cards to come to the Grange Hall for a card party Saturday, Jan. 20, with the first deal at 8 p.m.

A potluck light lunch will follow, along with prizes for number of games won.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

Robert E. Newlon and Becky L. VanderArk have been named to Western Michigan University's first semester Dean's List. To be named to the list, students must have a minimum grade point average of 3.5 on a 4-point scale. Newton is a graduate of Charlevoix High School. VanderArk is a graduate of Ellsworth High School.

Melinda S. Morgan and John C. Tunison of Charlevoix have been named to Central Michigan University's first semester Dean's List. To be named to the list, students must have a minimum grade point average of 3.5 on a 4-point scale. Morgan and Tunison are both seniors.

Donna Jo Thorp of Charlevoix is among the fall graduates of Ferris State University. Thorp received an Associate in Applied Sciences degree as a medical record technician.

BUSINESS

Charlevoix Area Hospital recently erected a sign to help guide people to the right doorway in emergency situations.

Local dentists plan free appointments for uninsured

Four local dentists will each spend half-a-day providing free dental care for people who otherwise could not afford it. The dentists will be offering the service to people who fall through a crack in the health care system—people who don't have insurance and also don't qualify for Medicaid.

The free dental care program is called "Dentistry with a Heart." It is sponsored by the Vacationland Dental Society which is affiliated with the American Dental Association.

The schedule for the care will be as follows:
Dr. Robert Tollas, by appointment 9 a.m. to noon, Wednesday, Feb. 7.

Dr. John Merrill, 9 a.m. to noon, Friday, Feb. 9 for people less than 21 years old.

Dr. Dave Strawbridge, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Friday, Feb. 9.

Dr. Jeff Porter will be setting up a time to provide free care at his office on Beaver Island later in February.

Local dentists will also be providing a free dental screening for all Charlevoix K-5 students, Wednesday, Feb. 21. At the elementary school. Students will receive free tooth brushes at the screening.

...school board discusses pool, bus, athletics, ad board

Friends of the Pool and the Building and Site Planning Committee of the school board, to discuss the possibility of the elementary school as the site for the proposed pool.

Maybe told the board that Mothers for the Pool was formed by 20 women to report the results of the feasibility study to area organizations and government agencies, in an effort to raise the estimated $1.6 million dollars needed to build and maintain the pool, $850,000 of which the Friends of the Pool hopes to acquire from state and federal grants. Terri D'Angelo, Sue Mabes, Beth Strawbridge, and Mike Greeley also took part in the presentation.

In other business, Dale Burge updated the board on the progress of the plans for the new athletic league that Charlevoix schools will be participating in beginning next fall. Burge explained to the board that the athletic conferences were being restructured to form one large "umbrella" league, with several divisions in which area schools will compete based on size.

Burge said that the restructuring was a new concept, and was being attempted in order to create scheduling that was advantageous to all the schools involved. According to Burge, the advantages to Charlevoix included the ability to play similar-sized schools, to participate in a tennis conference and to cut down on team travel time.

Following Burge's report, Larry Levengood, board member, reported the transportation committee's recommendation for approval of bids for the purchase of a new bus. The board approved the motion to buy a bus for $29,364.00; the chassis from Auto-Mart, Inc. (Davis Chevrolet) for $17,173.00, the Bluebird body from AT & P Bus Sales for $12,191.00. Levengood explained that the bus would be able to run on either gasoline or propane, and because of fluctuating fuel prices, the transportation committee felt the flexibility was desirable.

Finally the question of the advertising board at the high school was raised again, by Richard Swenor, high school vice-principal. At the board's last meeting, Dave Smith, high school principal, had informed the board that the year trial period that the board had decided upon when the advertising board was installed was nearly up, as was the contract with the company from which the school rented the board. At that time, several board members raised questions about the usefulness and the cost of the board, and the matter was tabled.

Swenor answered the board's earlier questions Monday night, and outlined three options: 1) the school could return the board to the company; and nothing further would be owed; 2) the school could rent the board from the company and receive a percentage of the money earned from the commercial advertising displayed on the board year-round; or 3) the school could buy the board for $2800, and keep all of the proceeds from advertising. Swenor suggested that if the board chose the first option, it would be possible to replace the board with a less expensive version, and added that Brian Cetta, the high school shop teacher, had offered to build a replacement, not including the electronic message center, for $1000. Swenor told the board that he felt the students used the advertising board to keep abreast of school-related events and information, and that its placement at the entrance to the gym meant that people attending school events could use it also. He added, however, that members of the Sports Boosters had expressed concern about competition over advertisers in the area.

After discussion of possibilities for funding a similar, but less expensive alternative to the advertising board, the school board voted to return the present board to the company, and asked representatives of the Sports Boosters who were at the meeting to meet with Swenor and Smith to explore ways to solve the advertising question.

Girls State alumni sought

Michigan's American Legion Auxiliary seeks contact with any Girls State Program attendees over the past fifty years for 50th anniversary ceremonies to be held at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, Sunday June 10, 1990.

Attendees should mail information to: The American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Michigan, 212 N. Verlinden, Lansing, MI 48915 or phone (517)371-4720. Michigan's Girls State Program has sponsored approximately 20,000 students to this participatory government experience over five decades.

This year 946 Jr. year high school students will be attending the 50th program.

Fuel price problems reviewed

Congressman Bob Davis has urged the Secretary of Energy and the U.S. Attorney General to tackle the problem of skyrocketing fuel prices, calling it "a crisis" with life or death consequences.

"I have received dozens and dozens of calls from concerned Northern Michigan residents about the drastic increases in propane, home heating oil and diesel fuel prices," Davis said. "In some cases, the final cost to the consumer has actually doubled."

Davis asked the Justice Department to aggressively pursue any evidence indicating that oil companies have illegally fixed prices or agreed to limit the supply so that prices would rise.

Davis also asked the Department of Energy to pursue measures to ensure all available supplies reach areas in need as quickly as possible as well as any additional available relief to improve this "potentially life-threatening situation."

"Our district has areas which traditionally endure some of the most severe winter conditions in the country. This winter has been particularly harsh with Northern Michigan experiencing its coldest winter weather in 100 years. The problem of the record-breaking cold is compounded by the economic realities of Northern Michigan, where unemployment often exceeds the national average," Davis said.

Davis also said Congressional action may be necessary to prevent this type of situation in the future. Congress began a review of the issue yesterday when the House Energy and Power Subcommittee held a hearing.

"The federal government currently provides heating assistance to hundreds of Michigan families in need every winter. Obviously, if the price has doubled we will only be able to help half as many households and that would be a catastrophe for some," Davis said.

Davis' letter went to the U.S. Attorney General, Mr. Dick Thornburgh and the Secretary of Energy, Mr. James Watkins.

HIGH SCHOOL COMPLETION PROGRAM

The schedule below lists the classes which are being offered each night beginning the week of Jan. 23-24 and continuing for 17 weeks. These classes are FREE to those 18 or older who do not have their high school diploma or those under 20 who have their diploma. Any others are welcome in these classes for a fee of $25. Upon successful completion of each class you will be given 1/2 credit toward the credits needed for your diploma. If you have already completed a number of credits, call us so we can find out how many classes you should take to complete your work. Age does not matter; an older person may be given credits for life experiences, military service, or G.E.D. tests that have been taken. You may be surprised at how close you are to that diploma...so call and find out. The phone number to call to enroll or inquire about your situation is 547-3222.

A SPECIAL OFFERING FOR SENIOR CITIZENS

The Elementary School will be open starting on Tuesday, January 23 at 7:00 p.m. for those who wish to WALK. Candy Smith will meet with you the first evening to discuss walking techniques and other physical fitness concerns and from then on you may use the building any day, Monday through Thursday, from 4:00 - 9:00 p.m. and 4:00 - 8:00 p.m. on Friday. There is NO CHARGE for this service, so take advantage of the indoor, carpeted halls of the elementary school to stay fit this winter.

To enroll:

1. Call 547-3222 to sign up for any class or classes; your class will meet as scheduled unless you are notified to the contrary. The LAST DAY to sign up for these classes is Friday, January 19, 1990. At this time any classes with insufficient enrollment will be canceled and those that signed up will be notified. Pay the class fee on the first night.

2. All classes will begin during January 22-25 and meet at the high school unless stated otherwise. Room numbers will be posted at the entrance.

3. Since initial enrollment determines whether a class will be held or not, there will be no refunds after the start of the class.

Mothers March seeks volunteers celebrates 40th anniversary

The Mothers March recruitment drive for marchers kicks off this week in Charlevoix. Joy Halverson will chair the drive in Charlevoix.

People from the community will be making calls to line up marchers to help in the fight against birth defects which currently strike one out of every 14 babies born in this country.

The Mothers March is celebrating its 40th anniversary this year. Initiated in Phoenix, Arizona, it was the response of concerned parents to the latest polio epidemic in that town. When the March of Dimes turned its attention to birth defects, the tradition continued and while American lifestyles have changed, thousands of volunteers continue to show their concern for children by joining the march.

Oleson's Food Stores will be returning this year as corporate sponsor of the event and as such will be providing the funds to cover supplies for marchers, advertising, as well as an additional health message and valuable coupons for each home visited by a marcher.

Anyone interested in joining the march may contact Halverson. It is not necessary to be a mother to participate in the campaign. A person needs only to be someone who wants to give tomorrow's children a healthy start in life.

Goals for city discussed

Members of various city commissions and committees met with the city council Monday evening to discuss goals and priorities for the city's future.

Although the 40 to 50 people in attendance were not unanimous in agreeing with all views expressed, the meeting was one of the most civil and harmonious city council meetings in recent years.

City manager Mike Wiesner opened the meeting with a presentation of a list of city council goals and priorities which the council last revised in September of 1989.

The list Wiesner referred to lists 29 high priority goals. Examples of the goals listed include: making Ferry Avenue Tax Increment Financing Authority improvements; implementing electric system improvements; revising the airport master plan; determining what to do with the old water tower; and revising the city's policies on lakeshore zoning.

Some goals on the council list such as paying the industrial park have and tearing down an old house the city owned on Palmer Street have been completed since the list was last revised.

The council is now beginning the process of revising the list again. Mayor Gary Probert invited the various city commissions and committees to send representatives to Monday evening's council meeting to make the council aware of their goals and priorities.

Among city committees and commissions represented were: Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA); Planning Commission; Airport Master Plan Committee; Golf Course Master Plan Committee; Shade Tree Commission; City Master Plan Revision Committee; Downtown Development Authority (DDA); and the Parks and Recreation Commission.

In an informal two and a-half hour discussion the commission representatives and council members touched upon a wide range of issues.

Issues receiving the most discussion were: the recent rejection of a Beaver Island Boat Company proposal to study the future of Bridge Park and the waterfront area adjacent to it; the size of proposed new parking lots near Ferry Beach; a proposal to amend the city charter to allow the city to regulate development over Round Lake; eliminating zoning requirements which are redundant; encouraging planning on an area-wide basis; sprucing up some city-owned buildings which have deteriorated.

Several people said they feel the city did the wrong thing in rejecting a request from the Beaver Island Boat Company to fund a study of Bridge Park and the adjacent waterfront. When boat company officials made the request, they indicated they wanted to plan for the future of their company and in order to do so need to know what the city's plans are for the area where the boat company is located. By a 4-3 vote, the city council rejected the request, saying they didn't know where they would find the approximately $20,000 it would cost to fund the study.

Pat Jackson was among those to criticize the decision. He said the city should be willing to cooperate with private business. He called the Beaver Island proposal "a golden opportunity that was wasted."

Jeff Porter questioned Ferry Beach TIFA plans which call for a second parking lot which is even larger than the current Ferry Beach parking lot. He also questioned a proposal to construct an 82-car parking lot at Depot Beach.

"I think we've got to take a close look at what we're doing in these projects," he said. Councilman Ken Whitley Continued on page 7

Introducing "Charlevoix Memories"

(Editor's Note: "Charlevoix Memories" is a Charlevoix Courier feature making its debut this week.

Each segment of "Charlevoix Memories" will feature an older person who has been in Charlevoix for a number of years and who can offer insight into some aspect, or aspects, of the community's past.

We are attempting to compile a list of older people to interview. Readers who wish to suggest names to add to the list for future interviews are welcome to call the Courier office at 547-6558.

Geoff Reynolds is writing "Charlevoix Memories." Reynolds is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and Central Michigan University. He has a long-standing interest in the history of Charlevoix and has done work with the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Two important goals of a community newspaper are to serve as an instrument of record and to entertain readers. We hope "Charlevoix Memories" helps answer both callings.

"The first thing I can remember about Charlevoix was when I was very young and had to go next door to Gieken's house and borrow a cup of sugar for my mother. In those days we went barefoot so that we could save our shoes for school. So I went outside and the ground was covered by seven year locust. The swarms had come down and I was running across them screaming and then I finally turned around and went for my shoes. They just darkened the skies as they came in from Canada. This was my first experience in Charlevoix, that I can remember."

As a native son of Charlevoix, Ralph Hamilton can remember many things about his hometown much more pleasant than a locust invasion.

Born in 1904, Hamilton remained in Charlevoix and attended school until the eleventh grade. During his school days he worked for his father at the Hamilton and Son Boat Yard. He ran the row boat rentals to the Belvedere Club for a quarter an hour or a dollar twenty-five per day as his father continued the Students to visit U.S.S.R.

Ten area students are planning to take a three-week trip to the Soviet Union in June. They and their parents met at the home of Gunnar and Doris Lundteigen Jan. 18 to discuss the journey.

The students: Troy Bonar, Katherine Campbell, Scott Campbell, Michelle Carlson, Edith Pair, Tonya Rostar, Stacy Skeel, Charlevoix; Jennifer Breidenstein, Boyne City; Julie Brunett, East Jordan and

Ashley Brower, Petoskey, have been selected to participate as student ambassadors in the People-to-People Friendship Caravan. They will be part of an 1800 member group of young people traveling in the Soviet Union for 3 weeks.

Since the cost of the trip is $3,800, fund-raising was a big topic of discussion.

The first area-wide fundraiser will be a car drive to take place between Jan. 25 and Jan. 29.

Additional fund-raising activities include a March 2nd fifty-fifty drawing, a bowlathon scheduled for March 25, collection of Glen's slips and donations.

The students are available in their communities to talk with service groups about the Friendship Caravan.

Private contributions may be sent to Patty Muma, Treasurer, 1500 Park Ave., Charlevoix, Michigan. Donations are tax deductible.

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Stubbornly witnessing a mistake

This coming Monday evening the city council will give final approval to the bandshell design and the proposed means of funding it.

I will be present to witness this mistake.

Years from now, if I am fortunate enough to survive and become an old duffer, I will shuffle past East Park and look down at the bandshell and smile.

My little daughter is only two months old, but I want her to grow up and give me a grandchild. Many years from now, I want to shuffle past East Park with my grandchild at my side.

I will peer at the bandshell through bifocals. I will raise my cane, point it at the bandshell and tell my grandchild, "You know, that's a nice old bandshell, but the way they got the money for it still doesn't sit well with me. It wasn't right."

I am a stubborn man. What can I say? I plead genetics. I come from a long line of stubborn people. Stubbornness is a dominant gene not on just one, but on both sides of my family.

Last week I wrote an editorial concerning the bandshell. I wanted to point out some things which I feel people in the community should be aware of things which I don't think should be lost in the shuffle.

I attempted to make three points in the editorial.

First point: When the bandshell project was originally proposed, the city's contribution was only going to be approximately $55,000. This would come from two park funds and the sale of a piece of city property. Bandshell proponents said the remainder of the money would come from private contributors.

Second point: During the course of lengthy debate, the proposed means of funding the bandshell changed. The most interesting changes concerned incorporating public restrooms in the bandshell. A $40,000 grant was secured from the state. A $50,000 contribution was secured from the city Downtown Development Authority (DDA).

Public restrooms were, at the very least, mentioned during discussions leading to acquiring this $90,000. When it was discovered that the bandshell is going to cost much more than originally estimated, public restrooms were dropped, but the $90,000 stayed with the project.

Point three (last but by no means least): Using $50,000 of DDA money to build the bandshell is inappropriate. Although the bandshell may end up being a beautiful structure, using DDA money to build it is wrong. It is using the DDA as a slush fund to pay for a pet project.

This past Monday, the city council indicated that on Jan. 29 they will go with the flow, joining the DDA, Planning Commission and Parks and Recreation Commission in voicing bandshell approval.

I believe I can make logical arguments against using $50,000 of DDA money to fund the bandshell. I don't believe proponents of using DDA funds for the bandshell can even come close to adequately refuting these arguments. I concede there may be a correlation between stubbornness and arrogance.

The city established the DDA as a means of using certain tax funds for downtown projects which will assure the city a strong tax base in the future. That's a valid premise.

Constructing a public parking lot was one project DDA money funded. Replacing business district sidewalks was another.

Those projects are necessary improvements to the business district and should lead to a stronger tax base.

A bandshell in the park is a nice thing, but it is not a necessity and will have minimal effect on the community's tax base.

Jan. 15, the city council rejected a request to fund a study which would determine future city priorities for Bridge Park and the adjacent waterfront.

Determining the future of a downtown park and an important segment of the city's waterfront is something which could be construed as necessary and related to improving the community's tax base.

But the study carried a price tag of about $20,000. The reason given for turning it down — no funds.

Try to reconcile that decision with spending $50,000 of DDA money on the bandshell. It can't be done.

In 1968, there were people clamoring to hurry up and tear the old bandshell down. Now, there are people who are tired of hearing about the bandshell issue and who are in a hurry to get it behind them. If that means undermining the premise on which the DDA was formed, so be it.

I anticipate seeing the city council fall in line this coming Monday and giving final approval to using $50,000 of DDA money to fund bandshell construction. I feel that decision will be wrong. Fifty years from now, I'll still feel that decision is, or by then was, wrong.

But, as I said, I'm a stubborn person.

Islanders mourned

Charlevoixans — as well as Beaver Islanders — are mourning the death of Frances LaFreniere, 69, who was killed in an automobile accident Jan. 20 near St. Johns.

Mrs. LaFreniere and her husband Archie, former proprietor of the famous Shamrock Bar on America's Emerald Isle, were en route to a winter vacation on the Florida Keys when the accident happened.

For generations, members of the LaFreniere family have been part of the landscape on Beaver Island and have played an important role in establishing the island's wide reputation as a friendly place to visit.

At the time of her death, Mrs. LaFreniere operated LaFreniere's Isle Haven Tourist Court.

The accident, which occurred on icy pavement during blustery weather, left Archie and one of the LaFrenieres' daughters, Mrs. Ken (Loretta) J. Slater of Dewitt, badly injured.

The LaFrenieres' children were planning a super shindig on the island next summer to celebrate their parents' golden wedding anniversary.

The tragedy has touched many lives on Beaver Island and the mainland, forcing the cancellation of many plans and dreams.

IT IS A LITTLE overwhelming to realize that Cardinal Edmund Szoka, who once was a familiar figure in the snowy hamlets of Northern Michigan, has been named to one of the most prestigious posts in the Vatican by Pope John Paul II.

Szoka, 62, has been appointed president of the Prefecture for Economic Affairs and one of his first tasks will be working the kinks out of the Holy See's budget, which is running a multi-million dollar deficit.

Considering Szoka's non-sense approach to church financing, resolving the problem should be as easy as rolling off a communion rail.

But I hope he hires a good PR man to effect whatever economies he feels necessary in order to prevent a recurrence of the Detroit fiasco.

You'll recall that Szoka, founding bishop of the Gaylord Diocese, left Northern Michigan to become archbishop of the Detroit Diocese which was suffering a budget crunch because many of the older parishes weren't paying their own way. Almost all of them were located in the crime-ridden inner-city, and most of them had lost membership, at least in part, to the white-flight to the suburbs.

Those members who remained did so because they were too poor to move anywhere else. They abounded in faith, to be sure, but they didn't have the money needed to heat, light and maintain their drafty old inner-city churches, many of which were as big and impressive as cathedrals elsewhere in the world.

Szoka and his staff did their research and came up with a list of 35 churches which should be closed. They announced their decision to the various parishes over closed-circuit TV — and all hell broke loose, if you'll pardon the expression.

Now Szoka's decision was probably the right one. There is no way a parish with an aging population in an undesirable neighborhood is going to attract sufficient membership to cover the enormous expenses involved in church maintenance and repair.

But the decision to close the churches should not have been dictated from above. It should have been reached by members of the dying parishes themselves after reviewing facts and figures supplied by the diocese. Who knows? Some of them may have come up with innovative ways to remain solvent.

Those that were unable to do so might have entered into amicable mergers with nearby parishes or leasing arrangements with compatible organizations or congregations.

Some of these things actually have happened, but not until after the "closing" announcement had done its damage.

At the very least, the decision to close or fight would have been made democratically and hard feelings would have been held to a minimum.

Unhappily, Szoka's "Me Tarzan, you Jane" approach to the problem has left wounds on Detroit's already blighted neighborhood that may never heal.

I hope he treats more softly in the streets of Rome.

... Hamilton recalls Charlevoix expansion of the family boatyard on Beveledere Avenue.

"There was a woman named Miss Tate who did the ladies hair at the Chicago Club who had me ferry her across Round Lake twice a week. I got a quarter per trip tip and father got a quarter for the rental. But that quarter was well earned each trip. As I neared the Chicago Club in the Old River I received the full wrath of papa swan that nested near there. Nearly every time he attacked me. What an experience for a boy."

Other experiences Hamilton remembers concerned the downtown area and the characters it contained. "I remember when the George, Priest, Building (Parkside Restaurant) was the office of Dr. Armstrong and Dr. Barney the dentist upstairs and Priest's Photography Studio downstairs. I also remember Fagan's Saloon (Chamber of Commerce lot) and the Charlevoix Cigar Company.

I loved the smell of the green tobacco as Mr. Gunderson, I think was his name, as I sat and watched him dip the cigars into some sort of solution and slowly roll about one box per day."

In 1925 Hamilton traveled to Grand Rapids to attend what is now the Davenport Business College. There he received his degree in accounting. Hamilton also spent time in Charlevoix as a U.S. Coast Guard Surfman. Joining in 1921 at the age of seventeen, he became one of seven men who manned the lifeboat. Although he never experienced the thrill of venturing out into a raging Lake Michigan storm, he did participate in several river accidents until leaving the Coast Guard in 1923. "I bought myself out of the Guard in a way," he chuckles. "I had to pay for my yearly clothing or stay in for another year to pay for it, so I raised the money and got out with an honorable discharge."

In 1926 he married Margaret Churney, a longtime sweetheart from Middletown, Ohio, and Charlevoix summer resident.

As World War II came to Charlevoix, Hamilton remained in Charlevoix due to his age and ran the Charlevoix Service Organization. He raised money for the war effort and entertained returning soldiers and the local U.S. Coast Guard Servicemen with fresh war films from Europe and Asia. He also saw that many soldiers overseas received the "Charlevoix Courier" and also kept contact through letters.

During World War II Hamilton also had an odd experience when he served as a lookout for Axis airplanes in the old Ayers house, thought to be a haunted house for a long time in Charlevoix. Ralph laughs "Well Mrs. Ayers was kind of a recluse in that big old house. She lived in one room alone and collected everything, never throwing anything away. Well, they said it was haunted, but I never saw anything strange when I spent Friday afternoons in the tower of the house. I wandered around all the rooms and just saw old items laying around. I never saw any ghost, but then again I don't believe in ghosts." Well, we will never know, as the house, situated on the corner of State and Hurbit streets, was torn down in 1946.

After the war, Hamilton worked for the Charlevoix County Road Commission, Wallace and Browns's service station and continued his growing accounting business, which still keeps him busy today.

defended the need for additional parking at Ferry Beach.
"Parking lots aren't attractive. They're necessary," Whitley said. He said that for the average person, Ferry Beach and the boat launching ramps it includes are the only access to Lake Charlevoix. Whitley maintained that present Ferry Beach parking facilities are not adequate and therefore additional parking must be added.

Planning Commission member Carol Sullivan addressed the need for a charter amendment to allow the city to regulate development on Round Lake. She said Charlevoix's current zoning policies stop at the shoreline. At the direction of the council, city attorney Jim Young has been reviewing the possibility of such an amendment.

ZBA vice chairman Kevin Whitley and city zoning administrator Sue Erber asked the council to review the city's site plan process. Erber said the current process requires applicants to go through a series of meetings which are redundant. Sullivan and fellow planning commission member Bud Kohler were among several people calling for Charlevoix to work with surrounding townships and communities and take a more area-wide view of planning.

"We can't just be a little island," Kohler said.
Michelle Rick-Biddick, councilmember Pat Gaskin and ZBA member Norm Probert encouraged making recycling and solid waste management a city priority.
Rick-Biddick will give the council a more detailed recycling presentation at a later date. Monday evening, she said two immediate goals the council should consider are expanding the city's composting program and working toward establishment of a recycling drop-off center.
Mayor Gary Probert noted that there are several city-owned buildings which need to be spruced up. Councilmember Cheri Hoffman agreed.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

From days gone by, the story is told of a high wire walker who stretched his cable across Niagara Falls from the U.S. to the Canadian side. He thrilled onlookers with his skill at going back and forth over the wire. After several successful trips, he came back to his audience and traded his usual balancing pole for a wheelbarrow. He then proceeded to repeat his performance pushing the wheelbarrow in front of him.

Needless to say, the audience was more than impressed. They were thrilled. Everyone recognized the man's obvious skills and abilities. When the artist returned to his audience this time, he asked what they thought of his performance. He was rewarded with wild cheers. He asked what they thought of the addition of the wheelbarrow. Again wild applause followed. Then he inquired if they thought he might be able to carry someone across in the wheelbarrow. No one expressed any doubts.

You may be able to guess what happened next. He asked for a volunteer to ride across the Falls with him. All the confidence, all the enthusiasm, all the trust the crowd expressed in his abilities instantly disappeared. Nobody wanted to take the ride.

There are times we all tend to look at life in a similar fashion. It is marvelous to see someone who seems to have it all together just sail through every situation they face. It can also be a bit frustrating when our own day to day journeys can seem to be like walking across a shaky high wire.

Most of those who have it all together will freely tell you what the difference is. They have put their daily lives in someone else's hands. They have never handled things on their own. They believe in the skills and the abilities of the One who has covered the ground they cross time and time again with confident assurance. They trust God.

You were never meant to be alone in your daily walk. You were always meant to have the company of an expert in what life is truly all about. Jesus stands at the door of your heart prepared to come in and take you across, around or through whatever challenge you may face. There simply is no substitute for putting your trust in Him.

FOCUS meeting looks at this area's future needs

by WENDI WRIGHT

FOCUS hosted another in the group's series of Forums last Wednesday night; the topic of discussion was growth and development in the Charlevoix area. The program, titled "Where Do We Go From Here?" covered several issues and questions, including the effectiveness of master plans in the community planning process, affordable housing in the Charlevoix area, and the feasibility of regional planning.

Organizations represented at the Forum included the City Council, Downtown Development Authority (DDA), Charlevoix Historical Society, Lake Charlevoix Association, Hayes Township, the Congregational Church, Marion Township Planning and Zoning Commission, Charlevoix County Planning Commission, "Keep Charlevoix Beautiful," and the Boyne City Commission. Moderator Patti Ulrich read two letters from people who could not attend the meeting; one from Doris Pearl, on behalf of the Norwood Township Planning Commission, the other from City Manager Mike Wiesner.

The first major topic discussed was the effectiveness of master plans. Ulrich asked each representative to comment on the status of his organization's master plan. Several people said they feel that their organizations' master plans became outdated almost as soon as they are adopted, because of the rapid changes taking place in the Charlevoix area during recent years. Dave Novotny, Chairman of the Master Plan Committee for the city, remarked that even five years is too long to wait to update a master plan.

Paul Hoadley, representing Hayes Township, echoed this view. He said that Hayes Township's master plan is only four years old, and already it is outdated. Hoadley added that because of lack of building space in Charlevoix and on the lake, Hayes Township is feeling intense pressure to develop, and that he doesn't feel the plan addresses the issue comprehensively.

Jeff Porter, representing the DDA, raised the question of the effectiveness of master plans. "We can draft as many plans as we want," he said. "But we need politicians who will stand up and say this is what the plan says; that's how it is."

Raymond Giffin, representing the Board of Community Outreach of the Congregational Church, was the first to raise the issue of affordable housing in the area; specifically, the difficulty middle and lower income families are having finding affordable homes.

Novotny said he thinks that the city of Charlevoix is approximately 95 percent developed, and he feels there is simply no more room. Hoadley pointed out that affordable housing is a natural casualty when a community with limited space promotes growth and creates a demand for property; demand exceeds supply, prices go up, and those in the middle and lower end of the income spectrum get "squeezed out."

Larry Levensgood, representing the Charlevoix County Planning Commission highlighted another aspect of the problem: summer homes. Levensgood pointed out that a significant percentage of the available homes in the area, are owned by summer residents, and stand empty throughout the winter. "This is a major problem for the schools," he said. "Enrollment is going down because of the housing issue."

Finally, the group discussed the feasibility of "regional planning." Hoadley suggested that in conjunction with city and township planning, efforts should be made to draft a plan that will encompass and protect the interests of the entire area. "If anything comes out of this group," he said, "I think that's something we ought to try to foster."

BUSINESS

Central Drug Store owners will open second pharmacy

Although a pharmacy which will be part of the Charlevoix Commons shopping complex being constructed on M-66 will be something new, it won't be something unfamiliar. John and Lani Ochs, owners of Central Drug Store in downtown Charlevoix, will also be the owners of the new pharmacy.

The new pharmacy does not mean there will no longer be a Central Drug Store downtown. The new pharmacy is an addition, not a replacement. The downtown Central Drug Store will continue to serve Charlevoix from the corner of Bridge and Clinton Streets, a location it has occupied since 1897.

Depending on construction progress, the new pharmacy will open either late this summer or early in the fall.

In some ways the new store will be much different than the downtown store, but in other ways it will be much the same.

Size will be the most noticeable difference. The new store will have 5,000 square feet of floor space. That's two and a half times larger than the downtown store. The space will allow the store to carry a large selection of cards and gifts along with being a full-line drug store. The new store will also stay open later in the evenings in conjunction with other stores in the Commons.

Although physical dimensions of the new store will be different from the downtown store, there are other dimensions to the two stores which will be much the same.

"We'll be a full-service store with a lot of personal contact," John Ochs said.

When asked what prompted the decision to operate at second pharmacy at the Commons, Ochs explained that the developer of the project planned for the complex to include a pharmacy and discussed the prospect with Ochs and his wife.

John and Lani Ochs say they feel many shoppers will be attracted to the new shopping complex. The new pharmacy will be adjacent to a grocery store, allowing people the convenience of dropping off their prescriptions to be filled while they do their grocery shopping.

Curbside recycling proposed

Charlevoix residents may soon find recycling at their front door. Northwest Recycling is considering initiating a curbside recycling program which could begin as early as March.

"If we can get enough people interested to start it up, we'd start it in the city limits like we do in Traverse City," Northwest Recycling owner Skip Canfield said.

In order to participate in the program, people would purchase tags and attach the tags to bags containing recyclable products. People will also receive a sheet of paper explaining what items can be recycled and to separate them properly for recycling. People interested in the curbside recycling program may call 941-0245.

Since late fall, Canfield has operated a recycling drop-off site on North U.S. 31, in the building which formerly housed Hufford Industries. That site accepts recyclable products from households on Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturdays between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m.

City gets $125,000 grant

Pending a stamp of approval from the legislature and governor, Charlevoix will receive a $125,000 state grant to cover half of the costs of improvements planned at Ferry Beach.

Jan. 10, the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund Board recommended approval of Charlevoix's grant application. Approval of the legislature and governor is expected by this fall.

Project plans include improving the boat launching ramps, constructing a walkway through the wetland area at the north end of the beach, constructing a picnic shelter, new concession stand, a parking lot and sewer lines to serve the beach and park.

City manager Mike Wiesner expects the project to begin either this fall or in the fall of 1991 and be completed in the following spring. Wiesner explained that rather than beginning the project in the spring and risk having things torn up during the busy summer season, it makes more sense to begin in the fall, even if that requires waiting during the spring of 1991.

Charlevoix applied for the grant in March of last year. Initially, the application was for 75 percent of the project cost, but that was later revised to a 50 percent request. The local share of funding will come from the Ferry Avenue Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA).

Charlevoix applied for the grant three times, receiving approval on the third try.

Money for Natural Resources Trust Fund grants is derived from royalties and the leasing of state land for oil and gas drilling.

In the past year, the state received 333 grant applications which requested a total of more than $100 million. However, the Trust Fund Board only had $24 million to award. By law 75 percent of Trust Fund money must be used for land acquisition.

This year the Trust Fund Board recommended awarding grants to 67 of the 333 applicants. Of the 67 awards, 43 were for land acquisition. Charlevoix was one of 24 grant applicants receiving funding for a project involving development or construction.

Senior Center receives $8,000

The Charlevoix Senior Center is $8,000 closer to completing renovation of the old Charlevoix Township Hall for its new home. The Michigan Office of Services to the Aging announced last week that it had awarded a second grant of $8,000 to the Senior Center to support "Phase II" of the project.

Previously, the Center had received $16,900 in state grants toward the project, which includes a new heating system, plumbing, and electrical work.

Council rejects tower for Mount McSauba

The city council has unanimously rejected a proposal to put a 300-foot tower atop Mount McSauba.

A group called PACE (Providing Academics Cost Effectively) which is affiliated with the CharEm Intermediate School district initially made the request for a tower last year.

At that time, council members said they wanted to see how many trees would have to be cut and how much of the mountain would be blocked off due to wires supporting the tower. The tower would require three sets of three wires to support it.

PACE officials had trees which would have to be removed marked at Mount McSauba and council members took a first hand look at the site Jan. 8.

PACE director Jack Keck explained that the tower would serve school districts in five counties. It would allow the school districts to improve their course selection by offering interactive television classes.

Mount McSauba attracted PACE because of its height and proximity to the CharEm office on Mercer Road. The CharEm building will serve as a feed station for the broadcasts.

Councilmembers spoke in support of the goals of PACE, but following the Jan. 8 tour and comments from people attending the Jan. 13 council meeting voted against putting the tower on Mount McSauba.

Pat Jackson of the city Shade

Tree Commission said the commission did not want to see the trees cut at Mount McSauba. The tower would have required the removal of approximately 50 trees.

City recreation director Ike Boss said Mount McSauba is a sand dune and very fragile. He noted that in 1983, $145,000 was spent putting in trails at Mount McSauba and the tower wires would block two of those trails. He also said the tower and wires would cut off 50 percent of the hill, should the city decide, in the future, to expand the Mount McSauba recreational area.

Dan Terryberry (21) puts a shot up over a Rogers City player during Friday night's game. The Rayder win raised the team record to 5-1 in conference play.

Volleyball team loses twice

Charlevoix's junior varsity volleyball team won, but the varsity lost two matches at Harbor Springs Monday night.

The varsity played a total of five games. They played a pair of best-of-three matches: Harbor Springs won the first match 15-4, 12-15 and 15-3. They took the second match in two straight games 15-10, 15-3.

Top Charlevoix setters were Stacy Tilton and Tammy Holm. Top servers were Ann Marie Hogan and Tilton. Defensive standouts were Jodi Kuczyński and Ann DeGrow. Offensive honors went to Tilton and Holm. In the junior-varsity match, Charlevoix won with individual game scores of 15-4, 12-15 and 15-3.

Lori Darrah and Angelina Doan were the Rayders' top setters while Darrah and Stacy Skeel led the team in serving. Stacy Wisdom and Doan contributed a strong defensive match while Aaron Sue Brook and Elena Gebott played well offensively. Charlevoix travels to Sault Ste. Marie Wednesday, Jan. 24.

Planned parenthood to host Detroit columnist

Detroit Free Press columnist Evelyn Petersen will speak on "Parent Love—A Matter of Positive Choices" at Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood's 20th Annual Meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 31 in Charlevoix.

The dinner meeting is open to the public and will take place at Pointes North on Bridge St. at 6 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at NMPP Clinics in Petoskey (820 Arlington Ave.) and Traverse City (126 Boardman).

"We are very pleased to have Evelyn Petersen as our speaker for our 20th annual meeting," said NMPP Executive Director Scott Blanchard. "Anyone who has read her columns know she offers practical yet compassionate advice that teens and parents can really use."

Encouraging open communication between parents and teens about sexuality and values is an important Planned Parenthood goal, Blanchard said. "Having Ms. Petersen as a speaker helps us promote that goal."

Petersen is a nationally known, award-winning parenting columnist and family life educator. She has been a columnist for the Free Press for five years, and her columns "Parent Talk" and "Teen Talk" are carried on the Knight Ridder Tribune News Wire to 210 newspapers and 22 communication services across the country.

She holds degrees in child development, family life and education from both Purdue and Central Michigan Universities. In 35 years of teaching, she has worked with children, parents and teachers in a wide range of settings, from homes to college classrooms and from pre-school to post-graduate levels.

ZBA elects Sullivan chairman

By a 3-2 vote at their Jan. 17 meeting, the city zoning board of appeals (ZBA) elected Larry Sullivan chairman. Patty Sitzema, Eugene Beer and Norm Probert voted in favor of the Sullivan nomination. Kevin Whitley and Hagen Manker voted in opposition to it.

Bob Kern was formerly ZBA chairman, but he was not reappointed to the ZBA by the city council. Probert was appointed in his place. Probert is serving as an alternate member on the ZBA. Alternate members vote when regular members are absent. Probert served as a voting member Jan. 17 due to the absence of Sullivan.

ZBA members unanimously elected Whitley vice-chairman.

In other matters, the ZBA voted to require Tom Sheridan of 120 Eaton Street to remove three feet of a deck which was not built in compliance with the city zoning ordinance. The ZBA also granted Sheridan a variance to build an attached garage to the home. ZBA members granted the variance because the house sits on an unusually shaped lot.

The ZBA reaffirmed a variance previously granted to Reinhard Matye of 209 Lewis Street. In 1987, the ZBA granted Matye a two-foot variance to allow Matye room to construct a two-car garage. The variance was given because Matye's property is a nonconforming lot of record. Variances are only good for six months and Matye was unable to construct the lot within that time. Therefore, he appeared again before the ZBA Jan. 17.

Bandshell design approved next step is to take bids

The city council accepted a proposed bandshell plan at a special council meeting Monday evening. Bandshell committee co-chairman Gary Stutzman said he feels the final design is "representative of (the feelings of) a cross section of the community."

Stutzman said the facility will provide a 1,500 square foot stage and will have a large enough area behind the stage to store all instruments and equipment which need to stay at the facility. There will also be a separate storage area behind the stage for city equipment used to care for the park and for a city electrical unit.

A fish pond approximately 60 feet in length and 10 feet in width will be situated in front of the stage. The pond will draw water from Round Lake.

According to Stutzman the bandshell will have a stone exterior reminiscent of Earl Young designed homes in the community and will sit in the valley next to the Wharfside Market. The bandshell will not be "squarely aligned with the market and street, but will be offset by 20 degrees so it faces slightly more toward the street."

The flat area next to the sidewalk above the bandshell will stay the way it is, however the bank leading down to the bandshell will be terraced. The terraces will be grass rather than wood or masonry.

Stutzman said a person standing on the sidewalk will be able to look over the new bandshell and see the lake.

Upon a motion by councilman Ken Whitley, the council unanimously approved the proposed design.

The next step in the process is for bids to be solicited. Solicitations for bids are expected to go out in mid-February with bids to be received in mid-March.

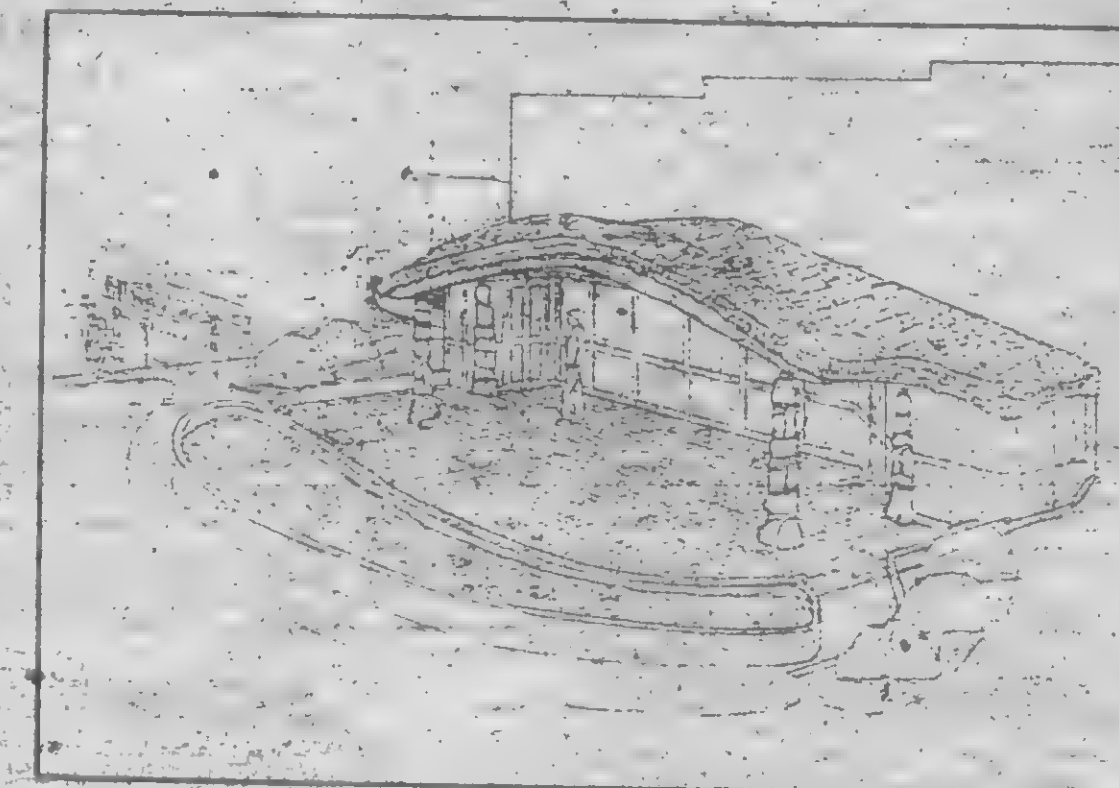

Stutzman said the bandshell committee is expecting bids to come in at approximately $175,000.

This will be the second time bids have been taken on the project. The city solicited bids last summer based on an estimated project cost of approximately $186,000. When the city opened bids, the low bid was $285,000.

Since that time the bandshell committee has deleted several things from the project including a basement and public restrooms.

Prior to Monday evening's council approval of the bandshell design, members of the audience asked questions about plans to fund bandshell construction.

As proposed, bandshell construction funds are to come from the following sources: $50,000 from the city Downtown Development Authority (DDA); $40,000 from a state grant;

The bandshell design received approval from the city council Monday evening. Plans call for the structure to be built by early summer.

$31,300 from private contributions which have already been made; $29,100 from the city East Park Fund; $14,400 from the city-administered Robert Bridge Trust fund; $8,200 from additional fundraising efforts by the bandshell committee.

Questions were raised about the DDA funds. Due to other projects the DDA is funding, there is no money from the DDA available for the new bandshell this year. The DDA board has said it is willing to provide $50,000 for the bandshell, but the money will have to come from its budget next year. In order to be able to build the bandshell

Council discussing millions in improvements

Monday evening, the city council heard city manager Mike Wiesner explain plans calling for $2,213,000 in improvements to be made to the city's streets, sidewalks, sewer, and water systems during the next five years. (Maps and related stories on pages 10 and 11 detail where the improvements are proposed.)

Three years ago, the city began levying an additional four mills to fund repairs to the city's infrastructure. (See page 11 story for a definition of infrastructure.) Last year that levy was reduced to three mills.

Wiesner is recommending that in setting this year's budget, the council return to levying four mills for infrastructure improvements.

At Monday evening's council committee of the whole meeting, the council began discussing which improvements should take place within the next five years.

Wiesner said areas the city has currently identified as in need of improvement carry a total price tag of $4,466,000. He said that this year each general fund operational mill the city levies will generate $78,000 in tax revenue.

Assuming that prices of the projects and revenue generated by each mill rise at approximately the same level of inflation, it would take approximately 12 years to raise $4,466,000 and complete the identified projects if the city levies four mills. If the city levies three mills, it will take approximately 16 years.

Wiesner said the work proposed will simply catch up with deterioration which has occurred in the past. He said that if this year, the bandshell committee proposes to use a $50,000 loan from local banks.

... bandshell approved

Mike Greeley asked who would be signing for the loan. Stutzman said he understood the DDA would take out the loan with the bandshell committee raising funds to pay the interest on the loan.

City manager Mike Wiesner said the city has received legal advice indicating the DDA doesn't have the authority to borrow money. He suggested that the loan either be taken out by the bandshell committee or that the money be borrowed from the city's general fund to be paid back with interest.

Bandshell committee treasurer Bob Hoffman said the banks may have regulations precluding them from lending money to the bandshell committee.

A loan would also be taken out to temporarily cover the $8,200. Stutzman said that once the bandshell committee receives written pledges for contributions, the local banks have agreed to make a loan equal to 90 percent of the amount pledged.

Hoffman said the bandshell committee is actually looking to raise closer to $25,000, rather than $8,200. The difference would be used to purchase a sound system.

Greeley asked what will happen if there is some kind of unforeseen problem. He asked whose lap the project would ultimately fall into.

Councilman Bill Haggard said that since it is a project on city property, the problem would ultimately come back to the city and city council.

Hoffman said he feels the additional money can be raised. Stutzman said he feels there are "hundreds of people" waiting to contribute to the project once a design is approved and the project becomes a definite go.

Councilmember Cheri Hoffman asked what would happen if bids again come in high.

Stutzman said that if bids come in at more than $176,000 the difference would be added to the $8,200 fundraising target.

Whitley said he feels financial points can be worked out in the future. He then made a motion to approve the proposed design and initiate the bid process.

CMU will open Traverse City office

The new Traverse City office of Central Michigan University is officially open for business.

Located on the Boardman Lake campus of Northwestern Michigan College, the CMU Extended Credit Courses Office will serve northern Michigan residents taking graduate classes in education and related topics and undergraduate courses toward the bachelor of science degree with a major in administration.

CMU has offered the master of science in administration (MSA) degree as well as education courses in Traverse City for a number of years. The opening of a permanent office staffed by a program representative marks an increased commitment to serving local residents, according to William Peterson, regional manager for extended credit courses.

The number for CMU's Traverse City office is (616) 922-3260. The fax number is (616) 922-3261.

 catch-up work is extended to 16 years, the city risks having certain things, such as streets, deteriorate at a rate almost equal to the rate at which they're being fixed.

Council members spent most of Monday evening's meeting listening and absorbing information.

Councilman Ken Whitley did say that he would like to consider using increased sewer and water rates, rather than a general millage levy, to pay for sewer and water system improvements.

"I've always been an advocate that the user should pay the fee," Whitley commented.

Wiesner and councilman Bill Haggard said increased rates might mean that people who live in town year-around would end up paying a higher portion of the cost than they are through a millage levy.

Wiesner said the program can be funded any way the community decides, but added, "I just perceive that the average resident would pay less by the millage."

"I'd still like to know what the (sewer and water) system is costing us," Whitley said. "If you just keep subsidizing it through the infrastructure, you never know where you are."

The council will continue to discuss capital improvements at next Monday evening's meeting.

Cholesterol clinic scheduled

The East Jordan Family Health Center will host a Blood Pressure Clinic from 1-2 p.m. in the Community Room of the Health Center on Tuesday, February 6, 1990. The blood pressure check is free. Cholesterol testing will be provided at the same time; however, it is requested that appointments be made to reduce waiting time. You may call in ahead of time (536-2206) to make the cholesterol testing appointment. There is a $5 charge for that test. This clinic is offered as a community service to assist in maintaining good health.

We're having a white-out that is both beautiful and terrifying. Cars downtown are slipping and sliding trying to climb up hills. The snow in my back yard is as high as the blue delphinium I grow in the summer. The white house across the street is camouflaged by evergreen limbs burdened with snow, and drifts hide the sidewalks, bushes and cars so that the whole town looks like a frosted wedding cake.

It's a happy day for skiers, however. As soon as Mt. McSaub's Ski Hill is groomed, cars will be circling the driveway, dropping off young ones with their equipment. I thank my stars that I don't have to carry boots, skis and poles for my grandchild, Shena, anymore. Nor do I have to put on the boots, keep track of mittens, hats and goggles either.

Now it's, "Bye, Grandma. Pick me up at 4:30, please!"

I like to watch the skiers for awhile, before I leave. I look through the window as I have a thousand times before. So many of us learned to ski at Mt. McSaub! Some of my nephews ended up skiing for the Charlevoix High School ski team; one of my grandsons skied for his college ski team in New Hampshire. Some of my friends bought condos out west and have become serious skiers. And some have returned to Charlevoix with their children and ski the area. And they were all beginners at Mt. McSaub.

This year, there is a major improvement in the area I'm happy to note. Thanks to some bulldozing, the beginners rope tow has been moved away from the big hill, which makes skiing much safer. No longer will the hot-shots threaten the unsteady efforts of the beginner.

The ski rental program also has been most successful. For the first time in 15 years, according to Bo Boss, the ski area is breakin even financially. The rentals average about 20 a day and the charge is only $6 a day for skis, boots and poles, which is less than half of what you'd have to pay anywhere else. During the one week between Christmas and New Year's, rentals accounted for over $4500, and 95 percent of this was from out of town visitors.

Skiing has doubled over the last 5 years, and the hill has

REASONABLE TO ME
L. SCOTT SWANSON

A technological marvel

A video camera is like a gun in that most people get uncomfortable when one is pointed at them. Despite this one minor drawback, I still think the video camera is one of the nicer things modern technology has given us in recent years.

My parents got a video camera for Christmas. I've received orders from my daughter's grandmother to make sure this babydom is properly recorded for posterity.

Filming the baby stobbering is all well and good, but I just can't help feeling this video camera offers possibilities for something more creative. Back in my freshman year at college, I took a class called "History of the Cinema." Seeing where the movie industry has been gave me a few ideas as to where I think it should go.

I've written, produced, directed and narrated one movie: "The Great Deer Hunt."

A few years back, one of the guys at deer camp brought along a video camera. One morning toward the end of the week when things got a little slow, three of us made "The Great Deer Hunt."

It was a low budget film. You've heard of films with a "cast of thousands." This was a film with a cast of two. "The Great Deer Hunt" starred Alan Geer as the hunter and Larry Swanson (my dad) as the deer.

The film didn't do too well at the box office, but Siskel and Ebert raved about dad's portrayal of a wiley old buck deer. They particularly liked the part where he used a tree branch to wipe away his tracks so the hunter couldn't follow him. Two thumbs up.

In the time since "The Great Deer Hunt" was filmed, the technological knowledge at my disposal has improved. My brothers have been messing around with the Christmas camera and have figured out how to splice scenes from one tape into another and how to film now and insert the audio later. This just opens up all kinds of possibilities.

Last week we filmed our men's recreational league volleyball game. It's only a matter of time until that tape contains some color commentary from John Madden along with some interspersed segments of the United States Olympic volleyball team appearing to receive our serves.

Of course the game wasn't taped with the intention of using it for entertainment. No, it was taped for instructional purposes. A pain-staking analysis of the videotape clearly shows our team's weaknesses and strengths. In terms of a team weakness, the tape showed that our team made several silly mistakes each game. In terms of a team strength, the tape shows that our opponent made even more silly mistakes than we did.

Aside from the technical aspects of the game, the pain-staking analysis also reveals that almost all of our players have bald spots on the tops of our heads and that one of our players kicks his back foot up in the air when he serves. The bald spots are genetic. Additional analysis will be required to determine why the server's foot pops up in the air.

Future projects include filming the Thundertubing competition at the upcoming Winter Carnival at Mount McSaub. Last year, my aunt videotaped an ugly collision on the first run. Three tubes collided about two-thirds of the way down the hill. Bodies and inner tubes can be seen flying around in the midst of a big cloud of snow.

It would be nice to say the collision wasn't as bad as it looked on film. However, having been in that collision I can attest that it was pretty much just as it appeared on film.

Another future project we will be doing is some time-lapse filming of the garden this spring and summer. Every couple of days I'm going to go out to that garden and shoot a few minutes of video tape.

I don't think it will make the garden grow any better this year and it probably won't even provide any information which will lead to the garden growing better in years to come. The only purpose I can see it serving is letting my wife and I look back and see the exact point at which the weeds took over the garden in the summer of 1990.

But then the camera might be better suited for garden security, kind of like banks use video cameras. I could hide the video camera inside a scare crow and let it run during the night. I could get pictures of raccoons stealing corn. Even with pictures, it might be difficult to apprehend the culprits. They're always wearing masks.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

A healthy religion

A few weeks ago, I introduced you to my great-nephew, James Richardson, almost four months old, who was born with a monumental heart defect — tetralogy de Fallot — involving all four chambers of the heart.

Kids born with tetralogy de Fallot must have surgery to repair the defects in order to survive. But doctors prefer to postpone the operation as long as possible, up to nine months or a year, in order to let their patients' little hearts grow and strengthen.

Sometimes, however, the conditions are so severe that emergency surgery is necessary.

Little James had such an emergency two weeks ago and doctors at Mott's Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor decided they had to move fast.

The open-heart surgery lasted only 45 minutes, but doctors were able to effect all the needed repairs, put James' heart back together, and stitch him up. Within a week, he was back home — happy, giggling, cooling and warm for the first time in his young life, according to his grandmother, my sister, who dotes on warm babies.

We still have our fingers crossed, but James seems to be making astonishing progress and no more surgery will be necessary.

I COULDN'T HELP thinking about James Saturday morning when I was visited by a delegation of do-gooders from a local religious congregation. They cornered me on the front porch and, although I managed to keep them from actually getting into the house and ruining my entire day, I did respond to some of their probing, personal questions regarding my eternal salvation.

After all, whether I go to church is none of their blankety-blank business. Doesn't the Bill of Rights say something about freedom of religion?

But I am not too swift early on a Saturday morning before I have had a cup of coffee and I always try to be polite to strangers. But when they launched a tirade against evolution and fraudulent science in general, I drew the line.

Without science — medical science — we might not have little James with us today. True, the little guy had folks praying for him all over the Midwest and Canada, but it was the surgeon — an out-and-out scientist of the first order — who mended the holes in his heart and put him back together again.

I'm not saying prayer didn't help.

But it was medical science that saved his life.

Some enlightened churchgoers claim God performs his miracles by working hand-in-glove with doctors.

This is an idea I can live with. But I am puzzled why some folks knee-deep in religion feel duty bound to knock science at every opportunity. Fortunately, they are in the minority but you'd think God would get very upset with them.

WINTER IS only about half over and Charlevoix already has logged 130 inches of snow, only about 23 inches shy of last season's 153-inch accumulation.

If snow showers, snow flurries, snowstorms, lake-effect snow and outright blizzards continue at their present pace, we could be in for a 200-inch winter.

But February is at hand — a month more closely associated with cold weather than snow.

I remember one February not too many years ago when Charlevoix failed to log so much as a trace of snow during the entire month.

But March and April can be real burn-burners so far as weather is concerned.

Two years ago, Charlevoix had one of its worst snowstorms of the season the first weekend in April.

Furthermore, May snow is not exactly unheard of in these parts.

But days are almost an hour longer than they were six weeks ago — so spring is on the march.

almost reached its capacity. It now accommodates 10,000 skiers per year. There are four certified instructors who give private and group lessons on Wednesday and Thursday evening to beginners and intermediates. In addition, there are between 15 and 20 scholarships given to youngsters, who wish to ski. Arrangement can be made through Bo Boss.

Speaking of the Bosses, it was Bo's Father, Dale, who launched the idea of having a ski area in Charlevoix in 1936. Fund raising in those days was simple. An influential group got together, saw a need, raised the money and moved ahead step by step without controversy, petitions and delays. Dale called the first meeting which consisted of Don Campbell, Archie Livingston, John Schroeder, Charlie Hampton and Dick Fochtman. Archie got the go-ahead from the city council, and at the second meeting a non profit corporation was formed. Dr. Grate was elected president. The group raised $10,000 in 60 days by selling stock certificates! Dr. Saltonstall reminds me with a chuckle he still has the certificates in his vault, which are now worthless, because the corporation dissolved 15 years ago and the area was taken over by the City Recreation Department.

Those early visionaries must be pleased to know this project has turned out to be a real success story. The area is well run, is an asset to our town and has given a great deal of pleasure to several generations of summer and year 'round Charlevoixians.

Letters to the Editor:

Forum encourages cooperative planning

Editor:
The three C's — coordination, communication and cooperation — must be given much more emphasis by area planners if Charlevoix and the surrounding area is to preserve its beauty and quality of life.

At a recent FOCUS Forum it became clear that no one agency or group is "minding the store."

That is, empowered to assure that the various master land use plans now being formulated or revised by city and townships are compatible and that development will not be detrimental to our air, water and visual quality.

We were pleased that those who attended asked for another meeting on this subject — a growth with grace and appeared interested in exploring ways to strengthen the three C's. Its none too soon for all of us to work together so that inevitable growth doesn't kill the goose that laid the golden egg.

Sincerely,
Patti Ulrich,

KCB seeks window displays

Editor:
Do any of you have a collection, such as antiques, foreign dolls or paperweights, for example, that you would be willing to have on display in one of the empty windows in a downtown Charlevoix store?

Perhaps your organization would like to utilize window space for a display similar to the model of the proposed indoor swimming pool in the Harbor Sports store at the Market Mall.

Rather than have the windows papered over during winter months, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful would like to encourage window displays. To this end, discussions are being held with the art department at Charlevoix High School which may provide commercial art students an opportunity to show what they can do.

Any creative ideas would be welcome. Please call me at 547-0271 with your suggestions.

Charle-facts

On June 29, 1926, the Board of Supervisors of Charlevoix County petitioned the United States War Department to change the name of Pine Lake to Lake Charlevoix.

Reasons given for the request were that "Pine Lake" did not accurately describe the lake because it is situated in a hardwood area, not a white pine area; that the name "Pine Lake" had been given to several lakes in the state; that the lake lies wholly within Charlevoix County; and that the change of name is favored by residents of the county.

"Pine Lake" was changed to "Lake Charlevoix" shortly thereafter.

FAMILY

Schnackenberg-Left

Kim Michelle Schnackenberg and Clyde Thomas Left were married Dec. 9 at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix. Garlands of evergreen and arrangements of calla lilies, freesia and ivy decorated the church for the 4 p.m. service. Candelabra and Christmas trees trimmed with pink and white ornaments also decorated the sanctuary. The Rev. Raymond Griffin performed the double ring rites.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schnackenberg are parents of the bride. The groom is the son of Lillian Left and Francis (Bud) Left. All of the families reside in Charlevoix.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown of satin with a portrait neckline, shirred elbow length sleeves, a fitted drop waist and a gathered skirt. She carried a bouquet of calla lilies, freesia, stephanotis and evergreen.

Elizabeth Humphrey, organist, offered a program of traditional wedding music.

Gayle Hansen attended the bride as honor attendant. The bride's other attendants were Karen Sundberg, Lori Warner and Maggie Davies. They wore dark green tea-length dresses with scooped necklines, velvet bodices, and shirred elbow length sleeves. Their bouquets and headpieces were composed of pine, ivy, freesia and baby's breath.

Jamie Left, niece of the groom, was flower girl. She wore a white gown, a miniature version of the bride's gown.

Kim and Clyde Left

Ryan Novotny, nephew of the groom, was ringbearer.

Best man was Tete Drost and groomsmen were Vincent Left and Terry Left, brothers of the groom, and Robert Gillespie. Ushers were Matthew Schnackenberg, Joel Schnackenberg and Randal Schnackenberg, brothers of the bride.

A reception, given by the parents of the bride, was held at the Charlevoix Legion Hall. The mother of the groom arranged refreshments and The Road Runners offered music for dancing.

The father of the groom hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Argonne Supper Club on Dec. 8.

The bride and groom are residing in Charlevoix.

Lugibihl-Smith

John Smith and Cheryl Lugibihl

Mr. and Mrs. Jim E. Lugibihl of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter, Cheryl Rae, to John S. Smith of Mobile, Alabama. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Smith.

The bride-elect is a 1982 graduate of Charlevoix High School and is currently employed at Alexander's Restaurant and J.R.'s Restaurant.

Her fiancé is a 1982 graduate of the New Hope School in Columbus, Mississippi. He is serving in the United States Coast Guard and is presently stationed in Mobile.

The wedding will take place May 29 in Hoffmann Park in Charlevoix.

Bowman-Otmanowski

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy O. Bowman of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter, Michelle L. Bowman, to Joseph C. Otmanowski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester L. Otmanowski, also of Charlevoix.

The bride-to-be graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1980 and is employed by Oleson's of Charlevoix. Her fiancé graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1973 and is employed by Burns Security as a guard at Big Rock Point.

Nursery has openings

The Kids Corner Nursery School has two openings for its January through May session. The school, which is a cooperative nursery school for three and four year olds, meets from 9 a.m. to 11:15 a.m., Tuesday and Thursday at the Congregational Church. For further information, contact Evelyn De Korte at 547-6994.

Grant received for land near Island lighthouse

by PEG OHLE

The 64-acre lighthouse property at the southern end of Beaver Island which was acquired by the Charlevoix School system in 1975 for use as an environmental study center will soon be expanded as the result of a grant approved last week by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources Trust Fund.

The grant, which must still be approved by the State House of Representatives, the State Senate, and the governor, is for $37,750 to fund the purchase of 110 acres adjacent to the present lighthouse property.

The acreage is described as consisting various species of trees and plant life, a wetland area, and a stream around which a nature interpretative center can be built.

The present 64-acre facility consists of approximately 2,000 feet of Lake Michigan shoreline, the lighthouse, the historic generator building, camp sites, and trails. It is used by residents of Beaver Island and tourists alike as a passive recreation area.

The lighthouse facility also houses an Alternative Education program for young high school dropouts from the 10 counties of northwest Michigan.

Each year, 15 to 20 school dropouts enroll in one of three 48-day sessions in the Alternative Education program. They study the subjects required for high school graduation—English, math, science, history, and government, and, under the guidance of a skilled counselor, they learn how to work and study. Some of the students have enough credits to graduate after their stay on Beaver Island and others may return to regular high school classes.

These classes, which have been in operation for five years, are part of the State Youth Employment program of the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments and are run in cooperation with the Charlevoix Public Schools. Their main purpose is to provide an education that will make the young people employable.

Students in this Alternative Education program receive free room and board while they are on Beaver Island and $35 when they complete their classes.

The Beaver Island lighthouse facility is also headquarters for the summer program sponsored by the Michigan Youth Corps in cooperation with the Charlevoix Public Schools. Each summer, about 50 young people enroll in this program, which was started in 1978. It provides eligible teenagers in Charlevoix, Emmet, and Antrim Counties a chance to learn basic work skills, responsibility, reliability, care of tools, and other sought-after habits.

The work program encompasses repairing the older buildings of the facility and building new ones, such as barns, log cabins, and a dining hut. The young people also harvest firewood, lay out campsites and trails, and generally care for the area. However, they do have time to study wildlife, take pictures, and to learn about fruits and berries, sunrises and sunsets, and the outdoors in general.

They receive free room and board and are paid minimum wages for working Monday through Friday. On weekends they return to their homes on the mainland.

Terry Ryan, who is in charge of the program for the Michigan

A state grant will help purchase additional property near the Beaver Island lighthouse.

Youth Corps, says that all work done in this summer program is approved by the Charlevoix School District and each student receives a half-credit in science for participating in the program.

Besides the natural beauty of the lighthouse area and the opportunities for nature study, a glow of history pervades the surroundings. The lighthouse was built in 1851 and rebuilt in 1891. A powerful twin foghorn, which has been removed, once could be heard for miles across Lake Michigan waters.

The old lighthouse was there when King Strang's Mormon Kingdom numbered over 2,500. It was there when the Mormons fled the Island and when Irish immigrants brought a whole new culture to the Island. It was there when Beaver Island was the shopping center for northern Michigan, the mainland as well as the Lake Michigan islands.

And now the old lighthouse watches over the young people who go there to learn how to live in a complicated modern world and to enjoy the unspoiled lakeshore, woods, and fields which are home to enough fish and insects and birds and animals to make nature study a memorable experience.

The addition of 110 acres will help broaden the scope of the programs now held in and around the lighthouse. Mike Davis of Charlevoix Recreation Services, who wrote the grant application, expects that it will be early next fall before the grant receives final approval and the property can be bought.

City repairs concrete and pipes

Charlevoix is in the fourth year of a multi-million dollar infrastructure repair and improvement program.

"Infrastructure" is one of those big ten-cent words which come up in public projects. Webster's dictionary defines infrastructure as: "the underlying foundation or basic framework (as of a system or organization)."

An easier-to-comprehend working definition of "infrastructure" might be: the concrete and plumbing which make up city streets, sidewalks and utilities.

Charlevoix's infrastructure program is divided into five categories: streets and alleys; sidewalks; storm sewers; sanitary sewers; and water system. (The maps on page 10 show where work is planned. Other stories on this page offer brief explanations of work planned in each infrastructure category.)

Charlevoix's infrastructure program began with the appointment of a 15-member committee in 1987. People serving on the committee were: Ralph McRae, Joan Hoffman, Tom Sikavitsas, Tony Klieber, Roberta Whitley, Vince Olach, Rhonda Siwarga, Alvin Ranger, Norm Probert, Gerald Staublin, Robert Timms, Ken Staley, Shirley Roloff, I. Lee Moreland and John Friedly.

The committee studied the city's infrastructure and determined that over several years, repairs and improvements to Charlevoix's infrastructure had not kept up with deterioration.

In order to offset the cumulative effects of deterioration, the committee recommended that the city increase the tax levy by four mills for five years and earmark the additional tax revenue from those four mills for infrastructure improvements.

The city did not have to have an election to increase the city tax levy by four mills, because the city was, and is, levying fewer mills than it is allocated. According to the city charter, the city is allocated, and may levy, up to approximately 15 mills. Any millage above that must be approved by voters in an election.

When the infrastructure program began, the city's operational millage levy was more than four mills below 15 mills.

During the first two years of the program, the city levied four additional mills. Last year the council reduced the infrastructure levy from four mills to three mills.

A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a property's state equalized value (SEV). SEV is theoretical half of a property's market value. In other words if a house and property would sell for $40,000, the SEV would be $20,000 and every mill levied would cost the property owner $20 in property taxes.

Although the committee's original resolution recommended an additional four mill levy for five years, it will take more than five years of tax revenue to address all of the needs identified in the study.

City officials are projecting that each mill levied in the city this year will bring in $78,000 in tax revenue. Relating that to the infrastructure program, three mills would generate $234,000 for infrastructure work while four mills would generate $312,000.

Although the final decision will be made by the city council, city manager Mike Wiesner is recommending that four mills be levied.

Wiesner estimates that if the city levies four mills for infrastructure improvements it will take another 12 years to

Sanitary sewer

Streets and alleys

Street and alley paving and reconstruction carries the highest price tag, $1,894,000, of any of the five infrastructure improvement categories.

Proposed work for 1990 includes paving all gravel alleys in the city and doing paving or reconstruction work on: Elm Street in the Central Avenue area; Burns Street next to Round Lake; Stockman Street from Alice Street to the east; May Street between Lincoln and Garfield; Green Street from Bridge Street to the east; Stover Road from M-66 to the cemetery.

In regard to paving the city's alleys, city manager Mike Wiesner said he feels that, over time, a good percentage of the paving cost should be recouped through decreased maintenance costs.

Compared to many communities in Northern Michigan, Charlevoix's existing water lines are in pretty good shape. Rather than replacing existing water lines, proposed water system work will add new lines. The new lines will tie in with existing lines to correct flow and pressure problems throughout the city as well as a problem with pipes freezing during winter months along some portions of Petoskey Avenue.

In assessing the city's water system, engineers first collected information through studies and meetings with people from city hall, the city water department and city fire department. The engineers then fed the information into a computer which was used to formulate improvement plans.

The final plan calls for adding several sections of 12-inch main in specified locations throughout the city (see map). Added mains will tie present lines together providing a looped system with better flow and pressure.

Having a channel and lake in the middle of town presents Charlevoix with some unusual challenges when it comes to running utility lines. The city completed an important facet of the water plan last summer when a new water line was placed across the channel between Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix. To save money, the water line crossing was done in conjunction with an electric line crossing.

Not a lot of water system work under the infrastructure program is proposed for this summer. One main will be installed on Bridge Street, between Belvedere Avenue and Hurlbut Street.

Almost all lots in the city currently have sewer service available. The infrastructure program will provide funds to build new lines and extend sewer service to any remaining city property owners who desire it.

There are also certain points in the current sanitary sewer system which are going to need to be enlarged. One of those places is on Belvedere Avenue between May and Bridge streets.

The sewer line on the west end of Belvedere Avenue receives input from the south side of town east of Bridge Street and also from portions of Charlevoix Township on M-66. Use in those areas is increasing and is expected to continue to increase.

Sanitary sewer

This past summer, the city added a second sewer line near the intersection of Belvedere and Bridge to increase capacity.

In 1993, the city will install a new line between between Bridge and May streets. The estimated cost of that line is $70,000.

Storm sewer

Although most of Charlevoix's storm sewers have been separated from the sanitary sewer system, there are still a few storm catch basins and lines running into the sanitary sewer system.

Separating the storm and sanitary sewer systems will eliminate back-up problems which occur in some areas of the city during heavy rain.

One of the major problem areas is just to the north of the bridge. During heavy rains, the combined storm and sanitary sewage input from the north side is more than the pipes can handle. When that happens, the sewage backs up and runs along the ground and into Round Lake.

To eliminate that problem, work will be done this summer on Prospect, Crouter and Meech streets north of Petoskey Avenue.

Separating the storm sewers will also allow the sanitary sewer system to be expanded in the future.

In addition to the work on the northside, storm sewer work is also proposed for this year on Grant Street, between Mason and Antrim.

The total estimated cost of storm sewer work for this year is $145,000.

Sidewalk work

Due to concerns about legal hassles which could result if someone fell on a deteriorated sidewalk and filed suit against the city, the city council chose to make sidewalk repair the top priority in the infrastructure program.

During the last two summers the city took care of the majority of sidewalk problems in residential areas on the south side of the city and also some problems on the north side. According to current proposals, sidewalk repairs in residential areas will be completed this summer. City manager Mike Wiesner estimates that sidewalk repairs this year will cost $220,000.

Along with repairs, new sidewalks with an estimated total cost of $140,000 will also be constructed.

Proposed new sidewalk construction this summer will be for the south side of Garfield Street from Pine River Place to Bridge Street; the south side of Petoskey Avenue between Meech and Central Streets; and along Eaton Street down the hill between Leonard Street and Ferry Avenue.

BUSINESS

Drycleaner adds services

On just about any weekday morning, the owner of Hooker's Cleaners of Charlevoix can be found in his shop on West Hurley Street doing whatever has to be done to insure his customers of quality work.

Jeff Bradford is a serious young man who has approached his career in a professional manner. A graduate of Central Michigan University, he took over management of his father-in-law's laundry and dry-cleaning shop in Boyne City twelve years ago. Since then, he has devoted his time to learning the best and latest methods of caring for the clothing and household fabrics brought to him.

He has attended seminars and workshops sponsored by the Michigan Institute of Laundry and Dry Cleaning and the International Fabric Institute, and regularly reads the bulletins they produce. When he is really stumped, he picks up the phone and calls one of the professional institutes for advice.

"Foreign fabrics need someone with experience," Bradford says, "and labels don't always mean what they say."

While Bradford is proud that he can perform any part of the dry cleaning process, he is also proud that his Charlevoix shop employees have over 100 years of experience in the business. Floyd Francis and Betty Seese both have been in the business for 45 years, and other employees are well in their way to becoming real professionals. They are Marilyn Finck, Sylvia Gilligan and Louise Wells.

After settling in, the new owners and staff of Hooker's Dry Cleaners are making some changes and adding services. Members of the organization are (from left) Betty Seese, Floyd Francis, Jeff Bradford, Marilyn Finck, Sylvia Gilligan. Missing is Louise Wells.

Bradford bought Hooker's Cleaners of Charlevoix last year and also continues to operate his Boyne City shop. This makes him the only owner in Northern Michigan who operates two shops and who also works in his shops.

Hooker's is presently offering a pick-up and delivery service with a $7.50 minimum order. If successful, Bradford says he will continue it on a county-wide basis.

William Trubilowicz

Linda Balch

William J. Trubilowicz, 39, of Charlevoix, has been promoted to operations superintendent of the Big Rock Point nuclear plant. In this capacity, he heads the reactor engineering group and the department responsible for day-to-day operation of the plant's reactor, turbine generator and related systems. Trubilowicz was formerly operations supervisor and has been a member of the plant's operations department since 1976. During his career at Big Rock Point, Trubilowicz has served as auxiliary operator, reactor operator, shift supervisor and shift engineer. He holds a senior reactor operator license from the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

His promotion follows the retirement of C. Russell Abel of Horton Bay who had previously headed the operations group.

Trubilowicz is a native of Dearborn, Michigan, and holds a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from the Lawrence Technological University. He and his wife Martha reside in Charlevoix with their two children, Joel and Anna.

Consumers Power Company has announced the transfer of Linda L. Balch, Sales Consultant, from Traverse City to the Company's Boyne City office. Her responsibilities in energy sales will encompass working with businesses, organizations and individuals in Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Presque Isle Counties.

An employee of Consumers Power since 1981, Balch is a native of the Levering area. She holds a Bachelor of Science Degree in Education from Central Michigan University.

Balch and her husband Garry live in Charlevoix where he has been a barber for 23 years. They have three grown children.

John T. Ellenberger has joined Haggard's Plumbing and Heating. He will be working in the commercial and residential estimation department and will also be in charge of all purchasing and inventory control. Ellenberger is a lifelong resident of Petoskey. He is married and has three children. He has 13 years' experience in office plumbing background.

Skiers place in two meets

The Charlevoix High School ski team raced twice in the past week.

Thursday, Jan. 25, the girls team placed first and the boys team second in a meet with Gaylord and Kalkaska at Schuss Mountain.

Monday, Jan. 29 the girls team placed fifth and boys team tenth in an 11 team meet at Sugar Loaf.

At Schuss Mountain the girls team skied well, taking top honors with 39 points edging out Gaylord which had 45 and easily outdistancing Kalkaska which totalled 133.

Gaylord won handily in the boys division with 32 points compared to the Rayders' 51 and Kalkaska's 122.

Individual slalom and giant slalom results for the Charlevoix girls were: Katherine Campbell 19S, 3GS; Heather Keller 8S, 2GS; Kelly Heck 6S, 4GS; Cynthia Boydston 5S, 2GS; Allison Boyer 4S, 11GS; Kim Keller 19S, 10GS.

Individual boys results were:

B-team boys results at Schuss Mountain were: Haggard 1S; Dan Spang 4S, 2GS; Cox 2GS; Jake Porath 3GS; Matt Robinson 4GS.

Rayder coach Eric Lundteigen said of the Schuss Mountain meet, "The course was a very difficult slalom course. It took a high degree of concentration. Our younger skiers, I felt a little sorry for. Our varsity skiers need to hold their concentration."

With league and regional meets just around the next gate, Lundteigen noted, "We're getting to the heart of our season. We've got to ski as a team."

Monday's meet at Sugar Loaf featured some of the best high school teams in the state. Petoskey won the boys division while Traverse City was victorious among the girls teams.

Charlevoix's girls finished fifth, led by Katherine Campbell. "She had a great meet. She's skiing really well," Lundteigen said.

The boys team finished tenth, but Lundteigen said he was still pleased. "I'm proud of the boys team. I took some of our inexperienced skiers and was very happy with the way they performed."

Individual results for the girls were: Campbell 8S, 6GS; H. Keller 15S, 11GS; Boydston 28S, 26GS; Heck 42S, 38GS; K. Keller 34S, 27GS; Boyer 40S, 52GS.

Individual results for the boys were: Hoadley 38S, 39GS; Wildman 44S, 29GS; Haggard 45S, 40GS; Cox 46S, 45GS; Porath 51S, 38GS; Spang 56S, 46GS.

Basketball team beats Petoskey

Charlevoix's basketball team still sits atop the Michigan Huron Shores League and in recent weeks has beaten both of its closest challengers handily.

Friday evening Charlevoix traveled to Petoskey and beat the Northern 67-52.

Charlevoix is tied with Cheboygan for the league lead. Each team has a 6-1 record in league play. Charlevoix beat the Chief's by a double digit margin earlier this month. Following Friday's defeat, Petoskey is now two games off of the league pace.

As has been the case in several games this season, Charlevoix's defensive pressure forced their opponents, in this case Petoskey, into a bushel of turnovers.

Guards Jason and James Corwin relentlessly badgered the Northern ball handlers. What steals and turnovers the Corwins didn't make, the Rayders' frontcourt players, Webb Friedly and Todd Kovach did.

Charlevoix led by only a point, 14-13, at the end of the first quarter, but broke the game open in the middle quarters.

The Rayders went into halftime leading 32-24. In the third quarter Charlevoix outscored Petoskey 21-10 and went into the final period with a comfortable 52-34 lead.

Kovach, a junior forward, came up with a big game, leading the Rayders in scoring with 26 points. Friedly kept scoring balanced among the forwards as he contributed 13 points. Jason Corwin contributed on the offensive, as well as the defensive, end with 14 points.

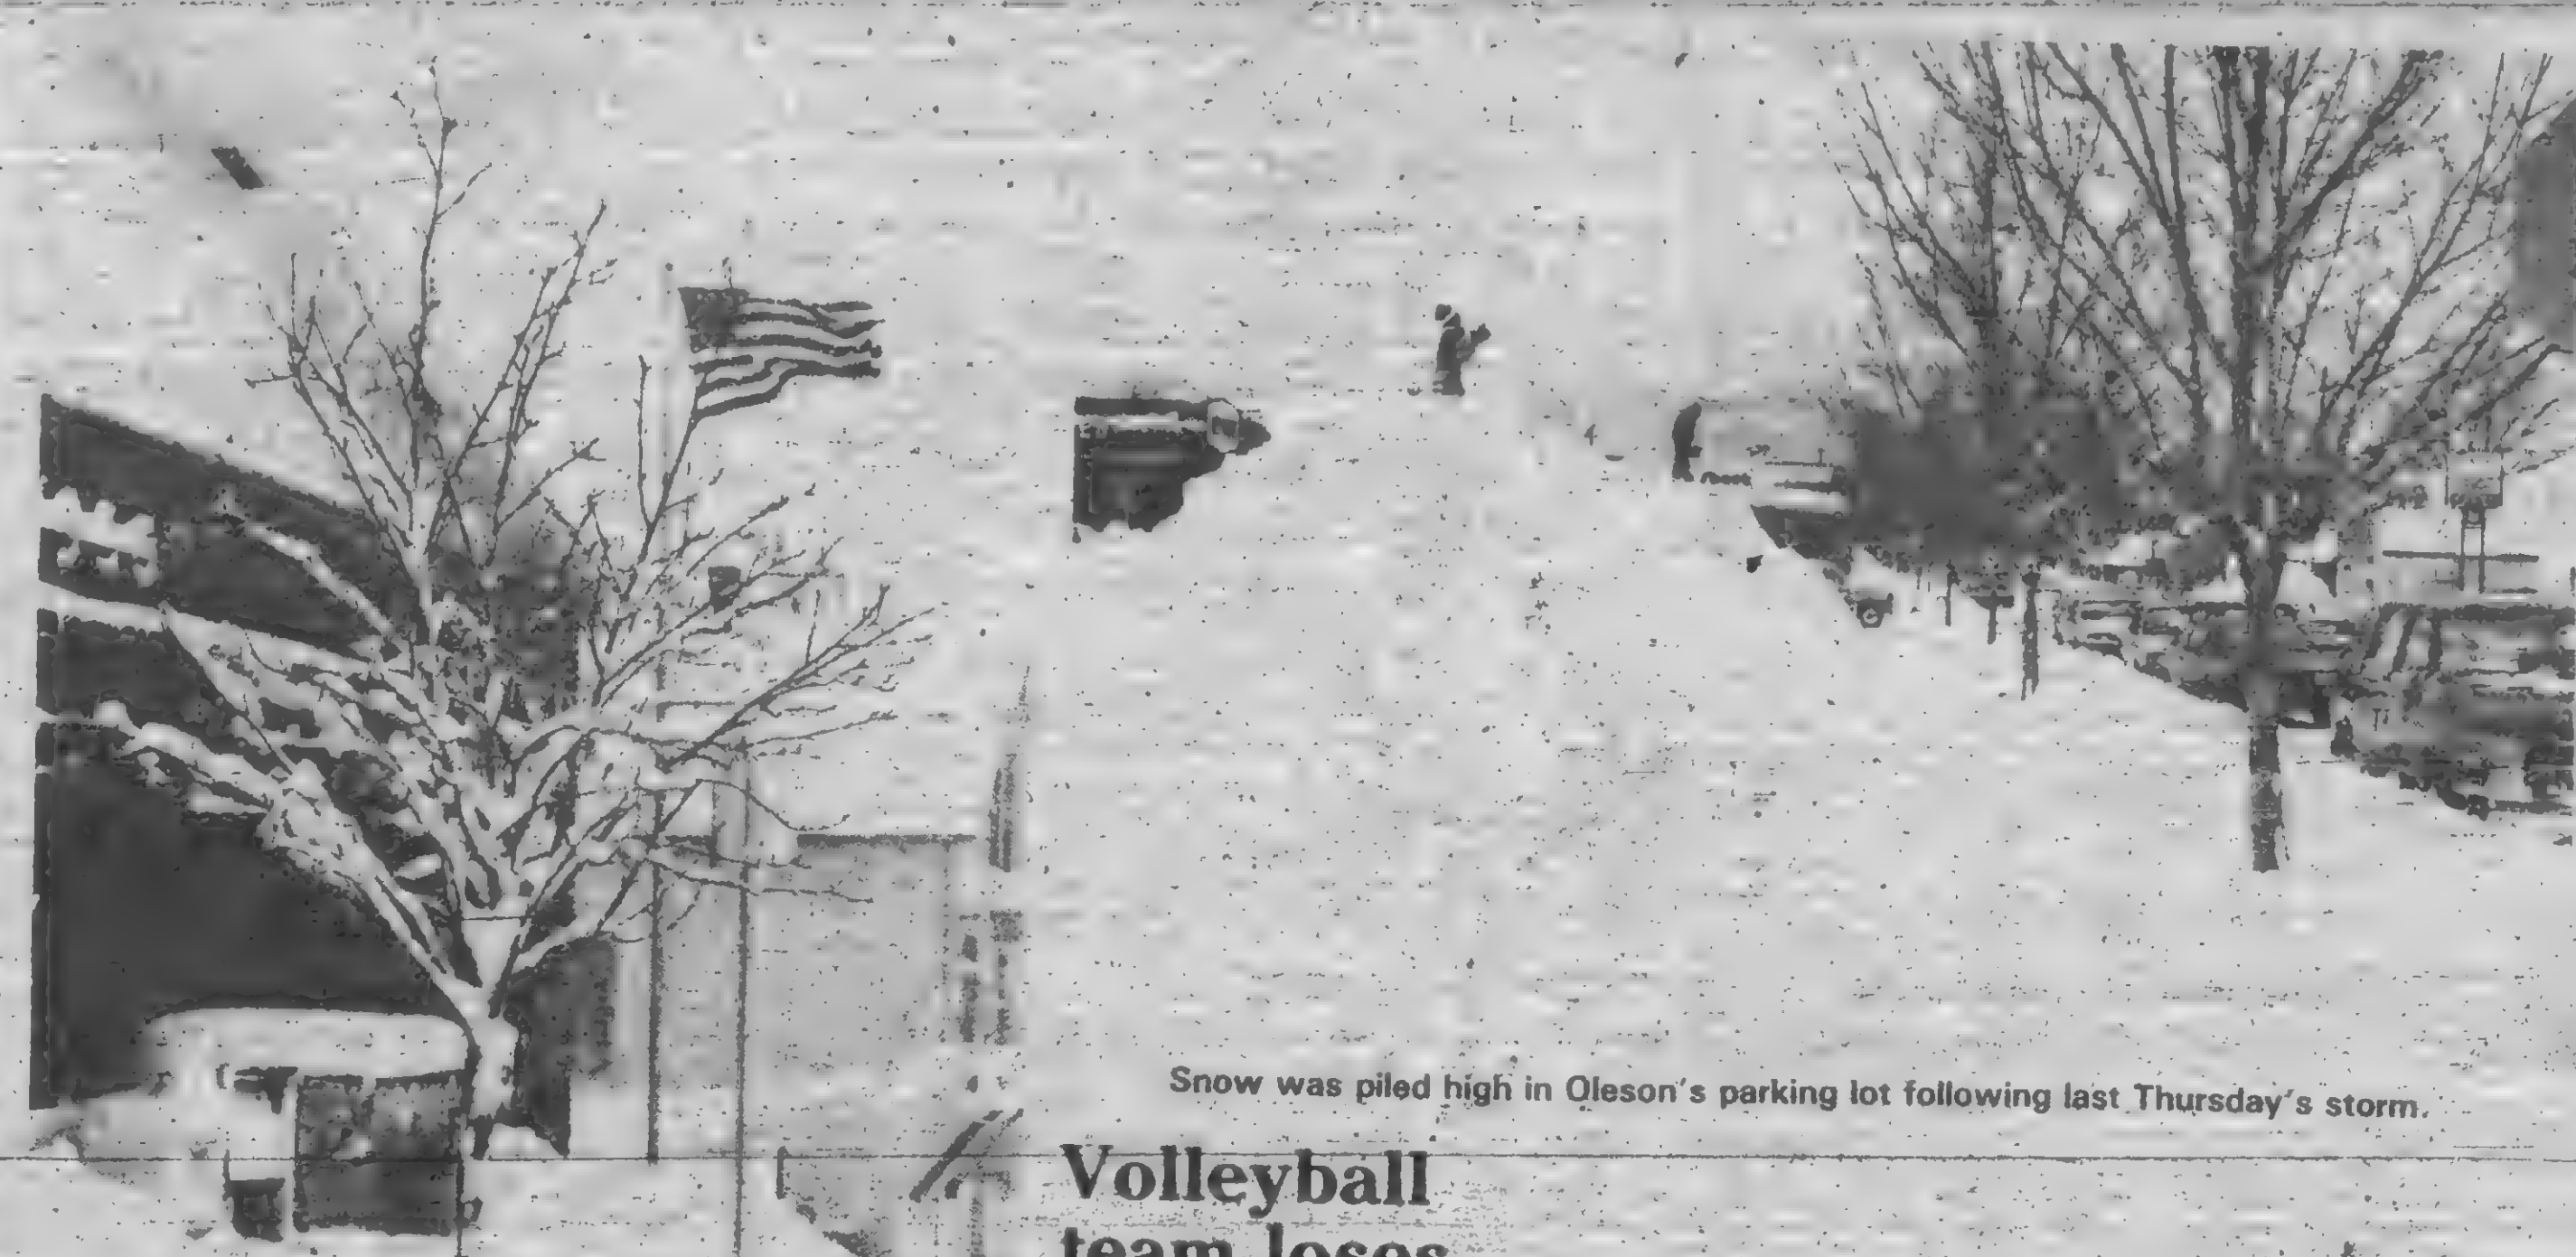

This Friday, Charlevoix will host Grayling.

Volleyball team loses

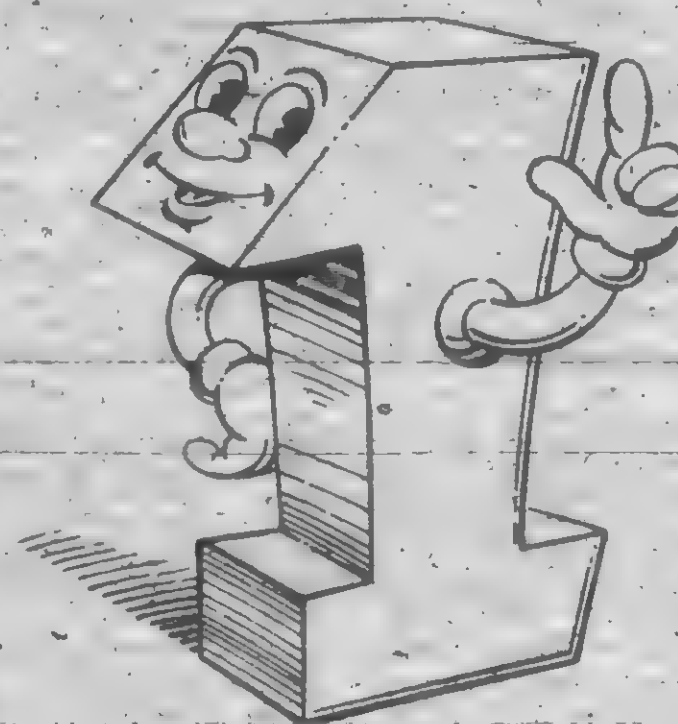

Charlevoix's volleyball team was overmatched Monday evening, losing to both Inland Lakes and the Harbor Light Christian Academy.

Inland Lakes beat the Rayders 15-6, 15-4 and 15-6. Harbor Light beat the Rayders 15-9, 15-2 and 15-12.

Charlevoix's junior varsity lost three of four to Harbor Light and three of five to Inland Lakes.

Harbor Light beat Charlevoix 15-5, 15-10, 13-15 and 15-3. Inland Lakes beat Charlevoix 7-15, 13-15, 15-5, 15-11 and 16-14.

State increasing unemployment benefits

Michigan's average weekly wage has increased from $454.15 to $474.22, Thomas S. Malek, deputy director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) announced recently.

Representing a yearly hike from $23,615.80 to $24,659.44, the increase in the state's average weekly wage, for the 12 months ending June 30, 1989, has caused the maximum weekly jobless benefit amount to rise to $275, an increase of $12. The new higher maximum affects only those establishing new unemployment insurance claims after January 7. The maximum weekly benefit rate is computed each year and is based on 58 percent of the state's average weekly wage.

In addition, beginning this month some of the 110,000 people who had established claims before January 7 and are still receiving jobless benefits in Michigan might see slight adjustments in their unemployment checks.

Malek explained that the adjustments will occur because of recent changes in state and federal income tax withholding and Social Security taxes, which affect a worker's after-tax earnings. After-tax earnings are used to compute weekly unemployment benefit amounts, so the tax changes may cause weekly benefit rates to change for some claimants.

Malek said that some individuals currently receiving unemployment benefits may notice a one or two dollar increase in their benefit amounts because of the tax changes, but most claimants will not be affected. Claimants receiving adjustments will notice the change in their checks paid for weeks of unemployment beginning January 7, and which will be paid beginning January 16.

Weekly jobless benefits equal 70 percent of a worker's after-tax earnings. However, benefits cannot exceed the maximum allowable weekly benefit payment, which becomes $275 for claims filed after January 7 and remains $263 for claims that existed or were reopened before that date. The minimum benefit amount remains at $59.

complete all of the identified work. That covers current identified problems. It doesn't cover infrastructure problems that come up within the next 12 years or new infrastructure projects the city decides to undertake.

If the city levies three, rather than four, mills, Wiesner estimates that it will take between 16 and 17 years to complete identified work. He said that at that point, the city is getting close to being in a situation where things are deteriorating at the same rate as they're being repaired.

The above picture of the Charlevoix Oil Company, which was located on the present site of the Pointes North Inn, was taken in 1932. Mary and Ed Fitchman of Elmhurst, Illinois sent us the picture and noted that in those days, all the snow had to be removed from driveways by hand. (People would have been very busy last Friday!) In the background to the right is the Fountain City House, one of Charlevoix's earliest hotels, and to the left is a corner of the Argo Milling Company, now the site of the Weatherlane Inn.

Opposition raised to pool at school

by WENDI WRIGHT

Once again, the proposed community pool was one of the major topics of discussion at the school board's regular meeting Monday night.

The meeting began with a report by Janet Rathke, board member, on a recent meeting between the Building and Site Planning Committee of the school board and the Pool Steering Committee. Rathke told the board that the pool committee was seeking support from the school board in its drive for a community pool, primarily in the form of school board sponsorship of a state grant proposal, and approval to build the pool at the elementary school.

Rathke reported that the Building and Site Planning Committee was not ready to make a recommendation to the board concerning either issue. She told the board that the committee felt more information was needed.

Following Rathke's report, Mike Raecke submitted a petition to the board, stating that it was being presented "on behalf of Charlevoix taxpayers," and was not sponsored by any particular organization. The petition, which, according to Raecke, bears 400 signatures, protests the use of school property for a community pool, and the use of any school money to fund the pool. Raecke pointed out that the people who signed the petition are not opposed to the idea of a pool; merely school involvement in any form.

Raecke said that the people represented by the petition were concerned that at some point the school would be left holding the money bag when the pool committee ran out of funds.

Dave Strawbridge, representing the pool committee, also submitted a petition. According to Strawbridge, this one bears 343 signatures, and supports the proposal of the elementary

Sheep roamed Charlevoix range

Charlevoix Memories

by GEOFF REYNOLDS

Birchwood Ranch is a familiar sight to many people as they pass it heading north towards Petoskey on the outskirts of Charlevoix, but do they know the history behind that seemingly desolate farm? Sims Baker is a long time Charlevoixian who was born and raised in Hayes Township and then later moved to live and work on the Ranch, until Edward Shanahan took it over in the middle 1940's.

"Before I went to work at Birchwood Ranch, it was called the Waller Farm or Waller Ranch. I didn't work for E.C. Waller, but I remember when Fred Willis rented from Waller, in the late 1930's, and raised close to a thousand head of sheep out there where the farm house sits off U.S. 31 North. In the spring he would shear the wool from the sheep and sell the lambs to livestock dealers. After they sheared the ewes and rams, they ran them through a long pen. When they were in the pen, men dropped some sort of medicine on the sheep, a bottle each. Then they herded the sheep into a long trough one at a time. Then the sheep literally swam toward the opposite end and climbed out of this anti-tick bath. That's the only sheep I remember being raised around Charlevoix. Waller raised some prize cattle there, but it was also good for sheep grazing.

"Well, in 1942 I went to work for Robert A. Allan at Birchwood Ranch as a laborer. He had purchased about 2,800 acres from Waller that past spring. I just walked out to the farm and talked to him. Then he hired me. I didn't live on the farm until later. After he bought the farm, he brought in about 550 head of cattle and pastured them all the way up to Mercer Blvd. and Waller Road, where Waller had planted a huge apple orchard around the turn of the century. That is how Old Orchard Road got its name. On the other side of Old Orchard Road, where the Charlevoix Township Hall now stands and also the ball field are, there we planted corn mostly." When asked if there were any other farmers nearby Baker remarked, "Allan tried to buy out the Reynolds farm of about

Charlevoix challenges mountain

Charlevoix's winter festival, now known as the Mount McSaubia Snow Challenge, should be bigger and better than ever this year.

Last year between 1,000 and 1,200 people showed up either to participate in or to watch the skiing, snowmobiling and thundertubing events. An even larger turnout is anticipated for 1990 festivities which will take place this Saturday and Sunday.

"I think this is probably going to be the biggest year yet," said Mount McSaubia Recreation Area director Bo Boss. He noted that he's been receiving numerous phone calls about the events.

This year's Snow Challenge will feature a new event, the 4-wheel drive hill climb. The hill climb will take place Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m., prior to the thunder-tube finals. Boss expects between 40 and 60 trucks to be entered.

Snow Challenge events kick off at 9 a.m. Saturday with ski race registration. There are divisions for all age groups, beginning with children four and under who race down the bunny hill. Last year, 85 skiers participated in the races.

The quest for the thundertube championship of the world begins at 1 p.m. For those unfamiliar with thundertubing, picture a sliding party gone wild.

Thundertubing is psychosledding. Thundertubers slide down Mount McSaubia on special innertubes. Each tube holds a three-person team. Teams race against each other to see who can be first to get to the bottom of the hill, grab a flag and get their tube, flag and team into a finish area. Tubes collide, snow flies and bodies slide and dive.

Last year 50 teams participated. Boss said he wouldn't be surprised to have 70 teams this year. This year there will be a women's division and there also will be some new rules.

Registration for the snowmobile hill climb will begin at noon Sunday. Divisions for the climb will be broken down according to snowmobile engine size. A total of at least 50 sleds is expected.

Sunday at 4 p.m., the top nine thundertubing teams from Saturday's preliminary races will square off in the thundertubing finals.

Awards ceremonies will take place immediately following each event.

TRACKING A PORCUPINE THRU THE SNOW IS AN EASY ADVENTURE. THEY RARELY VENTURE MORE THAN A QUARTER OF A MILE FROM THEIR DEN. ALSO THEY HAVE A VERY DISTINCTIVE SET OF TRACKS. THEY HAVE A HARD TIME WALKING IN DEEP SNOW LEAVING A DEEP TROUGH AS THEY WADDLE ALONG. THREE SIGNS OF THEIR ACTIVITY ARE ITS DEN OR TREE, ITS SCAT AND EVIDENCE OF FEEDING. ITS A VERY MESSY ANIMAL KILLING ITS DEN AND FEEDING AREA WITH SCAT. THEY WILL STRIP BRANCHES OF BARK AND OFTEN GIRD A WHOLE TREE. THEY EAT ONLY THE INNER BARK. YOU NEVER PENETRATE THE WOOD. THEY ALSO WILL GNAW AT ANYTHING THAT HAS EVEN A TRACE OF SALT ON IT. MUCH TO THE DISMAY OF MANY HOMEOWNERS.

Sliding's a downhill thing

There is a reckless streak in man which compels him to slide down steep hills in winter.

The "big hill" stood off in the distance from my grandparents' house. My brother, my cousins and I were only little boys at the time. The "big hill" loomed as a temptation too huge for little boys to resist.

Grandma and Grandpa lived out on a farm in the hills just this side of Mancelona. Their house served as headquarters for family gatherings each Thanksgiving.

When my brother, my cousins and I were all very young, the little hill alongside the house offered adventure enough. We'd ride down that hill on sleds. We never got up much speed. Sometimes at the end of a run, we would push with our hands to get more distance before we coasted to a stop.

After a couple of Thanksgivings passed, it was time to move on to bigger things; bigger, faster hills. Out beyond the pear trees was the "side hill." The "side hill" wasn't as big as the "big hill," but it dwarfed the hill by the house.

Along with a change of venue, we also changed our means of transportation. No more little sleds. Now we rode a toboggan. We dragged the toboggan to the top of the hill. Wedging ourselves in, one behind the other, we could fit four, sometimes even five, of us on the toboggan.

We got up a pretty fair head of steam coming down the "side hill" on the toboggan. Granted it was nothing compared to speeds reached riding in a car, but there's a world of difference between riding in a car and skidding down a hill with nothing but a few thin boards between your fanny and the snow.

Grandpa had a garden at the base of the "side hill." A bluff, which was about a foot high, separated the base of the hill from the garden. The highlight of the toboggan ride was coming off of that bluff and sailing through the air.

By Thanksgiving, the garden was just frozen furrows. The lowpoint of the ride was landing on those furrows. You had to be sure to keep your arms and legs on the toboggan because dragging them across the frozen furrows kind of spoiled the ride.

Eventually, even the "side hill" no longer appeased our need for speed. By the time we reached the age of...oh, nine or ten years old, we considered ourselves men of the world. Small hills could no longer hold us. We yearned for something more. We were thrill seekers, ready to live on the edge and toboggan on the wild side of life.

Four little boys, toboggan in tow, approached the "big hill" imposing, even from a distance, standing at its base and looking up, that hill really got intimidating.

But there would be no chicken-ing out. We were on a mission. We would slide down the "big hill" - and with any luck live to tell about it.

It took a while, but we hauled the toboggan to the top of the hill. Standing at the summit, we could see pine trees, the road, the house and many other things down below and off in the distance.

There's a feeling a person sometimes gets when about to embark on a venture of questionable intelligence. That feeling isn't necessarily flat out fear and terror, but it's the next best thing. It's that gnawing suspicion that "maybe this wasn't such a good idea after all. Maybe I should be home reading a good book."

But we put aside our doubts and lined up the toboggan for the run.

The "big hill," like most hills, was not a naked hill. It's sides were not smooth and bare. There were various little knobs and bumps and there was also some brush and trees.

Being the oldest, I got assigned a front row seat.

"What happens if we get headed toward a tree?" one of the backseat passengers asked.

"Don't worry, if we start heading toward a tree, I'll holler and we can all jump off," I said. At the time, it seemed like a good theory.

We began sliding down the hill, slowly at first, but that didn't last long. About the time we reached "warp one" snow was flying in my face and I couldn't see a thing.

A small tree, which hadn't been in front of us when we started, suddenly sprouted up right in our path. The toboggan ride came to a conclusion with an inarguable finality.

That little tree stopped three out of four of us now, and right now. One cousin sailed overhead and landed a few feet farther down the hill.

None of us were seriously injured, yet none escaped unscathed. Limping, holding bumped noses, and nursing various bruises we hobbled back to the house.

There is a reckless streak in man that compels him to slide down steep hills in winter.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

Charlevoix shuffling

"I'm doing the Charlevoix Shuffle," explained Rebecca Haney of Don's IGA Saturday morning when I encountered her mincing along Bridge Street in front of the Charlevoix County State Bank.

Rebecca was taking tiny steps in order to keep her footing on the icy pavement.

Ice has become part and parcel of life in Charlevoix this dreadful winter.

I laughed, because I also was doing the Charlevoix Shuffle. So was everyone else downtown.

Compounding the problem Saturday was a fresh snow which had covered up patches, ridges and hummocks of super-slick ice on the sidewalk.

Merchants, of course, are not to blame. They have been asked by the city not to use salt on their sidewalks this winter until the new concrete has had a chance to cure. Instead, the city is supplying them with all the sand they need.

Unfortunately, some sidewalks in front of many seasonal shops — shops now closed and shuttered — have not been shoveled at all this winter. Those walks are as bad as Bridge Street's two alley entrances, which apparently haven't been touched either.

Sand obviously is not doing the job and walking downtown has never been more precarious. I have heard through the grapevine that the ice has resulted in many broken arms and legs in town during the past few weeks — particularly last weekend.

The streets also have been a mess, but I don't know if anyone is to blame. From Nov. 1 through Monday morning, Charlevoix had a snow accumulation of 132 inches — and that translates into 11 feet in my book. We also have had more rain than normal and that translates to ice as soon as the temperature drops.

The forecast for the next few days is for fairly mild weather with a chance of rain toward the end of the week — so perhaps the worst is behind us. Maybe the snow plows will be able to scrap up some of the ice that has turned side streets into skating rinks.

In the meantime, I suggest you learn Rebecca's Charlevoix Shuffle.

It would be a shame if you had to spend Easter in a plaster cast.

FORTUNATELY, Charlevoix was spared the unbelievable ice storm that hit southern Michigan early Friday.

Judy and I had gone south Thursday afternoon and encountered a driving rain near Flint. The rain was still falling when we checked into a Livonia motel that night.

Friday morning we awoke to the sound of ice scrapers and I peeked out the motel door.

The world had turned to crystal.

Our poor car — including door locks and door handles — were encased in up to one-half inch of ice.

Of course, panic set in. I thought of sloshing hot water on the doors. Then I thought of cracked windows because of the temperature difference.

Finally I remembered the hatchback with the sheltered key hole.

No ice had formed there yet and I managed to lift the ice-laden deck lid and squeeze inside. Of course the lid fell on me trapping me inside, but I knew what I had to do.

Like an acrobat in tip-top condition, I maneuvered myself over car seats to the front of the vehicle and slid into the driver's seat. Then I started the engine, turned on the heater and defrosters and waited.

Before long, the ice began to melt and I was able to open the car doors. A half hour later — with a little help from the windshield scraper — Judy and I removed enough ice so we could see fore and aft.

The streets, of course, were a nightmare, particularly after several inches of slushy snow fell on the ice.

For weeks I had been told that southern Michigan has enjoyed an almost snow-free winter and I was anxiously anticipating a glimpse of bare ground and open fields. But the ice and snow dashed my dreams.

Now it looks as though I will have to wait until spring to get reacquainted with Mother Earth.

Band students receive top rating

At the District II MSBOA Solo and Ensemble Festival which took place Saturday, March 27 at Gaylord High School, four Charlevoix High School Band students received first division (I) ratings. Receiving the I rating were: Mike Ochs, bass clarinet solo; Jake Porath, flute solo; Amy Shupert, flute solo; and Matt Stargardt, trumpet solo.

Receiving second division (II) ratings were: Henri Dhaeleer, trombone solo; Amy Shupert, piano solo; and Kallie Washburn, trumpet solo.

The solo and ensemble festival is sponsored by District II of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association. More than four hundred high school students from twenty schools participated in the festival, which was adjudicated by nine judges from public schools and universities in Michigan. Students who received first division ratings at the district festival are eligible to participate in the state festival which will take place Saturday, March 31st at Ferris State College in Big Rapids.

Revise federal budget

Editor: At about this time last year a large ad appeared in the Petoskey News Review urging President Bush to declare a moratorium on nuclear testing.

Despite Gorbachev's "standing offer to halt (again) all nuclear testing any day and hour if the United States reciprocates," Bush has failed to respond.

Testing is essential for production of next-generation nuclear weapons systems for which Bush has requested funding in his proposed budget. Although "defense cuts" have been ballyhoed, the actual Pentagon budget will rise by $5.3 billion and includes $4.8 billion for Star Wars.

Instead, Bush should declare a "peace dividend" and encourage planning now for conversion from a militarized economy to one that will invest in education, housing, health care, infrastructure repair and environmental protection.

Earth Day plans made

The next meeting of Earth Day Action will take place at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 7, in Room 5 of North Central Michigan College in Petoskey. The meeting is open to any individuals or groups interested in helping with the Earth Day 1990 celebration for Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, and Otsego counties.

Plans to mark Earth Day are being developed by a coalition of local environmental groups. The goal of Earth Day 1990 is to focus public, media, and legislative attention on environmental concerns. Plans include a wide variety of educational programs, encouragement of tree-planting, and an Eco-Fair on Earth Day itself, April 22.

For further information contact the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council at 616-347-1181.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

Pvt. Shawn R. Putman has graduated from the U.S. Army armor cavalry scout course at Fort Knox, Ky.

Known as the "eyes and ears" of the unit, scouts observe and learn as much as they can about a tactical situation and then report their findings to their commander.

Putman is the son of Linda P. and Richard J. Putman of 07177 Lake St., Charlevoix.

Several Charlevoix students were named to the fall honors list at North Central Michigan College. Named to the list were: Amy Antaya, Collette Doak, Mark Hastings, Wendie Olach, Janice Spurgeon and Jeff Wynkoop. To be named to the list, a student must have a grade point average of 3.5 or better on a 4 point scale for the semester.

Bob Alger, son of Jim and Faye Alger of Charlevoix, recently received his Masters Degree in educational administration from Michigan State University. Alger is a teacher and coach in the Colwater school system.

Varnum seeks reelection

Ninetieth District Court Judge Harvey C. Varnum last week announced his intent to run for reelection. His was the first declaration of any candidate for county or district office.

Varnum, whose home is in Boyne City, was appointed to the bench in 1981 by former Governor William G. Milliken and ran successfully for reelection in 1982 and 1986. The Ninetieth District Court hears cases in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

Varnum also served as Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney from 1967 to 1975.

"I find the job challenging and enjoy it very much despite the increasing caseload," Varnum said of his decision to run for reelection.

... memories of ranch

30 acres, but Reynolds wouldn't sell. That 30 acres is still intact and still owned by the Reynolds family.

"The workers of the farm all lived there where the big farmhouse stands now. There are several small houses still situated around it. These were for the workers and their families. The fields around the house were used for crops, hay, and cattle grazing for the most part. It was all tiled for drainage and it stayed dry most of the time."

Baker also mentioned that area now situated across U.S. 31 North. "Allan bought that from Albert O'Brian and sold part of the land to the Charlevoix Rod & Gun Club for a dollar. The rest of the land was sold to someone else. It's now the Blue Dot Farms."

After the end of World War II Baker left the Birchwood ranch when Edward Shanahan bought the land from Allan's widow. "It was only about four years that I worked there, but my head is full of experiences from that place."

... proposed pool site debated

school as the site for the pool, and requests that the school board sponsor a state grant application to fund the pool. Strawbridge said that in addition to the signatures on the petition, he had the names of over 300 people who are members of several service organizations in the area who responded positively to the idea of the elementary school site.

Several people in the audience commented on both the issue of the site of the pool, and school involvement in a grant application. The suggestion of an election to determine support for the pool, and to decide the issues surrounding it arose many times throughout the course of the discussion. Strawbridge said the pool committee did not like the idea of an election before the funds could be raised, and the voters could see that a serious effort was being made to fund the pool without a millage.

Maureen LaBlance questioned the legality of building the pool on school property without an election. Board President Max Novak said that question would have to be answered by the board's lawyers, and that it would be addressed at a future meeting. Several people in the audience said they felt having discussions about the pool without first having an election to determine if the community supports it is a case of "putting the cart before the horse."

Turning to other matters, the board heard a report by three math teachers: Jeanne Seymour, Kay Fiedorek, and Sue Tillotson, on a new program sponsored by the Michigan Council of Teachers Math (MCTM). According to Seymour, she, Fiedorek, and Tillotson were recently authorized by the MCTM to act as workshop leaders to train other area teachers to teach in ways that reflect the new objectives in math education recently adopted by the MCTM.

According to Tillotson, the changes include new ideas as well as a renewed emphasis on the foundation of math: understanding what numbers are and how to use them. She added the emphasis has been shifted from computation to the mental, reasoning, and estimation skills necessary to operate computers and calculators.

Seymour told the board that they were required to conduct three or four workshops in the next year, and requested that the board support them in this effort, by allowing Charlevoix teachers the time required to attend the workshops, and by providing the money needed to buy some of the classroom equipment needed to implement the changes in teaching methods. Gordon VanWieren, school superintendent, told the teachers that the classroom tools they were requesting were being considered a priority item in the new budget.

Finally, the board approved a one-year contract with BDM Industries Hygiene, to act as consultants on asbestos in Charlevoix schools. According to Rich Kelly, school business manager, the state requires all schools to contract a consultant to conduct semi-annual surveillances of asbestos in school buildings.

CHURCH

John H. Denny

John Henry Denny, 80, of Charlevoix, died Jan. 31, 1990, at Little Traverse Division, Northern Michigan Hospitals. Funeral was Friday, Feb. 2, at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. The Rev. Philip G. Schaubert of the Charlevoix First Congregational Church officiated. Burial will be in Chapel Hill Cemetery, Lansing.

Mr. Denny was born May 3, 1909, in Ellsworth, the son of Everett W. and Catherine Stephan Denny. He grew up in Lansing and in 1927 became an Eagle Scout with the Boy Scouts of America.

He married the former Lenna Foster in 1934 and she preceded him in death in 1963. Mr. Denny married the former Helen Cribb in 1963 in Charlotte. He worked for Fisher Body in the 1940's and then owned and operated J.D. Automotive Service on Airport Road in Lansing. In 1958, he moved to Charlevoix where he owned and operated Denny's Service, a small engine repair and car wash. He had summered in Charlevoix since 1944 and he and his wife have been permanent residents for the past 16 years.

Mr. Denny did volunteer work for the Bergman Center in Charlevoix. Survivors include his wife Helen; three sons, Robert, Richard Denny of Perry, Mich., Robert S. Cribb of Charlotte and Gordon K. Cribb of Mt. Pleasant; seven grandchildren; two great-grandchildren.

James Folsom

James Folsom, 91, of East Jordan, died Feb. 4, 1990, at his home. Funeral was 11 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 6, at the Central Lake Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes. The Rev. Gerald Frick officiated with burial in Denmore Cemetery, Echo Township.

Mr. Folsom was born July 18, 1898, in Echo Township, the son of Samuel and Annie (Somerville) Folsom. On June 16, 1929, he married the former Sylvia Bolser in Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. Folsom had farmed and also was a stone mason. He enjoyed hunting and fishing and had resided in the East Jordan area all of his life.

He is survived by his wife, one son, Delbert Folsom of East Jordan; two daughters, Mrs. Frank (Virginia) Rebec and Elberta Kent, both of East Jordan; six grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren; several nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by three sisters, Dorinda DeForest, Mary Hicks, Hazel Sheppard; one brother, Louis Folsom, a half brother, Charles Sommerville.

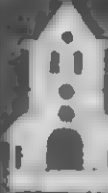

OF BLESSINGS

You know what the winds and waves do to the lighthouse and piers here in Charlevoix. Imagine being on deck and on duty out on the lake facing the swells and the gales first hand. When the waves crashed over the bow, you would still rest easy because you believed in your shipmates who were manning the controls. From her birth in Duluth to her adventures in the Philippines, the Mesquite was a lady who lived a full rich life. Her recent voyages to Grenada and anti-drug patrols in the Caribbean add more pages to her fabled history. But the joy of her life was her beloved Great Lakes. She was "always ready" to go wherever and whenever there was a need.

But, as the last watch reported to their captain, her galley fires are extinguished, her cannons are spiked and her running lights will shine no more. With the final sounding of eight bells, the tears flowed unashamedly. The sorrow was etched on each face. The love that comes from having faced a crisis and survived was clear. Someone special has gone and many folks will miss her. Many of us are not the same for having known her. Rest in peace, Mesquite.

Oddfellows still lead cribbage tournament

Six and a half tables were in play at the Charlevoix Masons-Oddfellows Cribbage Tournament last week. Don Cousse was high man for the Masons with 960 points and Joe Stutzman of the Oddfellows was high with 939 points. The Masons' evening score was 312 points, while the Oddfellows came up with 309 points. The Oddfellows now lead the tournament by 1,563 points. Play will continue this Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m., at the American Legion Hall.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE E. HAMILTON

"They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters, these see the works of the Lord, and His wonders in the deep."

There was a special memorial service held at the Legion Hall last Wednesday. To those who knew and really understood, it was not a swift ceremony any more than it was the mothballing of a ship. It was a family gathered together to say good bye to a loved one. It was the funeral for a great and precious lady who happened to go by the name of Mesquite.

Like any unexpected and untimely death, there was genuine heartache over what might have been. In their eight short months together, the Captain and crew had a blossoming chemistry that saw some real growth and challenges met. Their ship was a lady alive with anticipation over what each venture from port might bring.

Think about sleeping at night in bunk beds, racks they call them, stacked three high with just barely enough room to maybe roll over. That would tend to get you fairly close to your roommates.

The Board of Directors of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce conducted their annual retreat at Shanty Creek Resort Jan. 23 and 24. The Board was assisted in its review and discussion of various issues facing the Charlevoix business community through guest appearances and presentations by Dr. Jeffrey Porter, Vice Chairman of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority, Edith Gilbert of the Crooked Tree Arts Council and Harold Kruttsch, President of the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau.

The Board identified three interrelated matters as its major goals for the forthcoming year, being (1) continued progress in establishing a more positive and constructive political decision-making process, (2) facilitating the retention and establishment of viable year-round downtown businesses, and (3) cooperatively integrating the developing M-66 commercial corridor with the existing business community.

Officers were elected to comprise the Chamber's Executive Committee. Daniel Barron was reelected President, Diane Jerome was reelected First Vice President, Robert Kern was elected Second Vice President and Hugh Mason was reelected Treasurer. The balance of the Board of Directors is comprised of Terry Left of the Villager Pub, Lani Ochs of Central Drug Store, Bill Stewart of Bullfrog Light Company, Thomas Ceran of McLelland Home Furnishings, John Ferguson of Ferguson and Chamberlain Associates, Donald Voisin of The Charlevoix Agency, Robert Hoffman, Certified Public Accountant and L. Kirby Dipert of Davis Chevrolet.

William L. Beckman has been named plant manager of Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant. He succeeds Thomas W. Elward who has been named vice president of CMS Generation Company, a subsidiary of CMS Energy Corporation.

Beckman, 44, previously was radiological services manager of Consumers Power's Painesville nuclear plant near South Haven, a position he held since 1984. Before that, he was director of nuclear training for the company. Beckman is a graduate of the U.S. Navy's nuclear power school and earned a bachelor of science degree in chemistry from Fairfield University in Fairfield, Connecticut.

Beckman joined Consumers Power in 1975. Last year, he served as a member of an International Atomic Energy Agency team invited by the government of Brazil to review the operation of its Angara-1 nuclear power plant.

Area Dentists observe National Children's Dental Health Month February 1 — 28

Four of Charlevoix's dentists participated in a program called "Dentist With A Heart." This is a free dental care program and is sponsored by the Vacationland Dental Society which is affiliated with the American Dental Association. This program is for children who are not covered by dental insurance. The schedule for care by appointment is February 7 Dr. Tollas 9 a.m. - 12 p.m., February 9 Dr. Merrill 9 a.m. - 12 p.m. and Dr. Strawbridge 9 a.m. - 1 p.m. and February 27 Dr. Porter will go to Beaver Island.

On February 21 the dentists will be providing a free dental screening for all Charlevoix K-5 and St. Mary's Students. Each student will receive free tooth brush donated by the Charlevoix Lions Club.

There are field trips that will be taken by Kids Corner, Charlevoix Child Development Center and Co-Op Nursery to area dentist offices.

On Friday, February 16, Dr. John Kempton and Dr. Kevin Stealy and their staffs will screen the teeth of 880 children in grades kindergarten through eight.

On February 20 and 28, the nursery school children will take a field trip to the dentists' offices.

Boyer City's four dentists, Dr. Richard Fish, Dr. Polleys, Dr. Bruce Stewart and Dr. Arnold Bauer will be at the elementary school Friday, February 16 to screen the teeth of all students in grades kindergarten through four and five at the middle school on February 21.

Dr. James Smith at Atwood will be screening the teeth of children in the Ellsworth Grade School and the Ebenezer Christian School.

Throughout the county, school children are learning about brushing, flossing, eating proper foods, and seeing their dentists regularly so they may enjoy good dental health.

To Ensure Your Child's Dental Health, You Should

- ☒ Brush your toddler's teeth.
- ☒ Supervise your child's brushing until he or she is 8 years old.
- ☒ Make sure your child uses a fluoride toothpaste.
- ☒ Make sure your child visits the dentist every six months.
- ☒ Make sure your child uses a fluoride rinse if recommended by your dentist.
- ☒ Check your child's teeth for white, yellow, or brown spots, which are a sign of decay.
- ☒ Teach your child to brush after snacking.
- ☒ Encourage your child to avoid sweets and sticky foods.
- ☒ Make sure your child flosses as soon as the teeth fit closely together.

Rayders suffer frustrating loss

The story of Friday's basketball game. So things aren't perfect for Charlevoix, but they're going well enough. Then, with 27 seconds left in the game, some guy from Grayling, who up until then had been fairly anonymous, throws up a three-point rainbow that catches nothing but net and the Rayders' whole night is ruined.

Charlevoix lost 51-48 in an ugly way to Grayling Friday evening and in the process fell out of the league lead.

The Rayders had trouble scoring out of a set offense for most of the night. Despite that, Charlevoix probably would have won the game had they been able to hit even one or two of several missed shots in the fourth quarter.

Charlevoix opened the game like a house afire. They quickly scored five unanswered points and were leading 9-3 when Grayling called a time-out with 4:07 remaining in the quarter. Coming out of the time-out, the Vikings began taking better care of the ball and not allowing the Rayders to score off turnovers. By the end of the quarter the Vikings led 13-10.

The teams played almost dead even in the second quarter. Charlevoix closed some ground when Grayling rested their center, Jim Abney, near the end of the half. The half ended with Grayling leading 28-25.

The Rayders were at their best in the third quarter. The pace of the game picked up, and that was to Charlevoix's advantage. Charlevoix was able to compensate for their problems in a set offense, by creating offense through strong defense and scoring in transition.

Charlevoix scored the first three baskets of the second half and entered the fourth quarter leading 41-38.

From a Charlevoix standpoint, the fourth quarter will go down as one of the most frustrating of the season.

Charlevoix played like college basketball's defending national champions. The same problem experienced by the University of Michigan several times this year showed up on the Rayders' doorstep. They were leading, but couldn't close the door.

Todd Kovach led the Rayders in scoring with 18 points. He also had nine rebounds, four assists and two blocked shots. Webb Friedly had 13 points and 11 rebounds. Jason Corwin had three steals. James Corwin had seven rebounds.

This Friday is Charlevoix's homecoming. They will host Saint Ste. Marie.

Jason Corwin (25) and his Rayder teammates had problems scoring in the fourth quarter and lost a frustrating game to Grayling Friday evening.

Ski team peaking

Charlevoix's ski team had its best week of the season last week as the boys team won two meets while the girls recorded a first and a second.

In a three-team meet and Boyne Mountain, Feb. 1, the Rayder boys finished first with 21 points while Boyne City totaled 64 points and East Jordan 102. On the girls side, Boyne City won the meet with 30 points over Charlevoix with 42 and East Jordan with 109.

Jake Smith had an excellent day, winning both the slalom and giant slalom.

Individual results for Charlevoix's boys were: Smith 1S, 1GS; Chris Pemble 2S, 8GS; Chris Seymour 4S, 3GS; Brandon Jess 3S, 2GS; Dan Cox 5GS; John Haggard 6GS; Will Wildman 6GS.

Individual results for the Rayder girls were: Katherine Campbell 1S, 16GS; Heather Keller 13S, 2GS; Cynthia Boydston 5S, 6GS; Kim Keller 7S, 8GS; Allison Boyer 9S, 9GS; Kelly Heck 8S, 5GS.

Charlevoix hosted the race. Coach Eric Lundteigen said several parents of Rayder skiers contributed to making the race run smoothly.

Monday at Crystal Mountain, both the Rayder boys and girls team topped nine other teams.

The girls dominated finishing more than 70 points ahead of second place Manistee. Heather Keller, who had been in a skiing slump isn't in a slump any more. She finished first in giant slalom and second in the slalom.

Individual results for the Charlevoix girls were: H. Keller 2S, 1GS; Campbell 1S, 2GS; Boydston 12S, 7GS; K. Keller 6S, 9GS; Boyer 9S, 12GS.

Individual results for the boys were: Smith 3S, 3GS; Pemble 11GS; Seymour 12S, 9GS; Jess 35S, 7GS; Hoadley 15S; Cox 18S; Wildman 14GS; Haggard 24GS.

Five wrestlers fare well

Five Charlevoix wrestlers finished among the top four in their weight classes at the league meet in Sault Ste. Marie this past weekend.

Illness and injuries hampered the Rayders in the meet. Shawn Young, who normally competes in the 125 pound division and has been one of the Rayders' best wrestlers this season, was ill and could not attend the tournament. Jason Pajtas participated, but was slowed by a knee injury.

Brian Darrah and Jim Marquardt each placed third in the meet. Both won two of three matches on the day.

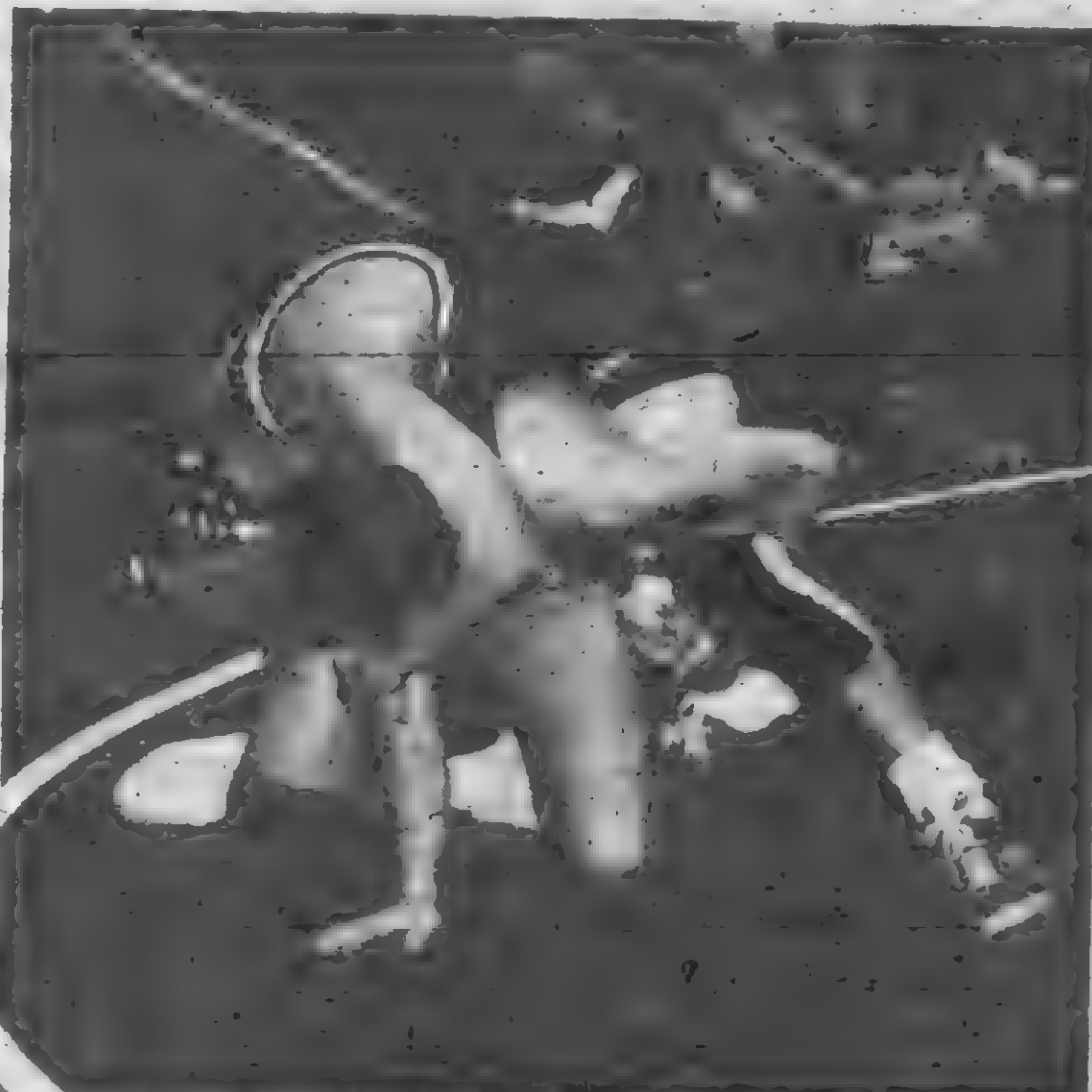

Darrah, wrestling in the 152 pound division, finished the day with a pin in 1:46 over Chad Socolovitch of Rogers City.

Marquardt, a heavyweight, also finished well, pinning Sault Ste. Marie heavyweight Mark Morrison in 1:36 in the final match.

Brian Livingston, Pajtas and Joe Ehrcke each placed fourth in their weight class. Livingston wrestled at 140 pounds, Pajtas at 145 and Ehrcke at 160.

Marquardt and Ehrcke were both seeded lower than fourth entering the meet, but turned in strong performances and defied the seedings.

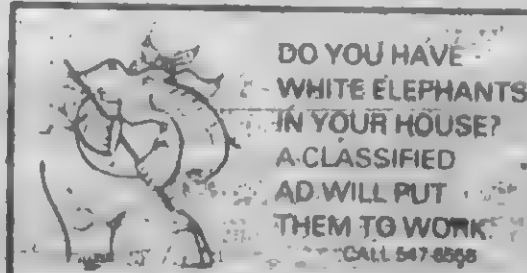

After getting the upper hand, Josh Martin looks to pin his opponent.

Railroad tracks to be removed

by PEG OHLE

Ever since the last train rolled across the old Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad tracks between Charlevoix and Petoskey, there has been much discussion about how the railbed and rights-of-way would be used in the future.

Despite efforts to keep the railbed and tracks intact for use by a scenic railway company, the Michigan House Transportation Subcommittee last week approved removing the tracks and turning the railbed into a recreational trail.

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission has long promoted a recreational trail through the county approximately paralleling U.S. 31. Using the railbed would make the project more feasible.

There has been some local objection to removing the rails. Last spring, in connection with a public hearing in Petoskey about the future of the railbed, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners passed a resolution calling for retaining the railroad tracks and the right-of-way "for the enjoyment of future generations."

Apparently no decision has been reached by the state as to where the recreational trail will begin in Charlevoix. The end of the rail line could be considered the old depot which is now used as a clubhouse by the Charlevoix Yacht Club. If the trail started there, it would skirt Lake Charlevoix almost to the Boyne City Road. Another possibility is starting the trail at the Boyne City Road and proceeding north from there, which would eliminate many problems caused by private ownership of rights-of-way along the lake shore.

In any case, many parcels of private land will have to be bought to build the trail between the two cities. Where rights-of-way cannot be bought, alternative footage will be used. It is estimated that there are between 75 and 80 private land owners along the route.

The state's decision to remove the tracks carries with it funds for building the trail. The Charlevoix to Petoskey trail could become a segment of the statewide multi-use recreational trail system known as the "Rails-to-Trails" program.

Just a year ago, Michigan Bell Telephone Company turned over to the state 21 miles of abandoned railroad right-of-way between Alanson and Mackinaw City which was incorporated into the Mackinaw State Forest Trail System. It is to be a summer and winter facility open for such activities as snowmobiling, cross-country skiing, bicycling, and hiking.

State Senator Mitch Irwin, who represents Northern Michigan, was instrumental in bringing the long-standing problem to a conclusion. "It was the best deal we could put together under the circumstances," Irwin said in recognition of the many sentiments in favor of keeping the rails.

Bob Carr, operator of the Little Traverse Scenic Railway, was disappointed in the decision because his company had plans to run on the tracks between Charlevoix and Petoskey. However, Rep. Francis Spaniola, chairman of the House Transportation Subcommittee, noted that there was "no evidence presented to the committee that a private party is interested in maintaining the rails." State officials estimate the cost of repairing the washouts would amount to "millions."

Approval by the Senate Transportation Subcommittee, which would finalize the decision, is expected this week.

Irwin and Rep. Pat Gagliardi will appoint a local committee to advise and work with the Michigan Department of Transportation in laying out the trail. Work on pulling up the tracks is expected to begin this spring.

Area playwright's work to be performed

The world premiere of a two-act comedy by an East Jordan playwright will occur in two area locations in May, thanks to a $1,050 Michigan Council For the Arts grant which will finance the productions.

The play "Hocus-Pocus" by Lenore Bechtel will be presented on Fridays and Saturdays, May 11 and 12 at Bellaire High School, and May 18 and 19 at East Jordan High School. The productions will be made possible through the joint efforts of Jordan River Arts Council and Antrim Regional Theater.

The arts council will use the play as a vehicle for launching a theater group based in East Jordan to cooperate with the Bellaire-based regional theater group. The play will be directed by Jim McKinney, Charlevoix and the overall project will be guided by Jim Berger, Bellaire.

Bechtel's play was given a successful staged reading last summer at Old Town Playhouse in Traverse City. It stars a fun-loving hypnotist whose orthodox methods threaten to backfire while he tries to help a man who thinks he's invisible, a punk rock singer who thinks she's being poisoned and an inept beauty whose greatest talent is enticing ogles. Seven men and six women will be needed for the cast.

Bechtel, who drew upon seven years' experience as a hypnosis program developer to plot the light-hearted comedy, is a freelance writer, an award-winning journalist and co-author of two self-help books. She has been a public relations consultant and a reporter for several newspapers. She currently writes a book review column for the Traverse City Record Eagle.

McKinney, a Wayne State University graduate, has 34 years experience with theater and TV as a playwright and screenwriter, stage and TV actor, stage manager and set designer. He has been involved with the production of dozens of plays and was associate producer of CBS-TV's "Captain Kangaroo Show." He was producer-director of five dramatic plays and seven musicals for the Thomas Wolfe Playhouse in Asheville, North Carolina, as well as director of "Hello Dolly" for the Cadillac Community Theater.

Bellaire and acted in "Plaza Suite" and "Angel Street." He also directed and acted in "Arsenic and Old Lace" and was producer-director for several other plays presented by the Antrim Regional Theater. Berger is a graduate of Northwestern Michigan College, Michigan State University, Wisconsin Institute of Mortuary Science and Hallway Institute of Real Estate. His theatrical background includes producing TV programs while in college and directing High School plays during his years as a high school teacher and administrator.

Besides the thirteen persons in the cast, many volunteers will be needed for the project, including people to work on sets, costumes and lighting. Those interested in being involved in the production of the play will meet at the Jordan River Arts Council building (the old Jordan Valley Library building) on Main Street in East Jordan, on Saturday, February 10 at 10 a.m. Auditions will be held on a date to be announced later. For further information contact project director Jim Berger at 533-8005 or arts council president Fran Plets at 536-2004.

Trout plans begin

In making plans for the Sixth Annual Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament, board members are looking for some public input. There will be a public meeting at 7 p.m., Monday, Feb. 12, in the downstairs dining room of Village Inn Pizza.

Board members Dave Juilleret, Jim Withers, Sherry Withers, Dean Mikulski, Terry Weber and Gary Spencer have been meeting since December.

The 1990 trout tournament will take place June 8, 9 and 10. There will be some rule changes this year, most notably there will be no Friday morning registration. The deadline for registration will be Thursday, June 7. As in the past, a registration table will be set up in the Market Mall the week prior to the tournament.

Other rule changes are: a reduced entry fee of $5 for children 14 and under; daily pot prizes for the largest fish caught each day.

Prizes associated with the tournament will be given away at 1 p.m. Jan. 10 in East Park. Participants must be present to receive the prizes.

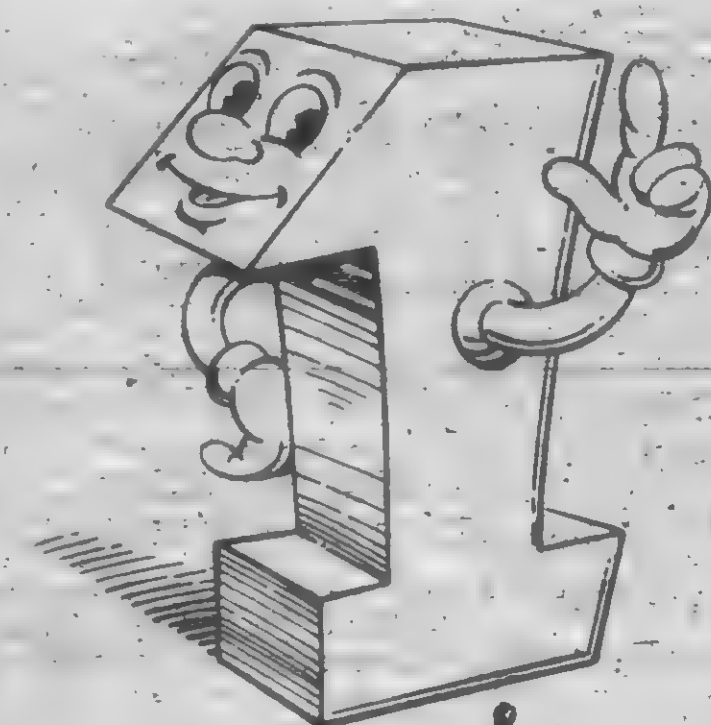

This year's pre-tournament dinner will take place May 5 and the American Legion Hall. Drinks will be served at 6:30 p.m. with dinner to begin at 7:00 p.m. The dinner will be catered by Dave and Gayle Phillips from the Wharfside Deli. The main course will be a choice of Swiss steak or chicken.

Ticket prices are $15 per person. There will be plenty of door prizes. For tickets, contact Dave Juilleret at 547-9900 or 547-2807 or contact Jim Withers at 547-2710 or 547-4057.

Hospital expands recycling program

A committee of Charlevoix Area Hospital employees has worked out a program for recycling more of the hospital's waste.

For several years the hospital has been recycling newspaper and, more recently, computer paper. However, many employees were interested in expanding that program to include waste products. Five employees spearheaded the stepped-up program. LuAnn Allport, R.N.; Dawn Hale, Physical Therapy Aide; Bob Gorkiewicz, Chief Physical Therapist; Ariene Barty, R.N.; Chris Anderson, Purchasing Clerk; and Alex Niedzialkowski, of Housekeeping, were able to solve some of the problems that stood in the way of a more aggressive recycling program.

Roger Sievertson, General Services Manager, says problems with storage and transportation hindered the hospital's efforts until employees stepped forward to help solve them. "There will be some extra labor involved,"

Sievertson said, "but we think this is something we must do in order to be responsible members of the community in this day and age."

Now the entire hospital staff is involved in saving and separating recyclable materials. A large part of the hospital's waste is glass bottles such as IV bottles, plastic bottles, and cardboard and newspaper. Containers must be clean and free of any metal, plastic or rubber.

Council to hear nuke debate

Opponents and proponents of Big Rock Point nuclear power plant will have an opportunity to air their views at the city council's Feb. 19 work session.

Nuclear opponents sent a letter to the council in January and council member Pat Gaskin raised the issue at a council meeting. Although the rest of the council acted less than enthused about hearing nuclear energy and Big Rock Point debated, the matter was put on the Feb. 19 work session agenda.

HAYES TOWNSHIP PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE

The Planning Commission will hold a public hearing, February 20, 1990, at 7:30 p.m., at the Township Hall located on the corner of Old US 31 and Burgess Roads, to take comments on the following:

1. William and Mary Lee Huber, AKA Wintersgreen Herbs and Potpourri has made application for "Cottage Industry" status on property located on Burnett Road, Section 11 and part of property number 009-00.

2. Amendments to the Zoning Ordinance, as follows: SECTION 5.13, SHORELAND PROTECTION STRIP.

Paragraph A. — Shoreland Protection Strip shall read, in part: No building or structure, except boardwalks, docks and launch ramps shall be erected closer than one hundred (100) feet from the shoreline at the maximum or maximum recorded (IGLD) high water level of any lake, stream or creek within the Township, except Susan Lake which shall have a minimum setback of eighty (80) feet. The maximum recorded water level, International Great Lakes Datum (IGLD) shall apply to Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix. In addition, a strip of land fifty (50) feet wide from the maximum or maximum recorded (IGLD) high water mark bordering the body of water shall be maintained in trees and shrubs in their natural state. If there is a dispute IGLD shall be determined by a registered land surveyor, paid for by land owner. The vegetation and the soil shall not be altered or disturbed within the shoreland protection strip, as herein described. Trees and shrubs may be pruned, however, to afford a view of the water.

Limitation of Boat Dockage and Limitation of "Funnel Development" paragraphs shall be deleted.

Shoreland Protection Strip Replanting and Restoring Requirement, sub-paragraph 2 shall be amended, and sub-paragraph 3 shall be added to read, in part, as follows:

2. A strip of land fifty (50) feet wide from the maximum or maximum recorded (IGLD) high water mark, bordering the body of water, shall be replanted.

3. Any replanted trees or shrubs that die within one (1) year shall be replanted with comparable size.

Property owners may apply to the Zoning Administrator for permission to clear a section of the lakefront for recreational purposes under the following conditions; sub-paragraph 1 and 2 shall be amended to read, in part, as follows:

1. The cleared area does not exceed 25% of the total frontage on the lake, and consists of no more than fifty (50) linear feet and maximum depth of fifty (50) feet per parcel.

2. A shoreline protection strip or greenbelt of fifty (50) feet in depth shall be maintained.

SECTION 2.02, DEFINITIONS, BUILDING HEIGHT. The following shall be added to the maximum height of a building or structure:

On hills or ridges having slopes of 12% or more - 25 feet.

Farm silos shall be amended to read agricultural structures.

A copy of the proposed sections of the Zoning Ordinance, to be amended, may be picked up at the Secretary's Office, 10772 Burnett Road, on February 19 from 1 - 6 p.m. or February 20 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Copies will also be available at the hearing.

The Regular Planning Commission meeting will convene immediately following the above hearings.

Students to visit U.S.S.R.

Seven Charlevoix students have been accepted to participate in the Friendship Caravan, a planned trip to the Soviet Union this June, sponsored by the Charlevoix International Club.

The Charlevoix students are Troy Bonar, Katherine Campbell, Scott Campbell, Michelle Carlson, Edith Pair, Tonya Rostar, and Stacey Skeel. They will be joined on the trip by Jennifer Breidenstein of Boyne City, Julie Brunett of East Jordan, and Ashley Brower of Petoskey.

Before April 1, the students individually and jointly will be raising money by various means, including saving certain sales slips, collecting and returning empty cans and bottles, selling T-shirts designed by the high school art class, a fifty-fifty drawing, and a bowlathon.

The trip itinerary tentatively includes the Russian cities of Moscow, Kalinin, Novgorod, Leningrad, Moscow, and another city yet to be announced. The travelers will fly to Washington and from there to Moscow to begin their Russian visit. The entire trip will last three weeks.

The Charlevoix International Club is a chapter of People to People International. Under this program, 1,800 United States High School students will travel in the Soviet Union. Before leaving this country, they will be briefed by the State Department in Washington.

Doris Lundteigen of Charlevoix is the delegation leader. Any questions about the trip may be directed to her at 547-2482.

Council begins budget review City proposes millage increase

The city council has begun review of a proposed 1990-91 city fiscal budget which calls for approximately $8.6 million in expenditures and a millage increase of approximately nine-tenths of a mill.

A large portion, $3.1 million, of the proposed budget is designated for capital improvements. The capital improvements include: electrical system renovation, including construction of a new substation; finishing business district street and sidewalk work; construction of the new band shell; other street, sidewalk and sewer work throughout the city.

Building a new electrical substation is the big ticket item with a projected cost of $1.3 million. A $1.2 million bond sale is proposed to pay the majority of that cost. Bonds would be paid back through electric fund revenues.

The budget, which was drafted by city manager Mike Wiesner with the assistance of city treasurer Rick Brandt and other staff members, proposes a total city millage levy of 15.1 mills. That breaks down to 9.5 operational mills; four mills for infrastructure work and 1.76 mills for debt retirement.

The 9.5 mill levy is a half mill operational increase while four mills is a one mill infrastructure increase. Debt retirement millage is a decrease of .62 of a mill.

A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a property's state equalized value (SEV). SEV is one-half of a property's theoretical market value.

Given the proposed millage figures, the city's estimated general fund revenue for the coming year is $1,562,200, as compared to this year's projected revenue of $1,453,584.

The proposed budget contains money for $45,500 in projects which were in this year's budget, but have not been completed and therefore are being carried over into the coming year.

The city attempted to cover fringe benefit costs at a rate of 40 percent of wages this year, but found it necessary to set the rate at 45 percent. That will require a $23,000 increase.

The budget proposes staff increases in three areas: one extra day of work per week for the city planner at a cost of $9,300; an extra summer police officer at a cost of $4,900; and a part-time secretary in the city manager's office at a cost of $3,400.

Council budget review will continue next Monday evening. The council must adopt a budget by April 1.

Challenge draws crowds

Relieve the tedium of winter. Get outdoors. Look cold weather right in the eye and don't blink. Challenge the mountain.

Approximately 2,000 people gathered at Mount McSaubia this past weekend for the Mount McSaubia Snow Challenge. The ever popular World Thundertubing championship was decided by less than half a second. Flocks of children participated in the ski races. Snowmobilers cast caution to the wind in climbing the mountain. Trucks and dune buggies also scaled the snow-covered mountain side.

All in good fun. Listed below are the results of the various events.

Ski races (Those listed under "other" are in no particular order.)

Age five and under boys:
First, Trevor Kline. Second, Jordan Nystrom. Third, Spencer Bryan. Other: Taylor Fisher, Brad Long, Dustin Sikavitsas.

Age five and under girls:
First, Danielle Vogelheim. Second, Heather Belding. Third, Lindsey Miller. Other: Lexi Wilson, Lauren Silverhorn, Ashley Ager.

Age six, seven and eight boys:
First, Johathon Campbell. Second, Travis Sikavitsas. Third, Tom Wilson. Other: Rod Boss, Adam Wood, Mike Simpson, Shay Hutchison, Eric Meir, Hal Evans, Adam Kline, Ryan Vogelheim, Michael Ricks, Darren Strawbridge, Ryan Lynch, Trevor O'Conner, Cody Schotfield.

Age six, seven and eight girls:
First, Brook Block. Second, Amanda Simpson. Third, Jamie Drew. Other: Abby Schaperkott, Tiffany Fisher, Lindsey Carland, Lisa Miller, Michelle Martin.

Age nine and ten boys:
First, Grant Meggison. Second, Roger Pitman. Third, Colin Carr. Other: Adam Lacher, Todd Schaperkott, Drew Belding, Justin Thorp, Nicholas.

Ahead-lines

Students perform "Godspell"

"Godspell", the delightfully entertaining musical which brings Christian parables to the stage, will be presented in public performance by Charlevoix Performing Arts students, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 24 and at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 25 at Charlevoix High School.

The Charlevoix student actors have just completed competition at the Regional Theater Festival in St. John's. While they did not qualify for the State Championship competition, students brought home several awards for their acting and technical presentation.

Charlevoix's interpretation of "Godspell", written by John Michael Tebbel in the early 1960's, is a thoughtful, often humorous, upbeat musical. The play is set in a medieval city-state where a member of the royalty brings in a travelling troupe to "entertain and re-explain the basic tenets of our religion," saying to the actors, "So you merry-makers, I charge you to help us reaffirm and reembrace our Lord's word, let the show begin."

Thus the story of the life of Christ and the parables are told in dramatic musical sketches. The student-designed sets and costumes are symbolic of the doubts, temptations and labors of the characters in the familiar Biblical stories.

From the opening procession through the dramatic death of Christ, "Godspell" conveys the full range of emotions—love, humor and drama. The music which lingers includes "Day by Day," "By My Side," "Learn our Lessons Well," and "Light of the World."

"Our intent is to give families a good piece of theatrical material which is artistic, meaningful and conveys the lessons and cuts across personal beliefs," explains Performing Arts Director Connie Ford.

The cast of 42 students, is led by Troy Bonar, Chrissy Dillon, Becky Bellairs, Michelle Jacobs, Jerrett Moreno, J.P. Haneckow, B.J. Van Loo, Chris Felton, Tammy Felton, David Hunter, Jeff Warner, and Stacey Skeel. Pianist Kathy Pease is musical director. Lighting design is by Stacey LeCunieux.

Becky Bellairs, Troy Bonar, and Tammy Felton received "Excellent" Acting Awards at District level competition. Troy Bonar and David Hunter received "Excellent" Acting Awards at Regional level, and Stacey LeCunieux received an "Excellent" Award for Lighting Design.

Tickets for the Saturday evening performance, Feb. 24, and the Sunday matinee, Feb. 25, are $4 adults, and $3 students and Senior Citizens. They are on sale at Charlevoix High School (547-3222).

The word around town is that there's going to be a two-day art fair at Castle Farms this summer!

Yes, that's true," said Kimberly Reibel-Simonelli. "We're planning to invite 150 artists and I'm mailing 800 applications to 5 mid-west states. We're calling it ART FESTIVAL CASTLE FARMS 1990. It will be a juried show. Fred Petroskey, instructor of life drawing, oils and acrylics at Northwestern Michigan College will be one of the 5 or 6 jurors."

The jury fee is $5 and the exhibition fee for 2 days is $95. We are having live entertainment—the Interlochen Jazz Band—and an artist's reception in the court yard. We have invited Lelanau Wine Cellars to do a wine tasting for us. Our dates are the same as the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair, the second weekend in August. It will be a big fun weekend for art.

The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair, which was started thirty-two years ago by the Chamber of Commerce, is a one day affair held in East Park, overlooking Round Lake. There are 135 spaces available and the entry fee is $75. The 10 person volunteer committee, chaired by Susi Reis, receives 1000 applications a year. The hard working Art Fair Committee spends a month viewing the 3000 slides submitted by the applicants from all over the United States.

"Our fair is known throughout the mid-west as a little gem" says Reis. "We have our own reputation and the fact that it is a one day fair appeals to a great many artists. We have a hard core of about 50 professional artists that are invited to exhibit. Our workers are in the park at 6 o'clock in the morning the day of the fair getting ready for the crowds, and it's a thrill for me to see their enthusiasm. We've had no connection with the Chamber of Commerce for several years."

Kimberly, recently married to Tim Simonelli of Traverse City, hopes to promote more in-house events at Castle Farms. "We are heading in a new direction at Castle Farms. We expect to offer a broader spectrum of music which will be a good experience for our audiences."

Mark your calendar for August 11 and 12. It's going to be some lively weekend!

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Giving specific instructions

"Where's your hat?" the man asked the kid.

It was a reasonable question. It's winter. It's cold out. A kid outdoors should have a hat.

And the kid had a hat. When the man asked her where her hat was, the kid promptly reached in her back pocket, fished out a nice knit hat and showed it to him.

I'm new at the parenting game and inquisitive by nature so had I been in the man's shoes I would have probably asked the kid a follow-up question: "What good is your hat doing you in your back pocket?"

But I wasn't in the man's shoes and it's probably just as well. You ask a kid a question like that and the kid will immediately know that when it comes to dealing with kids, you're a rank amateur.

The man who was dealing with the kid, he apparently was a veteran parent. He didn't ask any more questions. He just told the kid to put the hat on her head.

With some people in life, kids representing a fair percentage of these people, it's pointless to ask questions and you've got to give more than just general instructions.

Just saying, "If you're going outdoors, take a hat," won't do. You must add, "Wear the hat on your head."

When I was in college, I worked as a resident advisor in one of the dormitories.

One Saturday night, shortly after 2 a.m., I heard a rustling sound outside the doorway of my room. When I opened the door, I found a snowball that probably weighed about 40 to 50 pounds resting on the floor outside my doorway. I also saw one of the guys from down the hall disappearing into his room.

This was on the third floor of the building. Some months later, the guy told me that in the process of hauling the snowball up three flights of stairs, he had to stop a couple of times and put the snowball down so he could catch his breath.

On the night when I found the snowball, I didn't ask questions or discuss particulars with the guy. I just went to his room and told him, "Move the snowball."

I should have been more specific. Half an hour later, another staff member and I were called to resolve a ruckus on second floor. As we were returning, we found a familiar snowball in front of another room.

"Did you tell him to move the snowball 'outside' or just to move it?" the other staff member asked me.

"I'm afraid I didn't specify," I admitted.

At the other extreme, a person can also receive too much direction. Pedestrian lights are a classic example of directions which people really shouldn't need.

Fortunately, Charlevoix does not have pedestrian crossing lights.

When you think about it, a pedestrian crossing light is an insult to a pedestrian's intelligence.

A pedestrian crossing light tells a person one of two things. A person can "walk" in front of traffic which is stopped. But when traffic is moving, a pedestrian light advises that a person is better off if they "don't walk" out in front of it.

In Charlevoix, we like to think we're able to figure out such things for ourselves.

Charle-facts

Will E. Hampton, long-time Charlevoix business man, recalled in his later years a slide light of bringing the railroad to Charlevoix in 1892. "There was quite a bit of visiting to the sink hole that developed alongside the lake south of Ellsworth. As fast as dirt, trees, and other material could be dumped into the hole, extending for several rods, it sank! It took some time to get enough stability to trust the first cars over the spot, and even for years after, trains ran with a 'slow' order at the spot."

Brown city furor

The world is filled with so many imponderables. Take Brown City, Mich., for example.

The little farming community, population 1,163, is located in the Thumb, and, if you are a little rusty on your Michigan geography, Brown City is four miles east of Burnside and 13 miles southwest of Peck.

Brown City's athletic teams for some mysterious reason are known as the Greendevils.

I'm not kidding. By everything that's holy, they should be called the Browndevils, but they aren't. They're the Greendevils.

But some folks are objecting. Not to the color but to the devils because of satanic implications.

Protesters, described as a "shadowy citizens group" by United Press International, have been leaving handbills on doorsteps urging that the name be changed.

This week, the Brown City Board of Education has called for a straw vote by everyone in the school district over 18 years of age on whether the name Greendevils should be scratched.

On Jan. 26, a similar vote was taken among the students. They voted 90 to 10 to keep Greendevils as their nickname—the same name they have used for almost 50 years.

The school board will take the results of both polls into consideration when it meets tonight (Wednesday) to decide the fate of the Greendevils.

School superintendent Dennis Sidebottom (I am not making this up) says his board will not be bound by the results of the election, but he feels the community should have whatever it wants in the way of a team nickname.

If I had time, I'd move to Brown City and cast my vote for the Browndevils.

I like things to be nice and orderly, and for my money the situation in Brown City has gotten out of hand.

WITH THE FLU and nasty-head-cold season upon us, aren't you glad that the once ubiquitous handkerchief has been relegated to the nation's sartorial graveyard?

The young may find this hard to believe, but not too many years ago every school child and every adult carried around with him a handkerchief to be used to catch sneezes and mop up drippy noses.

Once used, the handkerchief—which was usually made of linen or fine cotton—was not discarded. Instead it was stuffed back in the pocket (or the cuff of the blouse if you were a schoolteacher) to be used again and again until it was as soggy as a teabag.

I cringe at the recollection! But these days are far behind us.

With the invention of Kleenex and other disposable tissues, no one need carry a sopping wet handkerchief around in his pocket all day. You simply grab a Kleenex, use it and throw it away.

Invention of the disposable tissue probably has done more to prevent the spread of cold germs than any pharmaceutical on the market.

IN THE SAME vein, invention of the paper napkin probably has done just as much to promote sanitation at the dinner table.

This again is hard to believe, but when I was a kid everyone in the family had his own linen table napkin. And we didn't use them just once. We used them meal after meal, rolling them up securely in our own personalized "napkin rings" for the next meal.

When napkins became too raunchy—or began to move on their own—they would be sent to the laundry and new ones issued by the head of the house.

Napkin rings were often made of silver and emblazoned with one's initials so that one's napkin wouldn't be confused with anyone else's napkin.

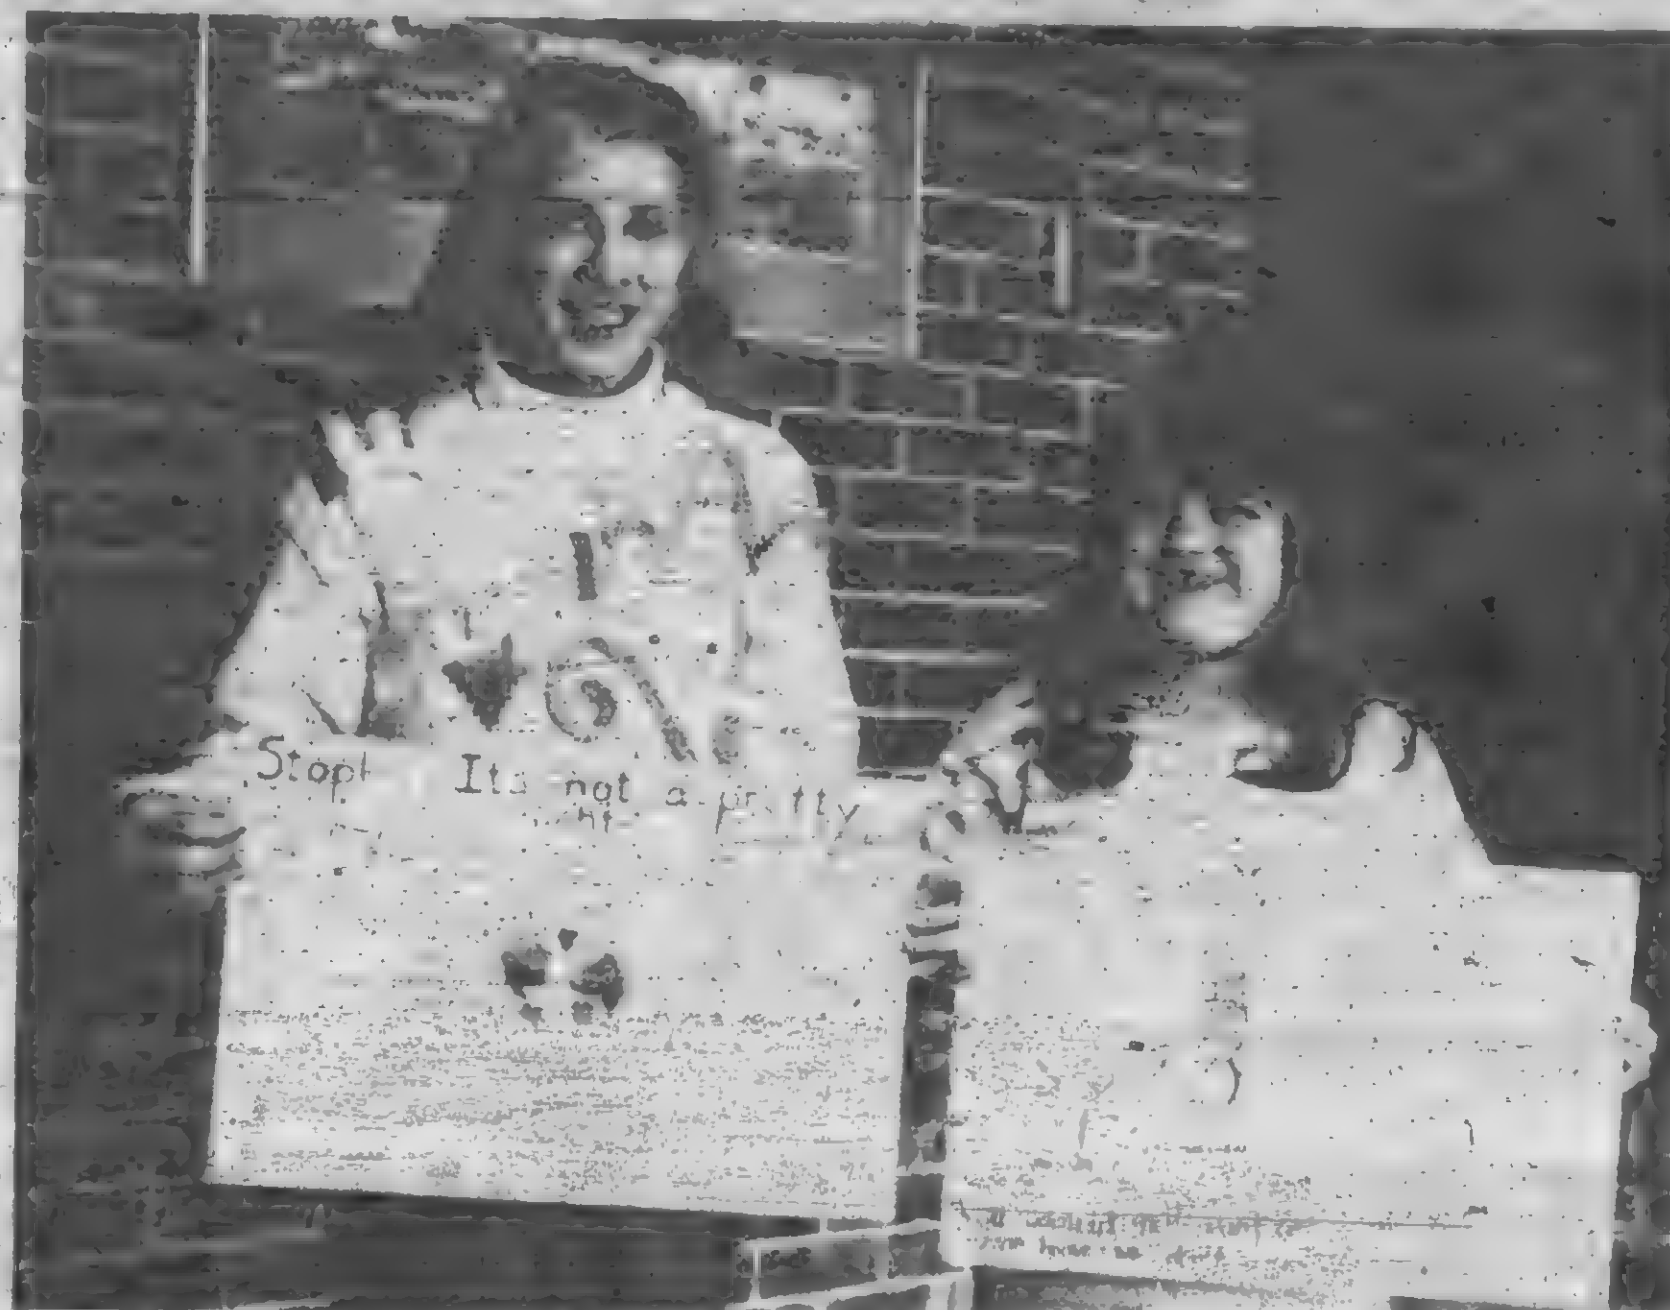

At least we made that slight concession to personal hygiene.

Of course, when there was company for dinner, fresh napkins were issued all around and used only once. But for family meals, yesterday's napkins—complete with gravy stains—were trotted out.

Paper napkins have made possible the use of fresh napkins at every meal.

The also have made napkin rings hot items on the antique market.

The handkerchief and the reusable table napkin are two relics of the "good old days" I am happy to do without.

Resource center will celebrate

This month the Women's Resource Center, Safe Home Program, celebrates its 10th birthday. The Safe Home will host a Birthday Party honoring over 60 volunteers who gave more than 7,600 hours to the Center this past year. The event will take place at 6 p.m. Thursday, February 22, in the North Central Michigan College Conference Center. The evening will also feature the fourth annual Gold Mine Fashion Show.

Celebrating 10 years of housing victims of domestic violence and their children is a successful landmark to all of us at the Safe Home. We are thankful to the community and our committed volunteers for their support in housing over 3200 women and children over the past 10 years. Please come and celebrate with us on February 22nd," commented Chris Krajewski, Safe Home Director.

"Without our volunteers none of this would be possible. They are caring and concerned individuals who have seen a need for help for abused women and sacrifice time from very busy personal lives in order to meet that need. I have been impressed with their willingness to help whenever we need them. They are some really neat people," stated Sue Blevins, Volunteer Coordinator.

The celebration and fashion show will begin with beverages and hors d'oeuvres at 5 p.m. The public is invited; tickets are $5 at the door.

Elementary conferences scheduled

The Charlevoix Elementary School will host winter parent-teacher conferences Feb. 28, March 1 and 2. Parents received information in a letter sent home Feb. 9 which they are to return to the school no later than Feb. 16. Conferences will then be scheduled by the individual teacher, with appointment dates being sent home with the students.

Evening conferences will take place Feb. 28 and March 1, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Afternoon conferences will take place on March 2, from 1 p.m. to 3:45 p.m. The elementary school will dismiss all students at 11:30 a.m. Friday, March 2, with no afternoon kindergarten classes and no hot lunch served on that date.

If you have any questions regarding parent-teacher conferences, please phone the elementary office at 547-3215.

Band boosters planning events to raise funds

Charlevoix Band Boosters are planning a spaghetti dinner and two raffles for Friday, March 2.

Between now and March 2, band students will be selling tickets for all three events. Proceeds will be used to bolster the band's uniform fund and fund the senior band member's weekend trip.

Tickets for the spaghetti dinner cost $3 for students, $5 for adults and $15 for a family ticket. The dinner will take place from 4:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. March 2 in the high school cafeteria. The menu is all-you-can-eat and features spaghetti, garlic bread, tossed salad, dessert bars and beverage. Sauce with or without meat will be available.

The dinner will take place prior to the Charlevoix-Petoskey basketball game. Tickets for the 50-50 raffle will be sold prior to the game.

There will also be a grand raffle with a $500 prize donated by Medusa Cement Company. Band students will be selling tickets prior to the dinner. Ticket prices are a dollar per ticket or $5 for a book of six.

Mammography program approved

Charlevoix Area Hospital's mammography facility has received a three-year accreditation by the American College of Radiology.

The facility has met the necessary requirements, which include a peer review evaluation of the facility's staff qualifications, equipment, quality control and quality assurance programs, image quality and breast dose. The hospital's mammography unit and procedures were surveyed by the Commission on Accreditation on Radiologic Practices.

Dr. Tai-Hee Kang, radiologist on the Charlevoix Area Hospital staff, said, "We are very proud to receive this accreditation with such high recommendation from the American College of Radiology." The review process began in November.

Approval means that Charlevoix Area Hospital joins over 900 facilities nationwide whose personnel are qualified to perform and interpret mammograms and whose equipment ensures that women receive optimum mammographic examination with the lowest possible risk.

At Charlevoix Area Hospital

mammograms are performed by women technologists. The X-rays are then interpreted by Dr. Kang, who is board certified by the American Board of Radiology.

One in ten women will develop breast cancer. Early detection through regular mammograms and breast self-examination is the key to survival. Women between the ages of 40-49 should have a mammogram every 1-2 years, and a breast exam by a physician every year. After age 50, a mammogram and physical breast exam should be done every year.

Hospital guild offers scholarships

Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild is offering medical scholarships of $400 per year for a maximum of four years.

The scholarships are open on a competitive basis to high school graduates who wish to enter approved schools for any area of the healthcare profession.

The applicant must reside in the area served by the hospital and must have applied for admission to an accredited school before applying for the scholarship and must be financially worthy.

Persons wishing to apply should contact their high school counselor or write: Scholarship Committee, Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild, Lakeshore Drive, Charlevoix, MI by April 1.

Major E. H. Green was the first lawyer and first postmaster in Charlevoix. He arrived here in 1868. The building on Bridge Street which now is occupied by Coldwell Property Management bears his name at the top with the date 1868.

Oddfellows still lead

Jamie Crain played a perfect game in the Charlevoix Oddfellows-Masons Cribbage Tournament last week.

There were eight tables in play, with Crain scoring 968 points for the Oddfellows and Albert Sharrow scoring 952 points for the Masons.

The evening's scores added up to 758 for the Oddfellows and 350 for the Masons. The Oddfellows now lead the Masons by 1,961 points in the tournament, which is at the halfway mark.

County construction centers around Charlevoix

Of the 556 building permits issued last year by the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection, almost half of them were for construction work in the western half of the county, largely in the Charlevoix area.

The city of Charlevoix and the townships of Charlevoix, Norwood, Marion, Eveline, Hayes, Peaine, and St. James accounted for 289 building permits.

By political unit, the largest number of permits in the county were issued to Boyne City, 61; Eveline Township, 60; Charlevoix Township, 50; Marion Township, 45; city of Charlevoix, 41; Melrose Township, 33; and East Jordan, 31.

The accompanying map shows where building activity was: High, 40 through 60 permits (black); medium, 20 through 30 permits (gray); and low, six through 16 permits.

City council approves capital improvement plan

The city council has approved a proposed five-year capital improvement plan.

Council approval of the plan is significant in that it provides a preliminary indication that the council will increase the infrastructure millage levy from three-mills to four mills for this year.

The capital improvement plan is part of a long-term infrastructure program the city began in 1987 in order to refurbish and improve the city's street, sidewalk, sewer and water systems.

At that time, the city was levying less than its allocated millage limit, therefore the city council was, and is, able to levy up to four mills for the infrastructure program without a special millage election.

A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a property's State Equalized Value (SEV). SEV is 50 percent of a property's theoretical market value.

During the first two years of the infrastructure program, the council levied four mills. Last year, the council reduced that levy to three mills.

Although the capital improvement plan approved by the council was based on a four mill levy, the council will not formally establish the infrastructure millage levy until March when it adopts the city's annual budget.

If the council were to reduce the infrastructure millage levy, there would be less money for capital improvement projects and the plan would have to be amended accordingly.

City manager Mike Wiesner recommended the four-mill levy. He said much of the infrastructure program involves "catch-up" work, repairing deterioration which has taken place over the years.

Wiesner said that even levying four mills, it will take at least 12 years before all of the identified infrastructure work is completed. He contended that if the millage levy is decreased and therefore the infrastructure work is slowed, it will take at least 16 or 17 years to complete the proposed work. Wiesner maintained that at that rate the city won't be gaining much ground as things will be deteriorating almost as fast as they're being repaired.

Second ward councilmen Ken Whitley and Butch Russell voted against approval of the capital improvement plan. They indicated opposition to raising the infrastructure millage and said they would prefer to see it left at three mills even if it takes longer to complete the proposed work.

Whitley said that although street work in the capital improvement plan may only have a life expectancy of 20 years or less, he feels much of the other work being done will last 30 to 50 years.

Councilmembers Pat Gaskin, Bill Haggard, Cheryl Hoffman and Jim Potter voted to approve the capital improvement plan.

Potter noted that the four-mill levy could be changed when the budget is adopted.

CHURCH

Rev. Theodore L. Louiselle

The Rev. Theodore L. Louiselle, 77, of Charlevoix, died Feb. 10, 1990, at Little Traverse Division, Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Funeral was Tuesday, Feb. 13, at the Petoskey Assembly of God Church. The Rev. Robert W. Holmes officiated and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Petoskey.

Mr. Louiselle was born Dec. 27, 1912, in Ellsworth, the son of William and Minnie Jane (Routley) Louiselle. He was a longtime resident of the Charlevoix area and on Oct. 21, 1960, he married the former Betty Jane Weimer in Charlevoix.

They made their home in Flint for a short time where Mr. Louiselle worked for Buick Motor Division of General Motors.

On June 17, 1956, he received a license to preach and on July 22, 1962, in Moline, Ill., he was ordained into the Foursquare Gospel Church by its president, Dr. Ralph K. McPherson, of the Angelus Temple, Los Angeles, Calif.

Rev. Louiselle pastored the Foursquare church in Alma and in the 1950's pastored in churches in Iowa, Indiana and Michigan. He also pastored part-time at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church and did special engagement ministries. Rev. Louiselle was also a piano tuner and was a professional chef at many area restaurants and ski resorts.

He is survived by his wife, Betty; one son, Raymond L. and one daughter, Mrs. Dean (Karen) Drier and two brothers, Thomas and Paul, of Charlevoix.

The family suggests memorials to the Petoskey Assembly of God Church. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Musa N. Bourissau

Charlevoix resident Musa N. (Midge) Bourissau, 84, died Feb. 7, 1990 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 10, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Benton Heisler of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church officiated and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mrs. Bourissau was born Dec. 6, 1905 in Johannesburg, the daughter of Arthur and Julia (Murphy) Richardson. She was a 1924 graduate of Charlevoix High School and attended Charlevoix County Normal School. She taught at the Undine School in Hayes Township after which she lived in Massachusetts for a short time. She moved back to Charlevoix where she married Louis W. Bourissau on Nov. 11, 1932. Mr. Bourissau died on March 19, 1981.

The couple made their home in Grand Rapids where Mrs. Bourissau worked in pediatrics at St. Mary's Hospital as a nurse's aide for many years. She has lived in Charlevoix for the past 19 years.

Survivors include two sisters, Delora Richardson and Mrs. Sims (Helen) Baker, both of Charlevoix. In addition to her husband, Mrs. Bourissau was preceded in death by two brothers, Ward and Orva Richardson, and a sister, Edna Cross.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to Charlevoix Area Hospital or to the church of choice. Envelopes for memorial contributions are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Rev. Peter Akright

Reverend Peter Akright, recently appointed Assemblies of God missionary to North Africa, will be guest speaker at Charlevoix Assembly of God at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 14.

While working in Dallas with some North African students in 1975-76, Reverend Akright began to feel a burden for Muslims in that region. His continued desire to reach this field was expressed through his strong missions emphasis when pioneering a church in Plymouth, Wisconsin. His participation in a one-month MAPS (Mobilization and Placement Service) outreach to North African Muslims in the summer of 1988 was his first opportunity to visit the field. Now, he and his wife, Wilma, are preparing for full-time ministry to Muslims in North Africa.

Frances W. Dickerson

Frances W. Dickerson, 71, of Eastport, died Jan. 29, 1990, at Traverse City Osteopathic Hospital.

Mass of the Christian burial was held Thursday, Feb. 1 at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church, Elk Rapids. Interment will be in Lakeview Cemetery, Eastport. The Rev. Jerome D. Tuller officiated.

The former Frances W. Lisek was born March 3, 1918, in New York, N.Y., the daughter of John and Valeria (Smigowski) Lisek. On Feb. 26, 1967, she married Robert Dickerson in Beulah.

Mrs. Dickerson had resided in Eastport since 1966, moving there from Detroit. She was a member of Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Elk Rapids, the Upper Torch Lake Association and was head waitress at Shanty Creek Resort in Bellaire from 1968-74.

Mrs. Dickerson is survived by her husband; one daughter, Sister Patricia Janowicz of the Adrian Dominican order, Eastport; two sisters, Mrs. Stephen (Josephine) Rosol of Dearborn and Mrs. Stanley (Stella) Szuma of Surprise, Ariz.; one brother, Stanley Lisek of Petersburg; many nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by one brother, Frank Lisek.

The family suggests memorials to the Antrim County Unit of the American Cancer Society. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Central Lake Chapel of the Mortensen Funeral Homes.

Council denies rezoning request

The city council formally denied a rezoning request by developer Lester Turner at the council's Feb. 5 meeting. Turner sought to have property, currently owned by Oscar Stroud, at the corner of Mercer Boulevard and Petoskey Avenue rezoned from M-H (Motel-Hotel) to R-4 (Planned Residential).

Councilmembers cited four reasons for denying the rezoning request: the planning commission did not receive information it requested from Turner; Turner's proposed site plan is not consistent with the character of the neighborhood; Turner's site plan is inconsistent with the city master plan; Turner's site plan is inconsistent with the zoning ordinance concerning undue traffic congestion.

Councilmember Butch Russell made the motion to deny and councilmember Cheri Hoffman supported it. Mayor Gary Probert abstained from the discussion as he lives near the property in question. Mayor pro-tem Bill Haggard presided over the rezoning discussion and therefore did not vote. All other councilmembers voted to deny the rezoning requests.

Turner, who has an option to buy the property, appeared before the city planning commission this past September. At that time, he had preliminary drawings indicating a project which would place 37 buildings containing a total of 157 residential units on the property.

Of the 157 units, 129 would be in the city while the other 28 would be on a portion of the property which is in the township. The portion of property in the township has already been rezoned.

Planning commission members wanted more information from Turner before they would act on the rezoning request. They demanded information concerning the density of the project; the project's potential effect on Lake Charlevoix water quality; landscaping and elevation plans; the percentage of wooded area which would be lost due to the project; how harmonious the project would be with surrounding property.

Turner refused to provide that information. He maintained he was only applying for preliminary rezoning and therefore is not required by law to provide the detailed information requested.

The rezoning request then went before the city council Sept. 18. The city council supported the planning commission position and sent Turner back to the planning commission with instructions to provide the requested information.

City planner Gerry Harsch sent Turner a letter outlining the information the planning commission wanted, but other than that, between September and January, virtually nothing happened with the rezoning request.

Jan. 3, Harsch wrote a memo to city manager Mike Wiesner. In the memo, Harsch wrote, "Mr. Turner has had approximately 100 days to respond to Council's requirements. To date he has not, therefore, it is my suggestion that Council take action to verify that Mr. Turner's application for rezoning has been rejected."

The city council took up the matter at a Jan. 8 work session.

Turner was at the work session and suggested that rather than setting a public hearing to deny the request, the council keep the present request open and allow him to submit to planning commission a revised request calling for fewer units. He also said he would not furnish the planning commission with all of the information it had requested, nor would he file another rezoning request if the one before the council was rejected.

Turner also noted that he had been out of the country, in Nigeria, almost continuously between September and January.

Councilmembers indicated that Turner had been given plenty of time, 100 days, to make some sort of response to the planning commission. The council voted to schedule the public hearing necessary to deny the rezoning request.

That public hearing took place Feb. 5. Turner did not attend the meeting.

Bruce Healey, Charles Papineau, former councilman Norm Probert and WATCH president Jerry Puhl asked the council to deny the rezoning.

Puhl said the environmental organization he represents is not against development of the property, but opposes the high density proposed in the preliminary drawings.

Library receives video

Waste Management, Inc. has donated a video on drug and alcohol abuse called "Time to Think" to the Charlevoix Public Library. The video is designed for parents to view at home with their children.

The video is about twenty minutes long and contains information about the physical, psychological, social and legal consequences of drug and alcohol abuse.

The Robert Crown Center in Hinsdale, Ill. has earned a national reputation for providing drug and alcohol educational programs for young people. "Time to Think" shows an actual class in session at Robert Crown.

For additional information on the video and checking it out, call the Charlevoix Public Library at 547-2851.

City nuke debate cancelled

The city council has reconsidered an earlier proposal to hear nuclear proponents and opponents air their views at a council meeting. Council member Pat Gaskin, who originally supported hearing the conflicting arguments said Monday evening that she feels a FOCUS forum discussion might be a more appropriate way to handle the matter.

Business people to gather

Members of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce will gather for "Business After Hours" between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 20 at Starfords Weathervane. There is a $2 admission charge.

Rainbow Shoppe prospers

by PEG OHLE

After tallying their income and outgo for 1989, members of the Rainbow Shoppe board report that last year, through the community's patronage, contributions, and volunteer work, the Shoppe was able to reach out to more needy organizations than ever before, with donations amounting to $21,582.68.

The Rainbow Shoppe is a resale shop operated by the churches of Charlevoix to provide used, and some new, clothing and household items at a nominal cost (or at no cost at all to the needy). All monies received over actual operating expenses are divided among service organizations.

The Rainbow Shoppe's report shows that the Charlevoix Ministerial Association received $2,582; the Community Food Pantry received $2,500 plus $1,000 toward its Christmas project; and the Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center received $2,200 toward operating expenses and another $2,000 for its building fund.

The Concerned Citizens group received $1,000; Serenity House received $1,200; the Dyslexia Center and Compassionate Friends each received $500; and Crisis Pregnancy received $600. There were also many other small contributions during the year.

As an example of how Rainbow Shoppe money reaches those in need, the Charlevoix Ministerial Association is using some of its allotment to provide a meal for hungry people. The Association has printed coupons labeled "Good for One Square Meal at Judy's Restaurant," and distributed some to all the churches. When a minister or priest or some other church official is contacted by a person in need of a hot meal, he or she is given a coupon to be used at Judy's Restaurant. For the coupon, the person receives a meal costing about $3.50. The owners of the restaurant later turn the coupons over to the Ministerial Association and are re-imposed for the meals they have served.

Rector Lander Carter of Christ Episcopal Church, who worked out the coupon idea, says that most of the recipients of meals are transients who are hungry and without money.

Charlevoix beats Sault to regain share of league lead Dust settled beneath the Sault Ste. Marie basket early in the first quarter of Friday night's basketball game. Nobody'd been there for a while.

Charlevoix took care of business early in their homecoming game, completely dominating the first quarter to take a 29-10 lead, then coasting home to a 75-63 win.

In the game's first few minutes, scoring baskets was a secondary goal for Sault Ste. Marie. First they had to get the ball across the half court line.

Charlevoix's starting guards James and Jason Corwin badgered the Sault ballhandlers mercilessly. If the Corwins didn't steal the ball themselves, they would force the Sault into a bad pass which Charlevoix's front court players, Webb Friedly, Todd Kovach or Jason Parish, would pounce on like a chicken after a bug.

The momentum of the first quarter carried the Rayders home. They led at the half 41-24 and led at the end of the third quarter 61-47.

While Charlevoix was beating Sault Ste. Marie, they were also receiving a gift from Petoskey. The Northern pined a defeat on league-leading Grayling.

The Grayling defeat combined with the Charlevoix win moved the Rayders back into a three-way tie for the league lead. Charlevoix, Grayling and Cheboygan also closed the week with 7-3 records in league play.

A balanced scoring attack keyed by the defense helped the Rayders defeat Sault Ste. Marie. Friedly picked up scoring honors with 21 points; Kovach contributed 18 points to go with seven assists. James Corwin had 14 points to go with six assists.

This Friday is league showdown time as Charlevoix travels to Cheboygan.

Taylor qualifies for world championships

Charlevoix's Bill Taylor will be helping the United States take on the world at the World Cross Country Championships in France next month.

This past Saturday, Taylor earned on spot on the nine-man U.S. team by placing sixth among 70 U.S. runners at the U.S. time trials in Seattle.

Taylor 10k (6.2 mile) course was wet, sloppy and slow, but Taylor covered it in 34:07.

The late Jeff Drenth ran in the World Cross Championships three times, 1984, '85 and '86.

Taylor has been training under Drenth's older brother, Walt Drenth who is the Central Michigan University cross country coach. He has also received assistance from the U.S. Elite Athlete Project.

James Corwin (23) salvages a stray ball and looks for a teammate.

Dan Terberry (21) puts up a shot early Charlevoix's victory over Sault Ste. Marie.

Swan loses its mate

Valentine's Day brought sadness to a pair of swans which have been spending the winter in Charlevoix's harbor.

Monday afternoon one of the swans became frozen in the ice near the city docks. Jerry Meggison of the Department of Natural Resources fishery station freed the swan from the ice and took it back to the station. Despite efforts to save it, the swan died.

Swans mate for life. Tuesday morning, a solitary swan glided across the quiet harbor in search of its lost mate.

A swan which apparently was ill became frozen into the harbor Monday. The swan died despite efforts to save it.

This swan lost its mate Monday afternoon in Charlevoix's harbor.

DDA and council talk funding compromise

During a joint meeting Monday evening, the city council and Downtown Development Authority (DDA) worked out a tentative compromise in a dispute involving $165,500 of city funds.

The dispute centered around what funds should be used to pay for two city construction projects. The projects involved electrical and sewer work done or planned within the DDA geographic area.

Although the two particular projects in question were not specified on the DDA project list, the council wanted to pay for them with DDA funds.

The DDA said that although the electrical and sewer work falls within the DDA area, it is not being done to benefit that area. Electrical conduit being installed is part of an overall revamping of the city electrical system. A new sewer line near the foot of the south hill on Bridge Street will allow additional input from the section of town near May Street to flow to the treatment plant without backing up.

DDA members charged that when council allocated DDA funds for the two projects, it sent the DDA budget into the red.

Monday evening, DDA member Jeff Porter said the DDA wanted the council to reinstate (to the DDA) the money taken out of the DDA budget.

The DDA position was buoyed by a legal opinion from city attorney Jim Young. Young said he saw the question as "can the council, by resolution, dictate the spending of DDA money?"

The answer is clearly "no," Young said. "The DDA also has to approve the expenditure."

Mayor Gary Probert said he

County plans to enforce reciprocal waste provision

by PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County has a licensed landfill and members of the County Board don't want waste from other counties dumped into it unless those counties can reciprocate with disposal facilities in case the Charlevoix landfill becomes inoperable.

To back up their stand, Charlevoix County board members have written and will soon pass an ordinance to enforce the provisions of the county's Solid Waste Management Plan, which limits the area from which solid waste can be brought into the county.

The county's updated Solid Waste Management Plan is now in the hands of the Department of Natural Resources in Lansing, awaiting approval. When that approval is received, the plan will be in effect.

A section of the plan is devoted to the use of the landfill in Charlevoix County, now known as Cedar Ridge, owned at the present time by Waste Management of North America.

Specifically, the language in the plan is: "This facility (Cedar Ridge) has been chosen to be one of the sites at which solid waste generated in Charlevoix County will be disposed of for the next five years. Other sites that can be utilized include those located in the following listed counties, provided that Charlevoix County has entered into an agreement with that county, and further that said county has a licensed solid waste disposal facility: Antrim County, Crawford County, Emmet County, Presque Isle County, and Otsego County."

The "agreement" mentioned above would permit solid waste from that county to be disposed of in Cedar Ridge in return for Charlevoix County's permission to use its solid waste disposal facility.

To date, Charlevoix County does not have an agreement with any of the aforementioned counties; although, Emmet County has presented a preliminary agreement, which at least one Charlevoix County Board member has found unsatisfactory. Commissioner Don Smith has called Emmet County's criteria for a landfill "ambiguous" and objects to Emmet County's refusal to be responsible for any possible contamination at the Charlevoix landfill.

Charlevoix County commissioners are planning to adopt an ordinance to enforce a reciprocal agreement provision contained in the county's solid waste management plan. The ordinance will prevent other counties from hauling solid waste to Charlevoix County unless they have an agreement to take Charlevoix's solid waste if the Cedar Ridge Landfill closes.

Curbside recycling initiated

Northwest Recycling is planning to begin a curbside pick-up service in Charlevoix.

Walt Hufford, who owns the building Northwest Recycling operates from, explained the program to the city council Monday evening.

Hufford said the recycler will sell tags and pick up tagged recyclables once a month. The program will begin in March. The tags will cost $2. Sheets explaining what items may be recyclable and how to prepare them for pick-up are available at city hall.

North Central Michigan College will be the site for the second annual day-long symposium on recycling and the environment in Northern Michigan. The workshop, "Recycling and the Earth in the 1990's", will take place Saturday, March 10, in the Library Conference Room and is sponsored by the Recyclers Support Group, Recycle North and WAT-CH, Inc. (Water and Air Team for Charlevoix).

Speakers will include representatives from The Sierra Club, Lullabye League Diaper Service, Tire Shredders, Inc., and Clean Tech, Inc., a plastics recycling company in Dundee, Michigan. Steven Kopacki, of Northern Michigan Environmental Action Committee, will speak about solid waste and energy use reduction for businesses. Gordon Zoulek, Superintendent of Street and Waste Collection in Traverse City and Dave Siegel, Gaylord City Manager, will discuss composting programs in their communities. Elisa Seltzer, Emmet County Solid Waste Management Director, will discuss new developments in the area and Anne Hiles, Michigan State University District Extension Service Agent, will talk about household and business hazardous waste and what should be done with it for safe collection. Other issues to be discussed are recycling used motor oil, household batteries, separating recyclables in your home, how to become a better informed environmental shopper as well as plans for Earth Day 1990, April 22.

Sign-in will be at 8 a.m., at the Conference Center and the program will run until 4:30 p.m. There will be a one-hour break for lunch, which is included in the price of the workshop. The cost is $12 ($10 for seniors and students). Registration is required and is due by March 3. Checks should be made payable to Recycle North, North Central Michigan College, Room 109, Petoskey, Michigan, 49770. Mayne recalls early autos

by GEOFF REYNOLDS

Many people in Charlevoix remember a time when traffic wasn't as bad as it is in the summer around here, but some even remember the cars that first roamed through the streets of Charlevoix. One of those people is Hugh Mayne. Mayne was born in Norwood township in 1903 and attended the Hilton School through the eighth grade. He then entered Charlevoix High School in 1917. But to get to school Mayne needed a car. So in the fall of that same year Mayne's father, William Mayne, bought the family's first car.

"It was a Ford Model T Touring car, it was black, they were all black at that time. We bought it from a man by the name of Joe Eckstrom for $360. He had a little old barn in the alley off of Antrim Street. The barn held about five or six cars total. He had to teach my dad and I how to drive, as it was our first time with a car."

"Later that fall when school started my brother and I drove the car to school from the farm. When we got to school we parked in Hooker's garage on Antrim Street and walked to the High School on Mason Street. We had to park it there because our father didn't want anybody to hit it if it was parked on the street near school."

"About Thanksgiving time we put the car in the old tool shed, jacked it up, and put the tires in the basement of the house. I never knew why the tires ended up in the basement."

After teaching at the Barnard School, Mayne worked for Martin Block's grocery store, and the Charlevoix Hardware, the building now occupied by the Mettler's store on the Bridge Street. He then began working with cars.

"I worked for the Kahler and Friend filling station until they sold out to Northern Auto Company, and I ran it. Most people had cars at that time and gasoline was sold by the gallon not the dollar. Most cars had about an eight gallon tank. One time a customer came in for gas, first he got out of his Model T and removed the seat because the gas tank was underneath the front-cushion. He took off the cap and stuck a measuring stick into the tank to see how much gas was in there. All the stations gave away those sticks to customers. Well he pulled out the stick and looked at it and ordered three gallons. I put in three gallons and he put the stick in again and pulled it out and said I didn't give him three gallons. So I put the hose back in the tank and brought it out again. I didn't put anymore gas in there, but he thought I did, and left satisfied."

"Some of the other cars in town were taxi busses that ran people back and forth from the train depot and around town. Henry Wood started the service and later Eddie O'Neil had the taxis. Their garage was on Bridge Street, right next to the Burnside building. Originally it was a livery stable, but later was converted into the taxi garage." Eddie O'Neil took over the taxi business in the middle 1920's after buying it from Wood. Other taxi services in town included Horace Fowler's. Fowler ran taxi cars however. Later, as cars became more prevalent, passengers started demanding private taxis instead of the twelve passenger busses.

Hugh Mayne is featured in this week's edition of "Charlevoix Memories." Mayne recalls when automobiles were something of a new thing to Charlevoix.

With the advent of more and faster cars, Charlevoix soon began selling more gas for the Ford Model A in 1928 and all other makes that followed. "Some of the more memorable car dealers of Charlevoix included ed Brown Motors sold Dodges, Charlevoix Oil Company sold Chevrolets, Northern Auto Company sold Fords, Jim Wyers sold Essex and Husdons, and A.C. Hansen sold Studebakers. Most of the cars were black in the early years, but later on they came out with green, grey, and maintained the old favorite, all black."

Probate Court moves to eliminate caseload backlog

by PEG OHLE

If it hadn't been for one stubborn case, Charlevoix County Probate Court would have ended last year within budget.

This was pointed out in the report presented to the County Board of Commissioners last week by Juvenile Court Officer D. Brad Campbell. His report showed that the court had a deficit of $27,121.84 for 1989, while the case involving three juveniles cost the court $27,338.22.

The case which ran up the expenses was highly unusual. It has been on-going for over three years, resulting in a total of more than $100,000 cost to the court, which will increase as the case is appealed. Therapy, foster care, court transcripts, and court time expense for three children add up fast. Campbell's report indicates. (This case was detailed in the May 10, 1989 issue of the Charlevoix Courier.)

The total Probate Court budget for 1989 was $310,658.84, with every line item expense showing a deficit due to increased activity of the court. While the $27,121.84 deficit is significant, it pales in comparison with earlier years when the deficit has risen to over $300,000 over $300,000.

Last year was the court's first year under the jurisdiction of Judge Frederick Mulhauser. He took over with a large backlog of cases which he began to hear immediately. By the end of June, he had heard 158 cases and by the end of the year he had heard another 126 cases. The backlog was completed except for one case.

"This activity resulted in increased expenditures for the court. Initially, the report states.

Under Judge Mulhauser, the court also attacked the problem of foster care costs, and by using in-home care work and diversionary and prevention activities, the monthly cost of foster care was reduced from $6,679.54 in January to $1,398.82 in September.

At the present time, Probate Court is at an "all-time low" in formal cases. It is now carrying 70 active cases, compared with 150 to 200 cases in recent years.

However, even with the smaller caseload, there has been increased activity in Probate and Juvenile Courts due to new legislation requiring more frequent reviews of out-of-home juvenile cases and Probate Court guardianships. "It should be noted that both of these new requirements will be a budgetary stressor," the report warns.

Judge Mulhauser added some comments to Campbell's report to the County Board. He said he believes delinquent juveniles are best served by being kept in their home community and in their home schools, as is being done through the various court programs. He added, however, "We do what needs to be done to protect the kids."

Apparently with reference to the expensive case mentioned above and the budget approved by the County Board, Mulhauser said, "In a small county like ours, one or two kids can make a big difference in costs."

Mulhauser also expressed the thought that the value of preventive measures in dealing with juveniles is hard to measure. He told of talking with another professional in the Juvenile Court field who said he believed the public would have to spend more money on pre-natal and pre-school care of children to decrease juvenile delinquency.

REASONABLE TO ME
L. SCOTT SWANSON

A cumulative search

Sunday afternoon, I delved into the wide array of things stashed in the back corner of my parents' basement. I was searching for an old slide projector (I have some old slides that needed projecting) which was rumored to be stored somewhere among the mountains of family heirlooms and long-forgotten treasures.

Surveying the intimidating pile of stuff before me, I determined to make an organized search. I would start at the left end, then proceed west by northwest and ultimately due north.

Dad's old military uniform hung on the wall over a pile of other old clothes of less distinction. The uniform dates back to 1959 or '60. When I was in high school, I swiped one of the belts that went with it and wore it around for a while.

I dug through the pile of old clothes until I came to the boxes supporting it. I checked over the boxes, but none of them contained a slide projector.

A little wooden reindeer stood atop some metal shelves to the right of the military uniform. The reindeer's back formed a small crate which I believe is meant to be used as a magazine rack. How our family happened to acquire a little wooden reindeer magazine rack, I do not know.

With the reindeer's gracious indulgence, I scoured the shelves which he guarded. A box of plastic foam cups and some old cameras and little electric power supplies highlighted the shelves' contents. I culled those things out of the pile and put them aside. I figure I'll find some way to put those items to use.

I was sorting through some boxes containing old jigsaw puzzles and board games - Parchessi, Aggravation, Water Works, Dealer's Choice - when my brother Gregg joined me in the search.

He started mining the other end of the mountain. Crouching down and peering into the dark recesses beneath a shelf, he reached in and fetched out a box containing a wading pool for children.

"I might be able to use this for collecting sap," he noted as he set the pool off to one side.

Last spring Gregg launched a maple syrup operation. Apparently, he's planning to give it another go this year.

Little hobbies and ventures like that lead to an accumulation of things. And with a family of five, each person having their own hobbies, that accumulation gets pretty substantial.

I reached over and behind a box and felt glass. It was the rim of some kind of glass bowl. I pulled the bowl out where I could get a look at it.

The bowl contained traces of sand in the bottom of it.

"Hey, I found an old fish bowl," I announced.

"That's not a fish bowl. That's the bowl I kept those hermit crabs in," Gregg corrected.

"Oh yeah, now I remember. They were little crab outfits that you could keep as pets. Gregg got some of them one Christmas. He took them with him to college.

"What ever became of those things. Did they last long?"

"They eventually all died, but I had them around for quite a while."

"Were those things any fun?"

"They're about the same as fish. But you could take them out and play with them once in a while - scare girls with them."

I put the bowl over by the old cameras and electrical equipment. Maybe I'll get some gold fish or hermit crabs. The baby might like watching them.

After an hour or so, we'd sorted through all of the main clutter and still hadn't found any sign of a slide projector.

Maybe it got thrown out or sold at a garage sale.

We gave up the search. Granted, we hadn't found what we were after, but we did have some old cameras, a swimming pool, a fish bowl and a better knowledge of what was stashed in the basement. That's something.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

They just don't make sense

I'm not very high on TV commercials, since they tend to wake me up when I am trying to doze through another installment of "Wheel of Fortune."

But the TV spot, Ragu spaghetti sauce is now running is the most inane commercial I have seen in years.

In it, a young suitor has prepared dinner of pasta and Ragu sauce for his girlfriend. She smacks her lips over his culinary masterpiece and asks what it is.

He explains several times in precise standard English that it is Ragu spaghetti sauce. He even shows her the jar and tells her how it is made. But she keeps demanding to know what it is. She gets downright feisty, in fact, and they end up in sort of a spat.

Stupid. Either I am missing the point or there isn't a point, which I suspect is the case.

Sure, the Ragu people want you to buy their spaghetti sauce, but I am not going to buy it if people are going to fight about it. There are other spaghetti sauces on the market.

If I were the guy, I'd dump this bimbo, and find someone who can understand English.

Probably the worst TV commercial of all time was the one many years ago that featured Greek statues of a man and a woman, arms raised, revolving on pedestals.

"In the adult male...and the adult female," a golden-voiced announcer intoned, "powerful glands - blah, blah, blah."

The commercial was for an industrial-strength underarm deodorant designed to keep monsieur and madame fresh, alluring and odor-free until the Second Coming.

I suppose the commercial was effective because I remember it. But it wasn't all that effective because I don't remember what deodorant was being promoted. Perhaps it is just as well.

SO MANY THINGS today don't make any sense.

Take the comics, for example. The daily papers are running scads of cartoon strips that leave me shaking my head. Many of them are not funny.

They are not witty. They aren't even well drawn and I don't know why I bother reading them. I guess it is force of habit.

Years ago, comic strips told a little story or hit on a wry truth or human foible that made you chuckle. But not so today.

I suspect that a lot of them are off-the-wall insider jokes that can be appreciated only by family, friends or business associates of the cartoonist. They certainly don't have a great deal of appeal to the general public.

You'd think the artists would be embarrassed to accept money for turning out such nonsense.

WHAT I'M REALLY worried about, of course, is that my mind is slipping. I am no longer as young as I used to be and maybe I no longer can grasp the big picture.

But loving -- and younger -- members of my family tell me not to worry. The TV commercials and comic strips that don't make any sense to me don't make any sense to them either.

Maybe they are just being kind, but it's the kind of support I need.

But let's not get into their kind of music.

It doesn't make any sense to me, but they seem to understand it and I guess that's all that counts.

NOW FOR A couple of things I like about TV and the comics:

I like the TV commercials featuring music of the '40s and '50s. They offer scraps of songs from those bygone days sung by the vocalists who made them popular -- just a line or two of each.

Then they offer to sell you the tapes for $19.95 -- or some such ridiculous figure. Actually these songs are worth millions.

I also have enjoyed what I have seen so far of the mini-series the Kennedy family.

At first I felt a little uneasy because so little time has passed since the assassination of JFK. But that dreadful event happened almost 27 years -- long before many of today's TV viewers were born.

As for the comics, Calvin and Hobbes are my best friends.

Editorial

Other counties must reciprocate

Charlevoix County commissioners are on the right road in their efforts to vigorously enforce the reciprocal agreement provision of the county solid waste management plan.

The reciprocal agreement provides that Charlevoix County will continue to allow Antrim, Crawford, Emmet, Presque Isle and Otsego counties to haul garbage to Cedar Ridge Landfill near Ironton if those five counties make provisions for future disposal sites in their counties which will accept garbage from Charlevoix County if the Cedar Ridge Landfill closes.

Charlevoix County commissioners are considering an ordinance which will be a tool of enforcement for the reciprocal agreement provision of the waste plan.

The solid waste management plan was born of a hybrid-committee appointed through a peculiar process mandated by the state. The process cross-bred private enterprise and government resulting in a committee of people bound to disagree with one another.

The solid waste committee fussed, wrangled, argued and fussed some more before coming to any conclusions. The main force keeping them at the table was the knowledge that if the committee couldn't come up with a plan, then the state would come up with a plan.

Although nobody could say exactly what the state would come up with, nobody was too anxious to find out. This was a rare point of agreement on the solid waste committee and probably says quite a bit about people's trust in the state bureaucracy.

A key point of contention was how many counties would be allowed to haul garbage to the landfill.

Representatives from the solid waste industry wanted several counties allowed to use the landfill. The more counties allowed to use the landfill, the better it is financially for their operation. Not that there's anything wrong with that position. It's simply business.

On the other hand, environmentalists wanted the number of counties using the landfill limited. They didn't want to see Charlevoix be the dumping site for all of Northern Michigan. They also realized that the less garbage entering the landfill, the longer it will last.

The reciprocal agreement provision resulted from this basic disagreement. It doesn't shut the other counties off now, provided Charlevoix County receives a place for its solid waste in the future.

Charlevoix County commissioners are correct in taking steps to see that the other counties are willing to live up to their half of the agreement.

Railway track decision delayed

by PEG OHLE

Contrary to earlier predictions, the Michigan Senate Transportation subcommittee has held up its decision on removing the old railroad tracks between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

As a result, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners has reiterated its desire to have the tracks remain in a communication to the Senate subcommittee, signed by Chairman Larry Matthew, the Commissioners stated.

"The elimination of one of the future options of transportation to this area is not in the best interests of the state of Michigan or the residents of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. We, therefore, request that the right-of-way and trackage between the city of Charlevoix and the city of Petoskey be retained and allow those parties that may be interested today, or in the future, to make the improvements to the right-of-way to allow for the future of rail transportation in this portion of the state."

There has been some support for removal of the tracks in Emmet County due to the Three Fires Point development which adjoins the tracks, the Petoskey waterfront development, and possible useage by the Little Traverse Scenic Railway. However, there has been no such support in Charlevoix County because the tracks do not come into the downtown area and they do not obstruct any multi-million dollar development.

While trading the railroad tracks for a recreational trail seems like a good idea to some, others point out that when the tracks are removed, the right-of-way in most cases will revert to the adjoining landowners, with the public being denied any possible railway service in the future.

... council/DDA seek compromise

feels work below ground, on things such as electrical conduit and sewer lines, should be done in conjunction with work being done above ground and that the money has to come from somewhere.

Porter didn't question the logic of coordinating above and below ground work, but he said DDA funds should not be used to fund projects which aren't on the DDA project list.

To support his position, Porter offered an analogy involving postage stamps. He asked that if the city was involved in a project which required mailing several items and ran out of postage stamps, should DDA funds be used to purchase postage stamps because city hall is within the DDA district?

The majority of the council members present said they felt funding should be determined by who, or what area, of town benefitted from the work funded.

City manager Mike Wiesner estimated that 25 percent of the electrical project and 10 percent of sewer project benefits would be to the downtown area, i.e. the DDA district.

Translated into dollar figures, that means that instead of picking up the entire $165,500 cost of the two projects, DDA money would pay $34,385.

DDA member Hugh Mason said he personally had no problem with that proposal, but would want to discuss it at a DDA board meeting before making any final agreement.

When a final agreement is reached, the city council will have to make necessary adjustments in the coming fiscal year's budget.

School board recognizes driver

by WENDI WRIGHT

At its regular meeting Monday night, the Charlevoix Board of Education presented bus driver Robert Houghton with an award in recognition of his effort to protect one of his riders.

As Max Novak, board president presented a plaque to Houghton, he told the audience and the board that if not for Houghton's quick action during the accident involving his bus and several other cars Feb. 9, he believed Mandi Kruskie would have been injured for more seriously.

Novak said Houghton was watching in the rear view mirror as Kruskie got off the bus, and when he saw the car coming toward her, he honked the horn to warn her. When she heard the horn, Kruskie tried to get out of the path of the car. Though she was struck, Novak said he felt that it was Houghton's action that prevented her from being more seriously hurt.

Turning to other matters, the board approved the purchase of four new buses, each for $23,664; the chassis from Auto-Mart, Inc. (Davis Chevrolet) for $16,523; and the bodies from AT & P Bus Sales for $12,141.

The board also approved a motion to hire Otwell Fuel Storage to remove the underground gasoline storage tanks at the bus garage. Rich Kelly, school business manager, told the board he couldn't tell the board the estimated cost of removing the tanks, as it will depend on how contaminated the surrounding soil is.

Finally, the board approved a motion to hire a girl's junior varsity softball coach if a minimum of 15 girls sign up for the program.

Hearings scheduled for area boards of review

When members of the city and township Boards of Review meet the second week in March, they will be available for local property owners to discuss their property assessments.

While there are many reasons why property owners may consider their assessments too high, some reasons are more acceptable than others.

A booklet published by Michigan State University points out some of the more logical reasons presented by property owners.

An error in the property description that affects value; a lower selling price of the property during the assessing year; lower sales prices of neighboring houses of similar style and construction; an ad listing the property at less than twice the assessed value or evidence of others considerably below that figure; a private appraisal showing a lower value; the presence of a nuisance factor that reduces the dollar value of the property; discovery of a structural defect in the house that affects its value; and showing that one or more houses in the same neighborhood much like his house is assessed at a lower figure.

Members of Boards of Review do not have to render a decision personally to property owners at the Board of Review meeting, but usually do so within 10 days.

Non-resident property owners may appeal their assessments by mail, and the city council or township trustees may extend this provision to those who are out of the community or who are ill or handicapped. The letters are accepted if received before the hearings close.

It is important for property owners that their assessments be accurate because their taxes are based on assessment figures.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

Pvt. Scott M. Crain has graduated from the U.S. Army armor cavalry scout course at Fort Knox, Ky.

Known as the "eyes and ears" of the unit, scouts observe and learn as much as they can about a tactical situation and then report their findings to their commander.

Crain is the son of Michael G. and Anna F. Crain of 69578 Smith Road, Charlevoix.

The soldier is a 1989 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Michael Stargardt and Katherine Washburn of Charlevoix are among the Alma College students named to the Dean's list for outstanding academic performance during the 1989 Fall Term which ended December 15.

Students who achieve a 3.5 or better grade point average during a term, while carrying a minimum of 13 credits (at least 8 of which are evaluative grades), are named to the Dean's List.

Stargardt is the son of Steven and Sara Stargardt of Charlevoix. He is a freshman planning to major in biology.

Washburn is the daughter of Sanford and Jill Washburn of Charlevoix. She is a junior majoring in psychology and Spanish at Alma College.

Both are graduates of Charlevoix High School, Stargardt in 1989 and Washburn in 1987.

Margaret Peck

Margaret D. Peck, 75, of Charlevoix, died Feb. 10, 1990, in Lamont, Mich.

A memorial service was held Saturday, Feb. 17, at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum officiated.

The former Margaret D. Dubail was born Nov. 3, 1914, in South Bend, Ind.

She was a retired librarian at the Lansing State Journal.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Herbert R.

Whitcraft of Lansing in 1962. In 1966, she married William C. Peck of Lansing and Charlevoix. He died in 1986.

Mrs. Peck is survived by her children, Janet R. Baumgartner of Grand Rapids, Mrs. Lee (Judy A.) Bornstein of Stokessdale, N.C., Don D. and his wife, Rosario, of German-town, Md.; her stepchildren, Mrs. Don (Barbara) Harmer of Traverse City, Robert and Nancy Peck of Carmel, Ind., Robert A. Whitcraft of San Francisco; 16 grandchildren.

Mrs. Peck had been active in the Plymouth Congregational Church of Lansing and the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, serving as past president of its Mary Brewster Circle and the Women's Fellowship.

She was also a member of the Charlevoix Woman's Club.

The family suggests memorials to the First Congregational Church Memorial Fund, in Charlevoix or the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Thelma Hunt

Thelma Hunt, 85, died Feb. 17, 1990, at her home on Beaver Island.

No services are scheduled at this time. Burial will be in Cadillac Memorial Gardens, Westland.

Mrs. Hunt was born Dec. 6, 1904, in Rochester, the daughter of Thomas H. and Mary A. Travis. On Aug. 4, 1925, she married Gilbert Hunt in Detroit. The couple made their home in Garden City and he preceded her in death in 1969.

Mrs. Hunt had been a permanent resident of Beaver Island for three years and prior to that had wintered on Beaver Island.

She is survived by: two sons, James of Southgate and Donald of Westland; two daughters, Betty Marie Hoffman of Wixom and Mrs. Robert (Lillian) McGlocklin of St. James; 20 grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren.

In addition to her husband, she was preceded in death by one son, Richard, in 1988.

The family suggests memorials to the Beaver Island Medical Center.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Church plans pancake supper

Members of Christ Episcopal Church will commemorate Shrove Tuesday on Tuesday, February 27, with their annual Pancake Supper.

The supper, to which the public is invited, will be held in the church building at State and Clinton Streets from 5 to 7 p.m.

Tickets may be bought in advance for $3 for adults and $1.75 for children under 12. They may be obtained by calling the church office at 547-6322 during the day, or Gary Schaefer at 547-6874 evenings.

Tickets will also be available at the door for $4 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12.

and waste away if it is not put to good use.

One of the things that happens to us when we join faith and action is that our lives become more meaningful. Many faithful people who feel there is something missing in their lives may simply need to apply their faith in some new ways. If you are one of those people, you may want to consider these suggestions:

—Call someone who would love to hear from you.

—Write a letter to the editor about an issue you feel strongly about.

—Solicit for a worthwhile charity.

—Spend some special time with a family member.

—Run an errand for a shut-in neighbor.

All of us need to feel like we are contributing something of value to life. As we do, so our faith is also strengthened, for as we give ourselves to something larger than ourselves, we have an abiding kinship with the One who gave Himself for us.

Local dairy farmers receive awards for production

The Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet (ACCE) Local Dairy Herd Improvement Association met recently in Boyne City for its annual meeting.

Individual farmers were recognized at the meeting with trophies sponsored by Farm Credit Services.

Rubing's Dairyland, Ellsworth achieved a 22,068 pound herd average on its 90 cow herd for highest annual rolling herd average. Neil Jones, Charlevoix, was awarded the trophy for the most improved rolling herd average over the past five years. Jones' 50 cow herd has improved its annual production per cow by over 4,000 pounds of milk and nearly 500 pounds of butterfat.

The top producing individual cow in the four-county area is owned by Rubing's Dairyland.

Several area dairy farmers recently received awards for herd production.

Her 305 day lactation was 31,362 pounds of milk. Tom Foltz, Petoskey, won top-honors with one of his mature cows which produced 1,371 pounds of 5 percent butterfat.

Lake levels continue to be low

The Great Lakes basin received approximately average precipitation for the month of January. The water levels of Lakes Superior and Michigan-Huron remained below their long-term averages for the month, while Lake Ontario was approximately at its long-term average by month's end. Lakes St. Clair and Erie, however, rose slightly and remained above their long-term averages for January. With the exception of Lake Erie, the water levels of all the Great Lakes continue their seasonal declines. It should be noted that the downward trend, which began in 1987, continues to be reflected in the large, unregulated middle lakes.

The Great Lakes forecast, published in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels for the Great Lakes, shows that Lakes Superior and Michigan-Huron are expected to remain below their long-term average levels during the next six months. Lake St. Clair is expected to dip below its long term average in June, while Lake Erie is expected to remain slightly above its long term average during the forecast period. Lake Ontario is projected to remain slightly below its long term average during the next six months.

A more detailed summary of Lake Michigan and Huron water levels follows. Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of January were at elevation 577.28 feet (175.95 meters) above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec, or 6 inches (15 cm.) above Chart Datum. This was about 8 inches (20 cm.) below what it was a year ago, and 1 inch (3 cm.) above one month ago. The January monthly mean level of 577.22 feet (175.94 meters) was about 8 inches (20 cm.) below the long-term average for January. The lakes, however, remained about 22 inches (56 cm.) above their all-time low January monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1965. The forecast shows that at the end of February, the level of Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about the same as what it was at the end of January. The lakes are expected to complete their seasonal decline in February. The water level in July 1990, is expected to be about 7 inches (18 cm.) below the long-term average for the month.

Plastic bags are being distributed to households to make collections easier for homemakers. When the bags are full, one of the teenagers will pick them up and supply other bags if needed.

The group is also asking that homemakers save their Glen's slips for them. They will be picked up at the same time as the cans and bottles.

Both Foltz Dairy which milks 150 cows, and Rubing's Dairyland won the top honors in both high-cow categories last year as well.

Mark Faucher, Loan Officer, presented the awards with congratulations from Farm Credit Services.

The ACCE Local DHIA organization provided special recognition to owners of the top producing cows of various ages.

Foltz Dairy milks the top-producing junior and senior two-year old cows. The top junior three year old cow is owned by Steve Chellis, Ellsworth. Rubing's Dairyland claims the top senior three year old as well as the high mature cow. James Sterly, Petoskey milks the highest producing four year old cow in the four county organization.

DHIA Fieldman Erv Bonner presented state production awards to three dairy farmers noting that they have maintained high value of product per cow standards over the past five years. The three dairymen are James Sterly, Marvin Rubing, and Jerry Himebaugh.

Charlevoix. During the meeting Mike Postmus, Ellsworth, was recognized for providing 30 years of service to area dairy farmers in supervising the DHIA records program.

In other business, Marvin Rubing was elected to the ACCE Board of Directors. He is replacing James Rubing, Ellsworth who is retiring after serving for the past fourteen years. Other board members are Tom Foltz, Petoskey, and Neil Jones, Charlevoix.

Students raise trip funds

Charlevoix area teenagers who are traveling to Russia this summer under the auspices of the Charlevoix International Club have started a can and bottle collection drive to help defray their expenses.

Plastic bags are being distributed to households to make collections easier for homemakers. When the bags are full, one of the teenagers will pick them up and supply other bags if needed.

The group is also asking that homemakers save their Glen's slips for them. They will be picked up at the same time as the cans and bottles.

An interesting sidelight to the trip is that the young people have decided to select a sister city in Russia.

In 1908, Bridge Street was paved from the bridge to the foot of the south hill with bitulithic. Concrete was just beginning to become popular as a paving material at that time, so the next paving job in town—Dixon Avenue from Bridge Street to the depot and the Chicago Club—was done in concrete.

BEACONS

by REV. PHILIP G. SCHAIRBAUM

When was the last time you checked your antifreeze? That may seem like an odd way to begin a devotional article, but how antifreeze works has a lot to teach us about the nature of faith. Let me explain. Did you know that most antifreeze is made of ethylene glycol, a substitute that works to protect your car engine only when mixed half and half with water. By itself it becomes slush at 32 degrees, and serves no useful purpose. Without water it simply can't do what it is supposed to.

That's what the Biblical writers tell us about how faith works. To be effective, it must always be mixed with something else. Action is not the same as faith; but faith takes shape in us, and does something special for us only as it is mixed with action. The verse "Faith without works is dead" (James 2:26) has its modern day parallel in the phrase, "Use it or lose it." Like an arm or a leg in a plaster cast, faith will wither

County receives funds to operate ferry

by PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County had a financial burden lifted from its shoulders last week with the receipt of $50,000 from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to help pay for operating and maintaining the Ironton Ferry last year.

The $50,000 is a legislative grant secured with the assistance of State Senator Mitch Irwin and State Representative Ralph Ostling, with funds coming from the appropriation for recreational services voted by the people of Michigan in 1988. (Act 180 of 1989).

County Recreation Director Mike Davis, who wrote the grant application, noted that the ferry is part of the county's road system and provides transportation for all types of local activities, including recreation. Davis, John Kujawski and Fred Welch, representing the County Transportation Authority, were on hand last week when the check was presented to the County Board of Commissioners. Board members then passed a resolution thanking Irwin and Ostling for their "efforts in securing the legislative grant for the operation of the Ironton Ferry."

The Ironton Ferry, a Michigan Historical site, has been in operation since 1883, although it has operated at a deficit since 1943. Besides its service of transporting vehicles and people across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix, it has long been a tourist attraction, made famous in a Ripley "Believe It Or Not" feature.

Shop adds tanning booth

Sally Ann Co. has added a tanning booth to compliment the shop's hair and nail care services.

Shop owner Sally Keie said she's wanted to add a tanning booth for quite a while, but waited until she found one which would be safe, effective and work with the space she had available.

The tanning booth she decided upon is a Hex tanning booth. It is a "booth," not a bed. A person stands inside the booth for 10 to 15 minutes. The booth is air cooled and has a built-in stereo system.

Keie, who along with the other women at the shop have tested the booth in developing their own tans, says it's a convenient way to get a tan and the 10 to 15 minutes pass quickly.

The air cooling keeps a person from perspiring while tanning and eliminates the need for a post-tanning shower. The booth allows people to quickly tone-up before work or during lunch hour.

The booth is open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Appointments can be made by calling 547-6848.

State selling lifetime licenses

A new Comprehensive Sportsman License, recently approved by the Michigan Legislature and signed into law by Governor Blanchard, is available for purchase through Feb. 28.

This new license adds the resident bear license, resident waterfowl hunting stamp and resident fur harvester license to the existing Lifetime Sportsman License, which includes the resident small game license, resident firearm deer license, resident bow and arrow deer license, resident fishing license and resident trout and salmon stamp.

The new comprehensive license will cost $1025. Persons who currently have a Lifetime Sportsman License may purchase the Comprehensive Lifetime Sportsman License for $25.

Individual lifetime licenses may still be purchased through Feb. 28. The fees for these licenses are: Fishing - $220; Combined Fishing & Trout-Salmon Stamp - $440; Small Game - $220; Firearm Deer - $285; and Archery Deer - $285. The Lifetime Sportsman License may still be purchased at a cost of $1,000.

A lifetime license is valid for the remainder of the holder's life, and its status will not be affected by subsequent license fee increases if the licensee moves out of Michigan.

A passbook license will be mailed to the licensee prior to the beginning of the license year, which begins April 1. Game tags also will be mailed annually to the licensee. The license for a minor becomes valid when the licensee becomes of lawful age to use it.

Proceeds from the sale of the lifetime licenses are placed in a Game and Fish Lifetime License Trust fund. For every license sold, an amount equal to the current price of the corresponding annual license will be transferred annually from the trust fund to the Game and Fish Protection fund to support wildlife and fisheries projects.

For further information, contact the DNR Administrative Service Division, License Control, P.O. Box 30181, Lansing 48909; 517-373-1204.

landfill. However, Charlevoix County has signed a reciprocal agreement with Manistee County which will permit waste from Charlevoix County to be deposited in the Manistee landfill and for Manistee County solid waste to be brought to Charlevoix County if a need arises in either county. Such an agreement between counties is mandated by the Department of Natural Resources.

Charlevoix County's proposed ordinance to enforce the Solid Waste Management Plan calls for the "regulation and control of the use of and access to the solid waste landfill facilities located within Charlevoix County."

It provides for fines up to $500 for each violation of the Solid Waste Management Plan and confiscation of the equipment or property used by any entity in violating the plan a second or subsequent time. Members of the County Board, in discussing the ordinance at a public hearing last week, explained that enforcement of the ordinance would take close monitoring of solid waste hauling vehicles to determine the origin of the solid waste they bring into Charlevoix County.

Changes are planned at the Charlevoix city softball fields for this summer. (See story page 13.) The present booth at the big field will be moved to the small field. A new booth which will include a concession stand, storage area and room for new bathrooms will be built at the large field.

When the fence at the small field is moved back, the road between the fields will be eliminated although there will still be room for seating.

The scorer's booth at the small softball field will be torn down and replaced before it falls down and has to be replaced.

The fence at the small softball field has deteriorated. It will be replaced with a fence which will be farther away from home plate, thus making the field regulation size for fastpitch softball.

Softball field improvements proposed.

SCRAPBOOK

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, February 21, 1990—PAGE 19

Emeral Bolhuis loaned us this picture, which he says was taken in the 1890's. It shows the area of Barnard, Barnard and Klooster Roads. In the saw mill days, Bolhuis describes the buildings as follows: "The long building on the right was the original water-powered saw mill shed. The building with the metal smoke stack was the steam-powered saw mill, which was sold to Dennis Spayde in 1900 and moved to the Spayde farm on what is now Spayde road. On the hill in the background is the Barnard Methodist Church. Back of the church is the original Barnard School, which burned in the 1890's. The long building in the rear contained horse sheds and wood sheds. The men standing on the log siding were, left to right: William Burns, owner and operator of the saw mill, a man whose name I have forgotten, and George Trimble. The man in front of the horses was George Daugherty."

City investments bring in $320,000 in revenue

The city of Charlevoix will make approximately $320,000 from the investment of municipal funds during the present fiscal year which ends March 31.

To a city taxpayer or utility customer, city investment revenue is important because without it the city would probably have to levy higher millage or utility rates. At the city's present state equized value, $320,000 translates into about four mills.

The amount of money invested by the city varies almost from day to day, but as of last week the city had just less than $3 million invested.

"We basically invest through local banks, mostly in short-term CDs (certificates of deposit)," city treasurer Rick Brandi explained.

The rate of return on the CDs is determined through a competitive bidding process.

"We've gotten good rates," Brandi explained. "They've averaged 8.7 percent and gone as high as 9.6 percent."

The money invested isn't spare money. For the most part it's either money which has to be kept in reserve for the unexpected or money which has to be paid out, but not until a later date.

Funds for city utilities such as the sewer, electric and water services are kept separate from each other and from the general fund. Each of the utilities has to have a certain amount of money on hand — a "designated reserve" is the term Brandi uses to handle unexpected expenses.

City tax revenues come in at certain times of the year, while city expenses occur throughout the year.

Rather than putting designated reserve money in a sock and hiding it under a mattress, or putting money for future expenses in a jar and stashing it in a back corner of the safe, the money is invested.

Although the utility funds are separate, the designated reserves for the utilities can be pooled for investment. The investment revenue is then divided up among the utilities according to how much each utility contributed to the investment.

Brandi said the trick of investing city funds is trying to maximize the return by investing as much as possible, while also making sure to keep enough money on hand to cover normal cash flow needs and any problems which come up.

"I generally try to leave between $300,000 and $400,000 in the bank," he explained.

While most of the CDs are short-term, i.e. 30, 60 or 90 days, a few are long-term, i.e. a year.

Each year the city sets aside money toward the replacement of equipment, such as ambulances or firetrucks. In other words, the city saves money to replace things they know are going to eventually wear out.

Since that money isn't going to be spent each year, it can be put into longer-term investments.

In June of 1989, the city council adopted an investment policy for the city of Charlevoix. At the time, the state was encouraging all city's to adopt formal investment policies. Although Charlevoix hadn't, some other municipalities had invested in things which weren't completely safe and ended up losing money.

Charlevoix's city investment policy lists three objectives: safety; liquidity; and rate of return.

"Safety is the highest priority since the City wishes to safeguard against the loss of principal of all public funds," the policy reads. "Liquidity must be considered due to the cyclical nature of tax revenues and irregular spending patterns common in a municipal setting. Maximizing return within the constraints of safety, liquidity and risk-free investments is a major objective. Idle funds should be invested as they become available to maximize the return."

School bands to compete in festivals

During the next two weeks, two groups from the Charlevoix Schools Instrumental Music Department will participate in band and orchestra festivals sponsored by District II of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association.

More than forty instrumental groups from schools in northern lower Michigan will participate in the festivals, which will take place in Traverse City, Petoskey, and Cheboygan. Each participating band will plan three musical selections before a panel of three judges who will give them a rating of from 1 (highest) to 5 (lowest) based on the quality of their performance. The judges will also provide each band with written or taped comments about its performance, including suggestions for improvement. Each band will also be required to "sight-read" a piece of music which the students have not seen previously.

The festivals are open to the public, free of charge. The Charlevoix High School Band will perform in the high school festival in the auditorium of Petoskey High School at 11 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 24. The Charlevoix Eighth Grade Band will perform the following Saturday, March 3, at Cheboygan High School at a time which is yet to be determined.

Committee to draft city lighting plan

A committee has been appointed to shed some light on the community — or at least to determine the most appropriate means of shedding light on the community.

Following a report by Josh Barnes at Monday evening's city council committee meeting, the council appointed a committee to formulate a proposal to revise the city's street and park lighting.

City lighting is not a new issue. It is a continuation of an old issue. Last year the city council deleted new street lights for the downtown area from the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) project list. The council took this action despite the pleas of several downtown business people.

During that debate, some of the business people suggested seeking the advice of Barnes and the LexaLite International Corporation, a locally based company with expertise in lighting.

Although new street lights were deleted from the DDA project list, members of the business community approached Barnes and asked if he would analyze Charlevoix's downtown lighting.

Barnes analyzed Charlevoix's lighting at no cost to the city and reported first to the DDA board and subsequently to the council.

Barnes' analysis involved both observation and a polling of 48 people. The 48 people polled were a controlled sampling, designed to provide a cross section of people using the lighting. According to a written report

Barnes presented, the polling "provided entertainment, but no consensus."

A final question asked in the poll was whether the person polled considered present city lighting to be good, adequate or less than adequate from both lighting function and decorative viewpoints.

"The responses to the final question indicate that we are not particularly observant unless we're either dissatisfied or very involved! The other responses were so diverse that the only conclusion that could be drawn with confidence was that the survey was a waste of time."

However, the report did draw some inferences from the survey; among them: "the lighting style and its function are important to residents and regular visitors"; and "a style that fits Charlevoix's image is important, but there's no agreement on what that style (or Charlevoix's image) is."

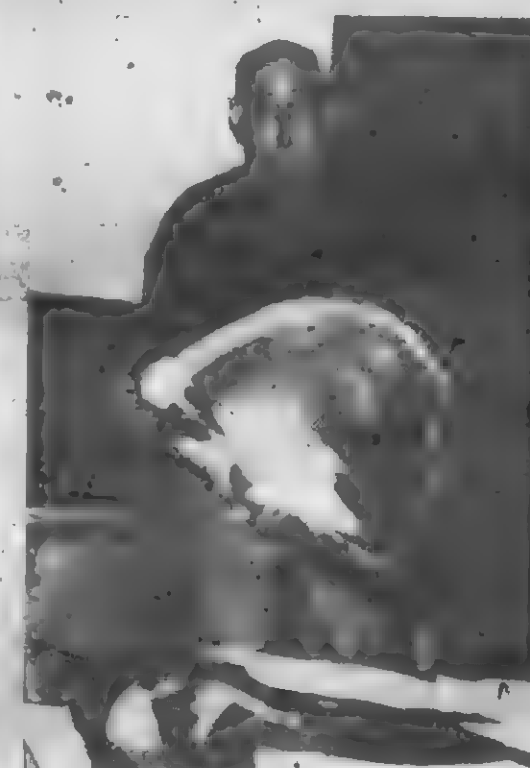

Barnes' observations of present city lights provided conclusions of a more concrete nature. He said the present lights on Bridge Street are fairly good from a "utilitarian" point of view. They provide plenty of light, but they use a lot of power and make no contribution to the city's motif.

He said the new lights, located on the west side of Bridge Street to the north of the bridge, presently aren't doing a good job. He said they look nice, but aren't providing appropriate lighting. He said he believes that problem can be corrected at a limited cost, much of which the manufacturer of the lights would probably absorb.

The lights north of the bridge were installed as an example of what had been proposed for the entire downtown area.

Barnes said he also looked at lights along the pier walkway and in the city parks. He explained that park lighting and street lighting aren't the same thing. Street lighting has to be directionally controlled.

In the process of studying the city, Barnes and others at LexaLite came up with a design for a prismatic fixture which doesn't have directional control, but will work well in the city parks.

Barnes displayed a sample of the fixture design at the council meeting. He said it might be possible to work out a deal with a company which manufactures fixtures where the company would manufacture some fixtures for Charlevoix at a reduced cost in exchange for being allowed to use the design on some other projects.

Given the use of labor from the city electric department and working out some reciprocal arrangements with manufacturers, Barnes estimated the city could probably put new lights in the parks for not more than $50,000, probably for between $20,000 and $30,000.

Barnes spoke against the city jumping with both feet into a crash program of relighting the city. He estimated something like that would cost a quarter of a million dollars. He said that on the other hand a five-year program with cooperation and volunteer effort could probably be done at a cost which could be incorporated into the city's regular budget.

Barnes also noted that he would like to try a form of white light bulb in place of some of the yellow ones currently downtown and see if people in the community like those better.

Sure, it's still cold, but read the signs. Sap buckets are on the trees on Michigan Avenue and Monday evening the aroma of a skunk was in the air downtown. Spring is coming.

Ahead-lines

Horton Bay hosts "Olympics"

by PEG OHLE

The winding down of winter festivities in Charlevoix County has been marked by the Horton Bay Winter Olympics.

Now, for the third year and billed as better than ever, the event will take place Sunday afternoon, March 4, on the beach and frozen waters of Horton Bay.

While the traditional athlete might find the "Olympic Events" confusing, those who are out for fun and frolic seem to know how to handle them:

How to control a bowling ball as it slithers down the ice; how to hang on to and toss a frozen fish into the air and beyond the target line; how to balance a friend on a shovel and keep him there through a perilous race; how to hit a golf ball just hard enough to make it stop on a designated snow hill; or how to flatten out, dunk, and come up with a winning apple from an icy puddle.

The traditional athletes will probably understand the tug-of-war, the luge race, and the triathlon (specific events not publicized).

The contestants do not just go to the Winter Olympics, sign up, and start competing. Before that, they participate in the lighting of the Olympic Torch and the singing of the National Anthem. They may even fortify themselves with some "Road Kill Soup" or a Dog before venturing into the fray. The Olympic Torch, promoters say, will be carried by the Windigo from the Himalayas, across the Bering Straits, through Alaska and Canada, then across the Straits of Mackinac to Horton Bay.

Since these Olympics are for all members of the family, there are both adult and children's divisions in most of the events, and there are some events, such as "Pin the Tail on the Llama," for children only. (There will be two live llamas on hand, but the game will be played on a facsimile).

For added entertainment, there will be a fortune teller, the Windigo will mingle with humans, and Jon Hartwell will (hopefully) swallow 13 live wigglers if Olympic-goers decide it's worth $200 to see him take the big gulp.

There is no entry fee to watch the "games," which will begin at 1 p.m. at the end of Lake Street. Participants will pay $1 to enter events and profits will go toward costs of the Fourth of July parade. First, second, and third place winners in all events will receive ribbons.

A bonfire will be built on the beach to warm chilled fingers and toes and to send smoke signals to the Windigo's friends in the woods.

Sharp eyes may spot a ship some distance offshore. The snow ship Exxon Horton Valdez will be anchored there, guarded by a wobbly a captain standing in a puddle of black goo.

Most Horton Bay events have an element of surprise. The surprise next Sunday will be the appearance of "Ivana Trump," who it is believed, has heard of the eligible bachelors in Horton Bay.

Further information about the Horton Bay Winter Olympics is available from Jan Eggers, phone 582-3551, or Jon Hartwell, phone 582-6288.

Council considers millage rollback

The city council is considering reducing the proposed city millage levy for the coming year from 9.5 to 9 mills for general operations and from 4 mills to 3 mills for infrastructure improvement.

A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of a property's state equalized value (SEV). SEV is theoretically 50 percent of a property's market value.

Last year the city levied 9 mills for general operations and 3 mills for infrastructure improvements.

The infrastructure improvement program involves repairs to city streets, sidewalks and sewer lines which have deteriorated with age. Earlier this month, the city council approved a five-year capital improvement budget which called for a 4 mill infrastructure levy. However, at that time, at least one council member indicated the 4 mill levy was subject to later change.

At Monday evening's council committee of the whole meeting, second ward councilman Butch Russell said, "I'd still like to see three mills instead of the four. With the SEV going up every year, I'd like to see the millage stay the same." Russell also favored a 9 mill general levy.

Ken Whitley, the other councilman from the second ward, agreed.

Third ward councilman Jim Potter also favored 9 mills and said 3.5 mills might be considered for infrastructure improvements.

Pat Gaskin, the other council member from the third ward, supported the proposed 9.5 and 4 mill figures. She said she feels there will soon be SEV relief from the state.

First ward councilman Bill Haggard said he's inclined to support the proposed figures, but has reservations about bonding for a new electrical substation. (See story page 12).

Cheri Hoffman, the other council member from the first ward, questioned where cuts could be made if the proposed millage is cut.

City manager Mike Wiesner, who drafted the budget, explained how the proposed millage figures were arrived at. He said the staff doesn't go into budget preparations with any preconceived millage levy in mind. Instead, the staff determines the city's needs and how much money will be needed to fund those needs. Then the millage levy needed to raise that amount of money is calculated.

Barnes final recommendation was to appoint a committee to formulate a plan for a lighting program.

Councilman Ken Whitley and former councilman Earl Muma spoke favorably of Barnes' recommendations. Whitley and Muma were two of the councilmen who last year voted to delete the proposed lights from the DDA project list.

Whitley said one of his concerns when he voted to delete the lights was that he doesn't feel the model lights north of the bridge currently do a good job in providing adequate light. Barnes' observations concurred with that view.

Muma said the cost factor of the previous proposal for new downtown lights played a role in the council's decision. He said he is pleased to hear a more economical proposal.

The people the council recommended for the lighting committee are: Josh Barnes, city electric supervisor; Ed Whitley, city planner; Gerry Harsch, council member; Pat Gaskin, downtown businessman; Mike Greeley, DDA member; Jeff Porter and hospital public relations officer Nancy Ellison. Not all of those people were present at the meeting to confirm that they will be on the committee, but that's who was recommended. A Chamber of Commerce member will also be appointed.

The lighting committee will have its first meeting March 6.

Oddfellows still hold the cards

During the 60 years of the Masons-Oddfellows cribbage tournament there have been better years than this from the Masons standpoint.

Six and a-half tables were in play last Thursday evening with the Oddfellows accumulating 365 points and the Masons 168. With three weeks to play the Oddfellows now lead the tournament by 2,224 points.

John Barber had a big night for the Oddfellows, ringing up 961 points. Pete Joyce played well for the Masons, totalling 916 points. This week's match will begin at 7:30 p.m. on the Mason's home court.

Gallery to close doors

I've heard it said that the reason ART GALLERIES exist is to protect the artist from the public and the public from the artist. So having a group of artists run their own gallery is most unusual. The Bridge Street Gallery that opened here nine years ago was just such an unusual gallery and I'm sorry to see it close. In conversation with Barbara Godwin, one of the original group of 13 artists who started the gallery, I was very enlightened.

"We were the only co-op, non-profit gallery that I know of," says Godwin. "We were the outgrowth of the Artist North Group. The original organizers were the Kouckys, Aydlott's Biers. We were gathered together one evening at the Bolts' home. It may have been after the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair."

"A lot has happened during these nine years! The Koucky's gave up on potting and now devote all their time to running a very successful art gallery. The Bolts have opened their own sales studio. For the rest of us, it's been an invaluable business experience operating our own gallery. Woodworker Craig Brown and stained glass artisan Vincent Pernicano, printmakers Lissa Targal Nelles and Jan Hoffman-Kolt had to learn merchandising, marketing, display, bookkeeping. Other artists joined the original group and some dropped out. Diane Hubert brought us handcrafted jewelry. Maggie Matthews displayed her weavings as did Kirk and Kathryn Rowe. We each gave two days a week manning the gallery."

"Over the years we took on other artists on consignment and also purchased work outright of about 50 artists to round out our display. We became aware of what the public wants. Colors that are in and colors that are out. We learned style trends. The gallery allowed us to test our work and get instant feedback. We found that items we sold in the gallery differed from what we sold in our own studios. The gallery always attracts higher priced buyers. Our prices ranged from as low as $10 up to $4,000. Most people don't know that professional artists charge the same

Gardening: forethought is a key

How zealous is my wife about gardening? Her seed catalogues are filed according to the Dewey Decimal system.

In recent weeks, she's been studying these seed catalogues with intensity and purpose.

Tilting with a windmill, I've tried to persuade her to show some restraint.

"It's still winter," I keep telling her. "It's too early to think about the garden. Why, I went out there the other day and the combined forces of a cold wind and a deep snow drift left me with rosy red cheeks both above and below."

"We're going to have a great garden this year," she says, flipping through the tomato section of one of the seed catalogues.

Last year's garden was less than great.

"Less than great?"

"Let's not mince words. Last year's garden was a dismal failure."

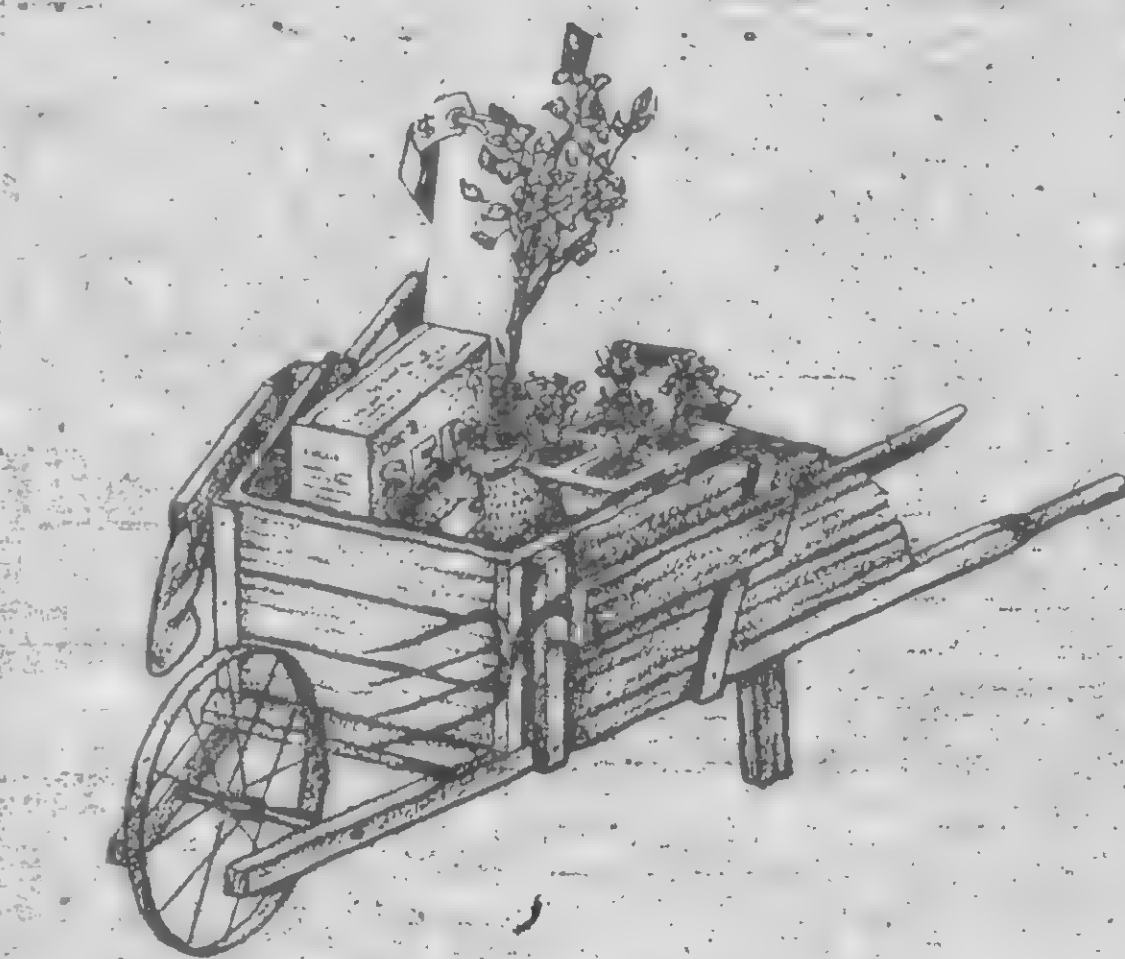

Last year, all of the gardening fell to the hands of a journeyman, second-team, bench-jockey, back-up gardener. The household's superstar, first-team, human-highlight-film of a gardener sat out the season last year. A seed of a different type, sown prior to the gardening season, left her on the nine-month gardening disabled list.

Hindsight is supposed to be 20-20, but even in retrospect it's hard to say exactly where last year's garden went wrong.

It's not that I didn't plant anything. I planted lots of things. They just didn't grow.

Why didn't they grow? How should I know? I'm sure the ground was fertile. Weeds flourished.

My wife offered a theory concerning last year's garden failure. It had something to do with a man and a hoe in the garden being a more effective weed destroyer than a man with a basketball shooting baskets down at the corner park. I never understood the finer points of this theory, but so what? To me, it all seemed so speculative with no foundation in proven fact.

But this year things are going to be different. Weeds beware. Tomato worms be advised. The master gardener prowls again. Last year's garden failure was an affront to her gardening pride. She vows that this year the garden will be whipped into shape or she'll know the reason why.

Planning is considered vital and the planning is well under way. According to the gardening expert, somebody made some crucial tactical errors in planning last year's garden. For example, the good side of the garden was wasted on corn, giant pumpkins and sunflowers.

But I like corn, giant pumpkins and sunflowers. And "wasted" is such a harsh word.

Harsh, but deadly accurate. A big wind blew the corn over, squash borer wiped out the giant pumpkins and sunflowers, while twistering are pretty much useless.

This year the good side of the garden shall be a sea of tomatoes. Let the corn, pumpkins and sunflowers battle the weeds on the garden's dark side.

And the tomatoes will not just be any old tomatoes. No, No, No. They shall be the finest, purest tomatoes the American tomato industry has to offer. She shall scour the far corners every seed catalogue known to mankind to see that this is so.

Shaping up a garden left to slide for a year at the hands of an amateur is no small endeavor. It is a task which requires a gardener willing to begin preparations while the snow still flies and well before the season's first robin shows his beak. I know such a gardener.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

"Godspell" complimented

Charlevoix's miracle worker has done it again!

How do you take 40 kids with varying degrees of musical and theatrical talent and weld them into a production company capable of putting on the likes of "Godspell?"

That was the task facing Connie Ford, Charlevoix High School's performing arts teacher, and the show came off without a hitch.

Setting aside the fact that I have a close relative in the cast (a Roman soldier who helped crucify Christ... boo-hiss), I thought the kids did a fantastic job with a difficult script and music.

What's more, the lighting was highly professional and the piano accompaniment was superb.

Judy and I saw the musical Saturday night as dutiful parents. We returned Sunday to collect tickets and pass out programs. And when the lights dimmed and the doors closed, we stayed in the gym to watch the performance again because we enjoyed it so much the first time.

Now it's Monday and I'd like to see "Godspell" again, but the show is history.

"I bet Connie will feel the school year is about over after today's performance," I commented to Judy as we drove to the school Sunday afternoon.

"Hardly," Judy answered. "She still has all the individual events and the dinner theater to go."

How does she do it? For starters, Connie Ford demands long hours and hard work from the entire company — and she gets it.

Secondly, she prescribes the same long hours and hard work for herself — and it shows in the fine results she achieves.

The students of Charlevoix High School lucked out that day — once ago — when Connie Ford joined the faculty.

YOU NEVER KNOW whom you are going to offend.

Two weeks ago, Clockwise gloated over the passing from the American scene of reusable linen napkins and pocket handkerchiefs on grounds that paper products do the job better.

However, I ran into a couple at the "Godspell" performance Saturday who say they still use cloth napkins and handkerchiefs.

As members of the old school, they wouldn't stoop to using paper products.

Bravo! I'm glad we still have some cultured people in our midst — but I'd hate to go back to either product on a daily basis.

We do use linen napkins on state occasions. But I am using my dwindling supply of pocket handkerchiefs to tie around my neck when I have a scratchy throat. I think they make me look rather debonair — like I'm wearing an ascot.

But can anyone really look debonair while smelling of Vicks?

I HOPE YOU'RE not terribly upset about the turmoil on the Japanese stock market, complete with plunging prices and a devalued yen.

Japanese stocks have been overpriced for a couple of years and a "correction" is long overdue.

Many American portfolio managers abandoned the Japanese market long ago because the stocks were overpriced. After the slide, there may be some real bargains on the Tokyo Exchange, so keep your eyes open.

The yen on Monday tumbled to 148.50 to the dollar — better than the 120-to-one of recent years but still a long way from the 360-to-one many of us remember from the balcyon years immediately following World War II.

THE WORLD beyond our shores is a never ending source of amazement.

Contrary to the most sophisticated polls, Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega was defeated handily Sunday by Violeta Chamorro in the upset of the century.

Even more amazing, the left-leaning Ortega conceded gracefully and reportedly is working with Chamorro to effect a smooth transition of government.

Has Ortega been influenced by the big swing to the right in Eastern Europe?

Or as he been a good guy all along?

Derek Wilson (left) and Tim Cross were part of a group of Charlevoix Co-Op Nursery School students who recently took a behind the scenes tour of Pizza Hut. The nursery school will host an open house from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. March 8 for parents and children considering attending nursery school during the 1990-91 school year. Students must be three years old by Sept. 1 to register.

price whether one buys a pot or a painting out of our own studio or from a gallery."

Comes the time for me to ask the obvious question. "Why are you closing the Bridge Street Gallery now?"

"This fall we reached a turning point. We had to decide if we wanted to move to a larger space or sign a 5 year lease, and hire a manager. Our group decided we did not choose to go this route. Having a gallery is like giving birth to a child. You watch it grow up and then you have to let go and get on with your own work. Ellie and Bob Nicol have opened their own beautiful studio on the Petoskey Rd. The Biers and Craig Brown also have their own studios as do I. Dan Cote sells out of his home. Other members sell at art fairs and galleries such as the Art Tree at the Virginia McCune Arts Center."

"Having the gallery has allowed us to grow as artists and to stretch our talents. If it weren't for the experience of running a gallery none of us would be prepared to go on our own as we are now doing."

Naturally I ask Godwin what her immediate plans include.

"My main shift is to go into wholesaling as some of the other local artists have done so successfully. Wholesaling to gift shops and other galleries is big business. Last spring I showed my work at the Boston Craft Show and I was pleased to be placed in the Premier Designer section. I've also been invited to have a show at several museums in our area. And I'm preparing for the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair."

We're going to miss this unique little gallery on Bridge Street, and we wish this hard working group of artists the best of luck!

Letters to the Editor:

Holiday dividends still felt

To the editor:

Christmas may be over "but the memory lingers on" in the hearts of 160 families, including 172 children plus many Senior Citizens, who were recipients of this year's Community Christmas project.

Space and newspaper policy do not allow for acknowledgment of individual donations, but the following categories embody the time, energy, money, food and material contributions of a host of Good Samaritans: Churches, service clubs, professional offices, merchants and community groups, schools and other youth organizations and 135 volunteers.

SO THANK YOU CHARLEVOIX for opening your hearts and your pocket books in customary neighborly style to make this past Christmas a merrier one for many, while leaving a lingering glow in your lives as well.

FAMILY

Hoffman-Miller

Lisa Hoffman and F. Clayton Miller

Lisa Jane Hoffman, the daughter of Joan and Robert Hoffman, will wed F. Clayton Miller Sept. 8.

Hoffman is a 1982 graduate of Charlevoix High School. She graduated from the University of Michigan in 1986 and is currently living in Chicago, Ill. where she is employed by American Airlines as a training instructor for flight attendants.

Miller is a 1985 graduate of the University of Michigan. He is currently living in New York, N.Y., where he is employed as an associate attorney at Shearman and Sterling.

The couple will be married at St. Marys Church in Charlevoix.

Prom dresses to be sold

People looking to either buy or sell a prom dress are invited to a prom dress sale from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday in the Charlevoix High School study hall.

The sale is sponsored by the junior class in an effort to raise money for the prom. People wishing to sell a dress will be charged a $5 registration fee to put the dress in the sale.

For additional information, call 547-3222.

Canadian art being displayed

"This is NOT Hockey Night in Canada" is the theme of a stimulating new art show which opened Feb. 23 at the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey.

Sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council in cooperation with the META Gallery of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, the show features the works of promising new Canadian artists in many media forms.

Since opening in 1987, the META Gallery, under the direction of Sally Morehouse, has attracted a wide variety of both traditional and experimental works of art.

One of the better known artists featured is Ralph Robert Carmichael, who will display acrylics on canvas and masonite. Carmichael designed the recently issued Canadian "loon" dollar and the new $100 gold coin of a bowhead whale and her calf issued by the Royal Canadian Mint.

Work of wood and metal by Jurgen Hug, known for his contemporary art objects, acrylic and ink by Peter Maqua, member of the Ojibwa nation whose multi-media show "Creation Cycle" recently completed a provincial tour and sculpture by Maureen McKay and Theresa Morin are included. Other artists with work on display in the show include Maria Parrella-Haria, Lynden Pond, Keith Shearsby, Michael Devoni-Karen Doleske, and Peter Holder.

"This is NOT Hockey Night in Canada" will be open at the McCune Arts Center 461 E. Mitchell St., Petoskey through March 30, Monday through Saturday, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Gillespie-Maudrie

A wedding on May 5 at the Christian Church on Beaver Island will unite Kathleen M. Gillespie and Edward W. Maudrie.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Jewell F. Gillespie of St. James and the late Rita M.

Gillespie. She attended Beaver Island Community School.

Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence P. Maudrie, Jr. of Naubinway. He attended Engadine High School and Olivet College, where he was president of Adelpic Alpha Phi.

Charle-facts

Charlevoix County was named for Pierre Francis Xavier de Charlevoix, an early eighteenth century missionary and explorer who, it is believed, traveled down the eastern Lake Michigan shore past what is now the site of the City of Charlevoix.

Some elderly are lonely and need a helping hand

by PEG OHLE

The picture of "Whistler's Mother," neatly dressed and gently rocking in her favorite chair does not portray many older women in Charlevoix County. In fact, such tranquility is rarely found.

That is the finding of Christine Curtin, Assessment Nurse for Northwest Senior Services, who regularly visits many senior citizens in their homes to learn their needs.

"I assess and evaluate elderly people for their ability to carry on in their present living quarters, especially as it affects their desire for independence," Curtin explained.

Most of the people she sees are women with an average age in the early 80s. They live alone in their own homes or in senior housing apartments. Those who live in their own homes decided to remain there after their spouse died, preferring to be around their own possessions even if they are located in isolated areas. Those who live in senior housing are often farm wives who have moved to town by their own choice or at the request of others.

Many of these women become separated from old friends and neighbors, even relatives, and as the physical complications of old age begin to take their toll, many become "lonesome prisoners in their own home."

When someone nearby, perhaps even a postman, recognizes a problem, he may contact Northwest Senior Services or the local Commission on Aging, who pass the name on to Curtin. She then makes a telephone call and arranges for a personal visit to see what services might be offered.

Sometimes all the woman needs is another person to talk to, someone to break up the long days of loneliness. Another person may have physical problems that prevent her from doing simple things like getting in and out of a bathtub. Still another may be unable to prepare a proper meal. And another's low vision and physical handicaps may prevent her from doing even the smallest of housekeeping chores.

These are some of the things Curtin sees and tries to help with. She may recommend the homemaking service provided by the Commission on Aging, for which senior citizens pay as they can; she may put the person on a list to receive home-delivered meals, one hot meal a day to provide the needed nutrition; she may sign her up for chore service to make the entrance to the house safe, or for home repair service to fix dangerous steps or install safety measures.

One of the most satisfactory installations being made, according to Curtin, are grab bars for bath tubs and hand-held shower fixtures to make bathing easier and safer for these senior citizens.

"You can't believe what a problem baths can become," Curtin says. "One of the women I visited for the first time asked me if I could wash her back, which hadn't been done for six weeks." Now, with a hand-held shower, she can wash her back regularly.

The total cost of grab bars and shower is about $70, according to Curtin, and the difference it can make in a senior citizen's life is immeasurable, she says.

If Curtin finds a person needs legal help, she may refer him or her to Northwest Human Services, who have a program for senior citizens.

Often Curtin suggests that a person participate in activities at a senior center to make new friends and "get out of the house." Curtin may also explain the services of the Charlevoix County Transit System to those who do not understand that a reservation is necessary for a pickup.

What should be the easiest way to help out a senior citizen is sometimes the most difficult, Curtin says. "Often all a person needs is someone to talk to, even a telephone call helps," Curtin has been trying to build a corps of Friendly Visitors for just this purpose.

Another need Curtin has found in making calls on senior citizens is "respite help." Some of the older, invalid men and women are being cared for by a daughter or other relative who is actually tied to the invalid's home with no chance of getting out for even a little while unless a substitute caregiver can be found.

Curtin found such a situation just before Christmas last year. The caregiver pleaded for someone to take over the care of her mother for just a couple of hours so she could go Christmas shopping. Again, those shoes should not be too hard to fill for a short period, but they are.

Curtin sees a need for a respite care facility in Charlevoix County, perhaps like the Living Room in Emmet County, where elderly persons who are able to get out may be dropped off for a few hours or a day to give their caregiver a chance to do something else. The Charlevoix Area Hospital has such a service but it is too expensive for most persons, she has found.

Again, it all seems to boil down to volunteers. It seems that volunteer service, for some means spending a lot of time doing service. That is not true, as Curtin has pointed out. Just an hour or two could make a difference in an older person's life.

There is not now, and will not be in the future, enough government money to help all the elderly people who need help, so volunteers must do the work. A recent report shows that in 1987, 3,000 Americans celebrated their 65th birthday each day, for a total gain of 2.3 million senior citizens. There were 1.5 deaths in the age group, so the net increase of persons over the age of 65 in 1987 was 660,000, or 1,530 a day.

Benjamin D. Gill

Benjamin D. Gill, 72, of Charlevoix, died Feb. 24, 1990, at Little Traverse Division, Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Funeral was 2 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 27, at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. Chaplain David Behling officiated and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Gill was born April 29, 1917, in Charlevoix, the son of Alfred and Henrietta (Swartz) Gill. He attended and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1937 and enlisted in the U.S. Navy on Sept. 30, 1940. He served on the aircraft carrier USS Lexington and then volunteered for transfer to the Asiatic Fleet and served on the USS Canopus before being assigned to the submarine USS Perch SS 176. The Perch was sunk by the Japanese on March 3, 1942 and Mr. Gill was taken prisoner of war by the Japanese. He was a prisoner of war for three years. Mr. Gill was Charlevoix's only Japanese prisoner of war during World War II.

On Feb. 14, 1946, he married the former Phyllis J. Martin in Charlevoix.

Mr. Gill made the military his career and retired from the Great Lakes Naval Training Center as chief electrician's mate on April 5, 1961.

The family returned to their home in Charlevoix and Mr. Gill worked for the Charlevoix Fire Department from 1966-79. He was instrumental in founding and creating the submarine memorial for the state of Michigan which stands in Charlevoix's East Park.

Mr. Gill was awarded many medals during World War II including the Purple Heart and Prisoner of War medal.

Survivors include his wife Phyllis of Charlevoix; two daughters, Mrs. Jeffrey (Carol Jean) Pines of Charlevoix and Mrs. Myron (Bennie Jane) Gill-Schwandt of Boyne City; one grandson, Joshua J. Strzyzewski of Charlevoix; one sister, Joann Snyder of Manitowish Waters, Wis.; three brothers, Donn Gill of Dyer, Ind., Robert Gill of Charlevoix and Albert (Tubby) Gill of Siren, Wis.

He was preceded in death by two sisters and two brothers.

The family suggests memorials to the Michigan Chapter of the US Submarine Veterans of World War II or to the American Ex-Prisoners of War. Envelopes for those purposes are available at Winchester Funeral Home.

Gwendolyn M. Washburne

Gwendolyn M. Washburn, 63, of Central Lake, died Feb. 23, 1990, at Central Lake where she had resided since 1966. She had resided at Central Lake from 1962-64 and then resided in Texas, returning to Central Lake in 1986.

Funeral was 11 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 27, at Grace Community Church, Central Lake. The Rev. Estel Clark officiated and burial will be in Pleasantview Township Cemetery, Harbor Springs.

The former Gwendolyn M. Tobey was born Sept. 23, 1926, in Bellevue, Mich., the daughter of Dennis and Martha (Nelson) Tobey.

On Feb. 3, 1945, in Elkhart, Ind., she married Sanford (Bill) Washburn who survives.

Also surviving are one son, Sanford Washburn of Charlevoix; three daughters, Billie Washburn of Kerrville, Texas, Betty Gauthier of Central Lake and Mrs. Richard (Bonnie) Tardell of Kato Mills, Texas; one stepdaughter, Martha Stinson of Mt. Pleasant; two sisters, Mrs. Darrell (Marjorie) Lavanway of East Jordan and Mrs. Edward (Wanita) Woodworth of Nashville, Mich.; 10 grandchildren; several nieces and nephews.

Arrangements were handled by Mortensen Funeral Homes.

BEACONS

by REV. LOWELL ANDERSON

Do you know what Jesus Christ is doing in Heaven? Is He lying in the shade sipping lemonade, relaxing and waiting for the Father's command to come back to earth for His people? "He's getting a place ready for those who go to heaven," you say? I can't dispute that because He told His disciples before He left, "In my Father's house are many rooms; if it were not so, I would have told you. I am going there to prepare a place for you," John 14:2-3.

But that's not all He's doing. The Bible tells us about His ministry as our Great High Priest. It is really important that we understand Jesus' High Priestly ministry because He fulfills this ministry on our behalf, not His own!

As your High Priest Jesus is praying to the Father on your behalf. "Because Jesus lives forever, He has a permanent priesthood. Therefore He is able to save completely those who come to God through Him, because He always lives to intercede for them." Jesus is "interceding" for you. He is speaking to the Father in your best interest and on your behalf!

OF BLESSINGS

Before she died it was comforting to know that my mother was praying for me on a daily basis. It is now comforting to know that my wife prays for me, and that the people in my congregation are praying for me too. But even more comforting, even exciting, is the knowledge that Jesus Christ is praying for me!

"Therefore, since we have a great high priest who has gone into heaven, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold firmly to the faith we profess. For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but we have one who has been tempted in every way, just as we are—yet was without sin. Let us then approach the throne of grace with confidence, so that we may receive mercy and find grace to help us in our time of need." He is able to deal gently with those who are ignorant and are going astray. Hebrews 4:14-16, 5:2.

Are you feeling weak, alone, helpless, afraid, rejected? You need mercy, not criticism. You need grace to help in your need, not rejection and condemnation. Approach your High Priest with confidence. He deals gently. He'll intercede before the Father for you.

City proposes Elm Street shift to allow church expansion

The city council has initiated a process which would shift the east end of Elm Street 130 feet to the south.

At the city council's Feb. 19 meeting, the council passed a resolution of intent to vacate a portion of Elm Street. A public hearing on the resolution will take place April 16.

The Community Reformed Church wants to add to the southern end of the church building where the east end of Elm Street is currently located.

Last year, church representatives initially requested that the city consider eliminating the east end of Elm Street, leaving a turn-around near the city tennis courts. The city council was hesitant about accepting that proposal.

The current proposal jogs Elm Street to the south between the tennis courts and Meech Street. (See accompanying drawing.)

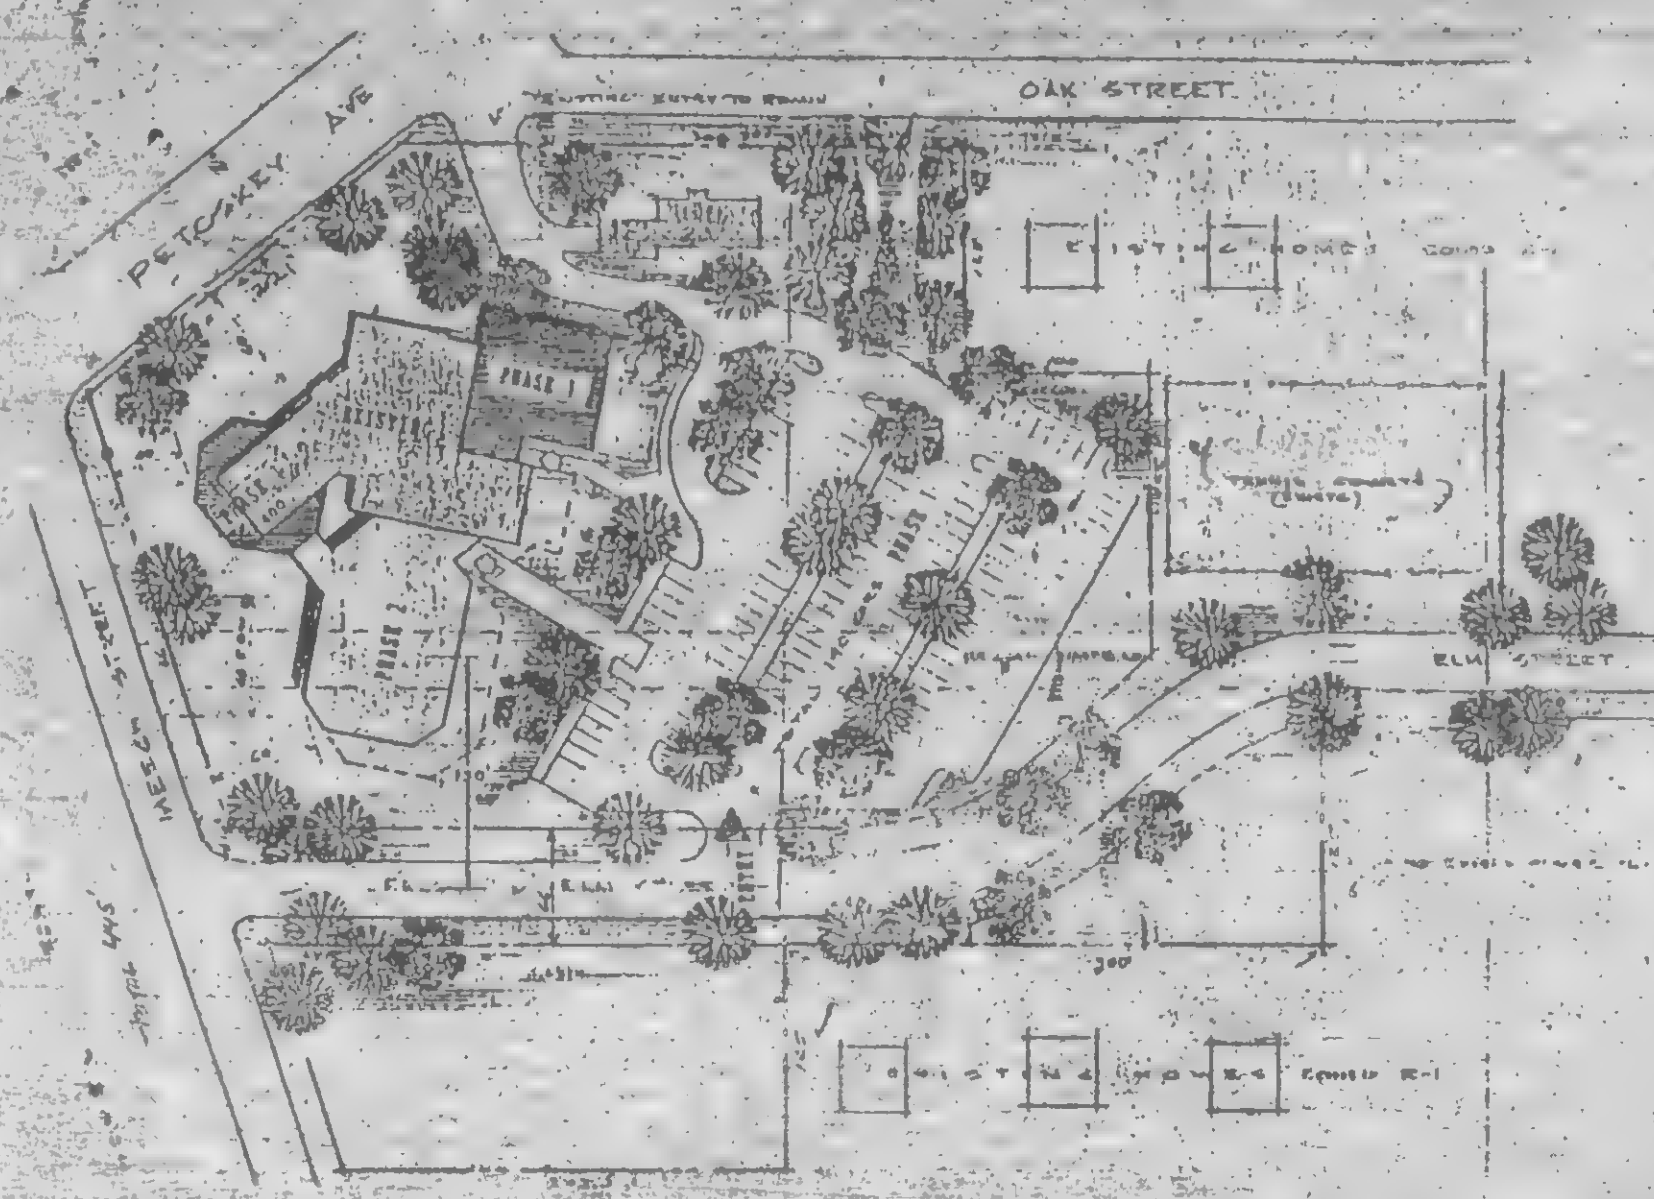

Prior to the Feb. 19 meeting, the council asked city attorney Jim Young to determine what measures the council would have to take to allow the road shift.

Young reviewed the matter and said the city currently doesn't have an ordinance prescribing a procedure for vacating a city street. He drafted a procedure which he said should suit the purpose.

The procedure Young drafted calls for a council resolution of intent to abandon a street; appropriate notice of a public hearing and a public hearing; and if any objections are received a requirement of a two-thirds vote of the council to enact the abandonment.

Young said that in order to be on firmer legal ground, the city should pass an ordinance and then proceed with the resolution of intent to abandon. However, he said that since there are time constraints in this case, the process he outlined should put the city in a legally tenable position.

Council members adopted the resolution of intent to abandon, but in order to deal with future requests also instructed Young to begin drafting an ordinance defining a process of abandonment.

This diagram shows how Elm Street would look if the city council adopts a proposal to shift the west end of the street.

4-H program regaining vitality in Charlevoix area

by PEG OHLE

Persons wandering into Whiting Park these snowy winter Saturday mornings may wonder why there are young people armed with bows and arrows in the park.

The young people are members of the Charlevoix County 4-H Archery Club. They are learning the elements of marksmanship and safety in handling this ancient hunting device. Others meet Wednesday evenings at the East Jordan Elementary School for instruction and practice. Steve Miller of the Boyne City Archery Club, who has been working with the boys and girls, hopes they will soon be able to compete against Archery Clubs in other counties.

Todd Kesner has been Charlevoix County 4-H Youth Agent only since last fall, but the Archery Club and other activities he is promoting are turning into successful ventures.

Another club which is just getting started is the Veterinary Science Club, which will provide participating 4-H'ers with information about animal health, nutrition, and food, as well as information about animal dissections, discussions about careers in the veterinary field, and tours of a veterinary clinic. The club is under the direction of Sue Atkins, a veterinary technician at the Bay Pines Veterinary Clinic in Harbor Springs, and is also open to Emmet County 4-H'ers.

The long-standing 4-H activities are also in full swing. Livestock marketing and livestock judging, dairy, veal, rabbit, and poultry production, horse council, photography and journalism, sewing, cooking, and art, to name some.

In the Charlevoix area, there is an emphasis on dairying and livestock. Larry Boyer of Ranney Road is leader of a group of young people who are learning about the care and feeding of farm animals which may become part of the Emmet County Fair.

The Charlevoix County 4-H Teen Club is popular not only with Charlevoix County young people, but with those from nearby counties. They like to make new friends with whom to share club experiences—for instance, discussions about teenage problems such as drugs, alcohol, unwanted pregnancies, and cultural studies of other places in the world (most recently, a first-hand talk on experiences in Africa).

"We discuss rather than lecture in our Teen Club meetings," Kesner explained. Plans are also underway for a baby-sitting training class to provide an opportunity for both boys and girls to earn some extra money.

Several Charlevoix County 4-H'ers are looking forward to the Michigan State University Career Weekend, which will take place March 30 through April 1 at Shanty Creek. There, they will be able to interact with other 4-H'ers from northern Michigan counties while gaining an understanding of the business world and job market.

The program will include ideas on how to prepare for a career, how to select a college, exploring career choices, resume writing, self-esteem building, and experiencing job interviews.

Also upcoming are Exploration Days, a week-long meeting on the Michigan State University campus; Capital Experience, a gathering in Lansing to learn about legislators and legislation; and the Washington Focus, an opportunity to learn about the workings of government in Washington.

A few Charlevoix County 4-H'ers will join other 4-H'ers in June for a 1,000 mile voyage which includes stops at Detroit, Cedar Springs, Niagara Falls, Toronto, and Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario (including a ride on the Agawa Canyon train).

There are many facets to 4-H. Kesner pointed out, but most important are the volunteers who are club leaders, who transport children to meetings, who chaperone events, and who draw on their own experiences in life to help others.

"We, in 4-H are in a unique position. Our project clubs and county-wide activities promote self worth and self confidence, allow for low pressure interaction between youth and adults, and find success in any achievement, large or small. We are what is known as a preventative organization," Kesner recently wrote.

4-H representatives in the Charlevoix area are Linda and Becky Kautio and Gerry Boris, all of Hayes Township. Further information about 4-H activities is available from headquarters offices at 582-6232.

Council questions substation bonding

The city council faces a choice of paying interest on a $1.2 million loan or raising electric rates to avoid all or part of that interest.

Councilman Bill Haggard has questioned a proposal, contained within the proposed city budget, calling for the city to borrow $1.2 million to finance construction of a new electrical substation. Construction of a new substation is a major facet of an ongoing electric system improvement project.

Haggard raised the question during a Feb. 19 council review of the proposed budget. The city's fiscal year begins April 1. The budget is normally adopted in March.

The proposed budget drafted by city manager Mike Wiesner and city treasurer Rick Brandt with assistance and input from city staff members and departmental supervisors calls for borrowing, through the sale of $1.2 million in revenue bonds, to finance construction of a new electrical substation. Substation construction carries a total estimated price tag of $1,320,000.

During budget review, Haggard expressed reservations about the proposed bonding and asked, "Is there any other way we can do that?"

Electric department supervisor Ed Whitley explained that bonding is being recommended because it will allow the city to keep approximately $350,000 in the electric fund as an emergency reserve and also because additional funds will be needed for work which will take place after the substation is constructed.

Whitley noted that by carrying the emergency cash reserve, the city will be able to get a better rate of interest on the bonds. He said the city has looked at different amounts and payoff times on bonds and how those factors would affect setting the electric rates needed to pay off the bonds.

Haggard suggested the possibility of borrowing from other city funds and paying them back with interest from the electrical fund. He said he would even prefer to see higher electric rates in the short term if that meant that all money paid could go to the project instead of to pay off interest to a lending institution.

Wiesner suggested that a possible compromise might be raising the rates to decrease the length of the bond payback.

How much the rates will need to be increased hasn't been determined yet. It will depend on the interest rate and length of payback.

The council made no decision on the proposal at the Feb. 19 meeting. The council will continue to discuss the proposed budget with an eye toward acting at a special meeting March 12.

Public invited to school goal meetings

The Charlevoix Board of Education is inviting parents and other interested citizens to join teachers and administrators in two goal setting meetings. The meetings will take place from 9 a.m. to noon, April 14 and 21 in the high school study hall.

Patterson speaks to Republicans

The Charlevoix County Republicans' Lincoln Day dinner will feature L. Brooks Patterson, a Detroit area Republican activist.

Patterson, former Oakland County prosecutor, is leading a petition drive to put a tax cut on the November ballot. The proposal claims to cut property taxes by $550 million statewide, permanently cap school millage rates in the state constitution, limit the amount of taxes the state can levy, prohibit sales tax on services and increase state aid to schools.

Patterson needs 300,000 signatures by July 4 to get the issue on the state ballot.

The annual dinner will be held 7 p.m. Friday, March 2, at the Wolverine-Dilworth Inn in Boyne City. Cocktails begin at 6 p.m.

U.S. Rep. Robert Davis, R-Gaylord, and state Rep. Ralph Ostling, R-Roscommon, plan to attend, according to John Haggard, local party chairman. Also invited were Republican candidates Bill Schwette and Clark Durant, who are seeking the GOP nomination for U.S. Senate; John Engler, who is challenging Gov. James Blanchard; and Ken Kearney, who is challenging Sen. Mitch Irwin.

Tickets are $25 for prime rib or chicken dinners. Tickets are available by contacting Carol Stephan, 547-4117; Dan Barron, 547-9950; Art Rouse, 582-9674; and John Haggard at 547-4046 during the day and 547-6800 at night.

Charlevoix writes to Lansing to protest railroad decision

Although they may be fighting for a lost cause, the city council has voted to send letters to various state officials in Lansing expressing displeasure over a recent state decision to tear up railroad tracks between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

Former councilman Norm Probert spoke at Monday evening's council meeting, requesting the council to send letters to the house appropriations subcommittee on transportation and to the chairman of the house appropriations committee.

A motion made by council member Pat Gaskin and subsequently passed added the leaders of the state house and senate to the list of those who will receive letters from Charlevoix.

At a Feb. 1 meeting, the house subcommittee on transportation voted in favor of tearing out the tracks. A senate subcommittee subsequently supported that decision.

Last fall, Charlevoix's city council passed a resolution supporting keeping the tracks in place. A copy of that resolution was forwarded to Lansing.

Probert claimed that despite the city's resolution and interest in the railroads, Charlevoix was not notified of the Feb. 1 meeting.

He recommended that the city send letters to Lansing asking for the house subcommittee action to be set aside and for the meeting to be reheld following proper notification of interested parties.

The city of Petoskey favors tearing up the tracks. A portion of the tracks interferes with Petoskey waterfront development plans.

Charlevoix's council, at the prompting of Little Traverse Scenic Railway operator Bob Carr, has taken a position favoring leaving the tracks in place. That position is based on the contention that leaving the tracks in place may help secure property rights for a future recreational trail between the two communities and also keeps options open for future rail transportation between the two communities, either of passengers or freight.

During discussion on the motion to send a letter, some council members indicated that it might also be beneficial for the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners to send a similar letter to state officials.

Steve Crook tosses a softball at one of the games which was part of a "Middle School Extravaganza" Saturday evening. (See additional photos on page 12.)

The word "champion" has such a nice ring to it. Fans stormed the floor and hoisted players in the air following Charlevoix's 57-55 win over Petoskey Friday evening. The regular season's final game was a nail-biter and wrapped up the Michigan Huron Shores League championship for the Rayders. Charlevoix won the game on a shot by James Corwin which bounced on the rim, rolled around and finally fell in with only four seconds left to play. (See story and additional photos on page 14.)

Band earns trip to state

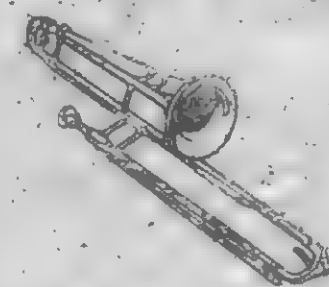

Two concert bands representing the Charlevoix Schools Instrumental Music Department recently participated in band and orchestra festivals sponsored by district II of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association, and both groups came away with First Division (I) ratings.

Saturday, March 3 the Charlevoix Middle School Eighth Grade Band travelled to Cheboygan to perform in the junior high festival. The eighth graders played "Spartans or Tomorrow," by Andrew Balent, "Lone Star Overture," by John O'Reilly, and "Spiritus," by David Shaffer. The group also received a I rating.

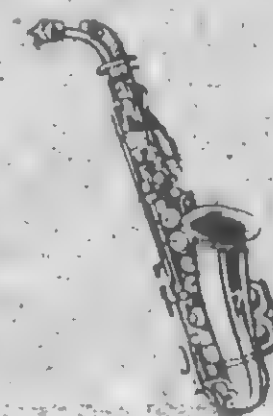

At the high school band festival in Petokey Feb. 24, the seventy member Charlevoix High School Band received high marks and a I rating for their performance of "March Lamar," by Clifton Williams, "Novena," by James Swearingen, and "Aztec Theme and Dance," by Elliot Del Borgo.

The high ratings qualify both bands for State Festivals at the end of April. Band Director Terry Isenbarger would like to thank the parents and supporters of the school band program who travelled to the festivals to hear the Charlevoix Bands perform.

Prior to last Friday evening's basketball game, the bandboosters hosted their annual spaghetti dinner. Approximately 570 people attended the dinner.

In conjunction with the dinner, bandboosters raffled off a $500 cash prize donated by Medusa Cement Company. Nancy Wood won the prize.

Proceeds from the dinner and raffle totalled about $3,500. The money will go into the bandboosters' uniform fund.

Students compete in "Odyssey of the Mind"

Keeping their project under wraps until Saturday's competition are (clockwise from the top) Laura Frey, Allissa Lachiusa, Juli Swenbr, Danica Kilander, Jerry Borths, Diane DeKorte and Megan Jones. The team is entered in the "Omnitronic humor" division and coached by LaVonla DeYoung.

This Odyssey of the Mind team uses the theme from "Three Blind Mice" to demonstrate recycling. The mice and farmer's wife are blindfolded and guided around a course by a series of signals on a drum. As they travel the course, which contains obstacles they are not allowed to bump into, they pick up objects for recycling.

Six Charlevoix teams will compete in this Saturday's Region 7 Odyssey of the Mind competition hosted by East Jordan Public Schools.

Odyssey of the Mind is a competition in which students must find solutions to problems and then develop a creative way of presenting their solution.

Students are grouped into teams. Each team has between five and seven students and a parent coach. Third, fourth and fifth grade students are in the elementary school division while sixth, seventh and eighth grade students are in the middle school division.

Students are able to select problems which reflect areas they're interested in researching. For example, one of this year's problems involves researching the "Seven Wonders of the World." Another problem involves building a balsa wood structure.

Along with presenting their skit and solution, the students also are presented with a spontaneous problem at the competition. In the spontaneous problem, the students have to come up with a solution off the tops of their heads with no assistance from their coach.

The top two teams in each problem division at regional competition will advance to the State Odyssey of the Mind competition April 28 at Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant.

Working on their "Structures in Harmony" project are (clockwise from front) Kami Boyer, MacDuff Stewart, Elizabeth Hess, Michelle Potter, Nathan Martin, Steve Foster, and Annie Campbell. The team is coached by Sherry Sproul.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

A cat who's had enough

"First an ogre, then a big woolly monster, and now this new little critter which makes a lot of noise and has thoroughly fouled up the household sleeping routine. It's more than a cat should have to put up with in any one lifetime.

"I got a bad start in life. I was a little black kitten without a home. I stayed in some woods next to an alley behind an office building. Food was tough to find. One afternoon a lady came out of the office building and I staggered up to her. She could see that I was starving. She looked to see if she had any food left over from her lunch. She found a small piece of rye bread crust with mustard on it. A cat has to be pretty hungry before it will eat rye bread with mustard. I was starving. I ate it.

"The lady who fed me was, and is, named Kathy. She adopted me and took me home, rescuing me from starvation. Living in a house with a person has its drawbacks, but it beats living in the woods.

"I appreciate my rescuer. You might say, I know which side my rye bread is buttered on. Kathy is my person. She is my human and she is all right. All other humans are suspect. The best way for a cat to deal with them is to run and hide.

"Life went on for a while with just Kathy and I in the house. She was the owner, I was the pet and that was OK.

"Then one day she brought home this new pet. I looked at it trying to figure out what it was. It was kind of human like Kathy, but it was bigger. It had hair on its chin. It talked louder than Kathy and moved around too fast and I was afraid it might step on me. After looking this thing over for a while, I concluded that it could only be one thing. It's an ogre, a big, ugly ogre. My master had gone and brought home a pet ogre. If she had to have another pet, why couldn't she have gotten a goldfish? Not an ogre.

"My opinion was never requested and the ogre's still around. The ogre and I, we tolerate each other, but I still don't really like him. I hissed at him once and he clobbered me with a stuffed toucan. Never hiss at an ogre.

"As getting used to living with an ogre wasn't enough to ask of a cat, then she brought home this big, woolly monster with four legs and a tail. She calls it a Sasquatch dog.

"I remember the first time I met this Sasquatch thing. I was out-patrolling the yard and suddenly this big furry brute came gallumphing toward me. I went up a tree like a black streak. Kathy thrashed the monster for chasing me up a tree, but she still kept him around.

"These days the monster spends quite a bit of time indoors. We've worked out an arrangement. When we're both indoors, he stays downstairs and I stay upstairs. Sometimes he the bottom of the stairs and looks up at me while I sit at the top of the stairs and look down at him. That's about the extent of our rapport.

"Living with an ogre and a monster, I thought I'd seen it all. But then about four months ago, Kathy went away for a few days and when she came home she had a new pet with her.

"This new pet is smaller than either of the other two, but it's a noisy one. When Kathy first brought it home, I looked it all over and sniffed it. It doesn't seem to be a threat. I've decided the safest course of action is just to ignore it.

"The worst thing about this new pet is what it's done to the household sleeping routine. It used to be that once the house was shut down for the night, I could prowl around for a while and then jump up on the bed and share the warmth of the electric blanket until morning.

"Not any more. That new pet wakes up at least a couple of times every night. Kathy gets up to go check on it and disturbs my sleep. And she doesn't like to have our sleep disturbed. We take sleeping seriously. It's what we do.

"For the first month or so, every time Kathy got up, I got up too and went with her to see what the problem was with that new pet.

"In the second month, I'd get up with Kathy, but if she didn't come back to bed right away, I'd go back to bed without her. The ogre got so he doesn't even wake up.

"The last few weeks I've gone a step farther. When that new pet starts wailing, I don't even get out of bed. I just step out of the way so Kathy can get up, then I settle right back down before my spot on the blankets gets cold.

"Go ahead and check on that new pet, I tell Kathy. 'I'll stay here with the ogre.'

Spring to blossom

If you are looking for good news about spring, think about cherry blossoms.

A spokeswoman for the National Park Service reports that February weather has been so warm in Washington, D.C., that the city's famed cherry blossoms may bloom before March 20.

Two weeks ago, Sandra Alley said the buds already were swelling on 3,276 Japanese cherry trees around the Tidal Basin, in East Potomac Park and on the Mall.

Usually, the trees don't explode into pinks and whites until April 7. But they have blossomed as early as March 20 and as late as April 18.

If the explosion comes before March 20, that will be the earliest date for the spring extravaganza in history.

Last year, the trees reached their peak bloom on March 29. Miss Alley says the peak occurs when 70 percent of the trees are in blossom.

But this year, the nation's capital experienced an unusually warm February, with the temperature reaching 73 degrees on St. Valentine's Day.

The trees were given to the United States by Japan 77 years ago and have become the focus of the week-long National Cherry Blossom Festival. The festival this year starts April 1 and is expected to attract more than one million visitors.

The big worry is that the trees will bloom too early and there won't be any blossoms left for the visitors to ogle. Normally the bloom lasts from 10 days to two weeks.

Without the blossoms, visitors will have to attend a session of Congress, trudge through the Smithsonian Institution or sop up beer at strategically located watering holes on the Mall.

During World War II there was some talk about cutting down the trees, considering who gave them to us. But cooler heads prevailed and the trees remained to delight Washingtonians and their visitors over the years.

Japan, of course, has its share of Japanese cherry trees. I remember one old specimen — it must have been a couple of centuries old — near the city of Fu-jiyoshida, in the foothills of Fujiyama. In full bloom, the tree looked like a mountain of strawberry ice cream. And it perfumed an area the size of Okinawa.

THE POINT HERE is that if spring is threatening Washington, D.C., it can't be all that far from Charlevoix, Mich. — a mere 800 miles northwest.

A fast driver can make it between the two cities in a day; a cautious driver in a day and a half; an old fogey in two days.

To be fair, however, it must be remembered that Washington is warmed by the Gulf Stream and belongs to a different meteorological zone than Northern Michigan. Cotton and tobacco — two crops usually associated with the Deep South — grow fairly well in Washington's Maryland and Virginia suburbs. Magnolia and cypress trees are common throughout the area.

You might even find some members of the palm family the closer you get to the Atlantic Ocean, just as you will in southern Ireland.

Because of its location, Washington is subject to climatic extremes. A winter storm roaring out of the Appalachian Mountains can turn Washington into an arctic outpost. But when winter retreats, Washington can become a veritable sauna with blistering days and steamy nights, even while the Great Lakes are still clogged with ice.

But if Washington warms up early, Charlevoix may too.

Hope springs eternal.

THE HOARFROST Tuesday morning was something to behold.

Not only did it coat car windows, but it turned every branch, every twig, into a crystalline work of art.

The frost also gave rise to that rare phenomena — smoking road signs.

When the sun rose and started warming the frost-glazed signs, they all began to smoke like they were on fire.

It is a spectacle I have never seen outside Northern Michigan, but I am sure it happens wherever there is heavy frost and brilliant early morning sunlight.

Krista Knight's young fiddlers charmed the crowd which gathered at the East Jordan Civic Center this past Saturday for the Fiddler's Jamboree.

Square dancers from across Northern Michigan alamandered, do-si-doed and promenaded until their feet couldn't stand any more at the Fiddler's Jamboree.

Letters to the Editor:

Paul's police work appreciated

Editor: We wish to thank Officer Paul Ivan for his kindness while investigating the car accident we were involved in at 11:15 a.m., Sunday, Feb. 25, 1990, on Bridge St. in front of the cinema.

Officer Paul was most kind and helpful and we appreciate it. Marvin & Lois Smith

Pearsall recalls the old school

Charlevoix Memories

by GEOFF REYNOLDS

How many of you native Charlevoixians know the name of the old school house on the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road just before you get to Susan Lake? Well, long time Charlevoix resident Dorris Pearsall knows and she claims it is the old Hopyard School.

"Some hops grew across the road and that's how it got its name. I went to school there until the eighth grade. I really got a good start at Hopyard because there were only a few children and we all received a lot of attention from the teacher."

"I began going to school at Hopyard in 1919 and remained there until I graduated from the eighth grade in the spring of 1927. In the fall of that same year I went to Charlevoix High School on Clinton Street. I had to stay with my sister one year, one year at Isaacson's in a room, a room at Bodine's, and one year I rode into town with my cousin Clifford Struthers. My sisters had to do the same thing when they went to high school also. Then I graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1931."

"I remember when they were building the high school, now the Charlevoix Middle School. I was taking a Latin class and right outside the window of my classroom they were putting up the walls, brick by brick. I couldn't help but watch the work since it was right outside the window and I was in a Latin class."

"And in the winter the teachers would let us out for our half days of winter sports. We enjoyed those days the most. We would take toboggans up to the top of the southside of Bridge Street and ride clear to the bottom of the northside of Bridge Street hill. We went right through the middle of town and over the swing bridge. On the way back we would stop in at the Charlevoix Hotel and get the local police officer, Jeff Wiekkel, from the lobby and make him ride with us on the toboggan. We had to pull those sleds back to the top of the hill because it was against the law to hitch a ride on the back of cars going our way."

Pearsall then elaborated more on the rural school at Hopyard. "Hopyard was a well financed school. That was because of all the resort property in the area and the taxes from those properties entitled our school to a lot of money. We never had to buy books, we always had a good supply, not like some of the other local schools."

"I also remember competing with the other local township schools in different sporting events in the spring of each year. The schools in our township, Hayes, included Undine, Murray, Bay Shore, Maple Grove, and Hopyard. We had three-legged races, high jumping, and other racing events. But we also had some very good penmanship, spelling, and some other activities. In the spring the better grades of the township went to the fair in East Jordan to be judged and were awarded prizes for their work."

"I went to school at Hopyard because my family lived on the old Struthers' homestead down toward the east end of Susan Lake. The Susan House on the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road is near where our house and farm used to be located. My grandfather, Andrew R. Struthers and his wife, Elizabeth, settled on that land after moving from a spot near the present East Jordan bathing beach and recreation park. They were one of the first families in that area. His sawmill used to be down near the Camp Charlevoix property. He also farmed the property south of Susan Lake. He grew the basics; corn, hay, wheat and he had a large garden near the house after he bought some oxen and a plow to till the soil with. Before they had oxen and a plow they used to find trees that had fallen over and turned up the ground. There they planted potatoes and other vegetables to eat because it was the only open soil available to plant with. Later, when he was township supervisor he bought a couple of oxen and a plow for farmers in the area to share."

"My grandfather also raised some livestock. He raised some cattle and quite a few sheep. He also had a lot of horses because that's what he used to run the farm and to ride back and forth from one place to another. I remember about twelve horse stalls in the barn when I was a girl."

Pearsall then told of the Indian church at Greensky Hill, near Susan Lake, and the Indians that attended it.

"We used to hear their beautiful voices across the lake. They would have revivals in the fall, and they would sing so beautifully. My dad used to take us children up there to see the church and the local Indians. My dad knew most of the Indians that went there, for instance Susan Greensky, because she lived nearby, where Quarterline Road is now. They would speak in their native language with each other and in English when speaking with my father and the other farmers in the area. Us children loved listening to their voices from across Susan Lake when they sang."

Gladys M. Pelletier

Gladys M. Pelletier, 89, of Charlevoix, died March 2, 1990, at Charlevoix Area Hospital. Funeral mass took place Tuesday, March 6, at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Charlevoix. The Rev. James K. Gardiner officiated and burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Charlevoix. The former Gladys M. Briggs was born Nov. 27, 1900, on Hog Island, the daughter of Lou and Mary Briggs. She grew up on

Beaver Island and married Delphis Joseph Pelletier in St. James, Beaver Island, in 1921. Mr. Pelletier was a lighthouse keeper for the U.S. Coast Guard and the Pelletiers tended various lighthouses in the Great Lakes for many years. Mr. and Mrs. Pelletier resided in Frankfort before moving to Charlevoix in 1966. He preceded her in death on July 28, 1966. Mrs. Pelletier was a member of St. Mary's Church, St. Mary's Altar Society and the American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post 228 Auxiliary. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. William (Corrine) Behrens of Charlevoix; one son, Charles L. Pelletier of LaMesa, Calif.; three grandchildren; six great-grandchildren. Arrangements were handled by Winchester Funeral Home.

Debra L. Snedden

Former Hayes Township resident Debra Lynn (Burnett) Snedden, 25, of New Market, Va., died Feb. 23, 1990, near Strasburg, Va., as the result of an auto accident that also took the lives of her husband, Kipley Mark, 25, and her daughter, Kari Rochelle, two and one half. Born in Grand Rapids Dec. 15, 1964, Mrs. Snedden is the daughter of Gordon and Betty (Newman) Burnett of Charlevoix. Mrs. Snedden grew up in Northern Michigan and attended the Petoskey Seventh Day Adventist School. She also graduated from Cedar Lake Academy and attended Andrews University in Berrien Springs. Mrs. Snedden was a home care nurse and a member of the Seventh Day Adventist Church in New Market, Va. She is survived by her parents, Gordon (Leo) and Betty Burnett of Charlevoix; one sister, Tammy Burnett of Petoskey; three brothers, Leo Burnett of Trepary, Larry of Charlevoix and Michael of Chattanooga, Tenn.; her grandmother, Mrs. Leo (Juanita) Burnett, Sr. of Bay Township; several nieces and nephews. Funeral services were held at the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Berkeley Springs, W. Va., on Tuesday, Feb. 27. Elder Ernest Runge and Elder Charles Martin officiated. Interment was in a Berkeley Springs cemetery. Arrangements were handled by the Hunter-Anderson Funeral Home, Berkeley Springs, W. Va.

Albert Jackson

Former Charlevoix resident Albert Jackson, 69, of Nokomis Fla., died Feb. 12, 1990. A memorial service was held Feb. 14 at Farley Funeral Home, Venice, Fla. Mr. Jackson was born in Charlevoix and moved to Florida 12 years ago from Mt. Clemens. He worked for Michigan Bell Telephone for 39 years and was a veteran of World War II, serving in the U.S. Army. He was a member of the Venice Elks Lodge and Telephone Pioneers of America. Survivors include his wife Louise; a son David and a daughter Jean Job of Mt. Clemens; his mother, Florence of East Jordan; a sister Hilda Clark of Reed City; a brother Marion of Venice and five grandchildren. The family suggests memorials to the American Heart Association or the American Cancer Society.

Middle school math students excel

Charlevoix Middle School math students won both the team and individual Mathcounts competition in Petoskey, Feb. 17.

Charlevoix sent three teams to compete with teams from 11 other area schools. A Charlevoix team comprised of Dan Jackson, Jesse Beatty, Bert Elliott and David Doubilis won the team competition. Beatty also took top honors among 68 students competing in the individual competition.

The aforementioned students will compete in the State Mathcounts competition April 17 in Lansing.

Another Charlevoix team comprised of Chris LeButt, Jenny Schaefer, Mark Schairbaum and Ryan Smith took third place in the competition.

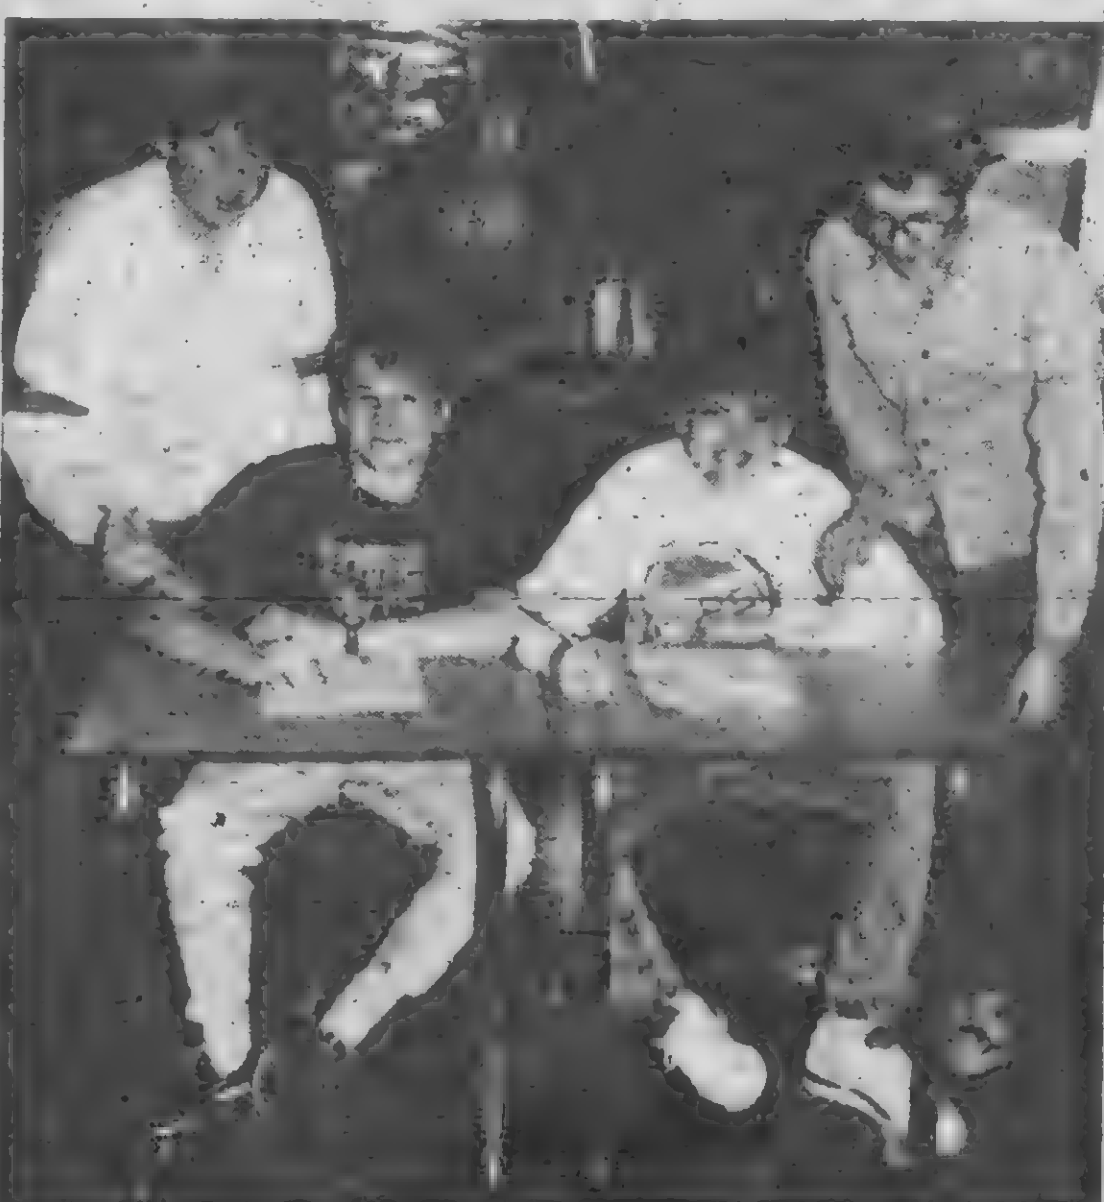

The third Charlevoix team was made up of Elizabeth Browe, Stephanie Boss, Colleen Slattery and Joshua Dhaseleer. Along with Beatty, other top Charlevoix finishers and their places in the individual competition were: Elliott third; Doubilis sixth; Jackson seventh; Dhaseleer eighth; LeButt eleventh.

Charlevoix students were coached by middle school math teachers Kay Fiedorek and Tori Fisher.

Later this spring Charlevoix students will compete in the Michigan Mathematics League competition and the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics contest.

This middle school math team recently took first place at math competition which included teams from 11 area schools. From left are: Dan Jackson, Jesse Beatty, David Doubilis and Bert Elliott.

Elizabeth Browe, Stephanie Boss, Joshua Dhaseleer and Colleen Slattery work on the geometry end of math with a compass.

BEACONS

by BENTON R. HEISLER

Forty days. One could starve if nourishment were not taken during such a period. Lent offers us just the opposite. We are provided with forty days in which we can feed our souls.

Lent is a time to meditate, to dedicate one's life, to praise and adore the God who created us. It becomes the occasion when we set time apart from the hurried pace of life in order that we might renew commitments we have made to the Divine.

Oh, and how hurried that pace can become.

There are pressures pushing upon us from all directions. Our families have one set of expectations and our friends another. Pressure in the work place places stress and strain on our bodies and minds. If one is without employment, the pressure builds to an even greater extent as resources, both human and financial, are pushed to their limits.

OF BLESSINGS

One might ask, "How can I find a release valve in the midst of all the pressure which builds within me and upon me?"

"Come to me, all who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." (Matthew 11:28) In these words, Jesus offers us the "release valve."

"Come to me..." are Christ's words of invitation.

Lent challenges us, dares us, to pause long enough to let Love, God Almighty, touch our lives. God's touch can bring healing to lives filled with pain and pressure, hope to minds that know only desperation, and peace to a land and peoples torn by racism, materialism, and pride.

Prayer: O God of Healing, Hope, and Peace, breathe your Spirit upon us and feed our souls. Nourish our thirsting hearts with the cool clean water of your Love, a forgiving Love shared with us through your Son Jesus Christ. Amen.

BUSINESS

Bob Hoffman, a certified public accountant, has opened an office full-time out of his home at 203 Mason Street.

Accountant opens office full-time

Certified public accountant (CPA) Robert B. Hoffman has opened an office on a full-time basis out of his home at 203 Mason Street.

Hoffman has been a CPA in Detroit and St. Louis MO, since 1972. For several years, he operated his own accounting firm in St. Louis. The firm employed 12 other people and did accounting work for approximately 175 businesses and 500 individuals.

Hoffman has been vacationing in Charlevoix since he was four years old. In 1987, he sold his accounting firm and moved to Charlevoix.

During the past two years, he has done some consulting work, but only recently opened an accounting office on a full-time basis.

Hoffman wants to work with both individuals and businesses in handling taxes, accounting and financial management advisory services. He explained that as an accountant he tries to help people handle personal and business finance and tax matters in a manner which is profitable and efficient.

After ten years as KHQ's Operating Partner, Tim Moore has announced that A.J. Walker Communications of Milwaukee become sole owner of KHQ, pending approval by the Federal Communication Commission. The approval process is expected to take about 60 days.

Walker is an entrepreneur who has a Milwaukee-based research company. KHQ will be the first in a series of broadcast acquisitions for Walker Communications.

KHQ made its debut in 1980. The station is among the most successful in American broadcasting for comparably sized markets.

KHQ covers 22 counties, but concentrates on the immediate coastal-Northwest Michigan Market, from Grand Traverse to the Straits.

"It's been a great ride. I wouldn't have wanted to be anywhere else during the past ten years," Moore said. "This transaction seemed right for everyone as we considered the offer. Certainly the price sets another record for Northern Michigan radio and that's an indication of the value growth here."

The transaction involves cash, accounts receivable and a tax certificate totalling approximately $3.4 million. Moore will be closely associated with KHQ's new ownership through an ongoing consulting agreement. Moore intends to remain in northwest Michigan as the CEO of his national radio programming company, Tim Moore and Associates.

School board changes commencement to 5 p.m.

by WENDI WRIGHT

At its regular meeting Monday night, the Charlevoix Board of Education voted to break with tradition and hold commencement at 5 p.m. this year, on Sunday, June 3.

The change in time was prompted by a parent group's request. The group plans to hold an alcohol and drug-free party for the seniors following commencement, and according to Jean Seymour, who spoke for the group, the parents organizing the party felt that holding the commencement exercises at 2 p.m. gave students the opportunity to drink before the party began, around 9 or 10 p.m. A 5 p.m. commencement virtually eliminated that opportunity, she said. She added that the goal of the party was to "assure our seniors of having a good time, alcohol-free, and keeping them off the roads."

Dave Smith, high school principal, told the board that the results of a parent survey indicated that the majority of the parents who responded to the survey were in favor of the change to 5 p.m. Of 55 surveys returned, Smith said, 38 preferred to hold commencement at 5 p.m.; 18 preferred 2 p.m.

Ardith Wieland, board member, said that as far as she was concerned, if 5 p.m. was preferred by the majority of the parents, and would help insure the success of the party, there should be no question as to the board's decision. "We should be making it the best way for the kids," she said.

Smith said that in the past, the primary reason for holding commencement at 2 p.m. was to prevent students from drinking prior to the graduation exercises. Janet Rathke, board member, stated that in light of the change in time, the board should make its position on drinking prior to commencement clear: any senior who appears at graduation under the influence of alcohol or other drugs will not be allowed to participate in the ceremony.

Pool proponents launch funding campaign

Proponents of an indoor swimming pool for Charlevoix have launched a fundraising campaign. They hope to raise a total of $1.85 million; $1.35 million for pool construction and $500,000 for an endowment fund to subsidize pool operational costs. Backers of the pool want to raise $1 million through fundraising and the remaining $850,000 through state and federal grants. They plan to appear before the school board Monday, March 19 to ask the board to sponsor a grant application to the state and allow the elementary school to be the site for the pool. Lilly Matys (right) is serving as the campaign coordinator of the fundraising campaign. Campaign executive committee members are (from left) Gayle Gennett, Mary Lou Smith and Bruce Reid.

Tourism officer to speak to merchants

Philip J. Alexander, District Tourism Agent for the Cooperative Extension Service of Michigan State University will be the guest speaker at the next Charlevoix Merchants Association meeting. The meeting will begin at 5:30 p.m., Tuesday, March 13 at Stafford's Weathervane.

Alexander's topic will be "Courtesy Is Contagious" and "Tourism-Greeting the Guest."

March of Dimes drive succeeds

The Northwest Division of the March of Dimes in Michigan raised more than $21,000 in the division's 11-county area.

Although this winter's ice sometimes made for a slippery march, more than 100 people participated in the Charlevoix-Petoskey area. Joy Halverson chaired the march in Charlevoix.

This year's march marked the fortieth year that mothers have marched to raise funds to fight birth defects.

Three county festival of classics being planned

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, March 7, 1990—PAGE 13

A two-county Summer Festival of Classics is in the planning stages, and interested participants are invited to attend a complimentary planning breakfast to discuss adding activities to the scheduled events. The breakfast will be held at 7:30 a.m. Thursday, March 8, at Stafford's Bay View Inn, Petoskey.

According to organizers, the Festival of Classics is a more focused outgrowth of the Little Traverse Bay Historic Festival which began ten years ago. It will span the last weekend in June and first weekend in July, covering Boyne City, Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Petoskey with events that center around shows of classic and antique aircraft, boats, and automobiles.

Stafford's Hospitality is again sponsoring its World's Longest Tug-of-War across Little Traverse Bay.

"We are looking for organizations to sponsor 'classic' events to round out the schedule and provide additional activities," said Dudley Marvin, president of Stafford's Hospitality. "We'd like to see fashion shows of classic clothing, street dances with classic swing and jazz tunes, ice cream socials, spelling bees, antique auctions, classic films, community sing-alongs, an inter-city softball tournament for vintage athletes, line and country dancing, classic radio and TV show rebroadcasts, anything that recalls the history and unique character of this resort area."

Organizers hope to cluster activities in participating communities so events cooperate rather than compete.

Breakfast reservations are required, and may be phoned to Dudley Marvin at the Bay View Inn.

Vocal music scholarships offered

Vocal music grants will be awarded this Spring by the Northern Michigan Chorale for Summer, 1990 music study. The scholarships will be available for anyone of high school age or older.

Letters of application should include name, address, telephone number, and should specify the planned use for the grant such as vocal lessons or music camp assistance. High school applicants should provide a recommendation from their music instructor.

Applicants must be residents of, attend school, or work in either Emmet or Charlevoix counties.

An audition can be anticipated.

Successful applicants may also be invited to perform in the Northern Michigan Chorale's Fall-Spring concerts.

A letter of application may be sent to:

Meredith Richter
North Central Michigan College
1515 Howard Street
Petoskey, Michigan 49770

Application deadline is April 1, 1990.

Rayders capture league basketball title

Never a doubt. Well, maybe just a small doubt.

When the buzzer sounded to end Friday evening's Charlevoix-Petoskey basketball game, the 1,800 people in attendance let out a deep breath. On the Charlevoix side, that breath was a sigh of relief. On the Petoskey side, it was a groan of disappointment.

Charlevoix escaped with 57-55 win over visiting Petoskey to clinch sole possession of the Michigan Huron Shores League title.

Petoskey, a team which prior to the season wasn't expected to do much, provided almost more fun than the Rayders could stand.

Midway through the fourth quarter Charlevoix had the ball with Rayder guard James Corwin dribbling it near the top of the key. Suddenly a seam opened in the Northmen defense. The defense parted like the Red Sea and like Moses, Corwin crossed to the promised land. That play and basket proved to be prophetic.

Following a see-saw sequence of turnovers, with time winding down, the score tied 55-55 and the game on the line. Corwin again had the ball. He drove down the right side of the lane and with four seconds left put up a shot which bumped the rim, rattled, rolled and fell in.

Petoskey inbounded the ball and heaved up a shot in desperation, but it failed to find the mark. Rayder fans streamed on to the court and hoisted players in the air. Rayder coach Jim Kanine led the charge and snatched Corwin off of his feet in a bear hug.

The Rayders led for much of the game, but a well-coached Petoskey team refused to fold. Charlevoix led at the end of the first quarter 11-9, courtesy of six points from Jason Corwin.

In the second quarter,

Charlevoix extended their lead to 23-17, but Northman Steve Behan, launched a three-point shot to hold Petoskey in the game. Three-point baskets by Behan and teammate Jack DeGroot kept Petoskey close throughout the evening.

At halftime Charlevoix led, but only by a point 26-25. Nothing was decided in the third quarter which ended tied 38-38.

The fourth quarter proved a thriller. Charlevoix got a small lead which drew Petoskey out of their zone defense and into a man to man. Charlevoix attempted to cash in on some height mismatches, but the Northmen defended well.

Jason Corwin and Webb Friedly hit some crucial freethrows to help the Rayder cause.

But Jason Corwin fouled out with 3:49 to go. He clearly didn't agree with the call, but at the behest of Kanine bit his tongue and headed for the bench.

Jason Corwin had played with foul trouble most of the night. In the first quarter, he picked up two quick fouls before he had a chance to break a sweat. Despite foul trouble, he ended up leading the Rayders in scoring with 14 points.

Charlevoix led by five points with less than two minutes remaining in the game, but a Petoskey three-point basket and lay-up tied the game. And after a series of turnovers, Petoskey also had the ball with less than 30 seconds to play.

But a travelling call returned the ball to Charlevoix with 21 seconds left and James Corwin closed out the game. Although James Corwin finished the game with 13 points, the final two were easily the most memorable.

Other scoring leaders for Charlevoix were Todd Kovach with 13 points and Webb Friedly with 10. Kovach, Friedly and Jason Parrish also combined for 21 rebounds.

Jason Parrish grimaces as he tries to find room beneath the basket against Petoskey during Friday evening's game. Parrish injured his hand in the third quarter. He left the game for a while to get taped up and then returned in the fourth quarter.

Official Notice

Regular Meeting Eveline Township Feb. 13, 1990

The regular meeting of the Eveline Township Board was held on Feb. 13, 1990; all board members were present; there were nine guests.

The January minutes were approved. Several zoning issues came before the board, that of a body shop in Ironton and a possible violation in Charlevoix Shores Estate. Also, the problem with the Burton property on Lakeshore Road near Advance has not been resolved it seems. The realtors working on that situation have requested a meeting between themselves and their attorney and our Supervisor, Zoning Administrator and our attorney. After much discussion, there was a motion and support to deny that request. The motion failed, but Don Hayden was given instruction to contact our attorney to get his opinion on a meeting of this sort.

There was correspondence from Crooked Tree Art Council, the Charlevoix Sheriff's Dept., Northern Michigan Cable T.V., the City of Boyne City, and Lilienburger's law office - none of which required action.

Michigan Officeways has returned the check to us which was for the repair of the copy machine, which was returned to the general fund.

A treasurer's report and a zoning report were given. Also Wayne Saunders gave an update on things on the road commission level. The budget was amended - $1,000 was added to the Twp. Hall activity and $1,000 was added to the Planning Commission.

Adjournment was at 9:35 p.m. Marsha Beishlag, Clerk

More traffic adds stop light

A stop light will be installed at the intersection of M-66 and U.S. 31, probably by the end of this coming summer.

Although a specific date of installation hasn't been determined, the colors for the new light have been chosen. The new light won't be a blinker. It will be a stop light similar to the one at the intersection of Bridge and Clinton.

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) is responsible for the intersection and decision to install the light.

"We've been monitoring that particular trunkline junction for several years," MDOT district operations engineer Bruce Conradson explained during a phone interview with the Courier. He said two or three traffic surveys have been done at the intersection in the past five to eight years.

Increased traffic and planned development on M-66 have led to Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) decision to put a stop light at the intersection of M-66 and U.S. 31. MDOT officials say the light will probably be installed this summer.

"The development that's in the process of going in out there triggered our review recently," Conradson said, referring to the K-Mart shopping complex and mobile home park being constructed.

Due to the delays a traffic signal requires, MDOT tries not to install new signals unless they're absolutely necessary, Conradson noted.

"We feel the time is right to go in with this change," he said of the decision.

MDOT is also planning two other Charlevoix road improvement projects although construction work on those projects probably won't happen this year.

After sidewalk construction and related projects are completed in the downtown business district, MDOT is going to resurface Bridge Street.

There are also some joints in the road on Petoskey Avenue which are going to be reworked.

City to levy 9 mills general plus 3 mills for infrastructure

After reducing the proposed millage levy from 9.5 to 9 mills for general operations and from 4 to 3 mills for infrastructure improvements, the Charlevoix City Council adopted a city budget Monday evening.

The adopted budget will cover the coming fiscal year which begins April 1.

Cutting the proposed millage levy was done by a 3-2 vote. Two of the council members, Pat Gaskin from the third ward and Cheri Hoffman from the first ward, favored levying 9.5 mills for general operations and 4 mills for infrastructure improvements.

They were outvoted by councilmen Ken Whitley and Butch Russell from the second ward and Jim Potter from the third ward. Councilman Bill Haggard was absent from the meeting.

The city levied 9 mills for general operations and 3 mills for infrastructure improvements in the current fiscal year. Whitley, Russell and Potter voted to keep the levy at those levels instead of increasing it as was proposed in the budget drafted by city manager Mike Wiesner with the assistance of city treasurer Rick Brandt and other city staff members.

During budget discussion at an earlier meeting Wiesner explained the process for arriving at the proposed millage levies. He said the process involves determining projects and services the city would like to offer, determining the cost of those projects and services and then calculating the amount of millage it will take to generate enough revenue to cover those costs.

A mill is $1 per every $1,000 of a property's SEV. For the city of Charlevoix, every mill levied for the general operations in the coming fiscal year will generate approximately $78,000 in revenue to city coffers.

Cutting the millage levy means the city will have to either cut or find alternative ways to fund $78,000 in proposed infrastructure projects and $39,000 in general fund expenses.

Rather than cutting proposed infrastructure projects, the council will take $78,000 from the sewer fund reserve. That money would be used instead of infrastructure funds to pay for planned storm and sanitary sewer separations on the north side.

Wiesner suggested the idea, saying that since the work being done will benefit the sewer system, he feels using sewer funds is justifiable. He also noted that even after taking $78,000 out of the fund, the fund will still have approximately $75,000 in reserve.

In cutting the general fund millage, council members indicated they want to cut $39,000 in expenses rather than find alternative sources of revenue.

Hoffman said that if budgets are going to be trimmed, council members should start in their own backyard first. She said the mayor and council members should be paid a flat rate per year for council service rather than $35 per work session. She said cutting council expenses of 24 work sessions per year will trim $5,880 from the general fund budget.

Mayor Gary Probert noted that his mayoral expenses have been less than previous administrations and Hoffman's proposal doesn't bother him. Whitley and Russell also noted that the proposal is OK by them.

Second ward resident Bruce Healey said the council had budgeted $44,000 for tax assessment. He suggested that the city consider contracting with the county equalization office for assessment services. He said other area communities do so and pay less for assessment services than Charlevoix.

Hoffman and Russell, who sat on the city board of review, said they are concerned that the city might have less control over tax assessments if they contract with the county.

Although the council chose not to act on contracting with the county for the coming fiscal year, they directed Wiesner and Brandt to look into the possibility to determine possible advantages and drawbacks.

Charlevoix township resident Dale Boss suggested eliminating one police officer position, by not hiring a replacement the next time a retirement occurs. Boss suggested that instead of replacing a police officer, the city hire a city engineer.

Wiesner noted that last year, city police chief Dennis Halverson indicated the department needs an additional officer. Council turned down Halverson's proposal last year and took no action on Boss' proposal Monday evening.

In making motion to set the general fund millage levy at 9 mills, Whitley stipulated that the city manager should study the budget and make recommendations as to where the $39,000 should be cut.

Wiesner said that he feels it is appropriate for him to make recommendations, but that the final decision as to what should be cut is a policy decision and therefore the responsibility of the council.

Carey elected to Hall of Fame

The Michigan Sports Hall of Fame has recognized something which is not news to Charlevoix sports fans: the late Bob Carey ranks among the finest athletes Michigan has ever produced.

Last week, the Detroit based Hall of Fame announced that Carey is among five men who will be inducted later this year. The other four are: former Detroit Lions, Charlie Sanders and Billie Sims; the late Walter Burkemo, a golfer; and the late Hal Schram, a high school sports writer for the Detroit Free Press.

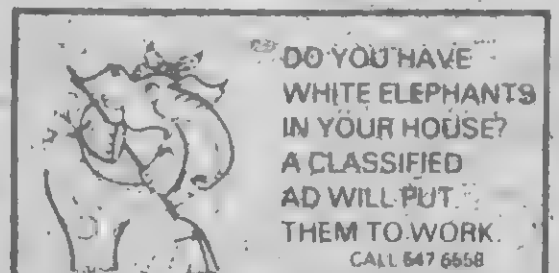

Carey, who died in 1968 at age 58, went through Charlevoix High School in the late 1940s. He was an all-state player in football, basketball and track. At one time he held the state shot-put record for all classes.

Following graduation from Charlevoix, he went to Michigan State University. Although the athletic competition at the college level differed from the high school level, for Carey the results were the same. He dominated.

Carey was the only MSU athlete ever to win nine letters, three each in football, basketball and track.

As a football player, he was an All-American end. He started at center on the basketball team. In track, he placed third in the nation and ninth in the world in the shot put and just missed qualifying for the Olympics.

After college and a stint with the military, Carey played professional football with the Los Angeles Rams and Chicago Bears. Knee injuries cut short his career.

Local Odyssey team qualifies for state

One Charlevoix Odyssey of the Mind team will advance to the state finals while a second team just missed qualifying. Five Charlevoix Public School teams competed in the regional competition Saturday in East Jordan.

Charlevoix sent four elementary teams and one middle school team to the regionals. The middle school team, competing in the Classics: Seven Wonders of the World category, placed first among 13 teams and will advance to state finals April 28 at Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant.

Members of the winning Charlevoix team are: Allison Beatty, Steve Crook, Kurt DeGrow, Mark Schairbaum and Mary Wojan. Virginia Schairbaum coaches the team with the assistance of Linda DeGrow.

Charlevoix's entry in the recycling category placed third among 27 teams. In previous years, that would have sent them to state, but this year due to growth in the Odyssey of the Mind program throughout the state, only the top two, rather than the top three, teams in each category qualify for state finals.

Members of Charlevoix's third place team were: Josh Habel, Mandy Barrett, Candice Vandergriff, Rachel Newcomb and Billie Parton. The team was coached by Bill Parton with the assistance of Cindy Vandergriff.

In the elementary classics category Charlevoix placed eighth among 15 teams. Team members were Jonathon Browe, Caleb Levengood, Raymon Grigg, Ian Powell and Amanda Eaton. The team was coached by Cheryl Browe and Jeanie Eaton.

Charlevoix placed eighth among 11 teams in the structure category. Team members were Duffy Stewart, Michelle Potter, Steve Felter, Kami Boyer, Elizabeth Hess, Nate Martin and Anne Campbell. They were coached by Sherry Sproul with the assistance of Peggy Potter.

In the Omotronic Humor category, Charlevoix placed 18th among 26 teams. Team members were Allissa Lachiusa, Laura Frey, Megan Jones, Jerry Borths, Diane DeKorfe, Juli Swenor and Danica Kilander. They were coached by LeVonia DeYoung.

Road weights restricted

The Charlevoix County Road Commission has begun enforcing spring weight restrictions on county roads and will do so until further notice. For additional information, phone the road commission office at 582-7230.

REASONABLE TO ME
L. SCOTT SWANSON

Taking a dive

A little boy fell from his bike into a big mud puddle. This happened right before my very eyes and I wondered how the little fellow would respond to his tumble.

Two kids came cruising down the street Saturday morning.

The older one was a girl. She appeared to be somewhere between five and seven years old. I'm estimating.

She was riding kind of a scooter outfit. How can I describe it? It looked like a big skateboard with small bike tires at the front and back which bicycle handlebars coming up from the front tire. It had no pedals. The girl stood on the board and propelled herself by pushing with one foot.

The little boy, who looked to be at least a couple of years younger, trailed along about 20 yards behind the girl. He rode a garden-variety kids' bike.

I was walking down the other side of the street when I saw the kids.

They came to a deep puddle. With the melting snowbanks and wet weather we've had lately, there's no shortage of deep puddles these days.

The kids could have swerved around the puddle and ridden on the dry side of the street, but that thought never even occurred to them. The first law of geometry for kids is, "the shortest distance through a puddle is a straight line."

About where the puddle got to be at least six inches deep, the little girl, who as mentioned was propelling herself with her foot, began to have some reservations about this excursion.

So she slowed down. That left a smaller wake, but didn't make the puddle any less deep.

As the little boy rode in, he stayed near the snowbank which was the source of the puddle. As the puddle became deeper, he slowed down too. And then he tipped over.

He fell sideways and kind of dived for the high and dry ground of the snowbank; at least it was high and dry compared to the mud puddle.

He made a nice dive, a valiant effort. He got his hands and upper body to the snowbank, but his pantslegs and boots didn't quite make it. They landed in the cold, dirty water of the mud puddle.

As I watched this take place, I wondered how the little guy would respond to the spill. I thought about what I'd do if I took a fall like that into a puddle.

The first thing I'd do is look around to see if anyone had seen me—kind of determine just how embarrassing this act of clumsiness was going to be—assess just how far my pride had fallen.

But the little kid wasn't embarrassed. Embarrassment about falling in a mud puddle was the least of his worries.

Beyond being embarrassed, I'd probably be mad if I fell off of a bike into a big mud puddle. Chances are that mud puddle and bike would have found themselves on the receiving end of some harsh words.

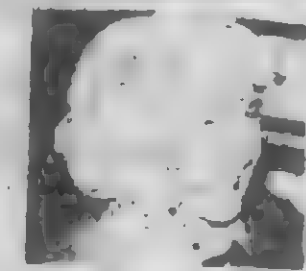

But being embarrassed or upset about falling into a mud puddle are adult things. Falling into a puddle didn't phase that little guy at all.

He got to his feet, picked up his bike, brushed himself off a little and yelled to the other kid, "Wait a minute. I had a broke-down."

Falling into a mud puddle doesn't spoil a kid's day. It's just part of the adventure of being a kid.

Student learns Russian

EDITH GILBERT

"How well do you speak Russian?" I asked Tonya Rostar, Charlevoix High School senior, and was surprised by her answer.

"With a little brush-up, I can get around OK," she replied confidently. "I listen to my Russian tapes for forty-five minutes a day."

No wonder Tonya is motivated to visit Russia with a group of seven enthusiastic Charlevoix youngsters for 21 days in June. She's been tutored in the Russian language for several years. But more about that later.

The Russian trip by bus is arranged through the chapter of the PEOPLE TO PEOPLE FRIENDSHIP CARAVAN, which was organized in Charlevoix through the efforts of Ralph McRae. PEOPLE TO PEOPLE was originally founded by President Eisenhower, and recently President Reagan and General Secretary Gorbachev jointly endorsed the program to establish a greater understanding between our two countries. It is the largest, most exciting and most meaningful student exchange program ever to take place between the US and the USSR.

Our students are required to raise the money for the trip by April 1, which isn't easy, since most of them are involved in other student activities such as Performing Arts and in Tonya's case, track, and bicycle racing. Bicycle racing? In Charlevoix in the dead of winter?

"I'm ranked number 6 nationally in my age group, 15 years or older," Tonya explains with a smile. "I started racing on my Titan dirt bike when I was 12. My family spent every winter in Palm Springs. There are local tracks and they hold races once or twice a week."

They have National Competitions all over the USA. I recently returned from an Award ceremony in Chandler, Arizona."

"It's much too cold in Charlevoix to ride outside," admits Tonya. "But I have learned to down-hill ski. I practice riding by bike for 35 minutes every day. We have it set up on rollers in the basement."

Having explained how Tonya became interested in racing, I now wonder how she became interested in studying Russian while attending Palm Springs

Tonya Rostar

High School. (Student population 4,500. That's more than the city of Charlevoix!) Was Russian a part of the curriculum in California or is she of Russian descent?

"My father is from Petoskey. His parents were from Czechoslovakia. My mother is of Indian heritage from Oklahoma. My parents met in High School in Flint." I look puzzled, so Tonya continues.

"I became interested in Russia when I took a European History class for college credit. I'm interested in the theory of government. I'll probably major in political science when I go to college."

At this point I need to ask what Tonya thinks of the current developments with the decline and fall of communism in Europe.

"People think they know what they want, but it will take time. It's a good step," she firmly believes.

Getting back to your trip, how are you young people going to finance it? It must be quite expensive to spend 21 days in Russia, even traveling by bus.

"We're selling raffle tickets for $2 and we're looking for sponsors for a Bowlothon the end of March, that's our major fundraiser. We're selling coupon books for Burger King and we are also speaking before organizations hoping for contributions. I have spoken to the Lions Club and the Kiwanians. We're doing the best we can. We need to raise $3,350 per student. Some of the parents will be able to chip in a little, too. Patti Muma is the Treasurer of the International Club, and people may volunteer to send checks to her at 1500 Park Ave., in Charlevoix."

BOB CLOCK

He's a "Dread"-ful brute

I have delayed saying anything about Dread in hopes he would go back to Africa. But he hasn't.

So I figure he is fair game. Dread is short for Dreadlock, a Rhodesian Ridgeback, who has been spending nights (and most days) at the Clock house hold since last fall.

His owner is Tom Loy, a friend of daughter Jennifer. Tom lives downtown in an apartment and is not allowed to keep a dog.

Rhodesian Ridgebacks are raised in Africa to hunt lions. To be honest, since Dread came to live with us we have had very few lions in the neighborhood and I think they must have gotten the message.

I assume that Rhodesian Ridgebacks are a relatively rare breed; at least I had never seen one until Dread hove on the scene. But Webster's New World Dictionary describes the dogs as "strong, short-haired African hounds, having a tan or reddish-tan coat and a ridge on the back formed by hair growing forward along the spine."

That's my Dread. His ridge ends in a little question mark between his shoulders.

Most people meeting Dread the first time try to smooth out his ridge by stroking it the wrong way—which does not make Dread awfully happy. But he's too polite to say anything since he is terribly fond of humans.

Dread's major problem in life is his size. He is only seven months old, but he stands so tall he can put his chin on the dining room table to see what's for dinner. He likes to sleep under the table, but he always bumps his head when he stands up.

Thank.

He can't seem to remember that he is taller than the table. I'd hate to have his headaches. But Dread is smart in other respects. Jennifer has taught him how to shake hands. He will sit down, raise one of his huge paws and put it in your hand.

Nice doggy.

He also has a trick called "Mr. Lonely Dog." If you chew him out for misbehaving, he will put his wrinkled old face between his paws and look up at you with soulful eyes.

How can anyone stay angry for long with a dog that looks like Pat Paulsen?

OUR THREE cats—junior members of the lion family—are not exactly happy to have Dread sharing their hearth and home. At first I was afraid they would pack up their meager belongings in knapsacks and move out, but they are learning to cope with the presence of a monster in the house.

If Dread gets too close to their cereal bowls, they will spit and slap him on the face, claws bared.

To his credit, Dread usually has enough sense to back off when the cats are eating.

Furthermore, the cats call him Dreadful instead of Dreadlock, which he doesn't like a bit.

The poor dog really would like the cats to play with him and his stuffed unicorn, but they are above such nonsense. Every once in a while, Rotunda, the roly-poly female, will slide up to him and rub her back against his long legs. But if he tries to nuzzle her, he'll get a hiss and a slap for his trouble.

What really bothers the cats is when Dread hears someone on the porch and barks. Although he is still a puppy, he has a deep, authoritative, basso-profundo bark that sends the cats scurrying for high ground.

If I lived in a high-crime area, I would want a dog with a bark exactly like Dread's just to keep the burglars at bay.

YEARS AGO, when our rat terrier Ginny trotted off to That Great Dog Kennel in the Sky, I made a solemn pledge to myself never to let myself become emotionally involved with another dog. We had Ginny more than 18 years and it was too hard to say goodbye.

But now there's Dread. I tried for months to keep my distance, but I can't.

I know he is too large a dog to live in a city house on a city lot. Even the African veldt wouldn't be big enough to contain a dog of Dread's boisterous vitality.

But if he ever moves away, I'm going to miss him. He'll have to come and visit.

K-5 school is no place for a pool

The elementary school is no place for a swimming pool. School board members should reject the proposal when it comes before them, yet again, Monday, March 19.

First, attaching a swimming pool to a building which contains approximately 300 children, most between the ages of five and 10 years old, is unsafe.

Second, despite what pool advocates are saying about an endowment fund, if the pool is built on school property, taxpayers will ultimately, if not immediately, be left footing at least a portion of the bill.

In attempting to drum up support, pool proponents stress water safety. However putting a pool at the elementary school would do more harm than good to the status of water safety in Charlevoix.

In your mind, review Charlevoix's water safety record for the past 20 years. Count on your fingers the number of drowning incidents you can recall which involved people from Charlevoix. Chances are you won't need more than one hand. Take that process one step further. How many of these drownings would have been prevented by swimming lessons at a Charlevoix Elementary School pool? Any?

Granted, this mental exercise isn't pleasant. Its purpose is not to in any way diminish the memory of, or the sense of loss felt by, the community for those who were drowning victims. However, it points out that combined efforts of Charlevoix parents, swimming instructors, lifeguards, boating safety instructors and others during the past 20 years have been highly successful. Water safety instruction in Charlevoix isn't something that's broken.

Against the backdrop of Charlevoix's present water safety record, the risks incurred by attaching a swimming pool to a building containing 300 small children far outweigh the potential benefits.

Although pool proponents contend there will be security measures, the reality is that not only will children find their way into the pool when they're supposed to be there, they'll find their way in when they're not supposed to be there.

Along with safety considerations, the probability of a pool at the school becoming an added property tax burden makes it an undesirable proposition.

Prior to the June 1989 school election, when two school operational millage requests were defeated, pool financing plans included using millage (i.e. a property tax increase) to fund a pool. When school operational millage requests failed, it became clear to pool proponents that voters aren't about to approve a tax increase to fund a swimming pool.

Pool proponents now say they want to fund pool construction and operational costs through means other than property taxes (i.e. millage). The other means would be a $1.85-million fund-raising campaign.

Pool proponents want to raise $1 million through donations and $850,000 through state and federal grants.

Of the $1.85-million, $1.35 million would pay the estimated cost of construction, while the other $500,000 would establish an endowment fund. The $500,000 would be invested and the earnings from that investment would be combined with fees charged to pool users to pay the operational costs of the pool. That's if all goes according to plans.

But then things don't always go according to plans. What if interest rates drop and the endowment investment doesn't generate as much revenue as anticipated? What if expenses, such as liability insurance, increase more than anticipated? What if user fees don't generate as much revenue as anticipated?

If a pool is on school or other public property, the answer to all of these questions is almost surely to be that Charlevoix property tax payers will be left holding the bag. This at a time when Charlevoix taxpayers, like others throughout the state, are trying to figure out a suitable method to decrease the property tax burden, not increase it.

Although pool proponents have talked about a pool at the elementary school, the school board, to its credit, has never endorsed that position.

At a July 17, 1989 school board meeting, pool proponents appeared before the board and made essentially the same requests they will be making this coming Monday, March 19.

At that meeting, Bob Dranth, who served as board vice president until his death last fall, indicated that he saw drawbacks to the board's approving a pool at the elementary school and sponsoring a grant application. His exact words that night with regard to the pool were, "I think our reputation as a school board will go down the tubes if we get behind this thing."

While an indoor community swimming pool may be a proposal with some merit, the pool should not be on school property. Placing the pool at the elementary school would endanger children and invite an increased tax burden.

Augusta M. Howe

Augusta May Howe, 96, of Charlevoix, died March 8, 1990, at Bortz Health Care of Petoskey.

Funeral was Monday, March 12, at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mrs. Howe was born Oct. 5, 1893, in Chelsea, the daughter of Leonard and Mary Kent. The family moved to Charlevoix in 1913.

On Sept. 6, 1913, the former Augusta Kent married Robert Howe. They always resided in Charlevoix and Mr. Howe preceded her in death in 1960.

As a young woman, Mrs. Howe had been employed at the Fountain City House in Charlevoix and also at the state fish hatchery. She had also been a waitress at Moonlight Gardens.

Survivors include: two daughters, Mrs. Doris E. Steenbergh of East Jordan and Mrs. Edward (Dorothy M.) Kaskey of Charlevoix; 10 grandchildren; 27 great-grandchildren and 23 great-great-grandchildren.

Kevin R. Purvis

Former Charlevoix resident Kevin R. Purvis, 27, died March 4, 1990, at his home in Jamestown, Calif.

Funeral was Friday, March 9 at St. Mary's Church, Charlevoix. The Rev. James K. Gardiner officiated with burial in St. Mary's Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Purvis was born Nov. 20, 1962, in Traverse City, the son of Ralph L. and Jean M. (Famlin) Purvis. The family lived in Cadillac before moving to Charlevoix when Mr. Purvis was 2. He attended Charlevoix schools and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1981.

For the past nine years, he has been self-employed as a custom upholsterer, specializing in automotive and marine upholstery, and operating as Purvis Upholstery in Jamestown.

He was a member of St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

Survivors include his parents, Ralph and Jean Purvis of Charlevoix; two brothers, Loren L. Purvis and Shawn T. Purvis, both of Charlevoix; one niece, Bethany Purvis; one nephew, Corey Purvis; many aunts and uncles.

The family suggests memorials to the American Diabetes Association. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Lillian E. Hull

Lillian E. Hull, 90, died March 6, 1990, at her Charlevoix home.

Funeral mass was Friday, March 9, at St. Mary's Church, Charlevoix. The Rev. James K. Gardiner officiated and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

The former Lillian E. Engstrom was born Oct. 3, 1899, in Cross Village, the daughter of Henry and Agnes (Gilbert) Engstrom. The family moved to Charlevoix when she was a young girl.

She married Emerson Hull in 1916 and he died in 1944.

Mrs. Hull had been employed as a waitress in many area restaurants and hotels including the Charlevoix Beach Hotel, the Inn of Charlevoix, Wag's Restaurant and Hallett's Inn in Charlevoix.

She was a member of St. Mary's Church and the Altar Society; a member of the American Legion Auxiliary No. 226 and VFW Auxiliary 1153. She was also an avid bingo player.

Mrs. Hull was survived by three daughters, Marguerite McKay and Edna M. Miller, both of Charlevoix, and Emerjean Christy of Orange, Calif.; one son, Richard John Hull of Charlevoix; eight grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren; four great-great-grandchildren.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home.

BEACONS

by REV. BRUCE HAMILTON

My wife attends college on Wednesday nights. That means that the family kitchen is run by Chef Daddy. I'll tell you this right now, I am grateful that she does most of the cooking. For one thing, she is far better at it than I ever will be. For another, she is so much neater!

When I cook, it seems like the whole kitchen has been hit by an explosion of messiness. When she cooks, Better Homes and Gardens could come in and shoot a cover photo. She is that neat. Although in an informal survey of my church, you ladies are generally always much neater than us men in the kitchen.

Anyway, the reason for this culinary discussion is that I have been experimenting a little with different spices. If you were to come to dinner at Chez Daddy tonight, you would find the cuisine generally runs along the line of one kind of pasta or another. With that in mind, you can figure out what kind of spices I've been testing. It is amazing what a little extra garlic, oregano, and basil can do to a relatively bland spaghetti sauce. One hint though, if your wife is not too crazy about garlic, gargle a little lemon juice after dinner.

If we recognize how little things like spices make a difference to our taste buds, just consider the difference that Jesus Christ makes! He's more than just a spice to be added to our lives. He guides us into a whole new life, a different way of doing things.

In the kitchen, you find you experiment with a little pinch of this or a tad of that. In life, you don't always have the luxury of experimenting. A foolish choice can be disastrous. With Jesus guiding your daily life, you don't have to take chances. You know that "all things work together for good" when your life is in His hands.

Who is stirring up the recipe of righteousness, peace and joy in your heart each day? There's nothing quite like working side by side with the God's Master Chef. He knows the best way for each day to turn out just right.

BUSINESS

Beaver Island businessman Bill McDonough spoke to Charlevoix Rotarians last week comparing Charlevoix and Beaver Island business relations to a marriage that has problems which need to be worked out.

Islanders concerned about business relations

Beaver Island businessman Bill McDonough compared the present business climate between Charlevoix and the Island to a marriage which has problems that need to be worked out. McDonough made the comparison while speaking to the Charlevoix Rotary Club last week.

McDonough, who is executive director of the Beaver Island Boat Company and owner of McDonough's Market, said Island business people were discouraged by a city council decision late last year to turn down a proposed study of the Bridge Park area where the Beaver Island boat docks.

Subsequently, that study, which carries a price tag of approximately $18,000, has been approved. It will be funded by the Downtown Development Authority (DDA).

McDonough said there are also other sore spots with the Islanders. He cited parking fees the city charges at the airport. He said that last year $15,585 in airport parking fees were paid. According to McDonough, Islanders feel that money is nothing more than a tax to Island residents and visitors.

Beaver Island is currently experiencing rapid growth on the Island and is also anticipating spin-off business from a proposed development on North Fox Island.

Pet clinic evaluated

Charlevoix Veterinary Hospital recently passed a comprehensive evaluation by the American Animal Hospital Association. The evaluation included a quality assessment review of the clinic's facility, medical equipment, practice methods and pet health care management. Less than 14 percent of all small animal veterinary facilities in the United States are hospital members of the association. In order to maintain its recertification status, Charlevoix development on North Fox Island.

McDonough said Leelanau County officials are pushing the North Fox Island developer to base transportation in their county. McDonough said the developer is more familiar with the Beaver Island operation which has its mainland headquarters in Charlevoix.

According to McDonough, the boat company could look at operating out of Harbor Springs or Northport, but would rather work things out so they can stay in Charlevoix.

"We have to get together so we can get on with business to the benefit of Beaver Island and Charlevoix," McDonough said.

Concerns regarding the efficiency and safety of the current docking area prompted the request for a study of the Bridge Park area, McDonough said. He said the boat company is concerned about the facilities on the mainland.

During 1989 the boat company and Island Airways carried a total of 50,544 to the Island.

In the course of his discussion, McDonough offered the Rotarians a brief history of the Island and explained that the Island is currently growing rapidly and attempting to make sure that growth takes place in a planned manner.

Veterinary Hospital must continue to be evaluated regularly by the association.

The American Animal Hospital Association is an international association of more than 10,000 veterinarians who treat companion animals, such as dogs and cats. Established in 1933, the association is well known in the veterinary field for its quality standards for hospital and pet health care. Charlevoix Veterinary Hospital has been a hospital member of the association since 1976.

Improvement expected for steelhead fishing

Steelhead anglers may find this spring's runs slightly better than last year's average migration, AAA Michigan reports.

Consistent stocking levels during recent years is the main reason for the optimism, according to state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) fisheries biologists.

Additionally, a wet spring will stimulate runs and the National Weather Service has predicted above-normal precipitation in the next few months.

Some biologists did express concern about this year's migration, citing increased Great Lakes steelhead harvests in previous years. Dry spring weather also could hamper runs.

Steelhead—the name given to rainbow trout living in the Great Lakes—spawn in the stream where hatched or planted. The popular gamefish are magnificent fighters when hooked and provide a tasty meal.

Good steelhead fishing already has been reported on various Michigan rivers this year due to unseasonably warm weather. But the best fishing should occur mid-March to mid-April in Southwest Michigan; early to mid-April in Southeast Michigan; mid-April to early May in Central and Northern Lower Michigan; and mid-April to mid-May in the Upper Peninsula.

West Michigan fishing is expected to be good on the Platte, Betsie, Big and Little Manistee, Pere Marquette, Grand and St. Joseph rivers.

Children's play scheduled at McCune Arts Center

Crooked Tree Arts Council will host the musical play, Beauty and the Lonely Beast, by Eleanor Harder at 1 p.m. Saturday March 17 at the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey. The one-hour play is intended for children between the ages of five and 12 and will be presented by the Northland Players of Cheboygan.

The story revolves around a family—Mr. Meriweather and his three daughters Beauty, Sue and Agnes—whose "ship never comes in." Through the encouragement of Isadora, the fairy Godmother, they are befriended by "Beastie."

Students raising funds for trip

Six Charlevoix students and three other area students continue their fundraising efforts for a June trip to the Soviet Union. The trip is being coordinated through the Charlevoix International Club, a local chapter of People to People International.

Currently the students are collecting Glen's slips, returnable bottles and cans.

They are selling 50-50 raffle tickets and T shirts designed by students in the high school art program.

They are working with Burger King, Pizza Hut and McDonalds on other fundraising plans.

Charlevoix students involved in the program are Troy Bonar, Katherine Campbell, Scott Campbell, Janis Leadabrand, Edith Pair and Tonya Rostar. Other area students are: Ashley Brower of Petoskey, Julia Brunett of East Jordan and Jennifer Breidenstein of Boyne City.

Pool proponents plan activities and fashion show

The Charlevoix Friends of the Pool and the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club are combining efforts on St. Patrick's Day and the following Sunday for a "Get In The Swim" fun-fund raising weekend for kids and their parents.

Saturday and Sunday, beginning at noon, the friends of the Pool will set up a number of games in the Downtown Mall in Charlevoix. The Kiwanis will host an open house at their Sugar Shack on Carson, just off Division, for demonstrations of maple syrup production on St. Patrick's day beginning at noon.

It's a chance for fun, refreshments, and a taste of maple syrup from the two organizations backing a swimming pool in Charlevoix.

Thursday, March 22 there will be a fashion show featuring the Doncaster summer line. It will be at Nanny's from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. A light supper will be served. Tickets are $12 and will be available at the Pool office in Passageways Travel Kiosk in the Market Mall. Proceeds will be donated to the Friends of the Pool Fund.

Pool debate draws crowd

by WENDI WRIGHT

The high school study hall was filled to capacity Monday night as Charlevoix residents debated the pool issue before the Charlevoix Board of Education. Though the issue was discussed at great length, the pool committee did not ask the board to vote on use of elementary school property, nor to sponsor a grant application on behalf of the pool committee.

Pool proponents brought several people to the meeting for a panel discussion and presentation to the board and members of the audience. The panel consisted of Bob Doan, Community Schools Director; Harbor Springs; Marilyn Early, Pool Director; Harbor Springs; John Dziurman, architect of the proposed Charlevoix pool; Shirley Blair, supervisor of the senior swimming program at the Friendship Center; Mike Davis, Charlevoix County Recreation Director; Bill Robertson, Pad-dock Pools; Bern Cannon, member of the Pool Steering Committee; and Lilly Mayte, coordinator of the fund-raising campaign for the pool.

Dave Strawbridge, co-chairman of the Friends of the Pools' Executive Committee, served as moderator for the program, which began with presentations from each of the people on the panel.

Doan and Early described the way the Harbor Springs pool, which is located at the middle-high school, operates and is utilized in that community. Doan said he felt that the day in which communities could allow themselves the "luxury" of "single-use" facilities is past. He said Harbor Springs views the pool as "a community facility" which is located at the school. Dziurman echoed this view, stating that the "com-

Michigan Ave. rezoning denied despite 3-2 favorable council vote

Although a rezoning request received a favorable vote from three of five council members present at Monday evening's council meeting, the request needed four votes to pass and therefore was effectively denied.

The rezoning requests concerns property at 301 Michigan Avenue. It is owned by Thomas Pointer. Through his representative, John Campbell of Site Planning Development Inc., Pointer sought to have the property rezoned from professional office to multiple, family residential.

Pointer has expressed a desire to replace the office building presently on the property with a 16 unit residential complex. The property sits between two similar developments, the Dunes and the LaCroft.

Prior to coming to the council, the rezoning request received a favorable recommendation from the city planning commission.

At Monday's council meeting, Campbell spoke in support of the plan noting that properties on either side of 301 Michigan are zoned multifamily residential, that the city master plan calls for the property to be multifamily residential and that the proposed site plan for the project requires no zoning variances.

Josh Barnes, president of The Dunes Condominium Association, said that while members support the rezoning, they don't want the lakeside portion of the building to interfere with pedestrian traffic on the beach and they would like the lakeside portion of the building to be in line with the other complexes, as opposed to protruding toward the lake. David Coulton of LaCroft said his concerns were much the same as those voiced by Barnes.

As a possible means of moving the building back from the lake, Barnes suggested approving the rezoning and then granting a variance which would allow the proposed building to be constructed closer to the street.

Councilmember Ken Whitley said that while he had no problem with rezoning the property, he would not vote for such a variance.

Councilmember Pat Gaskin, who along with Jim Potter, voted against rezoning the property said she opposes rezoning to create high density development. Gaskin said the amount of high density development Charlevoix has had exceeds what is needed for healthy growth. Continued on page 3

Granted, the water was still frozen, but Michelle (foreground) and Tracy Radvick still had a fine time at the beach during last week's warm spell. They were taken to the beach by their mother, Teresa Radvick.

Commencement time questioned

The pool was not the only issue debated at the school board's regular meeting Monday night. The question of the appropriate time for this year's commencement exercises was also discussed at length.

Webb Friedly, representing the senior class, told the board that the seniors do not want the graduation ceremony held at 5 p.m., as was decided at the board's last meeting.

Friedly said the senior class voted 96 to 3 in favor of a 2 p.m. commencement, and he didn't feel that they had been properly represented at the meeting at which the time had been decided. He told the board he felt the student's feelings about the time issue should carry at least as much weight as the parents' in the decision-making process.

One student present in the audience stood up and told the board that she felt personally in-sulted that the board's attitude was that all the students were planning to get drunk following commencement, and that she felt as though her class was being treated as if they "were a bunch of alcoholics."

She added that some of the kids may drink, but that it is unfair to "punish" everyone because of those few.

George Kraft, told the board that he is upset to think that the board assumed the kids were going to drink, and had made their decision based on that assumption. He stressed that graduation was for the students, not the parents.

Those parents present said they were opposed to the 5 p.m. time because visiting relatives and friends would have to travel late on Sunday night, and that the kids would have no time to spend with their families between the commencement exercises and the beginning of the non-alcoholic lock-in party scheduled that night.

Friedly said he appreciated the input of the parents present, and that he didn't want the issue to "turn into an epic," but he hoped the board would take the students' feelings into consideration and reconsider.

Scott Beatty, board member, made a motion to allow the administration at the high school to make the decision as to the appropriate time for graduation this year. He said that he felt the board hadn't received a balanced account of all the information when it had voted at the last meeting, and that he wasn't sure the board was getting such an account at this meeting. He felt that the high school administrators should make the decision as it would affect them directly. The motion was approved, though not unanimously.

Strawbridge introduced Davis as a "grant specialist," but Davis noted that though he has written a number of grants, he would not call himself a specialist. He briefly described the grant application process, and the terms of the grant for which the pool committee is seeking sponsorship.

Davis said the grant in question is a "reimbursable grant," meaning that the sponsor will have to pay for the project up front, and then submit a request for reimbursement. Strawbridge pointed out that the grant amount would be pre-approved, but rather than receiving the money at the beginning of the project, it would be received at the end. The maximum amount of the grant is $750,000, to be matched by the sponsor, $125,000 in cash, and $125,000 in kind. The deadline to submit a pre-application for grant consideration this year is April 1.

Davis also said that whichever government unit, the township, the city, or the school board, sponsored the grant, that unit would be responsible for maintenance of the pool for 20 years.

The heart of the discussion was in the question and answer period following the panel's presentation. Several members of the audience voiced concern about the safety of the elementary school as the location of the pool, and one person suggested the high school as a possible site. Doan said that there has never been an instance at the Harbor Springs pool in which students were in the pool area when they were not supposed to be.

Strawbridge said that he didn't really care where the pool is located, but that if the goal of the pool is to increase safety and swimming ability in the community, the logical place to start is with the small children. "It's not necessarily unsafe to have a pool at the elementary school," he said.

The question of the legality of the school board allowing the pool to be built on school property without a vote came up several times. Gordon Van Wieren, school superintendent, replied by stating that according to the school's lawyers, it is legal for the board to lease or sell school property, but that the board can't donate property to a group such as the pool committee.

Janet Rathke, board member, asked Davis if there is a possibility that the amount of grant money awarded may be less than $750,000. Davis said yes, that $750,000 is the maximum allowed, not a guaranteed amount. Rathke then asked Strawbridge what the pool committee would do if the amount awarded is only $250,000.

"I guess we'll have to cross that bridge when we come to it," he said. "We'll do the best we can."

One member of the audience used the proposed band shell project as the basis of his fear that if the school board gets involved with the pool there is a chance that the taxpayers will be left holding the money bag.

At one point in the discussion, Strawbridge read a letter signed by approximately 30 Charlevoix teachers which stated a number of concerns, including their increased responsibilities for keeping the elementary students away from the pool, the smell of chlorine invading their classrooms, and the loss of playground space.

Strawbridge concluded the discussion by requesting that the board choose two members to attend an upcoming meeting with two representatives each of the Township Board, the City Council, and the Pool Steering Committee to discuss the grant application and the pool site. Ardithe Wieland, board member, volunteered to act as one representative of the school board at the meeting. The second will be named later.

... rezoning request denied

"The increased density we have in this city is excessive for a balanced community," Gaskin said.

Councilmember Cheri Hoffman, who made the motion to grant the rezoning, indicated that such high density developments may indirectly help Charlevoix's need for affordable housing. She said that complexes such as the one proposed provide seasonal residents with places to purchase and consequently may keep them out of the market for other dwellings.

The first time Hoffman made a motion to rezone the property, it died for lack of support. After additional discussion, she repeated her motion and received support from councilmember Butch Russell.

Hoffman, Russell and Whitley voted in favor of the motion.

Gaskin and Potter voted opposed. Councilmember Bill Haggard was absent.

A rezoning request requires a majority vote of the entire council, i.e. four votes.

The city zoning ordinance also requires that when a request is denied, specific reasons for denial must be given.

During council discussions, reasons cited were Gaskin's contention that there is already too much high density housing for a balanced community. Gaskin also said the master plan indicates the property "may" rather than "should" be zoned multifamily residential.

City attorney James Young noted that since the rezoning request is in harmony with the master plan and adjoining properties are zoned multifamily residential, the city might be on precarious ground should the matter be pursued in court.

These six students are among approximately 30 who are, or will be, participating in special Saturday morning art programs. Kids designing cartoons are (clockwise from front left) T.J. Caldwell, Bryan Liotta, Tina Hahn, Kelly Bearss, Melissa Anderson and Gita Butcher. They are being taught by Steve Toornman and Meredith Krell. Each section of the program lasts for six weeks. Along with Toornman and Krell, other area artists teaching the students are: Cara Hahalter, Lori Bolt, Frank Hassald and Kim Left. A grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts helped fund the program.

Lake levels stay low

The Great Lakes forecast, published in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels for the Great Lakes, shows that Lakes Superior and Michigan-Huron are expected to remain below their long-term average levels during the next six months. Lake St. Clair is expected to remain above its long term average during the forecast period. Lake Ontario is projected to approximate its long term average during the next six months.

A more detailed summary of water levels in Lakes Michigan-Huron follows.

Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of February were at elevation 577.23 feet (175.94 meters) above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec, or 5 inches (13 cm.) above Chart Datum. This was about 7 inches (18cm.) below what it was a year ago, and 1 inch (3cm.) below one month ago. The February monthly mean level of 577.24 feet (175.94 meters) was about 8 inches (20 cm.) below the long-term average for February. The lakes, however, remained about 22 inches (56 cm.) above their all-time low February monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1964. The forecast shows that at the end of March, the level of Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about 2 inches (5cm.) above what it was at the end of February. The lakes are expected to begin their seasonal rise in March. The water level in August 1990, is expected to be about 7 inches (18 cm.) below the long-term average for the month, or about 4 inches (10 cm.) below what they were at the same time in 1989.

Philosophy rides the wind

Sometimes four isn't a pleasant answer. It is not always the sum desired. There are times when it would be more desirable to analyze a situation, put two and two together and get three, five, six, seven; anything but four.

Sometimes you look at a situation and ask yourself, "Why can't this situation be something other than what it seems; something other than what all of the evidence so obviously points to?"

But no, the truth of a matter may be ugly. The truth of a matter may stink. Yet it is still the truth of the matter. There is no point in denying it, no point in attempting to deceive yourself. The truth is inescapable. A situation must be confronted and dealt with as it is, not as you would wish it to be.

All of this low math and high philosophy on the truth of matters came rushing into my mind late Saturday night. It arrived on a spring wind and just kind of swept over me just before bed time.

The baby and my wife called it a night shortly after 10 p.m. Saturday. They generally go to bed at about the same time. Mothers who get up in the middle of the night to feed babies sleep when they get the chance. Sasquatch the dog and I stayed up later. We were watching a hockey game. After the hockey game, I found something interesting to read. Although Squatch isn't much on reading, he stayed awake to keep me company. When I finished reading and stood up from my chair, Squatch bounded to his feet and trotted to the back door. He wanted to go out one last time to tour the grounds and water all things vertical.

"Squatch, you were out just a while ago. You can make it until morning."

He wagged his tail, panted and continued standing by the door. "Oh all right. But stay close I don't want to have to holler for you."

I let the dog out and began shutting the house down for the night: turning off lights, locking other doors.

The dog had been outside less than three minutes when the aforementioned wind of math and philosophy carried an ugly truth of the matter into the house.

It was subtle at first. I sniffed. "Hmmm. I smell something peculiar. I wonder what it is." I sniffed again. "I recognize that smell. That's the smell of a skunk."

That's when the pair of deuces fell into place; the dog's outside, I smell a skunk.

I tried to formulate some other explanation, but nothing I came up with was nearly as plausible as the obvious. I found a flashlight, put on an old coat and went outside. If the traces of the smell which had come into the house had provided my first clue, then the smell outside the house indicated that I was well on my way to solving any mystery that remained.

Shining the flashlight out toward the garden, I located a small black and white corpse. The dog's intelligence in taking up a skunk hunt is suspect, but there's no questioning his resolve. That's at least the second one he's killed.

A few seconds later Squatch came bounding up. I saw, or more accurately smelled, no need to ask him what he had been doing.

He looked like a kid who'd just finished a terrifying roller coaster ride. He was pleased with himself for what he'd done, yet unsure if he wanted to the same thing again right away.

"Squatch, old buddy, it looks like you're going to be an outdoor dog for a while."

Poor old Squatch. Exiled to his doghouse. A victim of deep philosophy and shallow math.

Detroit decaying

The 1990 Census could spell disaster for the City of Detroit.

Many state and federal revenue sharing programs are based on population and from all indications the Motor City is continuing to lose residents both to the suburbs, to outstate Michigan and to other states.

Some folks fault the defusion of the auto manufacturing business to other parts of the country for Detroit's continuing population decrease. But let's not mince words. Many former Detroiters have fled the nation's so-called "murder capital" to save their skins.

As a result, Detroit's population is on the skids. When I lived in Detroit a thousand years ago, we used to brag that Detroit had a million residents. Then we upped it to a million and a half. Then to two million.

At one time, Detroit was the third largest city in the country, right after New York City and Chicago.

Detroit's position among the nation's great cities never changed. Detroit was one of the big boys on the block, make no mistake about it.

However I saw one poll recently that placed Detroit seventh in the country in population, behind such upstarts as San Diego and Houston. And an even more dismal picture may be painted by the 1990 Census.

But the folks who are conducting the Census are attempting to make sure everyone who calls Detroit home is counted, including those who bed down in flop houses, sleep in parks or hole up in abandoned buildings.

It won't always be possible to determine the age or sex of some of a citizen sleeping under a snug layer of newspapers on a park bench, but that's not important. Warm bodies are.

Whatever the count, Detroit Mayor Coleman Young is going to cry foul, claiming Detroit has more residents than counted in the Census.

You can't really blame him, because every citizen in his domain is worth something like $170 in federal and state funds. But you can blame him for allowing one of the nation's most ambitious, hard-working cities to become a gigantic slum populated by drug dealers, drug users, cutthroats and thieves.

A few years ago one of the Detroit newspapers interviewed a Detroit city librarian who retired after many years of service. She was born in Germany and was returning to her native country to spend her declining years.

"I like to walk at night," she explained. "And you can't walk at night in Detroit. It's not safe."

I almost cried because I remember when the streets of Detroit were as safe as the those of Charlevoix or Ellsworth.

And so does Coleman Young. What has gone wrong? And why has he allowed it to happen?

WHILE CHARLEVOIX'S movers and shakers are debating the viability of a swimming pool in Charlevoix, I would like to remind you that East Jordan already has a pool, thanks to the generosity of the Malpass Foundation.

And Charlevoixans are welcome to use it for a modest $1.50 fee.

Tuesdays, from 6:30-8 p.m., is Adult Night. Wednesdays during the same hours the pool is open to lap swimmers.

Some lap swimmers also visit the pool Tuesdays, and no one seems to care.

Mondays and Thursday nights the pool is open to families, as it is Saturdays from 11:30 a.m. until 2 p.m.

A Saturday visit to the pool is a favorite activity for children's parties, according to pool attendants.

If you plan a visit, you might check with the pool office first to make sure the pool is open. Sometimes it has to close for one reason or another. The number is 538-2250.

FORGET ROBINS and crocuses. The first sign of spring in Charlevoix is the appearance of plastic Easter eggs in the tulip tree at the John Campbell home on Dixon Avenue.

The second sign is the curb-side appearance of Christmas trees, that somehow never got taken down after the holidays. Trash collectors picked up a number of them last week.

Letters to the Editor:

Pool group responds to editorial

Dear Editor:

One cannot quarrel with your privilege to publish your editorial opinion. However, before you expressed the opinion that a pool at the elementary school is "dangerous" for the students, you should have done some research to support your contention.

The Pool Steering Committee has done extensive research through the Library of Congress, American Red Cross and at several elementary schools with attached pools. We also interviewed many pool managers, swimming instructors, architects, etc. about pool safety and design.

The Mack Elementary School in Ann Arbor, a school with an attached pool, was visited by a committee member who wrote a lengthy report afterwards. We talked to elementary school principals and staff at Dearborn, MI and Francisville, Ind. and learned they have not had a fatality nor have they had "even a near miss" at their pools. We offered to give you the names and telephone numbers of these sources so you could personally check them out but you claimed "it wouldn't sway" your opinion.

We agree the real issue here is perceived impact on taxes despite the fact that the goal of the committee and Mothers for the Pool is to raise money from private sources and to apply for $750,000 in state funds. Application, however, must be done by a public body such as the school board.

The timing of your editorial blast is unfortunate. It's too bad you didn't raise your concern about pool safety at our one-hour press conference March 2. You could have reported our response based on our research and this could have been available to your readers so they could form their own opinion. Instead, you chose to wait a week and time your editorial just prior to the critical school board meeting of March 19 which gives the committee no opportunity to rebut.

Too bad Charlevoix can't reach consensus on this issue and do as East Jordan is doing; i.e. city and school board are filing jointly April 1 for a recreation and fund grant. Such cooperation earns extra points in the competitive process of grant applications.

BUT, the bottom line—which we appear to be losing sight of—is the safety of our children and the health and well being of the people of Charlevoix.

Sincerely,
Pool Steering Committee

Pool supporter objects to editorial

Editor:

I read with interest your editorial of March 14th against the location of the Swimming Pool Project. It contained many inconsistencies, too many to mention.

It is a thinly veiled comment by one person with the power of the press that is not interested in a swimming pool in Charlevoix.

Years ago in the first project to build a pool, it would have been built for $125,000 and about half the population was for it. Pledges were received from Big Rock-Medusa and many contractors who would give of their experience and time to make it a success. A local lawyer, not interested in a pool, conceived the idea of building a Country Club, with a pool. This split the community, and both projects failed.

It is my sincere hope that your editorial will backfire and only serve to spur the pool committee to greater endeavors and prove you wrong.

Respectfully,
Ralph S. Hamilton

Letters to the Editor:

Don't change commencement time

Editor:
What a sad commentary it is on the City of Charlevoix that the time of high school commencement is determined only by how drunk the board thinks the kids will be! Is this what the parents of this town want to teach our kids?

The fact that out of town family members have to be on the road late at night or that some kids may want to have an alcohol-free open house after graduation or that some kids may want to go to church Sunday night apparently had no bearing on the decision at all.

The time of commencement has nothing to do with having a party later. If some kids are going to drink, that is a shame since we all know that it is illegal for 17 and 18 year olds to drink. If a student shows up for graduation drunk or smelling of alcohol, he or she is not saying much for themselves, their school, their town or their family. If as a parent you choose to allow your underage offspring to drink, I would hope that you would teach them to be responsible. We need to teach our young people to behave responsibly no matter what they do by doing so ourselves. Locking them up and throwing away the key for whatever length of time is only a temporary measure. It does not teach them that from now on they will have to answer to society in general for personal irresponsibility.

If the kids are still up to having an all-night party after all the excitement of graduation, the time of graduation should not and does not have any bearing on that. Changing it from 2 to 5 does, however, create many other difficulties.

Leave well enough alone and leave commencement time at 2 p.m. I have yet to hear any good reason to change it.

Thank you,
George and Robbin Kraft

Ellsworth students design SADD posters

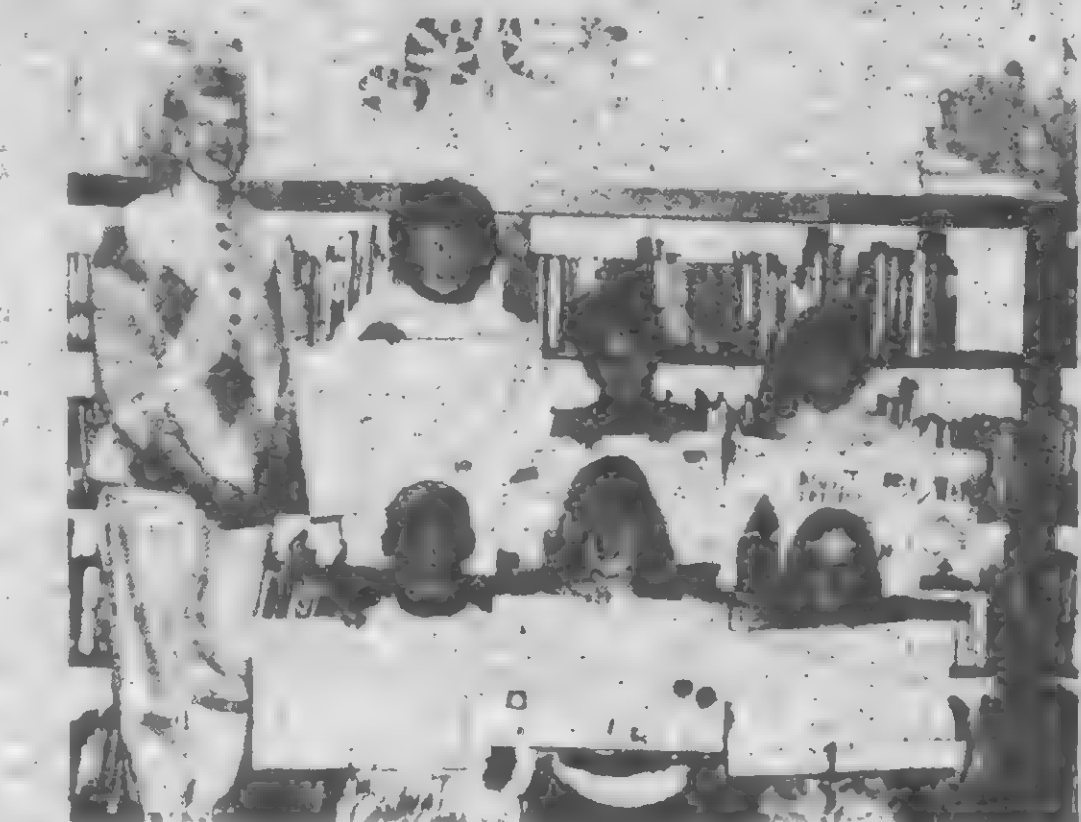

by MOLLY RANDALL

Recently, The Ellsworth chapter of SADD sponsored a poster contest for elementary students in grades one through six.

Posters were judged on originality, neatness, and how well the student stuck to the theme, "Make this a Decade of Difference—Drive Safe and Sober." There were three prizes for each age group, of ten, five, and three dollars.

In the group of grades first through third, winners were Amber Chellis for first, Jamie Kessinger, second, and Megan Cooper took third.

In grades four through six, Jenny Drenth took first place, Valerie Charbonneau, second, and third went to Samone Stanhope.

Low income housing needed

Dear Editor,
The National Low Income Housing Coalition states "Low income people face an unprecedented housing crisis! In 1985, there were twice as many low income renter families who needed affordable housing as there were homes in the entire housing stock at rents they could afford. Nearly 4 out of every 10 of the 16 million renters with incomes below $15,000 paid more than one-half their income in rent in 1985, while 5 million poor renters and 4.5 million poor owners lived in substandard housing."

HUD now provides 4.3 million families with federal assistance. Yet more than twice this many who are eligible for aid cannot receive it because there are no funds. Congress and the Administration have cut federal housing subsidy appropriations by more than 80 percent since 1981.

Millions of families now living in subsidized housing are threatened with displacement because of demolition, sales and expiring contracts. Millions more are forced to endure homelessness, overcrowding and intolerable rent burdens."

These cited statistics are not solely a reflection of Out-of-State or Downstate communities, or of inner cities only. These statistics also reflect the situation here in our communities of Emmet and Charlevoix Counties.

As a Community Services Representative serving low-income citizens in Emmet and Charlevoix Counties, I have witnessed first-hand the problems of homelessness and the lack of affordable housing in our own community. These problems undoubtedly need to be addressed. Yet when a proposal is put forth to provide low income housing in Charlevoix Township, some citizens, in self-interest, have chosen to protest such housing.

I realize that Charlevoix Township residents have some legitimate concerns. However, stereotypes need to be set aside and citizens need to work together to ensure that such a project included a safe and clean environment, proper management and monitoring of that management. It is possible to meet these objectives, satisfying the needs and concerns of all involved, but only through cooperation.

I urge residents and planners to have an open mind and a willingness to cooperate. Homelessness and the lack of affordable housing is our problem. Avoiding the problem in your own backyard does not mean it will be solved elsewhere. It is our responsibility.

I encourage those in support of this low-income housing project to display your support by contacting the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission, and the Charlevoix Township Board. This topic will be discussed at the Township Planners Meeting on Wednesday March 28 in Stroud Hall on Waller Road. Your support is needed and appreciated.

Sincerely,
Lisa D. Kruzel

Oddfellows win tournament

The Mason's will be hosting the Oddfellows for dinner this year. The Oddfellows won the 60th annual Masons-Oddfellows cribbage tournament and will be served dinner by the Masons at 6:30 Thursday evening.

This past Thursday the Mason's bettered the Oddfellows for the evening, but not by enough to overcome the deficit which they accumulated during earlier weeks of the tournament. The Masons won this past week's play by 227 points, yet lost this year's tournament by 2,339 points.

For the week, Pete Joyce was high Mason with 962 points. Gene Bergmann led the Oddfellows with 941 points.

For this year's tournament, Ted Pennell led the Masons while John Barber was top point scorer for the Oddfellows.

FAMILY

Wiser-Browe

Trina and Tom Browe

Trina M. Wiser and Tom Browe were married Feb. 24 in a candlelight wedding ceremony at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church. The altar was decorated with arrangements of pink and white carnations with baby's breath and a unity candle arrangement. The Rev. Benton-Heister performed the double ring nuptials before 100 guests.

The bride is the daughter of Joseph and Janice Spurgeon of Charlevoix and Russell Wiser Jr. of Petoskey. The groom is the son of Tom Browe of Charlevoix and Patricia Robbins of Casper, Wyo.

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin with a chapel length train. The bodice featured a scooped neckline and elbow length puffed sleeves. The basque waistline was accented with a large bow and seed pearls. Her veil was attached to a circle of ivory silk flowers and simulated pearls with a nylon tulle pouf. She carried a bouquet of baby's breath, designed and made by the bride's aunt, Hilda Armstrong.

Traditional wedding music was performed by the organist Fran Tollas. Soloists were Laurie Maue and James Graham. The bride also sang a solo to the groom following the lighting of the unity candle. Shelley Swigles read the scripture.

Michelle Seibert was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Beth Armstrong and Chrissy Rydell, cousins of the bride.

The maid of honor wore a two piece Jacquard gown with a lace insert at the rounded neckline and shirred puffed sleeves. The softly gathered bodice was trimmed with a bow and the skirt ended in a high, low hemline. The bridesmaids wore pink satin sleeveless dresses with lace overlays and handkerchief hemlines. The attendants carried baskets of pink and white roses, lilies and baby's breath.

Shawna and Danielle Flowers were flower girls. They wore pink lace over taffeta dresses with puffed sleeves and drop waists accented with satin sashes and bows. They carried baskets of flower petals. Ryan Bruce, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

Andy Klintworth attended the groom as best man and groomsmen were Dan Browe, brother of the groom, and Bill Browe, cousin of the groom. Ushers were Jason Wiser, brother of the bride, and Bob Sell.

A reception, given by Joe and Jan Spurgeon, was held at the Charlevoix American Legion Hall. Assisting were Hilda Armstrong, Lois Rydell and Vickie Daniel, aunts of the bride. The cake was served by Julie Tripplehorn and Debbie Skeel.

The rehearsal dinner was held at the home of Jan and Joe Spurgeon.

The bride and groom spent their honeymoon driving to California. The groom is in the U.S. Navy and is stationed in San Diego, Calif. The bride is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and attended Lansing Community College.

CHURCH

Virginia L. Cunningham

Virginia L. Cunningham, 73, of Charlevoix, died March 16, 1990, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral was 11 a.m. Monday, March 19, at Bethany Lutheran Church, Charlevoix. The Rev. Robert Pillar officiated and burial was in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

The former Virginia L. Beeman was born March 31, 1916, in Detroit, the daughter of Leon G. and Julia A.

(Heideman) Beeman. She married Arthur Cameron Cunningham in 1942, in Detroit. The couple resided in Mt. Clemens until 1965 when they moved to Charlevoix.

Mr. Cunningham preceded her in death on Nov. 30, 1988.

Mrs. Cunningham was a member of Bethany Lutheran Church and had served as church treasurer. She was also a member of Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild and had served as Charlevoix Township clerk. She also volunteered at the Rainbow Shoppe in Charlevoix. Survivors include three sons, Cam, of Troy, Glenn of Grand Haven and Don of Buffalo, N.Y.; one daughter, Mrs. Carol Ann Merritt of Sarasota, Fla.; nine grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to Charlevoix Area Hospital.

M. June Stafford

M. June Stafford, formerly of Norwood and Charlevoix, died March 7 in Detroit. She was 101 years old.

Stafford was born in Norwood to Alden and Levina Stafford. She attended school in Norwood, Charlevoix and Mount Pleasant. She graduated from Ypsilanti Normal School, now Eastern Michigan University, in 1915 and later received her Master's degree from Wayne State University. Stafford was employed as a teacher for 43 years, retiring from the Detroit School System in 1957.

Stafford spent several summers with her sister, Edith Pearl at 105 Park Ave.

Funeral services were held March 11 at the Heeney-Sundquist Funeral Home, Inc. in Farmington. Stafford will be buried at a later date in the Norwood Cemetery.

Stafford was preceded in death by her parents, two brothers and three sisters. She is survived by her brother, Raphael Stafford of Abington, Mass. and by her sister-in-law, Emma Stafford of Detroit.

Clare Staley recounts fish tale

Charlevoix Memories

by GEOFF REYNOLDS

Many Charlevoixians have come to know and frequently visit one of our oldest local businesses because of one man, Clare Staley. Staley is well-known to the Charlevoix area because of his past connection with the Staley Hardware store, across from East Park. But the man himself is much more interesting if you sit and talk with him about anything concerning Charlevoix.

"I was born on Upright Street in 1910 and have spent most of my life here, in Charlevoix or around the area. I worked for the A&P grocery store in my late teens as a meat cutter until I got transferred to the Grand Rapids store. Later, between 1935 and 1938 I went to work for Gus Fitchman and Albert Cook at the Charlevoix Oil Company on Bridge Street, now where the Points North building is, working on Alice Chalmers farm equipment. I did this for about seven or eight years, working with Jule Giles, until I took another job in Frankfort working on Alice Chalmers equipment at a shop until 1953.

"In 1953 I came back to Charlevoix and took over my father's hardware store and owned that until 1972, then I sold it. The original Staley Hardware was next to the present one, in the Novak building. Our competition, the Wood brothers, were right down the street where the current Bridge Street Hardware store is today. They concentrated on plumbing and electrical and we concentrated on hard tackle, bolts, nails and guns. That was before I built the present building. That used to be two empty lots where an Italian man, by the name of Andy Grillo, used to have a produce store. He sold vegetables and fruits that had been brought in by truck from somewhere other than Charlevoix. I bought the two lots in about 1960 from Earl Young and built the new building in 1971.

"Another interesting thing about Charlevoix was the fishing business. One day I remember when old Jack Cross brought his fishing tug, 'the Jackie C', into the harbor and it was loaded down with about four tons of fish. So much that the gunwales were about a foot above water. He came in with the idea of selling his catch at 15 cents per pound, but when he got to the dock, Bootes would only give him five cents per pound. So I went over there to Bootes dock and found out what they were offering him for his fish and I made a deal with him. He owed my dad about thirty dollars at the hardware, so I bought about a couple of hundred pounds and took them down state and sold them where I was working at the time.

"Sometimes, during the winter months, Bootes would freeze those fish and stack them like cordwood against the walls inside the storehouse, now Bellinger's Marine, and then ship

Clare Staley was a Charlevoix businessman for many years. Although he specialized in hardware, he once even branched out into the fish selling business.

them to their buyers at a later date."

Speaking of frozen fish, Clare also remembered one Charlevoix "fish" that did get away with a few surprised faces on Round Lake one winter.

"I remember one winter there were some fish shanties out on Round Lake and there were a few men fishing through some big holes not too far apart. Well, I heard once that Alley Moore had dove into one hole and swam under the ice and eventually popped his head up into another shanties fishing hole, surprising someone fishing at the time."

Harbor Hall seeks exercise equipment

Get old, unused exercise equipment out of storage and off of your conscience. Do you have unused exercise equipment which stares at you whenever you walk past the storage room, making you feel guilty and out-of-shape because you don't use it more often?

Get rid of it. All of that guilt-induced stress isn't healthy.

Harbor Hall Auxiliary is seeking donated exercise equipment for the hall. Harbor Hall is a residential treatment center for men recovering from substance abuse. Harbor Hall is located in Petoskey, but Charlevoix County is included in the region it serves.

The auxiliary is attempting to establish an exercise room at the hall.

Equipment donated must be in working order. Contributions will qualify as charitable donations for tax purposes. Arrangements to donate exercise equipment may be made by calling 347-6364.

BEACONS

by REV. LOWELL ANDERSON

Christianity is not a religion, it is a relationship!

In John 17:3 Jesus says, "Now this is life eternal: THAT THEY MAY KNOW YOU, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom you have sent." Knowing Him, loving Him; a personal relationship with the living Lord Jesus Christ is what Christianity is all about.

A constant threat to maintaining a vital relationship with Jesus is christian ritualism: Christianity practiced as a religion, not as a relationship. The vital relationship is eroded when we allow the important disciplines of Christianity that we are to practice REGULARLY to be practiced RITUALISTICALLY. Prayer, Holy Communion, Sunday worship service, and a host of other disciplines that are truly vital to a close relationship with Jesus, can become empty religious rituals if we aren't careful.

Ritualism devoid of relationship has plagued God's people throughout time. The Prophet Isaiah writes "The Lord says: these people come near to me with their mouth and honor me with their lips, BUT THEIR HEARTS ARE FAR FROM ME. Isaiah 29:13. While observing the practices and ceremonies that God Himself had established ed they were doing them only in form and ritual—'lip-service' if you will. Isaiah had previously challenged the people, "Stop bringing MEANINGLESS OFFERINGS! Your incense is detestable. New moons, sabbaths and convocations—I cannot bear your evil assemblies." Isaiah 1:13. God had ordained offerings, but meaningful ones.

Is your christianity real relationship or religious ritual? Is your prayer a means of sweet communion with your Father in heaven or is it a vain recitation whose sound rises no higher than the ceiling of the room? As the bread and fruit of the vine of communion pass your lips are you, ecstatic with joy and thankfulness for the finished work or Jesus Christ on your behalf or his it become an empty ritualistic observance devoid of a sense of His presence and alive with His Spirit? Is the thought of attending the Sunday service a dread or a delight, more of duty than genuine desire?

If you have responded to these questions in the negative I submit that the problem is not with the disciplines of Christianity nor with your church or your Pastor. It has to do with your relationship with Jesus Christ. Establish a relationship with Him. Grow in that relationship. He's the best friend you can ever have.

Big Rock plant wins safety award

Frederick W. Buckman, president and chief operating officer of Consumers Power Company, recently presented the President's Safety Award to employees of the Big Rock Point nuclear plant. Plant Manager William L. Buckman accepted the award on behalf of the workers in a presentation at the plant's front steps.

Big Rock Point employees won the award for achieving a 1989 safety record that was the best of all company work groups involved in electric power generation and in the supply and transmission of natural gas. Big Rock Point employees have worked more than 12 years without a single injury serious enough to miss a day on the job—the longest ongoing record of any competing employee work group.

Buckman told the employees that Consumers Power company is an industry pacesetter for safety, making Big Rock Point's success in winning the President's Safety Award especially significant. "Consumers Power is setting the standard for safety performance in the utility industry and this plant is setting the standard for safety performance at Consumers Power," he said.

Buckman noted that the plant's employees have now won the President's Safety Award seven times. "That's a tremendous safety record," he said. "It's not accomplished by any single individual but by everyone here doing their best to make sure that the plant is safe."

City charter to be discussed

The Charlevoix City Charter will be the topic of discussion at a FOCUS community forum at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, March 21, in the high school study hall.

The city charter is the document defining how Charlevoix is to be governed. A panel, consisting of city attorney James Young, city manager Mike Wiesner, Bob Clock and Lee Morian will discuss the charter. There will be a question and answer period following the discussion.

A short video concerning recent developments in the city will also be shown during the meeting.

FOCUS is a community group which sponsors discussions on topics of community interest.

Crooked Tree planning Five Million Dollar Dinner

This is what's at stake. You and a guest may be chartered to and from a beautiful home in Harbor Springs overlooking Little Traverse Bay.

At the home, you will join the host and hostess and four other couples.

You and your guest will have approximately an hour to get acquainted with the other couples. While getting acquainted, you will be entertained by Julie Pierpont of Harbor Springs who will play the grand piano.

Then, with the preliminaries aside, the main event will begin. You will dine on a seven-course meal prepared by some of the finest chefs in Northern Michigan.

If the menu prepared by these elite chefs doesn't make you drool, then you'd best have a doctor check out your saliva glands.

Linda and Mike McElroy of the Crow's Nest lead off the feast, providing hors d'oeuvres for the cocktail hour. Sean Ley will play bagpipes in announcing the start of the dinner.

Chefs participating in the Five Million Dollar Dinner include: (from left) Wes Westoven and Kathy Ruis of the Rowe Inn; Bob Stark of Andante; Pete Peterson of Tapawingo; Dudley Marvin of Stafford's Hospitality.

Chef Kit Simmons and owner Mark Adams of the Arboretum will prepare an appetizer of country terrine and game pate. The Arboretum is one of two restaurants participating in the dinner which has received Wine Spectator magazine's Award of Excellence.

For the soup course, David Beier, owner and chef of the Walloon Lake Inn will prepare scallop and celery root soup.

Fish will follow the soup. Chef Kathy Ruis of the Rowe Inn will prepare a Seafood Mousse Strudel. Rowe Inn owner Wes Westoven takes pride in maintaining a wine cellar second to none. The Rowe Inn has received the aforementioned Award of Excellence four years in a row.

Bob Stark, owner and chef at Andante, will prepare the salad. It will be a mesclun tossed with herbed wild leek vinaigrette and will be accompanied by warm cottage cheese dill bread.

The entree will be stuffed loin of lamb en croûte with a bouquet of spring vegetables. It will be prepared by chef Bob Vala of Stafford's Hospitality.

Tapawingo owner and chef Harlan "Pete" Peterson has selected a dessert to conclude the meal. Pastry chef Carl Duchaj will prepare fresh raspberry and lemon soufflé.

Wines for the dinner will be coordinated by Lynne Symons of Symons General Store, Bill Gurney of Gurney's Harbor Botle Shop and Mark Adams of Arboretum.

The evening described will be the prize in Crooked Tree Arts Council's Five Million Dollar Raffle tickets for the dinner are available at the McCune Arts Center for $10. The five winning tickets will be drawn May 5 with the dinner to take place May 19.

Members and friends of Crooked Tree will serve as butler, waiters, wine stewards, table designers, chauffeurs, hostesses and dishwashers for the dinner.

Cars are being provided for the evening by Bay Buick of Petoskey.

Resource Center offers parenting classes

Starting April 2, the Women's Resource Center will be offering two Parenting Classes for families with children ranging from infants to five years old.

The classes will take place in: 1) Alanson, at the United Methodist Church (across from the school) Mondays from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. 2) Charlevoix, at the First Congregational Church 101 State Street from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. Anyone interested please call: Women's Resource Center at 347-0070.

NOTICE OF SALE

Pursuant to Judgment and Order for Sale rendered by the Honorable Richard M. Pajtas, Circuit Judge, dated January 19, 1990, in favor of Plaintiff and against Defendants, which Judgment as of the date hereof remains unsatisfied, the following described property situate in the Township of St. James, County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, will be sold by the undersigned at public auction to the highest bidder on the 5th day of April, 1990, commencing at 1:30 p.m. in the afternoon at the main entrance of the Charlevoix County Building, City of Charlevoix, County of Charlevoix.

The first bridge across the Pine River Channel was a foot bridge about four feet wide and two feet above the water. It was constructed by driving small piles by hand and placing stringers and planking on them. A few planks were left loose to provide for passage of small boats. A new bridge was constructed in 1870.

Candidate challenging Irwin for seat in state senate

Republican Ken Kearney, a businessman from the Traverse City area, recently visited Charlevoix as part of his campaign to unseat incumbent state senator Mitch Irwin, D-Sault Ste. Marie.

"I think that we need a stronger voice for Northern Michigan," Kearney responded when asked, during an interview with the Courier, why he is running for the senate.

Kearney said he feels Irwin, who is in his third term, bows down to pressure from Governor James Blanchard and other democratic party leaders even when they advocate positions which are against the best interest of Irwin's Northern Michigan constituents.

"I've got 20 years of business experience. I think my business experience can help me understand what some of the area problems are," Kearney said.

Kearney, who describes himself as an entrepreneur, is involved in oil and gas exploration, a wholesale beverage distributorship and other venture capital investments.

During the interview, Kearney was pressed for specifics on his views regarding issues such as education, employment, taxes and the role of state government.

Kearney said he opposed proposals A and B, two state ballot proposals which failed by wide margins last November, but would have changed the state's present system of school financing had they passed.

Asked if he favored changing the state's educational funding system and if so, how, Kearney said he is currently looking at all of the proposals being discussed in Lansing. He said he will pick one to support, probably later this spring. He said he favors changing the present school state aid formula which leaves most school districts in Northern Michigan "out of formula" and consequently out of luck in terms of state funding.

Regarding educational quality, Kearney favors allowing parents to choose which school to send their children to. Asked about teacher tenure, Kearney said he thinks most people feel there should be some kind of periodic teacher testing.

Kearney said there should also be periodic testing of students. Kearney noted that dropout rates are not high in Northern Michigan and he feels that it is unfair to continuously tax Northern Michigan residents to correct high downstate dropout rates.

On the issue of employment, Kearney said Northern Michigan needs more "high tech" jobs. He said more grants from Lansing should be available to bring those jobs to Northern Michigan.

He said he feels the present attitude in Lansing is, "You in Northern Michigan don't have any problems. Don't bug us."

Asked how he feels about taxes in Michigan, Kearney said that with property taxes he sees some difficulty in changing a system which has been around for a long time.

Of income taxes, he said, "Obviously you need them to pay for services, but I would vote against increasing them."

"If you're going to be competitive in a global economy, you have to look at what the competition is doing. They're not out there raising taxes," Kearney contends.

Kearney said his view of the role of government is to "cover things that people cannot do for themselves."

State bureaucratic costs have increased at twice the rate of inflation during the past eight years, Kearney claims.

"I see a ballooning of state employees over the past eight years."

He said social services and prisons are responsible for much of the increase. He argues that a better educational system will decrease crime rates and unemployment.

Privatizing some services currently fulfilled by government is a change Kearney supports.

Second air service seeks Charlevoix base

One charter service, Island Airways, currently operated out of Charlevoix Airport. A second charter service, Haveman Air Charter, would like to operate out of Charlevoix Airport.

Following discussion at Monday evening's city council work session, representatives of both services will meet with city manager Mike Wiesner and city attorney James Young.

Island Airways manages the airport for the city and is a fixed base operator at the airport. Haveman has asked the city to allow him to operate a second charter service from the airport.

Haveman's request has met with opposition from Island Airways and has raised concerns about safety and the need for an expanded apron area at the airport.

The city is currently involved in updating the airport master plan and hired an airport to coordinate the project. But even though the planning process is in gear, construction probably won't take place until at least 1991. State and federal grants will pay for 50 percent of some parts of the project and 25 percent of other portions of the project.

Haveman appeared before the council with his request several weeks ago. At that time, the council directed Young to research the matter.

In an opinion to the council dated March 21, Young indicated that previous loans from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) may make it difficult for the city to refuse Haveman's request.

Young wrote, "Your FAA loan for airport improvement requires you to permit public access to the airport on fair and reasonable terms without unjust discrimination. I believe that this would require the City to permit an additional air charter service to use the airport as long as it would not put your current FBO (fixed base operator) out of business. I do not believe that the FAA requires you to provide such competition at the airport as would bankrupt your current FBO and leave you without an airport manager. However, the current request is merely for airport access to run an air charter service and I do not believe that this limited use could be construed as unjustly harming the current FBO."

Young noted that according to city ordinances the city may re-

High school students leave town for two-week field trip to Spain

They've flown away. Ten Charlevoix Spanish students and their teacher flew out of Grand Rapids Monday and after stops in Chicago and Dallas landed in Madrid, Spain.

The two senior and eight junior students on the trip are: Kallie Washburn, Jennifer Kelly, Heather Keller, Kasha Barrett, Lisa Schneider, Jennifer Puhl, Julie Bush, Sonja Carlisle, Mike Ochs and Marcie Beaudoin. They are accompanied by Spanish teacher Theresa Dean Rumsey.

Charlevoix's Espanol contingent is part of a larger group which also includes students from Minnesota, Wisconsin and Colorado. The trip is coordinated through an agency called Intercultural Student Experiences.

From March 27 through

March 30 the students will be based at the Hotel Centro Norte in Madrid. Most of the first four days will be spent sight-seeing.

The students will change motels March 31, transferring from the Hotel Centro Norte to Hotel Don Paco where they will stay until April 2. During that three day period, the students will spend time in Madrid, Sevilla and Cordoba.

Prior to leaving, Schneider, Barrette and Washburn were asked what aspect of the trip they most looked forward to.

Schneider, a third year Spanish student, said she wanted to see Spanish castles.

Barrette, a second year Spanish student, said she looked forward to just meeting the Spanish people.

Washburn, a fourth year Spanish student, was looking forward to something which would appeal not only to Spanish students, but many other people as well. She was looking forward to doing some shopping.

From April 2 through April 8 the students will stay with Spanish families in Ciudad Real. Prior to departing for Spain, each Charlevoix student received a letter from the Spanish family they will stay with.

While staying with the Spanish family, each student will participate in something similar to an abbreviated exchange student program. The American students will be taken into Spanish schools by Spanish students.

Sunday, April 8 the students will tour Ciudad Real, Toledo and Madrid. They will depart from Spain April 9, arriving in Charlevoix sometime early the morning of April 10.

School petitions due April 9

Three seats on the Charlevoix school board will be up for election June 11. People wishing to become candidates for those seats must file completed nominating petitions by 4 p.m., Monday, April 9. To complete a petition, a candidate must collect the names of 20 registered Charlevoix school district voters.

Two four year terms and a one year term will be decided in this year's election.

Ardeth Wieland and Scott Beatty are incumbents completing four year terms. As of March 26, Beatty had taken out a petition for one of the four year terms. If more than two candidates file for the four year terms, the seats will go to the top two vote recipients.

The one year term is the remainder of a four-year term the late Bob Drenth was elected to serve. Drenth died as a result of an automobile accident last fall. The board appointed former school board member Ken Boss to fill the seat until the June election. At the time of his appointment, Boss indicated he is not interested in serving beyond June.

Blank petitions may be picked up at the school administration office on Clinton Street.

Athletes invited to clinic

Area high school athletes will converge on Charlevoix Saturday April 21, for a day-long "Bigger Faster Stronger" clinic sponsored by Charlevoix Area Hospital.

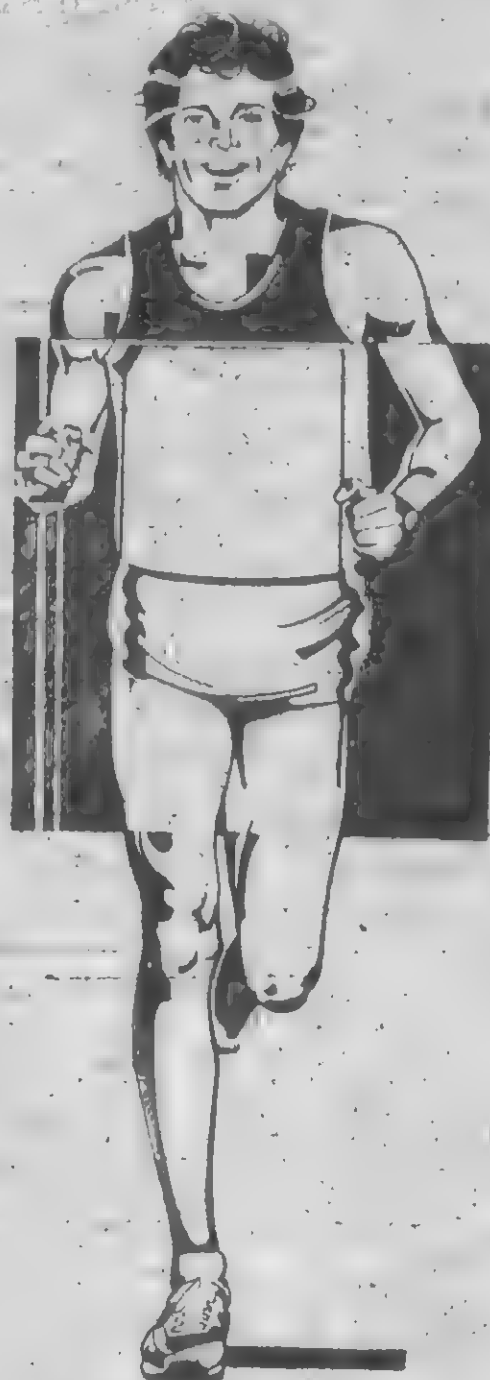

Charlevoix Area Hospital is presenting this clinic at the Charlevoix High School in the interest of safe drug-free sports and the avoidance of sports injuries for all area athletes. "Bigger Faster Stronger" is a nationally-known clinic which endeavors to help young athletes build their strength, flexibility and speed in ways that will help prevent sports injuries and instill in them the desire to be winners.

Students and coaches are invited to take part to learn the "Bigger Faster Stronger" approach to power, weight training, flexibility, running and jumping techniques, and agility. The clinic includes information on proper diet and how it can make or break progress; inspirational stories and films; goal-setting; an emotion-packed, three minute video on drugs and alcohol; and rules for success.

The clinic runs from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. with an hour break for lunch. Cost is $10 each participant including students, coaches, and others or, $100 for unlimited participants from one school system. Boys and girls in all athletics from junior high age through high school will

FOCUS hosts discussion of Charlevoix charter

Charlevoix's city charter became effective June 5, 1978. Twelve years later, how's it working?

According to Bob Clock, a member of the commission which wrote the charter, and Charlevoix city manager Mike Wiesner the philosophy behind the city charter is sound. However, former county commissioner Lee Moerland feels there is room for improvement. Among the things Moerland would like to see is more involvement by councilmembers through committees.

Clock, Wiesner, Moerland, city attorney James Young and former mayor Ralph McRae served on a panel assembled by FOCUS for a March 21 meeting to discuss the city charter. The audience for the discussion was small, approximately a half dozen people.

McRae helped initiate the drafting of a city charter while he was a councilman in the 1970s. At the time, Charlevoix was governed under the Michigan Fourth Class Cities Act, an act adopted prior to the turn of the century.

In order to establish another form of city government, Charlevoix had to elect a charter commission and write and adopt its own charter.

Young explained that for the city, the charter is almost the functional equivalent of the constitution or bylaws of an organization.

He pointed out that under home rule (i.e. a city charter) the city has all the powers to govern except those excluded by the state. Without a charter, the city would have only the powers to govern expressly delegated by the state.

Clock served on the charter commission. He said the commission's task was an uphill battle all of the way.

Watergate was still quite fresh in people's minds in the mid '70s. Clock pointed out and noted that at the time government was subject to a lot of suspicion.

At the city level, there had been talk of trading a city-owned dock for a piece of privately owned property away from the waterfront. That subject had generated controversy.

The charter commission began meeting against that backdrop. Clock said the commission had three years to submit three charters. The last of the three charters was adopted the day before the commission's three-year term expired.

Charlevoix is divided into three wards for city elections. The first charter the commission proposed attempted to eliminate the city's ward system.

"That went over like a lead balloon," Clock remarked.

The commission's second proposed charter featured a system of city government which had wards, but also relied on city conventions. Voters also turned that down.

Finally, the commission's third proposed charter met with voter approval, becoming the charter the city is currently governed under.

It establishes a council-manager form of government. The city council is given broad policy-making powers. The city manager is to carry out council policies and handle the day-to-day workings of the city.

One of the major faults of the old system was that there was no chain of command, Clock explained.

The charter also regulates how the electrical and other city services are to be funded. Clock said that in the '60s and early '70s a large portion of electric fund revenues were being used to subsidize the city's general fund. The net effect was that the city's millage levy was low because people were paying for general fund expenses through electric system payments.

A FOCUS discussion concerning the city charter drew only a small crowd and consequently ended up being more of a round-table than panel discussion. Attending were (front then clockwise) city attorney James Young, Ralph McRae, city manager Mike Wiesner, Patti Ulrich, charter commission member Bob Clock, Lee Moerland, Pat Gaskin, Stuart Boal, John Gaskin, Bruce and Barbara MacArthur.

The charter changed that. Now, the electrical system and other city services must be self-supporting and cannot be used to support general city government operations. In other words, electric bill payments pay for the electric system, not other things.

The charter also stipulates that the city council cannot sell, trade or otherwise dispose of city land near the water without the approval of the voters in a general election.

Under the charter, the city manager is required to submit a capital improvement plan to the council each year.

Moerland expressed reservations about the present city charter.

"I've always been a strong believer in elected officials' involvement," he said.

Moerland said he would like to see more involvement by council members through committees. He said members of the school board and county board of commissioners operate through committees and work with various elected officials and department heads.

In regard to the electric system, Moerland said he would like to see that be separate from other city operations and overseen by a three-person management committee appointed by the city council.

Wiesner expressed no enthusiasm for instituting a number of standing committees. He said that from a business standpoint, one person should be made responsible, and then be given the tools to do a job.

He also noted, "There's no manager worth his salt who's going to work in a vacuum."

Wiesner said that in order to be effective, the manager has to consult with department heads and staff members. He said work done in those meetings equates to the work done by committees.

Although the city of Charlevoix has not used standing committees, the city council has appointed several ad-hoc committees for specific projects. The city master plan review committee, airport committee and golf course committee are three such committees.

Moerland favored reviewing the present charter. Clock said he felt that appointing a new charter commission would be both costly and time-consuming. He said that rather than start from scratch, if there are problems the present charter can be amended.

Foster parent training scheduled

Child and Family Services will sponsor a training for Foster Parents on Lying and Stealing beginning at 7 p.m., April 17, at the Boyne City, City Hall. Marge Bley, foster and adoptive parent, as well as a social worker with the Petoskey area, will be the presenter. Bley will discuss the motivations of children who lie and steal, as well as give some practical guidelines on dealing with these behaviors. For more information and to register, call 946-8975.

We've rounded the bend toward warmer weather. Rather than accumulating, ice has been melting from the rocks which line the pier.

Liquid assets, it seems to me, Aren't exactly the blessing they seem to be. Ask Exxon and Perrier about liquidity. They've a lot to say about fluidity.

REASONABLE TO ME
L. SCOTT SWANSON

Don't spring into projects

Pace yourself. Pace yourself. Save something for later when the weather warms up with sincerity.

Every spring, as soon as the snow melts, people bound out of their homes and into their yards and start doing things. It is as though a dam has burst, unleashing pent-up energy accumulated during that bone-chilling season of the year which my wife refers to simply as "the terrible time."

This energy should be spent judiciously, over time, not all at once. Every outdoor project a person thought about and planned during the snow-induced confinement doesn't have to be accomplished during the first weekend. There will be lots of spring and summer weekends. Save some projects for when the weather gets truly decent.

Even though there was no snow on the ground, this past weekend's weather was far from balmy. The temperature stayed closer to 30 degrees than 50. And this was Fahrenheit, not Celsius; real American degrees, not those cheap imported degrees.

And that wind. That was no gentle spring breeze carrying the delicate aroma of wildflowers. That was a stern blast of cold air whistling off Lake Michigan. That wind bit like a mean dog.

Yet, despite this weather, people ventured into their yards, armed with nothing more substantial than rakes. I can not condemn them. I was one of them.

I put on a coat, hat and gloves and made an assault upon the front flower garden for an hour or so Saturday afternoon.

As I began pawing leaves away with the rake, I found some purple flowers peaking up out of the ground. I wasn't sure exactly what they were. When it comes to flowers, I barely know dandelion from daffodil.

I told my wife about these purple flowers. She informed me that they were crocuses and that if I raked them into oblivion, my life would be in great peril. Wives are pretty picky about what a guy rakes, mows or Rototills.

The hour spent in the front yard was reasonably productive. I cleared the leaves from the house, even though I had to break out a heavier garden rake in order to finish.

That side of the house is shaded. A few leaves were still frozen to the ground. Instead of taking that as a clue to hold off on the project for a week or two, I went to the garage, fetched a heavy rake and chisled those leaves loose.

This coming weekend, barring a blizzard, I'm going to work on the "side yard" and garden. Around our house, it's important to get the garden cleaned out first thing in the spring.

I'm not the only one who starts things early in the spring. My wife has plants started in little boxes of dirt in the back room. Not just a few plants, she's started a jungle's worth. Perhaps you've heard about the threat of environmental degradation which may result from depletion of the world's rain forests. My wife is attempting to single-handedly mitigate this problem.

Right now these plants are just little plants. But they're growing. If I don't have the garden cleaned out soon so they can be moved outdoors our family could end up planted to death, done in by agrarianism, botanized.

The baby is the only one in the house who hasn't undertaken any spring projects. It's her first spring so she's just kind of watching.

Even as a spectator she got caught up in one spring activity. A week or so back when we had a stretch of warm weather my wife took the baby out in the yard. The baby sat in her little baby-mobile, watching mom and the puppy dig in the garden.

Things were going well until the puppy got too zealous about his digging. He didn't mean anything by it, but he got spun around where the baby was in his digging line of fire. The baby found herself being unceremoniously dirt bombed.

When mom discovered this, the dog got scolded and the baby hauled indoors to be cleaned up. Far from being upset, the baby viewed the situation as an adventure. Digging in the dirt with the puppy will probably be a project on her list for next spring.

Eagles not the cat's meow

The bald eagle — that fear-some symbol of the United States — appears to be making a comeback across the country after being on the verge of extinction.

Good news, right? Wrong! At least it's not good news if you're a cat lover.

Bill Berman, who lives near Canton, Ga., was ecstatic when he learned federally protected bald eagles had taken up residence near his home. He enjoyed watching the young eagles soaring, swooping and doing whatever else it is that eagles do.

Then he got worried. The big birds were swooping pretty close to an area where his cats liked to sun themselves.

Suddenly two of his cats turned up missing.

Berman blames bald eagles which recently were set free at Lake Allatoona by state wildlife officials.

"I think one of their birds has discovered an easy meal," Berman said.

Now he claims he will shoot the birds — and risk arrest — if he catches them threatening his pets again.

I AM HAPPY that bald eagles appear to be doing so well.

But I would hate to have one of our cats sail off — spitting and hissing — into the wild blue yonder in the talons of a bird of prey.

Roly-poly Rotunda in particular would not enjoy being beamed aloft to become a part of the food chain. She is too happy being the last link.

Although I never have seen a bald eagle in our neighborhood, sightings have been made at several locations in Northern Michigan.

At present, Consumers Power Co. and Michigan State University are cooperating in an extensive research program into the habits and habitat of the bald eagle. Participating in the effort are the U.S. Forest Service, the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Consumers Power became involved because it has 11 hydro-electric dams up for relicensing. The dams are located on the Au-Sable, Manistee and Muskegon rivers and 24 bald eagle nesting areas are located on or near the same rivers.

"The bald eagle studies to be conducted this year make use of a number of state-of-the-art research techniques," said John P. Giesy, professor of MSU's Department of Fisheries and Wildlife.

These techniques include the capture and radio monitoring of adult eagles to facilitate their study with respect to foraging activities and response to human disturbance.

If one of the radios picks up the mewling of a cat, I certainly hope Prof. Giesy and his pals are ready to make a quick ascent to the eagles' aerie to rescue the unfortunate victim.

After all, cats are people, too.

IN THE SAME vein, you may be interested to know that Rep. Sal Rocca, D-Sterling Heights, has introduced legislation in the Michigan House that would criminalize the slaughter of dogs and cats for table fare.

I'm serious. This bill is actually before the House.

Rocca says the law is necessary to halt the disturbing practice of dining on household pets, which he says is common in some societies — but not our own.

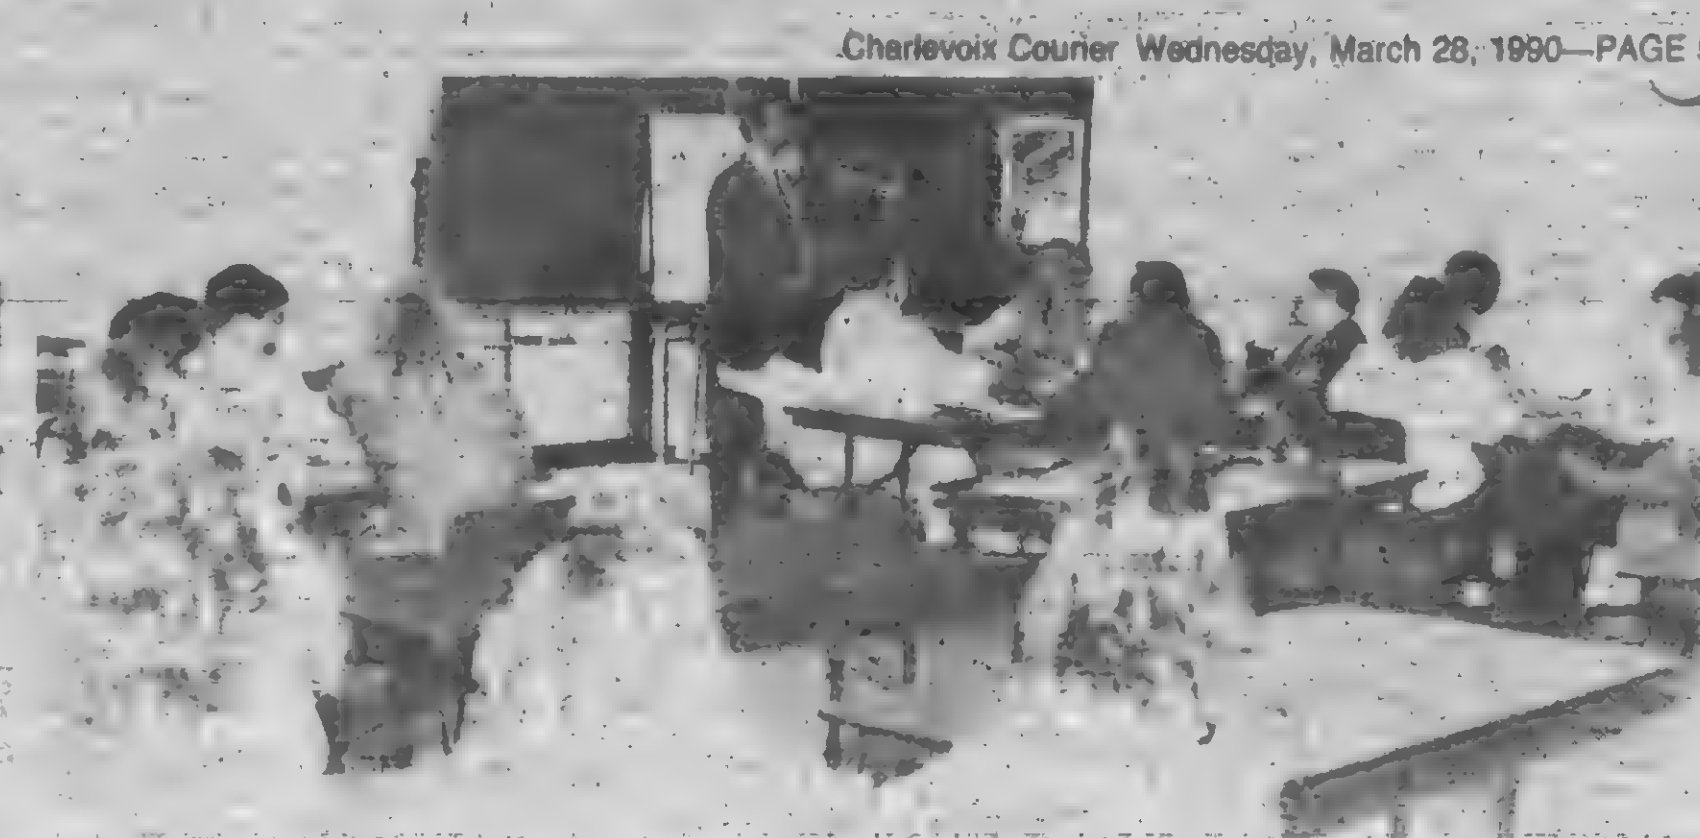

I have heard such stories before, but it's painful to think of anyone turning Old Dog Tray into Old Dog Entree.

A lot of people eat leg of mutton.

But leg of mutt! You have to be kidding! Anyone for hot dogs? Stop me before I kill again.

PLEASE PUT "Driving Miss Daisy" on your "must see" list. The movie, which collected a raft of Oscars Monday night, has been held over until April 5 at Charlevoix's Cinema III.

Jessica Tandy, Morgan Freeman and Dan Aykroyd provide two hours of superb entertainment.

Juniors and seniors from several Northern Michigan high schools gathered at the Char-Em Intermediate School District office March 23 for a conference on career trends.

Letters to the Editor:

Snowmobilers enjoy Charlevoix

Editor:

The Michigan Snowmobile Association held their Board of Directors meeting in Charlevoix the week-end of March 9 & 10th at Nanny's Place. On Friday evening we enjoyed fine dining and an informal discussion with area snowmobilers on goals and methods for Charlevoix to join Michigan's growing snowmobile industry as a destination for various groups and clubs. Saturday afternoon we visited Wilderness Acres Resort near Wolverine for the THANK YOU PARTY and several hours of excellent snowmobiling. The cooperation, facilities and hospitality extended by the Boyne Country Snowmobile Club and area businesses were appreciated.

Our Board Members, who are from throughout the State, agree Charlevoix and Charlevoix County has great potential to become a very attractive addition to Michigan's list of destinations for snowmobilers from the Midwest.

We look forward to our next visit, and are ready to assist the Boyne Country Snowmobile club and other area clubs in their efforts to develop and expand your connecting trails.

Yours truly,
Fred Egeler, President
Michigan Snowmobile Association

Pool receives support

Editor:

After attending the March 19 presentation regarding a Pool for our community, I am convinced the time is now to move forward with this well-thought-out proposal.

The water supply problem referred to in "Pool History" was inherited by the City just three months before my term as Mayor began. It was resolved in a joint effort involving the Environmental Protection Agency, Department of Natural Resources, State Health Department and the City. It took the same intensive study the pool group is undergoing to identify the options, needs and desires, to choose the preferred course of action and to implement it.

To date, the Pool Committees have done their part and now it's time for others to join in the process.

The Water Plant is history, along with how to "Keep Charlevoix Beautiful", how to best handle downtown development, and many other significant changes in our community which occurred during the eighties. Now, it's time for the community efforts of the nineties. What could be more fitting than for our elected leaders to jointly give their support to the grant application needed to move ahead with this project?

We are a community - City, Township and School District. The opportunity to act as grant sponsor has been given to all of the area elected officials. In the days ahead the people of the community must encourage the elected officials who hold the keys to this grant application, to act favorably and promptly on it.

Sincerely,
Kenneth A. Staley

Charle-facts

In the early days of Charlevoix County, it was common practice to ice the roads leading from the logging camps to the lumber yards so the logs could be transported by horses and sleighs.

Charlevoix received its charter as a village in 1879, and as a city, in 1905.

Wiser - Browe

Mr. & Mrs. John Browe

Trina M. Wiser and John Browe were married Feb. 24 in a candlelight wedding ceremony at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church. The altar was decorated with arrangements of pink and white carnations with baby's breath and a unity candle arrangement. The Rev. Benton Heisler performed the double ring-nuptials before 100 guests.

The bride is the daughter of Joseph and Janice Spurgeon of Charlevoix and Russell Wiser Jr. of Petoskey. The groom is the son of Tom Browe of Charlevoix and Patricia Robbins of Casper, Wyo.

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin with a chapel length train. The bodice featured a scooped neckline and elbow length puffed sleeves. The basque waistline was accented with a large bow and seed pearls. Her veil was attached to a circle of ivory silk flowers and simulated pearls with a nylon tulle pouf. She carried a bouquet of baby's breath, designed and made by the bride's aunt, Hilda Armstrong.

Traditional wedding music was performed by the organist Fran Tollas. Soloists were Laurie Maue and James Graham. The bride also sang a solo to the groom following the lighting of the unity candle. Shelley Swiggles read the scripture.

The maid of honor wore a two piece Jacquard gown with a lace insert at the rounded neckline and shirred puffed sleeves. The softly gathered bodice was trimmed with a bow and the skirt ended in a high, low hemline. The bridesmaids wore pink and satin sleeveless dresses with lace overlays and handkerchief hemlines. The attendants carried baskets of pink and white roses, lilies and baby's breath.

Shawna and Danielle Flowers were flower girls. They wore pink lace over taffeta dresses with puffed sleeves and drop waists accented with satin sashes and bows. They carried baskets of flower petals. Ryan Bruce, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

Andy Klintworth attended the groom as best man and groomsmen were Dan Browe, brother of the groom, and Bill Browe, cousin of the groom. Ushers were Jason Wiser, brother of the bride, and Bob Sell.

A reception, given by Joe and Jan Spurgeon, was held at the Charlevoix American Legion Hall. Assisting were Hilda Armstrong, Lois Rydell and Vickie Daniel, aunts of the bride. The cake was served by Julie Triplehorn and Debbie Skeel.

The rehearsal dinner was held at the home of Jan and Joe Spurgeon.

The bride and groom spent their honeymoon driving to California. The groom is in the U.S. Navy and is stationed in San Diego, Calif. The bride is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and attended Lansing Community College.

CHURCH

Earl T. Harrington

Earl Thomas Harrington, 85, of Charlevoix, died March 25, 1990, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Funeral will be 2 p.m. Thursday, March 29, at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum of the Charlevoix First Congregational Church will officiate. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Harrington was born Dec. 11, 1904, in Frederic, the son of Thomas and Julia (Paul) Harrington. He moved to Charlevoix with his family as a young boy and attended Charlevoix schools, graduating from Charlevoix High School.

On May 23, 1929, he married the former Anne Jardine and the couple resided in Charlevoix. Mr. Harrington worked as a boat refinisher for D.D. Walker Marina in Charlevoix for many years.

Mr. Harrington was an avid athlete and enjoyed skiing, skating and track. In his later years, Mr. Harrington enjoyed fishing and as a hobby, he made fishing lures.

He is survived by his wife; two sons, Thomas Harrington of Fenton and Richard Harrington of San Diego, Calif.; one daughter, Mrs. Roy (Sally) Whitley of Petoskey; seven grandchildren; two great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix Area Hospital, Grandvue Medical Care Facility or the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home where friends may call 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, March 28.

Birdie M. Gleason

Birdie Mae Gleason, 104, died March 19, 1990, at her home in Charlevoix.

There will be no services. Burial will be in Maple Hill Cemetery, Van Buren County.

The former Birdie Mae Gifford was born March 26, 1885, in Tokan, a small community near Kalamazoo, the daughter of Hollan and Mary (Murphy) Gifford.

She married Harold L. Gleason on Dec. 19, 1906, in Hartford, Mich., and he preceded her in death on Oct. 6, 1951. Mrs. Gleason spent most of her life in the Hartford and Benton Harbor areas, moving to Charlevoix in 1958.

She was a member of Charlevoix Rebekah Lodge; a member of the Mother Church, First Church of Christ, Scientists, Boston Mass. and a member of the Charlevoix Christian Science Society.

She is survived by many nieces and nephews.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Guild makes contribution

A check for $7,565 was presented to the Charlevoix Area Hospital by Guild President Virginia Rountree to be applied to the purchase of two pieces of replacement equipment.

The gift will be used to replace a heart monitoring (telemetry) unit which is necessary to monitor some patients on the medical floor. In addition, a doppler monitor for the obstetrics unit will be purchased.

The funds represent proceeds from the Showcase Gift Shop at the hospital, annual gift and baked goods sales, and patient TV rental fees.

Little League sign-up scheduled

Charlevoix Little League officials have scheduled sign-up times April 11 and 14 at the high school.

Little Leaguers or their parents may sign up between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. April 11 or between 10 a.m. and noon April 14.

The cost to sign up for Little League this season is $30 per child, however players may defray part or all of that cost by selling M&M's.

When the player signs up, he or she may purchase a box of M&M's for an additional $15. The packages of M&M's contained in the box sell for $30.

Charlevoix Little Leaguers will be divided into three age groups: Minor League, ages 8 and 9; Major League, ages 10, 11 and 12; Senior League, ages 13, 14 and 15. Those ages must be reached by Aug. 1.

Major League players who have not played in the Major League prior to this season should plan to attend try-outs from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. April 14 in the high school gym.

For additional information, phone 547-4282.

Ahead-lines

Bluebirds finding new homes

"Bring Back the Bluebird" workshops have been scheduled for the fifth consecutive year by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Natural Heritage Program and Michigan State University's (MSU) Cooperative Extension Service.

Fifty sessions, designed to teach how to help bluebirds by building and placing nest boxes in suitable habitat, have been planned in cooperation with the MSU Cooperative Extension Services' County 4-H Youth Program.

More than 16,000 people have attended the workshops in the past four years, and 6,000 are expected this year. Thousands of Bluebird boxes have been built by workshop participants and placed around the state.

"Bluebird populations in Michigan declined by more than 80 percent because of the use of pesticides, loss of habitat and competition from non-native starlings and English sparrows," said DNR Director David Hales. "Recently, bluebird numbers have increased significantly throughout the state, and we believe these workshops are largely responsible for their recovery."

Some participants in each workshop will be given a ready-to-assemble nest box kit through cost-sharing efforts of the Nongame Wildlife Fund and the Michigan Civilian Conservation Corps (MCCC). The MCCC resident camp at Vanderbilt, near Gaylord, is providing 2,400 kits for distribution at these workshops.

"Bluebirds are songbirds, often inhabiting farmland and large forest openings," said Bob Hess, supervisor of the DNR's Nongame Wildlife Program. "The goal of the Nongame Wildlife Fund, MSU Cooperative Extension Service and MCCC in offering these workshops is to re-establish these birds to a point where they are once again a common sight throughout the state."

To schedule a bluebird workshop, contact Glenn Duderar, MSU Cooperative Extension Service, 517-355-7493.

Lucille Stebe recalls early schools

by GEOFF REYNOLDS

Many residents of Charlevoix's north side have most likely seen this week's Charlevoix Memories person walking or riding her bike with her husband on a daily basis. She is, of course, Lucille Stebe of Division Street. Her memories include an interesting mix of great Charlevoix people and activities she remembers from way back. Here are a few of those past moments.

"Well, Waller Road was just dirt and Francis Durance's father had a berry farm there on the corner of Waller Road and Mercer Boulevard. I used to earn a little bit of money by picking berries for Durances. I would pick strawberries, currants, and raspberries when it came time to pick them. Mr. Durance had four children on the farm then. Their names were Frances, Genevieve, William, and Elbin."

"We also lived near Durance's farm for two or three years when my father first moved our family up to Charlevoix from Grand Rapids. We lived in the house on Mercer Boulevard that is now the Martinez's. There used to be a farm next door called the Boulder Farm. The old windmill from the farm is still there behind the current Carr home."

We lived there while my father worked for the Boulder Farm. The owners had him taking care of the gardens and fruit trees. He cared for their fruits and vegetables which were eventually sold to the resorts, like the Chicago Club, in the summer time. They also had a building where they made jams and jellies to sell.

"Some of the local business people I used to visit included Fred Myers. We used to go to his store and buy ice cream, candy, and other things. That's where we spent our pennies and nickels. His store used to be down next to the bridge and then it was moved down near the County Bank later on."

There also was an older couple by the name of Pfister. In the summer time they would bring their popcorn wagon down on the street and park it there, near the park, and leave it there for the summer. They sold popcorn and candies to people downtown. "The theaters we had at the time were the Majestic and the Palace."

"Our first bus in Charlevoix was Mr. O'Neill's. He used to be down near the present Burnsides shop. In the winter he used to come out to the north side of town and pick up us kids with his taxi bus. It didn't go out too far."

It was rented by the school to pick us up and take us to school. Our driver was Lynn Sheldon at the time.

"The taxi bus took us to the Washington School. It used to be where the present day Charlevoix Credit Union is now. It was a two room school. We had kindergarten, first, and second grade on one side, and on the other side we had third, fourth, and fifth grade. It had a cloakroom and a bathroom for each. The teachers names were Miss Brown, Miss Kleebe and Miss Madison or Matson, some name like that. The other school, the Lincoln School, is still standing. It's where the American Legion is, but looks different now."

"There used to be an old gas station on the corner of Petoskey Avenue and Prospect Street. It was just a basic gas station. Later on, Pete Phillips bought the station and eventually moved the business down the street to where it is now."

I also remember the railroad depot. It was crazy to see the summer people coming and going. My mother used to take us kids down there once in a great while to watch the people. Sometimes we would get on a train ourselves and head for Grand Rapids for awhile. Some trains came into the depot to drop off freight. There was a passenger depot where they stored the freight."

Lucille Stebe is the subject of this week's Charlevoix Memories segment. Stebe was raised just to the north of Charlevoix.

drop off freight. There was a passenger depot where they stored the freight."

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

Charlevoix residents Wenda F. Olach, Beth H. Ranger, Ellen J. Seiler-Davis and Linda F. Hamilton were among 40 honor students recently inducted into North Central Michigan College's chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, a national honor society for community college students.

Air Force Airman 1st Class Nancy P. Ciuk has arrived for duty at the U.S. Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, Colo. She is an apprentice financial management specialist with the 7625th Comptroller Squadron. Ciuk, a 1980 graduate of Charlevoix High School, is the daughter of James and Julia Ciuk.

than the average BMX track.

Last fall the township hauled in some fresh sand and clay for the dirt track, but Stroud said they haven't had a chance to groom the track yet this year.

The starting line, which is an electronic gate, rests atop a manmade hill. The township built the hill approximately eight years ago with soil which was removed to make way for tennis courts at the front of the complex.

Stroud said the BMX program went well for two or three years. He said the track gives local kids something fun to do and keeps them out of trouble. Last fall about a dozen kids used the track regularly.

The BMX track is only one of many facets at the township field.

There are four tennis courts which people may use throughout the summer at no charge. Stroud said those continue to get a lot of use.

The township facility also has the finest outdoor basketball court in the area. It's a marked, regulation size court. Off the end of the marked court is an unmarked court.

The township softball field hasn't been as active in recent years as it was a few years ago, but the township still maintains it and several local teams practice and play there.

Township soccer fields are active in the summer and fall. There are two large fields. The front field is used by a local adult team in the summer and by the high school soccer club in the fall. The back field is divided into three smaller fields which are used for the fall youth soccer program.

Physical fitness can't weight

"Fitness Kick '90" has begun. My annual fitness kick started early this year, April 1. No fooling.

Sunday morning I went for a run; just a short run down to the corner store to fetch the Sunday paper. For being the first run of the spring, it went fairly well. When I returned home with the paper, I still had enough energy left to read the thing. Pacing yourself is the key to any fitness program.

Last year's fitness program was a flash in the pan. I went running maybe four or five times and dropped it. Last summer was the first summer in years that I didn't enter a single road race.

I blame much of last year's training failure on Sasquatch the dog. I thought it would be kind of a neat thing to take the dog running with me. And it was a neat thing for him. For me, it was misery. I had that big dog on a leash and the big goober set such a torrid pace, he nearly killed me. A pace that was a casual gallumph for him was a flat-out sprint for me.

This year I may get so carried away with this physical fitness stuff that I may even try a little weight lifting to go with my running.

In the past I've dabbled a bit with weights, but I've kept it to a minimum. I generally subscribe to the modern man theory of weight lifting: "If I want weights lifted, I get some machinery and use it to lift them."

When I was in college, the guys in my dormitory set up a weight room in the basement. A lot of guys who lived in that dorm were into weight lifting, either because they were football players or bodybuilders.

We funded this weightroom with pinball proceeds. There were pinball machines in the lobby of the dorm and the dorm got to keep 50 percent of the proceeds for dorm projects. You might not think that would amount to much money, but we came up with about three grand in pinball money for that weight room.

Not only did we have $3,000 to spend, but one of the guys in the dorm was friends with some guy who'd won the title of Mr. Galaxy, or some such thing. This Mr. Galaxy guy was doing promotional work for a company which made weights and got us a 50 percent discount on all the weights we bought. By the time everything was said and done, we ended up with $6,000 worth of weight equipment in the dorm basement.

This weight room contained some heavy metal. There were discs of iron that were about the size of truck tires.

The weightlifter guys dove right in and started having all kinds of fun as soon as the room was set up. Personally, I was less anxious to start throwing these big pieces of metal around.

Certain aspects of weight lifting have always struck me as peculiar. To begin with, weightlifters seem to judge the quality of yesterday's workout by how much pain they're in today.

"I'm pretty sore today. That was a great workout yesterday."

Unfortunately, several of the weightlifting people in the dorm were friends of mine and they were bound and determined that I should join them in the fun of weightlifting.

So one day I agreed to a weightlifting session. The first stop on the tour was the bench press. This is where you lay on your back and push the weight bar up from your chest.

The first thing I did at the bench press was take those big discs off of the bar and replace them with smaller ones.

"Oh, you can lift more than that," my friend said and put some bigger weights on the bar.

This guy was built like a refrigerator with feet so I had some reservations about his determining how much weight I could lift.

But reservations aside, I got down on the bench and grabbed the bar. My friend spotted for me, i.e. stood over the bar and held it until I got set to lift.

"You ready?" my friend asked as I adjusted my hands on the bar.

"I'm ready," I said. "Let go of the bar."

My friend released the bar and I lowered it to my chest. I pushed on the bar. I pushed on the bar. I pushed on the bar.

It went nowhere.

"Pick up the bar," I said.

My friend did.

I got up from the bench.

"Well, that's about enough weight lifting for today. What a workout. What a workout."

Gus returns home

If you are going to plow more money into your home this year, I suggest you consider buying a spa or hot tub.

Judging from displays at the Traverse City Home Show, now in progress at the Grand Traverse Resort at Acme, devices to parboil the human body and pummel it with jets of hot water are very "in" this season.

I didn't count them, but there must have been at least 20 such fixtures on display at the show, including one with soft vinyl sides to prevent bruising if you get caught up in a particularly vicious jet.

Most of the tubs, of course, are too large for the average bathroom, but they would be ideal for a deck — if you have one.

Or if you're building a new home, you might want to make the bathroom large enough to accommodate one.

Better still, put one in your living room or the rumpus room where it belongs.

After all, hot tubs are not bathroom fixtures. They are social accoutrements like TVs, sets, stereo systems and wet bars.

The average tub will accommodate three or four individuals who are not particularly interested in modesty or privacy.

A hot tub is the perfect gift for the confirmed party animal on your Christmas list.

But if you are looking for something to give Aunt Minnie, forget the hot tub.

Sniffed one of my co-workers when I told her of the hot tub display at Acme: "I have more important things to do than loll around all day in hot water."

SPEAKING OF home shows, the Little Traverse Association of Home Builders, headquartered in Petoskey, will hold its annual extravaganza this coming weekend.

But please note: The location has been changed from the Emmet County garage to Petoskey High School.

The show promises to be another winner, with lots of new ideas on building materials, windows and the various mechanical components you need to keep your home in tip-top shape.

When the show first opened in the 1970s — about the time of the Arab oil embargo — wood-burning stoves and furnaces were hot items.

Today, heating with wood has become a way of life in Northern Michigan and the now ubiquitous wood stove has taken a back seat to such devices as heat exchangers and super-efficient ceramic disk space heaters which operate on house current.

As usual, plenty of prizes will be given away — but you have to be there to sign up for them.

THIS STORY had a happy ending even before it began.

Last week, Mrs. Roger (Connie) Pischner called to ask if I would put something in my column about Gus, a male, chestnut-brown miniature dachshund.

Gus belongs to her daughter, Lisa Kindt of Alpena. When Gus was visiting Charlevoix March 24, he pulled a disappearing act.

Mrs. Pischner said a $100 reward had been posted for the return of the little dog and all the young people in town were looking for him. The last reported sighting was in the vicinity of Belle Bay.

I told Connie I'd be happy to oblige — but I was sure Gus would show up before press time.

I was right. On Saturday, March 31, Robert Coen of Charlevoix spotted Gus near the Medusa plant at South Point and delivered him to the Pischners who relayed him to Lisa.

Gus arrived home just in time to frolic in the eight inches of snow which buried Alpena Monday and Tuesday. It must have been over his head.

The story reminded me of the time our rat terrier Ginny wandered away. Ginny was about 18 years old at the time and was almost blind and almost deaf.

Our family and friends hunted for her for days, touching base periodically with the Charlevoix County Humane Society.

Ginny finally showed up at the animal shelter, frightened and hungry.

Unless you've lost a dog, you'll never know how nice it is to get him back.

Getting a view of bilingual education

EDITH GILBERT

While visiting my niece, Janet, in Watsonville, California, we dropped in on her son, Jacob's, kindergarten class. As my mother always said, "travel is broadening." This K-5 public school has bilingual classes in both Spanish and English. All around the classroom walls are pictures with words in both languages: bird-pajaro, red-rojo, flowers-flores.

We found twenty-nine boys and girls sitting in a large circle. One of the three teachers was giving a lesson on birds; first a sentence in Spanish, then in English. In the meantime a second teacher is translating every word into sign language for the benefit of two little boys who are deaf.

It was explained to me that the children re learning sign language in English-not in Spanish. There is a Spanish family who has two deaf boys in this school. A third brother translates the English sign language taught in school into Spanish to the parents at home. Now that's complicated!

The goal is to have all children learn to read and write in English by the third grade. But this isn't easy. The size of classes fluctuate because many Mexican families customarily visit Mexico for six weeks over the Christmas holidays. Things get tricky when older Spanish speaking youngsters enter the school system. Imagine teaching math in high school to some students, who are studying calculus, while others cannot yet add or subtract.

Fortunately some students enter a new arrival or limited English or sheltered English class, where they are given the required help. But many students become discouraged and drop out.

I can relate to this. When I arrived in San Francisco as a ten-year-old, I spoke only German. It wasn't easy sitting in class all day not comprehending what was going on. Because of boredom, I soon got into trouble and was demoted. Fortunately, my mother transferred me to another school, with smaller classrooms and things went much better from then on.

Now I stand in the playground and watch the children run and play ball. The boys look just like the boys in Charlevoix in their blue jeans and T-shirts. But many of the little girls are dressed in ruffles and bows or hand-crocheted dresses; their black hair carefully braided down the back. I admired one little girl's shiny long black hair. The teacher translated my English compliment into Spanish. The little girl laughed and said in plain English, "Head and Shoulders shampoo!"

Isn't she fortunate, I think to myself, to be in a district where bilingual teaching is offered. I hope our education president will receive all the support needed to expand these special services. We once prided ourselves in being the great melting pot of many diverse cultures, and if you really want to get picky — the Spanish were here before the British.

Letters to the Editor:

Pool supported

Dear Editor:

I am one of the not-so-silent majority who support the idea of a Charlevoix area pool. As a certified Red Cross water safety instructor for over 15 years, I've seen the importance of a good community supported swimming pool program.

I am not opposed to questioning where the money will come from or how to undergo a project such as this. I am opposed to those who condemn it before it has a chance.

The Pool Steering Committee has done its homework. At the March 19th school board meeting, this group did an outstanding job presenting the facts, discussing funding and educating the board and public.

In the many areas I've taught, never have I seen such a dedicated group. They are committed to getting the necessary work done and see this project through. They deserve the support of the government agencies who only need to sign the dotted line of a grant application. "Get in the Swim" of things and support this endeavor! Let the school board, city council, and township officials know Charlevoix needs a pool. Let them know we'd like to start breaking ground in 1991!

WATCH names annual scholarship essay winner

Chad DeYoung, Tim Henne and Christy Barber have been named the first, second and third place finishers in the annual Water Air Team Charlevoix (WATCH) scholarship essay competition. All three are seniors, DeYoung and Henne and Charlevoix High School and Barber at East Jordan High School.

WATCH will award a total of $2,000 in scholarship money to the three students: $500 each to the second and third place finishers and $1,000 to the competition winner. The money is to be used to further the students' education at a college, university or vocational school of their choice.

An awards banquet took place March 13 with students, their parents and WATCH board members attending.

DeYoung, the first place finisher, will attend the University of Michigan and plans to study environmental science. While in high school he has been involved in basketball, football, tennis, National Honor Society and the French Club. The title of his essay was "Mr. McDonald's Farm." (See "complete" essay below.)

Henne, the second place finisher, is considering attending the University of Michigan and is undecided as to a course of study. In high school, he has been involved in track, cross country, student council and the National Honor Society. The title of his essay was "A Never Ending Story."

Barber, the third place finisher, will attend Central Michigan University and is planning to study sports medicine. In high school, she has been involved in SADD, basketball and track. The title of her essay was "Environmental Education."

Mr. McDonald's Farm

THESIS: The changing economy and increased land development is benefitting land owners who have decided to sell while at the same time creating a need to protect the environment.

Mr. McDonald's Farm

- I. Case history
- II. Thesis
- III. Six career choices
- IV. Conclusion
- V. Personal statement

In 1896 after eighty-two years of farming in northern Michigan the McDonald's family farm was sold to a developer. The farm was comprised of four hundred and forty-two acres of land with one mile of lake frontage on a two mile long inland lake. The farm has three hundred and sixty acres of forested land with a stream running through the center. The farm sold for three hundred and fifty thousand dollars. That was enough money for Mr. McDonald, a sixty year old farmer, and his wife, to buy a small retirement home in town and a mobile home in Florida, with plenty left over for retirement.

Although many may mourn the passing of such a farm into the hands of a developer, we cannot blame Mr. McDonald, and we must face the fact that this is happening all over northern Michigan. The changing economy and increased land development has created a need to protect the environment. It is because of this need to protect the environment that many environmental career choices have arisen. Let us examine these choices in the context of what will happen to Mr. McDonald's land as the develop-

Perhaps even before Mr. McDonald's land is purchased, the developer will consult a sanitarian at the District Health Department. The sanitarian will examine the soils and terrain to determine what density of development could take place based on the volume of sewage disposal. The land can absorb without damaging the environment. On Mr. McDonald's farm, the health department determined an area approximately three hundred feet from the lake would support septic systems. Some other areas on the interior of the farm were also suitable for this purpose. Since it was the developer's desire to develop primarily the lakefront portion of the property, the health department's review approved the developer's plan but restricted septic systems to a certain area with minimum setbacks from the lake, thus protecting the lake from environmental damage.

The second career involved in the development of the property is a county planner. He is employed by the county and will relay to the developer the long range plans for the property as formulated by the County Planning Commission. Although the county planner was not directly involved with the developer on the McDonald's farm, developers in general must con-

Woods celebrate 40th

The children of Barry and Patricia Wood will host an anniversary open house for the couple from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, April 8 at the American Legion Hall. The Woods will celebrate their 40th anniversary April 8.

Barry Wayne Wood and Patricia Ann Robbins were married at the Southfield Baptist Church by Rev. Charles Marsh.

Barry and Pat have five children and 10 grandchildren. Their children are: Cathy Rogers of Orleans; Teri Slaughter of Plain City, Utah; Del Wood of Lansing; Shelly Sternburgh of Lansing; and Leslie Alger of East Lansing.

Conference for families planned

Area Cooperative Extension Services are sponsoring a one-day conference Thursday, April 19, titled, "Building Family Strengths." The conference will be held at the Indian River Catholic Shrine Center, located just west of the Shrine on the same side of the highway. Registrations will begin at 8:30 a.m. with programs beginning at 9 a.m. and ending at 3 p.m. Cost to attend the conference is $10 for those who are registered by April 9; payment at the door will be $15. Conference cost includes lunch and assistance is available for persons with limited resources. The conference is for family members and professionals who work with families. Registrations may be made by sending the $10 fee to: Family Conference, Cooperative Extension Service, P.O. Box 70, Cheboygan, MI 49721. Make checks payable to CES.

Dr. Joanne Keith, Specialist in Human Development from Michigan State University, will speak in the opening general session at 9 a.m. on Michigan Households and Families: Myths and Realities. She will also speak at a general session from 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. on "What Can One Do—Translating Knowledge to Action." Along with general sessions, participants will choose one session from the following workshop choices: What You Always Wanted to Tell Your Children About Sex—But Didn't Know How; Communication Skills for Strengthening Families; The Dynamics of Substance Abuse; Facing the Storms of Life Without Sinking; When Is It Abuse? Your Role as Parent, Neighbor, Helping Professional; Spiritual Care For the Caregiver.

All sessions will be completed by 2:30 p.m. and a wrapup with evaluation will end at 3 p.m. For more information about the "Building Family Strengths Conference" call Cheboygan County Extension Home Economist at (616) 627-5815.

sider information available at the planner's office to determine if his plans are consistent with current zoning regulations.

A third career involved in our process is the Township Zoning Administrator. He is employed, often on a part time basis, to relay the township's published rules and regulations and may suggest other zoning options available for the development of the property. In the case of Mr. McDonald's farm, the Township Zoning Administrator was instrumental in the planning and development of the property. The developer wanted to develop twenty-four building sites which is a density greater than usually allowed by the township zoning ordinance. The solution that was arrived at was approval of twenty-four lake front building sites with preservation of over two hundred acres of back land and some sensitive lakefront areas through the creation of a conservation easement.

The creation of this conservation easement employed the use of a fourth career that we can examine. In Northern Michigan, the Little Traverse Conservancy and the Tip of the Mit Watershed Council employs people that will meet with land owners in the interest of preserving property in its natural state. These employees meet with property owners and encourage the preservation of land either through donations of land or conservation easement. In our project a representative of the Little Traverse Conservancy met with the zoning administrator and the developer and suggested areas that could be included in a permanent conservation easement, while still allowing development of the property.

A fifth career involved in our project may be a Department of Natural Resources representative with the responsibility of enforcing the Wetland Law. On Mr. McDonald's farm a D.N.R. representative visited the property and outlined areas of wetlands that should be avoided for development purposes. These areas were also incorporated into the conservation easement.

Finally, after our project has been planned, developed, built up, and occupied, our sixth career choice is the removal of the occupants' garbage. Although it is not necessarily a prestigious career, it is nonetheless, of major importance and will become more and more important in the future. It is a field that will require innovative and intelligent decisions to be made at the top levels of government and private industry.

We have briefly examined six career choices in the environmental field, relating to Mr. McDonald's property.

These are certainly not all the choices available in the environmental field but from these few we can draw some conclusions as to what the job requirements will be. All of these careers will require people who have a thorough knowledge of the laws that apply, an ability to talk to people and negotiate with tact, yet firmness, and people who have a genuine interest in the preservation of our environment for both our future and future generations.

The career that I would be most interested in pursuing out of the six mentioned would be a representative of one of the environmental groups. I would enjoy getting outdoors, reviewing property, meeting and negotiating with property owners and developers, and especially preserving property in the Charlevoix area for our benefit and the benefit of future generations.

Exceptional riders spring program beginning soon

The snow is finally gone, and spring is in the air. It's time to dust off the riding caps and get back into the saddle. This year's spring session of the Lake Charlevoix Farms' Exceptional Riders Program is scheduled to start on April 9th (students) and 10th (volunteers) with orientation.

If you would like to help special children gain new confidence through horseback riding, please plan to attend the 7 p.m. meeting. The group meets for eight consecutive Tuesday evenings. No experience is required and all are welcome. The Farm is located on the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road near Horton Bay.

Horses can be a great equalizer, especially for the student that has been on crutches or wheelchair bound for most of their life. The classes are aimed at increasing the child's confidence while providing physical therapy - improving balance, posture and coordination. The program still has some openings for special students of any age or disability. Please call for registration information.

Classes include eight weeks of English riding lessons in Lake Charlevoix Farms indoor riding arena. They meet at 6:30 and 7:30 each Tuesday evening. This spring's activities also include a T-shirt promotion and raffle. To register a student, or sign up as a volunteer, please call Barb Lane at 347-3300.

Ruth M. Shapton

Ruth Matchett Shapton, 78, of Charlevoix, and Zephyrhills, Fla., died Feb. 15, 1990, in Zephyrhills, Fla., where she had resided the past 18 winters.

Funeral will be 1:30 p.m. Saturday, May 12, at the Barnard United Methodist Church, Charlevoix.

The former Ruth Matchett was born Dec. 12, 1911, on her parents' farm in Barnard. She graduated from Charlevoix High School and after attending County Normal in Charlevoix for two years, she began her teaching career at the age of 18 in the Advance School. She taught there for six years.

Mrs. Shapton later graduated from Central Michigan College (now Central Michigan University) and began teaching in the Lansing Public Schools, completing her career as principal at Kendon and finally Foster Avenue schools.

Mrs. Shapton was a member of Delta Kappa Gamma Education honorary for women educators, the Barnard United Methodist Church and the Michigan State Holiness Camp meeting.

In recent years, she and her husband of 49 years, Lee Shapton, spent summers at their home in Clipper View Charlevoix.

In addition to her husband Lee, Mrs. Shapton is survived by three children, Dr. William Shapton of Houghton, LeRue Werner of St. Louis, Mo., Mark Shapton of Hudson, Wis., seven grandchildren: one brother, Sandy Matchett of Charlevoix; one sister, Margaret Hurd of Jackson.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Barnard United Methodist Church.

Arrangements are being handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Claire H. Steinert Thorn

Claire H. Steinert Thorn, 83, wife of Dr. George W. Thorn, died on March 26th in Cambridge, Massachusetts, after a protracted battle with cancer. Mrs. Thorn, a summer resident in Charlevoix for more than seventy summers, was originally from New Orleans, Louisiana.

In 1927, she introduced her first husband, Alan Steinert of Cambridge, Mass., to Charlevoix. Together, in 1952, they built the family house on Michigan Avenue still occupied by the family.

An ardent sportswoman, Mrs. Thorn was an active trout and Atlantic salmon fisherman who tied her own flies and fished enthusiastically on the Jordan River.

Also in 1965, she married Dr. Thorn, formerly Physician-in-Chief of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston, Hersey Professor of Medicine at the Harvard Medical School, and currently Chairman of the Howard Hughes Medical Institute. Besides Dr. Thorn, she is survived by three children from her first marriage, Susan Poverman of Ossining, N.Y., and Charlevoix, Audrey Barnett of New Orleans, and Alan Steinert, Jr., of Cambridge, Mass., as well as a stepson, Weston Thorn of New York City.

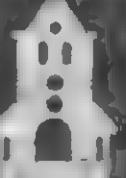

A memorial service will be held in Cambridge on April 7. In place of flowers, donations may be sent to the Claire Hyman Steinert Thorn scholarship at Wheaton College, Norton, Mass., or to the Charlevoix Hospital.

RCW plans Lenten breakfast

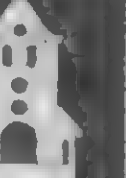

The Reformed Church Women (RCW) of the Community Reformed Church will host their annual Lenten Breakfast at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday April 10 in the church's fellowship hall. Guest speaker for the breakfast will be Steve Maniac of the recently opened Crisis Pregnancy Center of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

The breakfast is open to the public. A free-will offering will be taken and a nursery will be provided.

People planning to attend the breakfast are asked to notify the church by calling 547-9482.

Crooked Tree council schedules series of art classes

Arts classes for the Spring term at the Virginia McCune Arts Center's Community School of the Arts begin Monday, April 9. A full series of applied instruction in visual art, theatre, music, and dance is available at Crooked Tree Arts Council's facility at 461 E. Mitchell Street, Petoskey, for students of all ages. The Spring term lasts for six weeks.

Visual arts classes include Pottery for both adults and youth with David Otis on Tuesdays; two sections of Children's Art with Eileen Heck on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons; beginning and intermediate Chinese Watercolor, taught by artist Xiao-Wen Zou on Wednesdays; an intermediate-advanced Children's Watercolor class with Jan Vandendriek on Wednesday afternoons; and a class in Weaving on Wednesday evenings, taught by instructor Cathy Siterlet.

Siterlet also offers a series of crafts workshops in the arts of Jewelry and Basketry. There are three Tuesday Jewelry sessions, April 10, April 17, and May 1; and two Saturday Basketry sessions, April 28 and May 5. Dianna Heinzelman continues her series of classes in Movement & Dance and Ballet throughout the Spring Term. Heinzelman is in her eighth year of teaching with the Arts Center. She is also offering private lessons in Ballet. Her teaching led to the formation of Artistic Dance Production Company in the fall of 1989.

Dance instruction also features Hatha Yoga with Mary Reilly on Tuesday evenings. Instructor Irene Houghton offers instruction for young children in Modern Dance on Monday afternoons.

Loretta Rotolo offers two Theatre Workshop classes for Children, in two sections, grades 1-4 and grades 5-8. These classes are held on Wednesday afternoons. Classes are designed to help students develop self-awareness, confidence, and basic communication skills. Students will use pantomime, dramatization, and improvisation in class.

Private Music Lessons are offered in Piano by Charlotte

Ross-Lee; Flute by Cinci Staisell; Violin by Maggie Redmond and Janis Ley; Cello, by Nancy Henry; Voice, by Fran Tallas; Julie Pierpont, June Zoerhof and Janis Ley; and in French Horn and Brass instruments by Janis Ley. Pierpont offers guitar lessons, and a children's violin class is available on Monday afternoons from Mrs. Redmond.

Instructor Janis Glass offers a class in Drawing and Watercolor for adults with some previous experience on Thursday mornings, 9:30 to 11 a.m. at the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix, US 31 North. Please call the Arts Center to register for this Charlevoix class.

Scholarships to cover 75 percent of the cost of class tuition are available through the Arts Center, supported by funds from the Burns Clinic Medical Center, P.C. Students may be any age up to senior in high school and must apply for the scholarship at the Arts Center by 5 p.m. Friday, April 6.

A full schedule of class times is available by visiting or calling the Arts Center at 347-4337, Monday through Friday 10 a.m.

to 5 p.m. The Community School of the Arts is one of a series of programs offered by Crooked Tree Arts Council which include year-round events in the visual and performing arts. The Arts Center houses an exhibition gallery, art sales shop, and the Ross Stoakes Theatre.

Members of the Arts Council are eligible to receive a 10 percent discount on the cost of all classes and lessons, in addition to newsletter, Art Tree sales shop discounts, and event information. Please call the Arts Center at 347-4337 for membership information.

BUSINESS

Retired executives speak to local merchants group

Area merchants will hear from retired small business executives Dick Wise and Herman Tilley at the next Charlevoix Merchants Association meeting. Wise and Tilley belong to a group called S.C.O.R.E. (Service Core of Retired Executives). The philosophy behind the group is that retirement does not have to mean the loss of expertise to the business community.

The Merchants Association meeting will begin at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 10 at Stafford's Weathervane. All Charlevoix area merchants are invited to attend.

The Charlevoix Merchants Association is a branch of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Local real estate firm receives company awards

David L. Campbell, Broker-Owner of ReMax of Charlevoix, received high honors at ReMax of Michigan's Eleventh Annual Awards Conference held recently at the Grand Traverse Resort in Traverse City. Campbell was the recipient of the Region's 'Outstanding New Franchise' award, which recognizes the ReMax franchise that has had the most outstanding performance in its first year of operation.

Two other Realtors with ReMax of Charlevoix were also honored for their outstanding real estate sales records and service to their customers in 1989.

Katherine S. Engle received the ReMax President's Club Award for having sold over $1 million of real estate in 1989. Steve Andress and David Campbell were each presented with the ReMax 100 percent Club Award for a personal sales volume in 1989 of more than $3 million.

Davis proposes lakes bill

The following press release was written by Congressman Bob Davis, R. St. Ignace:

The population of the Great Lakes region has swelled to more than 35 million people. This population growth has placed great demands on the lakes for boating, recreation, shipping, municipal and industrial water supplies, waste disposal, power production, and other uses. The result is that the fishery and wildlife resources of the lakes have undergone dramatic changes in the past 50 years.

The Great Lakes fishery is enjoyed by more than five million recreational anglers annually, and commercial fisheries provide about 9,000 jobs. The Great Lakes fishery is worth more than $4 billion a year.

Congressman Nowak of New York and I have introduced legislation to carry out a comprehensive study of the status, management and restoration needs of this very valuable resource. The growing and often conflicting demands placed on the Great Lakes will continue to exert pressure on fish and wildlife. These pressures include contaminants, invasions of alien species such as the recently discovered zebra mussel, destruction of habitat, legal and illegal fishery harvest levels, and predators such as the sea lamprey.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service already has the responsibility for managing these resources. Unfortunately, they have not been given adequate funding to address existing problems or put programs in place to prevent new ones. Our bill does that.

"The Great Lakes Fish and Wildlife Restoration Act of 1990" provides the needed funding for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to develop programs and activities for the Great Lakes that meet the following goals: 1) to restore and maintain fish reproduction; 2) to minimize the impact of contaminants; 3) to protect, maintain, and restore fish and wildlife habitats; 4) to police and eliminate illegal fishing and hunting activities; 5) to restore threatened and endangered species; and 6) to restore population of migratory birds.

March of Dimes planning walkathon

The year 1990 marks the twentieth anniversary of the March of Dimes largest annual fundraiser, WalkAmerica. This event happens nationwide in the Spring, with over one million men, women and children participating to support the campaign for healthier babies.

More than 1400 communities in all of the 50 states join this walking event. Why are these people out there to support the efforts of the March of Dimes? According to Divisional Director, Gracey C. Towner, "The fact is that a higher percentage of babies die in the United States than in 18 other countries in the world, low birthweight continues to be associated with 60 percent of infant deaths, and too many barriers still exist to adequate prenatal care which is the single most important factor in preventing low birthweight. The March of Dimes has been a leader in funding and guidance for prenatal clinics and programs, research, health services and public and professional education. We are also actively involved in advocacy efforts at the state and federal level. When people join us in an event such as WalkAmerica, they join us in these efforts to ensure a healthy start in life for all babies."

The WalkAmerica event in the Petoskey-Charlevoix area takes place Saturday, April 28. On the Petoskey end the walk begins and finishes at the Petoskey City Park, and on the Charlevoix end the walk begins and ends at Alexander's. These two walks meet in the middle at Subaru-on-the-Bay. Registration is at 8:30 a.m. and the ribbon cutting which starts the actual walkers on their way happens at 9 a.m. The main route is up to 30k, but it is not required that one walk the entire distance, the route is set up for safety and patrolled, and there are official vehicles that will pick you up and bring you back to the start-finish point if you do not wish to complete the entire distance.

There are prizes for the top four individual fundraisers in both the adult and youth divisions, and there are top team awards as well. Pledges are obtained per kilometer walked, and sponsor envelopes and information sheets are available in both cities at the following locations: Burger King, K-Mart (Petoskey only), First of America, the Chamber of Commerce and area public schools. Burger King has returned as the primary divisional corporate sponsor, which allows for all proceeds to go to the program and research efforts of the March of Dimes, while their support pays for the supplies and operating expenses of such an event. They are joined by others in the community on a smaller scale, via such things as check-point sponsorship, which many businesses have elected to do.

TeamWalk has also become a tremendous part of the walk, and some stiff competition has evolved. This year, Stafford Smith has joined us as the Honorary Walk Chair, and hosted a TeamWalk Breakfast to start the ball rolling with companies and organizations. He has challenged the community to join him in this effort. Honorary Walk Chairs from the media arena are Jerry Meyer, Nancy Schultz and Dave Walker. Their involvement has become a tradition as well.

WalkAmerica 1990 will introduce the new local ambassador, Travis Marshall, who is 5 years old and was born with spina bifida. He is the son of Beth and Wayne Marshall, who live in the Bellaire area.

Char-Em hosts student seminar

About 30 students from high schools throughout northwest Michigan participated in a recent one-day workshop exploring career trends and the influence of bias in making career choices as they learned to conduct presentations of their own for students in their home schools.

Sponsored by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District and the Michigan Department of Education Technical Assistance Project, the "Career Trends Leadership Conference for Outstanding Students" held in Charlevoix March 23 gave students a chance to learn about what's ahead in the workplace in the year 2000, updating career plans, leadership and decision making skills, and making bias-free career choices.

Students who participated were selected for academic excellence and leadership skills and were accompanied by an advisor. Schools that sent teams included: Johannesburg, Lewiston, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Littlefield (Alanson), Onaway, East Jordan and the intermediate district's Alternative Program for School-Age parents.

According to Char-Em Regional Coordinator Holly Girardin, the students not only learned about issues that will help them in their personal career planning, but were taught techniques for conducting presentations to groups of younger students.

"This is an effective program because with this one activity, you can reach many," Girardin said. "The best way to learn something is to have to teach it."

"These students will have learned it very well."

What they learned about were the types of occupations and jobs that will be available to them as adults. Information on salary levels and fields anticipated to have openings was also provided.

Students participated in discussions and problem solving. They were also asked to evaluate bias in television advertising, with each team selecting a current commercial and conducting a presentation for others in the group.

"I think it's good for their self esteem in terms of identifying that they're able to do different things job wise," said Linda Swabash, a social worker with the Alternative Program for School-Age Parents. "It helps them to network among their peer group from other school systems and makes them feel motivated."

License request opposed

The Charlevoix City Council has gone on record as opposing a request by Lynn Gail Kryst for a beer and wine sales license at the Farm Market located at 406 Petoskey Avenue. The ultimate fate of the request is in the hands of the Michigan Liquor Control Commission (LCC), however the council's opposition will be noted.

Councilmembers discussed the request at their March 26 work session and took formal action at their regular meeting Monday, April 2.

In citing reasons for opposing the request, councilmembers cited the proximity of the Farm Market to an established beer and wine license holder, the IGA store, and expressed concern about a growing number of beer and wine outlets in the community.

A council motion to oppose the license request passed unanimously.

According to LCC guidelines, "Although local governing body approval is not required by the Michigan Liquor Control Act for off-premise licenses, the local governing body, or its designee, may notify the Commission within 15 days of receipt of this letter if the applicant's location will not be in compliance with all appropriate state and local building, plumbing, zoning, fire, sanitation and health laws and ordinances, or if he applicant is considered ineligible due to other factors."

Driving costs increase

After two years of double-digit increases, the cost of owning and operating a typical new car rose 7.8 percent compared to last year, AAA Michigan reports.

New car owners who drive 15,000 miles annually can expect to pay an average $4,954-up 2.4 cents to 33 cents per mile—for gasoline, financing, taxes, license, maintenance and insurance, according to the 1990 "Your Driving Costs."

The annual publication by the American Automobile Association tells motorists how to figure ownership costs and offers tips on vacation planning and business auto travel.

A smaller increase in insurance expenses was the main reason driving costs rose at an overall lower rate. Driving costs increased 12 percent in 1989 and 10 percent in 1988.

Other operating expenses include:

-Maintenance—2.1 cents per mile or $315, a $30 increase.

-Tires—9 cent per mile or $135, $15 higher than last year.

-Taxes, license, and registration—a $12 increase to $156.

-Finance charges—increased from $588 to $638.

Averages were compiled after testing a subcompact four-cylinder Ford Escort LX, a mid-sized six-cylinder Ford Taurus L and an eight-cylinder full-sized Chevrolet Caprice—each equipped with automatic transmission, power steering, disc brakes and cruise control.

Strept throat strikes

Parents would be aware that cases of strept throat have been reported to the District Health Department.

An individual with strept throat may have any of the following basic symptoms: fever, sore throat, enlarged and inflamed tonsils, and tender and swollen lymph nodes in the neck area. There may be few symptoms. High fever, headache, nausea and vomiting may accompany severe infections. Sometimes you can have a rash which is often mistaken for another childhood illness such as roseola or measles. Strept throat with a rash (scarlet fever) has been reported in the area.

Untreated people may develop middle ear infections, mastoiditis, and throat and neck abscesses. Other important problems are heart (rheumatic fever) and kidney (glomerulonephritis) disease. Although not a problem locally, rheumatic fever outbreaks have been reported nationally.

Parents should be aware of the fact that strept throat is a treatable illness. Penicillin or erythromycin will prevent most complications to include rheumatic heart disease. Therefore, the Health Department urges parents to contact their family doctors if they think their children may have strept throat. Individuals given an antibiotic must complete the full course of therapy, even if they feel better in a few days. Children should not return to school, day care or nursery setting until at least 24 hours after beginning antimicrobial therapy, and until they are afebrile. Close contact with other children during this time should be avoided.

Board of Education plans goal meetings

The Charlevoix Board of Education is inviting students, parents, teachers, administrators and any other interested students to two goal setting meetings, which will take place from 9 a.m. to noon April 14 and 21. Anyone who would like to have input in setting goals for the Charlevoix school system should attend.

Help us offer hope to cocaine babies.
And we'll offer you savings on Cable TV.

The facts are sobering. Every year, 11% of babies have been exposed to an illicit drug before birth. That means over 375,000 children annually are the victims of severe negative effects, including prematurity, malformation, stroke and crib death.

Help us offer hope. Throughout the month of April, we're donating our installation fees to the "Cocaine Baby Help Line," a toll-free number women can call for help with drug abuse during pregnancy.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage made by Leslie E. Crain and Faye Ann Crain, husband and wife, of Box 3310, Boyne City, Michigan 49712 to Northwestern State Bank of Boyne City, Michigan 49712, dated January 12, 1981, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, in the State of Michigan, on January 28, 1981, at Liber 182, page 254 on which Mortgage there is a claim to be due at the date of this Notice for Principal and interest, the sum of Forty-Seven Thousand Four Hundred Nine and 44/100 ($47,409.44) Dollars; and no proceedings having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said Mortgage has become operative;

NOW THEREFORE, notice is hereby given that on the third day of May, 1990, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, on the steps of the Courthouse in Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place for holding the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder, at public sale, for the purposes of satisfying the amount due and unpaid upon said Mortgage, together with interest at 14.5 percent per annum, legal costs, attorney fees, and any taxes and insurance that said Mortgagee, Northwestern State Bank of Boyne City, Michigan does pay on or prior to the date of said sale; said premises are described in said Mortgage as follows, to-wit:

follows:
Part of the Northwest Quarter (NW 1/4) of the Northwest Quarter (NW 1/4) of Section 36, Town 33 North, Range 6 West, commencing at the Northwest Corner of said Section 36; thence South 38 rods; thence East 10 rods; thence North 36 rods; thence West 10 rods to the place of beginning. Except for all coal, oil, minerals, gas, and aboriginal antiquities lying or being on, within or under the aforesaid premises which have previously been reserved by the State of Michigan; and subject to all reservations and exceptions in favor of the State of Michigan. Also subject to any highways of record or in use over and across said lands.

The Redemption Period as provided by law is six (6) months from the date of sale.

MARION TOWNSHIP AMENDMENT TO THE MARION TOWNSHIP CHARLEVOIX COUNTY, MICHIGAN ZONING ORDINANCE NOTICE OF ADOPTION

IT IS ORDAINED that the Marion Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, Zoning Ordinance, adopted Oct. 30, 1970, as amended thereafter, shall be further amended as follows:

CHAPTER IV R-1. RESIDENTIAL ZONE

Section 4.1 - Description and Purpose

The purpose of the regulations covering this district is to provide for a stable and sound family environment with the appropriate neighborhood related utilities, facilities and services.

Section 4.2 - Use Regulations

No land shall hereafter be used, and no buildings or structures erected, altered, or used for other than one or more of the following uses:

- a) one family dwellings;
- b) Public schools and colleges when owned and operated by a governmental agency provided a special use permit is obtained under the guide lines outlined in Chapter XIX;
- c) Private non-profit schools, churches and colleges provided a special use permit is obtained under the guide lines outlined in Chapter XIX;
- d) Parks, playgrounds and community centers located therein, owned and operated by a governmental agency or non-profit neighborhood group;
- e) Farms on land areas of 10 acres or more;
- f) Accessory buildings, structures and uses customarily incidental to any of the above uses when not constituting a nuisance. An accessory building shall conform to all setback and yard requirements in this district. The maximum height of an accessory building, other than a garage, shall be 12 feet. Attached garages shall conform to all setback and yard requirements governing the primary dwelling.

Section 4.3 - Height requirements

No building shall exceed 35 feet in height.

Section 4.4 - Minimum Lot Size Requirements

No building or structure nor the enlargement of any building or structure shall be erected unless the following yards, lot area and building coverage requirements are provided and maintained:

- a) The land area upon which a one-family dwelling is hereafter erected, shall contain not less than 18,000 square feet;
- b) The minimum lot width, as measured at the building line shall be 100 feet. The minimum distance along the primary access roadway or easement of the lot shall be 65 feet;
- c) There shall be a front yard of not less than 35 feet;
- d) There shall be a side yard of at least 10 feet on each side of any dwelling or accessory building, excepting the street side of any corner lot, where a 25 foot side yard shall be maintained;
- e) Every dwelling hereafter erected shall have a rear yard of not less than 35 feet;
- f) Accessory buildings less than 120 square feet shall have a minimum rear yard setback of 15 feet;
- g) Accessory buildings being 120 square feet or greater shall have a minimum rear yard setback of 35 feet.

CHAPTER V R-2, SINGLE-FAMILY AND TWO-FAMILY RESIDENTIAL ZONE

Section 5.1 - Description and Purpose

The purpose of the regulations covering these districts are to provide a stable and sound family and residential environment with its appropriately related level of urban utilities, facilities and services. The essential difference between this and any other residential district is that a moderate density of urban type residential development will be permitted through the construction and occupancy of one-family dwelling on moderate sized lots and two-family dwellings.

Section 5.2 - Use Regulations

No land shall hereafter be used, and no building or structures erected, altered, or used for other than one or more of the following uses:

- a) One single-family dwelling or one two-family dwelling on each lot;
- b) Public schools and colleges when owned and operated by a governmental agency provided a special use permit is obtained under Chapter XIX;
- c) Private non-profit schools and colleges provided a special use permit is obtained under Chapter XIX;
- d) Parks, playgrounds and community centers located therein, owned and operated by a governmental agency or non-profit neighborhood group;
- e) One detached accessory building per dwelling unit other than a garage not more than 12 feet in height.

Section 5.3 - Height Regulations

No building shall exceed 35 feet in height.

Section 5.4 - Minimum Lot Size Requirements

No building or structure nor the enlargement of any building or structure shall hereafter be erected unless the following yards, lot area and building coverage requirements are provided and maintained:

- a) Front Yard - There shall be a front yard of not less than 25 feet;
- b) Side yard - There shall be a side yard of at least 10 feet on each side of any dwelling, or any accessory building, except the street side of a corner lot, where a 25 foot side yard shall be maintained;
- c) Rear Yard - There shall be a rear yard of not less than 35 feet of any dwelling. Accessory buildings less than 120 square feet shall have minimum rear yard setback of 15 feet. Accessory buildings being 120 square feet or greater shall have a minimum rear yard setback of 35 feet;
- d) Lot Area - The minimum lot area for use in this zone shall be 12,000 square feet for a single family dwelling and 24,000 square feet for two family dwelling;
- e) Lot width - The minimum lot width, as measured at the building line, shall be 100 feet for a single family dwelling and 125 feet for a two family dwelling. The minimum distance along the primany access roadway or easement of the lot shall be 65 feet for a single family dwelling and 90 feet for a two family dwelling. If the lot is serviced by public sewer and water, the minimum lot width, as measured at the building line shall be 80 feet for a single family dwelling and 100 feet for a two family dwelling. The minimum distance along the primary access shall be as stated above.

Section 5.5 - Minimum Floor Area

Each dwelling unit in this zone shall have a minimum floor area of 864 square feet of usable floor area exclusive of porches, basements, or utility areas, if a one-story building or 1200 square feet if a building is more than one story.

CHAPTER VI R-3, MOBILE HOME PARK ZONE

Section 6.1 - Description and Purpose

A zone which provides for a stable and sound environment for mobile home parks.

Section 6.2 - Use Regulations

- a) Mobile home parks provided that in addition to state regulations governing mobile home parks, the following requirements must be met:
 1. Each park shall contain a minimum land area of 40 acres.
 2. Health Department and Department of Natural Resources approval of the proposed park must be obtained and submitted with the application for a zoning permit to insure adequate supply of potable water and proper discharge of sewage.
 3. Letter of approval from the County Drain Commissioner, County Road Commission and Michigan Department of Transportation (if applicable).
 4. The mobile home park must maintain a 100 foot greenbelled setback around the perimeter of the property.
 5. All public and private utilities shall be installed underground.
 6. Each park shall have a minimum of two access streets entering a public highway or street.
 7. All streets within the park shall be blacktopped or paved a minimum width of twenty (20) feet to be centered on a sixty-six (66) foot right-of-way.
 8. There shall be no parking on the streets.
 9. Each mobile home site shall have a minimum driveway width of ten (10) feet.
 10. All driveways must be blacktopped or paved.
 11. At least twenty (20) percent of the park area shall be retained for open space and recreation purposes.
 12. Each mobile home shall have the wheels removed and skirting shall cover the towing mechanism, under carriage and/or chassis.
 13. Each mobile home shall be secured to the land by an anchoring system or device complying with the rules and regulations of the Michigan Mobile Home Commission.
 14. Each mobile home shall meet HUD 24 CFR 3280, as amended and Michigan Mobile Home Commission construction standards.
 15. Each mobile home site may have an accessory building not to exceed 144 square feet and 10 feet in height.
 16. The front yard of each mobile home shall have a maintained landscape.
 17. Trash collection areas must be placed on a concrete pad and fenced.
 18. No individual satellite receiver dishes or antennas shall be placed within the mobile home park.
- b) Lot Requirements Of Each Mobile Home Site
 1. There shall be a minimum site area of 7200 square feet with a minimum width of 60 feet.
 2. There shall be a minimum front yard of 25 feet from the road right-of-way for all structures.
 3. There shall be a minimum side yard of 10 feet for all mobile homes and accessory buildings.
 4. There shall be a minimum rear yard of 20 feet for all mobile homes and accessory buildings.
- c) Floor Area

Each mobile home shall have a minimum of 600 square feet of usable floor area exclusive of porches, garages, basements, and utility areas.
- d) Off Street Parking

Each mobile home site shall comply with Off Street Parking requirements outlined in Chapter XVIII. No parking or storage recreational vehicles, boat and boat trailers shall be allowed on the mobile home site.
- e) Height Regulations

No mobile home shall exceed 15 feet in height.
- f) Development Plan

A development plan shall be submitted for the mobile home park to indicate and illustrate how the requirements of this section are being met.
- g) Financial Security Requirements

The Zoning Administrator shall not issue a zoning permit unless the applicant provides financial security for the construction of the park in the form of one of the following:

 1. Performance Bond. A performance or surety bond issued by a bonding company authorized to do business in the State of Michigan.
 2. Escrow Fund. A cash deposit or certified check.
 3. Irrevocable Letter of Credit. An irrevocable letter of credit issued by a bank authorized to do business in the State of Michigan.

The security shall be filed with the Township Treasurer and shall be for a period established by the applicant, but not to exceed thirty (30) days following the determination by the township planning commission that the park has been constructed in accordance with the approved development plan.

Provisions shall be made to lessen the required security in accordance with the percentage of the work completed in accordance with the approved development plan.

A right must be prepared by an architect or engineer licensed in the State of Michigan outlining the project costs to insure adequate financial security for the proposed project.

This amendment was adopted at the Regular Board Meeting, March 20, 1990 and shall become effective 30 days after publication.

Bid dearth stalls bandshell

Finding a contractor to build a new bandshell in East Park isn't a matter of selecting the low bidder. The problem is that there is no bidder.

The city advertised for bids several weeks ago with the intention of opening bids last week. Nobody submitted a bid. "We haven't got anybody that wants to bid yet," city manager Mike Wiesner told the council Monday evening when the issue of the bandshell was raised.

The dearth of bids means the bandshell probably won't be completed this summer.

Advertisements for bids specified that the work would have to be completed by early this summer. Wiesner said the city is now talking to contractors to see if extending the completion date will prompt them to bid on the project.

He told the council that it may not be possible for construction to begin until fall.

Not having a bandshell this summer has already affected at least one organization's entertainment plans for East Park.

At Monday's council meeting, Harold Kruttsch from the Visitors and Convention Bureau said the group had at one time set aside $5,000 to bring entertainment to the park this summer. With the delay in bandshell construction, the bureau has now put that promotion on hold.

Bids create problems again

This is the second time the city has experienced difficulty with bids on the bandshell project. Last summer the bids were too high. This time the bids are too few.

A proposed design, approved by the council in March of 1989 after much wrangling, carried an estimated price tag of $186,000.

Later it was discovered that due to the weight of the building and soil conditions in the park, special pilings and foundations would be needed. That added $40,000 to $50,000 to the estimated project cost.

Even with the pilings, the estimated cost was only $228,000 to $238,000. But when bids were opened in late July of last year, the low bid among three was $285,000 from Comstock Construction Company of Traverse City. The other two bids were $326,186 and $326,252.

When the bids were opened, the city only had about $110,000 in funds available for the project. None of the bids were accepted and the bandshell was put on hold.

Then in September, bandshell committee cochairman Gary

Local churches unite in Good Friday service

The Praisemakers, a 55-voice youth choir from Truro, England, will join the people of Charlevoix in a Community Good Friday Service from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., hosted by the Community Church of God on Huribut Street.

The service will be preceded by a cross procession which will organize at Oleson's parking lot at 12:30. To symbolize the death and resurrection of Christ, members of the procession will carry the cross to the community service.

During the Good Friday service, the Praisemakers will perform several Easter selections. Although the service will last for two hours, it is designed so that people may come and go as their schedules dictate.

The Praisemakers will be in town throughout the weekend. They will perform at Greensky Hill Sunday morning at 9:30 a.m. and at the United Methodist Church at 11 a.m. Several families from various Charlevoix churches will open their homes to house members of the group.

Police chief graduates from FBI academy

You might say it was an exchange. Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson lost 13 pounds and gained a ton of knowledge at an 11-week Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) law enforcement academy in Quantico, Virginia.

Participation in the academy is by invitation only. Michigan is allotted six slots for each academy session. One of those slots goes to the state police and another goes to the city of Detroit. That leaves four for the rest of Michigan. Halverson applied for the academy three years ago. Some officers wait four or five years.

Students at the academy come not only from law enforcement departments across the country, but also from other nations.

Halverson was one of 200 U.S. officers at the academy. The academy costs the federal government $33,000 per U.S. officer.

"There was some plan behind every minute, even when you weren't in class," Halverson said of the organization at the academy. The academy occupies a section of the Marine base at Quantico. Halverson and the other officers stayed in dormitory rooms. Halverson's roommate was an officer from Westchester, Pennsylvania.

During the 11-week session Halverson studied current philosophies in law enforcement, police science and labor law. He was taught by experts in these fields who were flown into Quantico from all across the country.

Classroom work was only part of the program. Physical conditioning was also stressed.

"I lost 13 pounds," Halverson said.

Between the beginning and end of the academy, Halverson shaved three and a-half minutes from his time in the one and a-half mile run. The improvement in conditioning came about from running three to four times a week, sometimes as far as eight miles at a shot, and from working on the Marine obstacle course.

Charlevoix police chief Dennis Halverson recently completed 11 weeks of law enforcement training at a Federal Bureau of Investigation Academy in Quantico, Virginia. His family joined him at the commencement ceremony. At a reception following commencement, Halverson met movie star Chuck Norris, an active supporter of law enforcement efforts. Shown (front from left) Jessica Halverson, Erik Halverson, (back from left) Joy Halverson, Chuck Norris, Dennis Halverson.

Before even being admitted to the camp, officers had to weigh in to see if they were in good enough condition to tolerate the physical training.

"They sent six guys home the first day," Halverson noted. Halverson did some running prior to going to the camp, but said he wished he had done more.

Committee works on rail-trail

A committee has been established to oversee development of a non-motorized public recreation trail between Charlevoix and Petoskey. Portions of the trail will be located on what is currently a railroad right of way between the two towns.

State Senator Mitch Irwin and state representative Pat Gagliardi are spearheading the effort in Lansing.

The railway between the two communities has been a source of controversy in recent months. Lansing officials decided to remove the railway tracks despite opposition from the Charlevoix city council.

Charlevoix mayor Gary Probert and council member Pat Gaskin will be among those serving on the trail committee which met for the first time Monday morning.

At Monday's council meeting Probert briefed the council on the meeting. He said Gaskin had asked about the decision to remove the tracks and was told that was a done deal and that now the state is working on establishing the recreation trail.

During a visit to the Courier office Monday afternoon Irwin explained that although there will be a couple of places where the trail has to diverge from the railroad right of way, as much of the recreation path as possible will be kept on the right of way.

The reason that some pieces of property along can't be used for a recreation trail while others can centers around the way the rights of way were procured for rail use. Some pieces of property were for rail use with the stipulation that when the property was no longer used for rail service it would revert back to adjacent property owners. That stipulation does not apply to other segments of property.

Joining Probert and Gaskin as Charlevoix representatives on the committee are Charlevoix County commissioner Larry Matthew, Hayes Township supervisor Paul Hoadley and Claudia Kenifeck.

Police officers, such as Halverson, were not the only group training at the academy. FBI and Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) agents also train at the Quantico facility.

Academy classroom work began each day at 8 a.m. Officers could select different study tracks depending upon what area they wanted to improve. Halverson chose a track which emphasized law enforcement administration.

One of the most interesting classes Halverson took concerned future economic, social and political conditions and the ramifications these conditions will have on law enforcement. The class was limited to 12 students and taught by Dr. William Tafaya. Tafaya has written a book which offers some projections and will be released later this year.

Among the more disturbing projections is that within the next decade the United States will experience significant civil unrest.

The class also covered the implications of artificial intelligence (computers) in law enforcement. Advances in technology are making it possible for policemen to plug in the facts surrounding a crime and have a computer feed back not only a profile of the suspect, but a list of possible suspects.

DNA technology is another investigative method on the leading edge of police work. DNA technology involves taking a sample of blood or semen found at a crime scene and having a computer analyze it in an attempt to match it to a suspect. That, in and of itself, is somewhat similar to fingerprinting and is not completely revolutionary. However, there are some interesting questions of morality and civil liberties raised by DNA investigation.

There is speculation that some people may have a chromosomal predisposition toward criminal activity. A question can be raised as to what would be done if a fetus was found to have a chromosomal predisposition toward violent criminal behavior.

Another question involves civil liberties. In Finland, DNA samples are being taken from every child born.

"Along with the good points, there are some points that really make you think," Halverson said of the technological advances.

The classes also stressed the importance of police departments becoming more attuned to neighborhoods and in touch with the citizenry. Halverson said officers were told that police should be a part of the community, not "an occupying force."

Halverson said he wants to make a broader effort in Charlevoix to make sure the police department is involved and in touch with the community. He said he feels that the five officers currently in the Charlevoix department are well-suited for that philosophy and will like it.

"Perhaps you'll see more patrolmen at meetings," Halverson said. "There's nothing wrong with the (people of the) city knowing the names of the six patrolmen—they've got."

Halverson also took a computer class at the academy. The Charlevoix police department recently purchased a new computer system.

He also received instruction on the use of the new 9mm semiautomatic pistols which the Charlevoix police department, like many others, are converting to.

Halverson is a second generation academy graduate. His father graduated from the academy in 1960.

Halverson's wife Joy, son Erik and daughter Jessica joined him in Quantico for the academy graduation ceremony. The Marine Corps Band played at the ceremony which was attended by FBI director William Sessions, several high-ranking military officers and politicians.

... bid shortage is the latest bandshell problem

Stutzman came to the council with a new proposal for funding. Stutzman proposed making up the difference between the $110,000 available and the $285,000 needed through the following means:

- Using $10,000 of city electrical fund money to pay for a transformer which was supposed to be placed in the bandshell's lower level.

- Reducing the cost by $15,000 by eliminating a proposed sound system.
- Using $86,000 of Downtown Development Authority (DDA) funds.
- Generating $75,000 through additional bandshell committee fundraising efforts.

Initially, the council balked at this proposal.

Councilman Ken Whitley and former councilman Earl Muma spoke of building an all-season arts center somewhere other than the park while putting a fish pond and a small performing platform in the park.

From September until December of last year the bandshell debate was dormant although bandshell committee members worked to scale back the design and reduce costs.

Stutzman appeared before the council in mid December with a scaled back design which carried an estimated price tag of $175,000. A basement and restrooms were among the items deleted from the initial design.

Even at $175,000, money available fell short of money needed. The bandshell committee proposed to make up the shortfall by using $50,000 of DDA funds and gathering an additional $25,000 through fundraising.

The DDA board approved the $50,000 and the council went along with that when they approved the scaled-back bandshell design at their Jan. 29 meeting.

Explaining natural phenomena

Some things in nature are difficult to explain. Worse, when you try to explain them, the explanation leaves you even more confused than you were to begin with.

Early last week there was almost no ice in Round Lake. But by last Friday floating chunks of ice virtually filled Round Lake.

Why did that happen? I wanted to know.

So I asked myself (looking to myself for the answer to something technical like this may have been my first mistake) just where did these chunks of ice come from?

Wednesday afternoon, I looked at the ice chunks and they were drifting from west to east—in other words from Lake Michigan through the Pine River Channel and into Round Lake.

So that part of the mystery was solved.

But wait, not so fast. Thursday afternoon, I decided to walk down to the bridge and take some pictures of these floating chunks of ice. What I saw made me rethink my theory. Maybe the ice came from Lake Charlevoix instead of Lake Michigan.

I was standing on the bridge taking pictures and something struck me as peculiar. The ice was drifting from east to west—or from Round Lake through the Pine River Channel and toward Lake Michigan; exactly opposite to the way it had been drifting the day before.

I'm no expert on rivers and channels and I don't make the rules that govern them, but it seems to me that the current should go the same direction every day. Why wouldn't it? If gravity—and gravity's not just a suggestion, it's the law—is the determining factor in current, then wouldn't what's downhill today be the same as what's downhill tomorrow?

Maybe the explanation for this current shift is similar to the explanation for the changing of the seasons. That has something to do with the earth tilting at different angles to the sun at different times of the year. Maybe between last Wednesday and Thursday the earth somehow tilted and changed the sun's gravitational pull on Charlevoix's Pine River Channel. If that's the case, it kind of makes a person feel like our little town's at the center of the universe, doesn't it?

Or perhaps it's not the sun, but the moon which has been shifting the current around and playing games with our channel. That moon's a shifty one. It bears watching. Can anything which only comes out at night truly be trusted?

But then maybe the wind was just blowing the ice one way one day and a different way the next day. Hmm. Stacked up against those big astronomical theories, that one's such a disappointment.

There are other questions and speculations raised by these drifting ice chunks.

Remember the "Titanic"? It was a big boat sunk by a big iceberg. Well, these chunks of ice floating in Round Lake are just little icebergs.

If big icebergs sink big boats, then what do little icebergs sink? Little boats. Ducks, maybe.

The Titanic did not strike the portion of the iceberg which was above the water. No. It struck the portion of the iceberg below water.

People who know icebergs, and I don't claim to be one of them (either one of these people or an iceberg), say that at least two-thirds of an iceberg is below water—hence the phrase, "This may only be the tip of the iceberg."

Late last week Round Lake was almost covered by the tips of little icebergs, little icebergs which could be viewed as one huge, cumulative iceberg.

And if just the tip of that cumulative iceberg covered Round Lake, then think how large that iceberg must have been below the surface. For all we know, the unseen bottom of that iceberg may have extended all the way out from Round Lake to somewhere beneath Hurlbut Street and Dixon Avenue.

Nature's an awe-inspiring thing and, as I warned you, trying to explain it can get confusing.

Telescope expands universe

By the time this column reaches print, we should know whether the Hubble Space Telescope is in orbit and functioning. If so, hardly a firefly in the galaxy will be safe from its icy stare.

The telescope is a marvelous instrument with a lens more than seven feet in diameter that will be able to see deep into space without the fuzzy interference of Earth's atmosphere, which has been bolted up irrevocably by our persistent use of breath mints and spray deodorant.

The telescope is so powerful that it will be able to pick up the faint glow of a firefly at a distance of 10,000 miles. It will allow astronomers to examine objects 14 billion light years away—roughly the distance from Charlevoix to Bay Shore on a winter morning.

The big worry at this point is that something will happen to the big lens during blastoff or in transit to its orbit—380 miles straight up.

But if everything goes well, we will probably learn more about what's going on upstairs than we ever dreamed possible.

Scientists are calling the giant telescope the greatest step forward in the field of astronomy since Galileo had his innings with the Catholic Church more than 300 years ago.

WHO WAS THIS Hubble for whom the telescope was named?

Edwin Powell Hubble was born in Marshfield, Mo., 1889, received degrees from the University of Chicago and Oxford University, worked for the Mount Wilson Observatory and died in 1953.

He is credited with substantiating the "big bang" theory of the creation. The theory holds that the universe was created in a cosmic explosion 15 billion years ago and that fragments are still expanding.

We're living on one of them.

The space telescope will allow astronomers to monitor heavenly events with 10 times the clarity they now enjoy. Data collected may further underscore Hubble's "big bang" theory and allow scientists to compute the age of the universe with greater accuracy.

NASA astrophysicist Charles Pellerin is excited about the new telescope, the first of many to be launched into space. He believes the new data will revolutionize modern astronomy.

"The project will touch people in other deeper and more important ways," he said. "I believe it's likely we will change the way we think about the universe and our role in it."

WHILE WE ARE awaiting the dawn of the New Age, let us turn to the works of Walt Whitman, the good, gray 19th century American poet.

Whitman had a passing interest in astronomy and even attended a lecture on the subject.

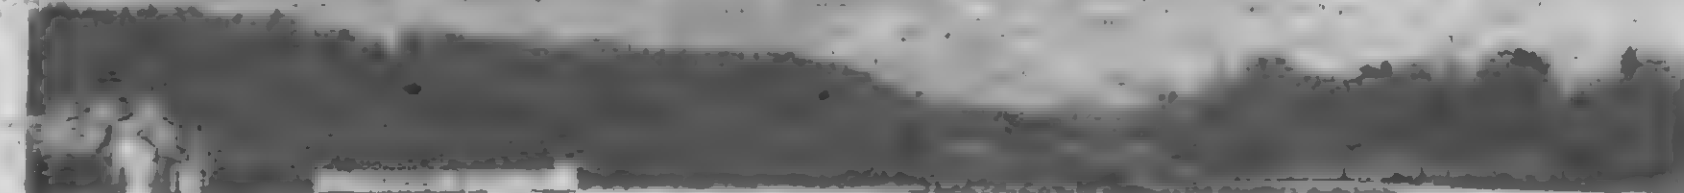

But when he left the lecture hall he regretted that cold scientific facts were stripping the heavens of their mystery and romance. He was so upset he sat down and wrote a little poem about his feelings. Here it is:

When I Heard the Learn'd Astronomer

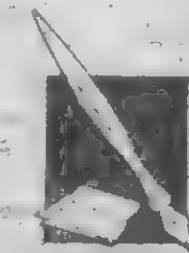

When I heard the learn'd astronomer,
When the proofs, the figures, were ranged in columns before me,
When I was shown the charts and diagrams, to add, divide and measure them,
When I sitting heard the astronomer where he lectured with much applause in the lecture-room,
How soon unaccountable I became tired and sick,
Till rising and gliding out I wander'd off by myself,
In the mystical moist night-air, and from time to time
Look'd up in perfect silence at the stars.

APRIL SNOW: Like a departing houseguest, Old Man Winter lingers on the doorstep clutching an old valise bulging with snow, ice, frost, sleet, howling winds and frigid temperatures.

Ignoring a stiff breeze that whistles through the open door, he tells us for the umpteenth time to keep his room ready because he'll be back before we know it.

Was the ice in the channel last week moving toward Round Lake or away from it? One day the ice appeared to be drifting in and the next appeared to be drifting out. (See column page 4.)

Letters to the Editor:

Host appreciates hometown

Editor,

Growing up in Charlevoix and spending my summers there has been a very rewarding experience. This is why when I had to plan a formal for my fraternity I chose to do so in my home town. I was very proud to bring my brothers to Charlevoix. I am pleased to say that the citizens of my home town did not let me down. Everyone was very impressed with the friendly atmosphere in which I grew up. The beauty of Charlevoix was also noticed by the members of Lambda Chi Alpha and all agreed that the title "Charlevoix the Beautiful" is well deserved.

The weekend of March 30, 1990 helped me realize how fortunate

I was to grow up in a community like ours. Every citizen of Charlevoix should be proud of where they live because they have every right to be.

Sincerely,
Norman L. Carlson, Jr.

Pool supported

Editor,

The Get in the Swim Campaign received an inspirational boost to its efforts to provide a community indoor swimming pool for Charlevoix with the news from Naples, Fla. regarding a near-drowning experience by Kathryn Breighner and her two sons. She gave full credit to the Harbor Springs Pool when she was quoted in a front page story of April 6th News-Review as saying, "Thank goodness for the Harbor Springs Pool. My children were water familiar and I was in good shape."

Peg Ohle reports on highlights of Arizona

Editor's note: Courier writer Peg Ohle and her husband Bill recently vacationed in Arizona. The following story contains Ohle's observations of some of the more interesting facets of the state.

by PEG OHLE

Thoughts from an Arizona Vacation

Pima County, Arizona (county seat, Tucson) is 2,000 miles from Charlevoix County, Michigan, but the headline in the Tucson newspaper could have appeared in the Charlevoix Courier:

"Supervisors (County Commissioners). Split on Proposal for Big Private Landfill."

The story is about Waste Management, Inc. seeking permission to build a private landfill on 613 acres of land just outside of Tucson. This is the same company that operates the private Cedar Ridge Landfill on 100-plus acres in Marion Township, just outside of Charlevoix.

One county official said he believed consumers will pay more to get rid of their garbage and to clean the environment if a private landfill is approved. "I'm worried about consumer costs and county taxpayer liability if we have a private company operating a landfill over which we have no control," he added.

Another county official took a different view: "The county would have to spend at least $30 million to develop a new landfill when the present one is filled up. I don't think the taxpayers want to spend $30 million for waste disposal."

Pima County has a population of more than 600,000; Charlevoix County has a population of just more than 20,000. Pima County is desert land; Charlevoix County is a land of lakes and streams. But the garbage disposal problems of both counties are painfully similar.

We were impressed by the recreational activities offered by Pima County. In one small mining town, adults could participate in arts and crafts, exercise classes, anatomy (diet and nutrition) classes, Spanish classes, square dancing, "fun" walks, and swimming classes.

For young children, there are dances, field trips, and special events. There's something called "Mouseercise" for kids four to nine years old and T-ball for the same age group. Even tots are not forgotten. Every day from 12:30 to 2:30 there's some kind of activity for them at the Recreation Hall. Junior High boys have a baseball program and Junior High girls can participate in softball. Senior citizens use the town's Recreation Hall for arts and crafts, exercise classes and the daily meals provided by the federal and state governments as they are in Charlevoix County.

We visited the Palo Verde Nuclear Plant, not far from Phoenix, which is the newest and largest nuclear plant in the United States. We saw a motion picture on nuclear power and took a bus ride around the grounds to get an idea of the size of the operation. The one outstanding feature of this facility is that it buys the sewage effluent from two Phoenix communities, purifies it, pipes it 36 miles, and uses it to cool the nuclear plant. This conserves local groundwater, which is an especially precious commodity.

Arizona was once an important copper-producing state, but most of the mines have long since been abandoned. One of the most interesting old mining towns we visited was Jerome, where the first claims were staked out in 1876, and which became one of the great copper-producing mines in the world. It is propped on a 30-degree mountain side.

tainside 2,000 feet above the Verde Valley floor in central Arizona. Jerome once had a population of 15,000 people who lived in company houses perched at varying levels on the road leading to the top of the mountain. Much of the city remains today the same as it was in its glory days, but with some buildings slowly toppling down the mountainside. The whole town is really an outdoor museum providing a living picture of rough and tough mining life.

The Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum near Tucson is not only a world-class zoological garden, but a treasury of living plants of the Sonoran Desert region. Animals live in areas as much like their native habitat as possible and are in easy view of the public. A baby mountain goat was born in the zoo while we were there. The display of desert plants, all identified, can supply a wealth of knowledge about cacti, succulents, bushes, and trees foreign to northerners.

Those who have been devoted to movies and television stories of the Old West know about Wyatt Earp and the big shootout at the OK Corral in Tombstone, Arizona on October 26, 1881. Tombstone is within driving distance of Tucson, and the town has been restored to look like its old self, with wooden sidewalks in front of the still-standing OK Corral and the century-old Bird Cage theater which sported elaborate box seats.

Down the road from Tombstone is Boothill Cemetery, where 250 persons were buried in the 1870's and 1880's, including the three killed in the famous shoot-out. In addition to the names on the tombstones, the cause of death is contained in a pamphlet identifying the graves.

Delia Williams, 1881. Suicide. Colored proprietress of a lodging house on Toughnut Street. Suicide by taking arsenic. — Alfred Packrell, 1881. English. He was a young miner, aged 23, who died from inflammation of the bowels. — "Freddie Fuss, 1881. A small boy who died from drinking stagnant or poison mine water."

"Jos. Wetsell, killed 1881. He was stoned to death by Apaches. His friends were not far away, and it was thought the Indians wanted to avoid attracting their attention by shooting him." — "Johnnie Blair. Died of smallpox and a cowboy threw a rope over his feet and dragged him to his grave." — "Hancock Shot 1879. Shot by John Ringo when he made a disparaging remark about some women."

Kiti Peak National Observatory is located about 80 miles southwest of Tucson. The 6,875-foot peak has the largest single collection of optical telescopes and instrumentation in the world, with telescopes ranging from 36 inches to 158 inches. One of the telescopes, that of the McGraw-Hill Observatory, is operated jointly by the University of Michigan, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Dartmouth College. Kiti Peak is on the land of the Tohono O'odham Indian Nation and is leased for as long as scientific research is conducted there. The Peak was chosen because it was possible to build a serviceable 12-mile road up the mountainside and because it is far enough away from any city lights that might detract from night-time viewing.

Professional services are widely advertised in Arizona by both the printed media and radio and television. Physicians, dentists, attorneys, nurses, and hospitals regularly try to sell their services. For example, an ad in a Tucson newspaper shouts, "Save Money. Today! Divorce $85. Wills $25. Bankruptcy $95."

There are 20 Indian reservations in Arizona, covering some 19 million acres of land. The Indian population of Arizona, representing 14 actual tribes, is nearly 160,000 people, and throughout the state the history and culture of these Native Americans is well preserved. The most common crafts of basketry, beadwork, pottery, silver crafts, and blanket and tapestry weaving are produced on the reservations and sold in retail outlets within the state and exported to other parts of

Legion Auxiliary hosts supper

The American Legion Auxiliary of Charlevoix announces its annual Spring Salad-Casserole Supper to take place from 4:30 p.m. to 7 p.m., Tuesday, April 24, at the Legion Hall on Garfield Street.

The cost is: $3.75 for adults, $3.50 for senior citizens, and $2.50 for children 10 and under. If you are an Auxiliary member and would like to help, or would like additional information on the April 24 supper, contact Katie Curtis, 547-6943. The proceeds from the Spring Supper help support the Auxiliary projects.

... report on Arizona vacation

the United States and the world. On still days when the air is trapped between the mountains of southern Arizona, pollution from the automobiles, industries, agriculture, and construction becomes apparent. Some of us who have observed the effects of smokestacks and city traffic on the environment may not have observed the effects of cultivating and spraying agricultural lands. Whether it is liquid insecticide applied to orchards or powdered fertilizer spread on dry sandy soils, a gust of moving air can quickly scatter the materials over the area. And construction taking place in arid regions can stir up enough dust and silt to make it necessary for workers to wear face masks.

One man's mansion can be another man's cabin. That's what we thought when we visited the Governor's Mansion in Prescott, the territorial capital of Arizona. This building was constructed in 1864 of crude ponderosa pine logs and housed several territorial officials who had been appointed by the federal government and sent from their homes in the eastern states to run the affairs of this newly-acquired land. There is no record of what they and their families might have thought about these living conditions, but perhaps they didn't object because most of the people of Prescott at that time were living in tents, wagons, or tough lean-to shacks. Arizona did not become a state until 1912.

We wondered about the price of houses in central Arizona so we picked up a brochure from a local real estate agent in Prescott. One ad read, "This 2 bedroom, 2 bath home in the pines sits on a large lot next to seasonal creek and common area for extra privacy. Home accommodates wheelchair. Fireplace and woodstove; too. $144,000." Sound familiar?

Many old picturesque commercial buildings still stand in Arizona, housing small stores, restaurants, or hotels. One such building, well over 100 years old, is the Cochise Hotel and Gift Shop, run by Lillie Harrington. Her rooms are available "by reservation only; please" and cost $20 a night single, $25 a night double, and $30 a night for a suite. She serves chicken and steak dinners in her dining room: chicken, $5.50; steak, $9.00.

While we in Northern Michigan may think nothing of hopping in our cars and driving 25 or 30 miles to shop or seek entertainment, those who live in rural Arizona often travel two or three times as far for the same purposes. Towns and services are far between.

But where do these rural people live? We drove for miles along country roads with mountains in the distance on both sides, and every once in a while 40 or 50 rural mailboxes were lined up along the road like sentinels, although no houses were visible to the naked eye. Native Arizonans seem to like privacy.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

Army Private 1st Class Paul R. Albertson recently participated in the NATO-sponsored exercise, Return of Forces to Germany '90 (REFORGER).

Albertson is a bridge crewmember with the 502nd Engineer Company, West Germany. He is the son of Mary M. Albertson of Ellsworth and a 1988 graduate of Ellsworth High School.

Private Joseph A. Seese has completed basic training at Fort Jackson, South Carolina. Seese is the son of Albert A. Seese and stepson of Joyce A. Seese of Ellsworth. He is a 1989 graduate of Ellsworth High School.

Karen Anderson of Charlevoix has been named to the fall Dean's List at Evangel College in Springfield, Missouri. Anderson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Anderson of Charlevoix. She is a senior majoring in management.

Ken Bartley, a teacher at Charlevoix High School, received a unique honor from Northwood Institute. He was selected as a Distinguished Teacher and was honored at a luncheon on the college's Midland campus.

Bartley was selected for the recognition by one of his former students, Debra C. Seelye of Charlevoix. Ms. Seelye was among honor students at Northwood who were asked to nominate the high school teacher who provided the most helpful influence.

Edgar A. Madden, provost of Northwood for the Michigan area, presided over the ceremony and presented the awards. He was assisted by Dr. Catherine Chen, academic dean for the Michigan campus.

Pool group meets Thursday

The Pool Steering Committee will meet at 5:30 p.m., Thursday, April 12 at city hall. Three recent resolutions of support from the Lake Charlevoix Association, Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, and Charlevoix Area Hospital Board will be read.

Larry Levensgood of the District 3 Health Department will give a presentation concerning pool technology and state laws regarding public pools.

The committee will also hear a report on a Get-In-The-Swim party and fundraising efforts. The meeting is open to the public.

CHURCH

John M. Boss

Former Charlevoix area resident John M. Boss, 72, died April 3, 1990, at his home in Stockbridge, following a long illness.

A private service was held Saturday, April 7, in Barnard. The Rev. Cecil Drost officiated.

Mr. Boss was born Aug. 11, 1917, in Barnard, the son of Fred and Anna (Aardema) Boss. He is survived by his wife, Betty; two daughters, Barbara Ferrington and Susanne Boss, both of Santa Rosa, Calif.; one son, Richard Boss of Massachusetts; six grandchildren; one sister, Margaret Martin of Charlevoix; two brothers, Clarence Boss of Ellsworth and Jerry Boss of Madison, Wisconsin.

Mr. Boss was preceded in death by a son, Charles, in Vietnam in 1967.

Helen L. (Edwards) Daggett

Helen L. (Edwards) Daggett, 62, of Ashley, MI died April 4 at Clinton Memorial Hospital in St. Johns.

Funeral services took place

April 7 at Smith-Carter Chapel in Elsie. Rev. Joe Pendleton presided.

Mrs. Daggett was born April 23, 1927 in Charlevoix. She was the daughter of Percy and Ruby Edwards.

Following graduation from Charlevoix High School she married Stanley Daggett, who died in 1963.

Mrs. Daggett was a homemaker and a retired beautician. She was active in the V.F.W.

Survivors include a daughter, Jean Daggett of Perinton; a son, Edward of Elsie; a brother, William Edwards of Bellaire; a sister, Bernice Knafle of Cheboygan; two grandchildren.

Daggett will be buried at Eureka Cemetery in Eureka. Services were arranged by Smith Funeral Homes. Memorial contributions may be made to Clinton Memorial Hospitals in St. Johns.

Episcopal plans special services

Christ Episcopal Church has scheduled several special services for the Easter season.

At 6 p.m., Thursday, April 12 the church will have a Holy Eucharist including foot washing and an Agape meal. An all night vigil will begin at 8 p.m.

The all-night vigil will conclude at 8 a.m. Good Friday, April 13. At noon, members of the Episcopal Church will join members of other community churches for a Community Worship Service hosted by the Community Church of God on Hurlbut Street. At 7:30 p.m., there will be another Holy Eucharist.

The church men's club will meet at 7:30 a.m., Saturday, April 14. At 7:30 p.m., April 14 the church will begin a Great Easter Vigil and will have a baptismal service.

Easter Sunday services will begin at 10 a.m.

The following Sunday, April 22 the Episcopal Church will recognize Earth Day in acknowledgement of man's stewardship of God's creation.

I have a good friend who never hesitates to tell me exactly what's on her mind. For instance, she is quite uncomfortable with the idea that this coming Sunday is known far and wide as Easter Sunday. She cites facts that the name as well as the custom originated in pagan traditions before it became "Christianized." In her opinion, we should call it Resurrection Sunday because that is the focus of the whole day anyway, that Jesus rose from the grave.

Whether you call it Easter or Resurrection Sunday, I do hope you understand that Jesus' triumph over the grave is indeed what the excitement is all about. Look up Matthew 28:6-7. There are four little words in those two verses that you ought to underline and remember.

Come God has always been calling us to come. Come back to a right relationship with Him. Come back for the hope and courage you need to face each new day. Come and let Him love you.

If you know Jesus, then come to church this Sunday and worship Him with all your heart. Give Him the full measure of devotion He deserves. If you don't know Jesus, come to church this Sunday and find out what it is that brings people to God's house week after week.

SEE God has never wanted us to have any doubt about His plans for our lives. He has never wanted us to have any doubt about His power. In viewing the empty tomb, we can see for ourselves that God has wondrous things in store for those who will believe.

If you are a Christian, then you have seen and you do know what the touch of God brings to your life. If you are not a Christian, God is prepared to meet you where you are and help you see for yourself the difference He can make.

Go Sometimes the church has been known to forget its main purpose. As much as its fellowship is sweet and being together is like family, it was never meant to be a blessing that we keep to ourselves. We are called to action. We are called to reach out. The same care that made us come and see about the love of the Lord compels us to go and reach out.

TELL Jesus wanted Mary to quickly let the disciples know that all that he had promised them had come true. Out of the darkness of Good Friday's crucifixion, out of the emptiness of that lonely Saturday, the reality of that Resurrection Sunday morning would change them for all eternity.

If you know Christ, those four little words, come-see-go-tell, ought to bring great joy to your heart. If you have not met the Lord, my pastoral colleagues and I would invite you to come and see for yourself what Easter is all about. We believe God will give you something very special to go and tell your friends about.

The proposal detailed in the diagram above calls for a fast-food restaurant and automatic carwash to be constructed at property currently occupied by the former Fireside restaurant. The proposal received city planning commission approval Monday evening.

Planning commission approves proposal for Fireside property

A proposal to build a fast-food restaurant and an automatic carwash on property currently occupied by the former Fireside restaurant received planning commission approval Monday evening.

The restaurant, which is located on South U.S. 31, has been out of business for more than a year. The purchaser of the property is U.S. Appraisal and Research Corp.

Local surveyor John Ferguson spoke on behalf of the purchaser at the planning commission meeting. William Boring of U.S. Appraisal and Research Corporation was also present.

The restaurant will be housed in a small building to the north of a second building which will house the carwash. (See diagram above.)

The name of the restaurant which will be in the building has not been determined yet. Planning commission chairman Clem Olach asked Ferguson how many people the restaurant would seat. Ferguson said the maximum number of seats would be 12.

Planning commission members also questioned the number of parking spaces proposed, but in reviewing the prdinance determined that the proposal meets zoning requirements.

The project developer is not requesting any variances. A motion to approve the proposal received a favorable vote from all planning commission members except Carol Sullivan who was absent from the meeting.

Housing project stalled

by PEG OHLE

Plans for a moderate-income housing project in Charlevoix Township were stalled Monday night when the Township Board denied a rezoning request for 3.9 acres of land near Stover Road.

The request to change the zoning from agricultural and commercial to multi-family (R-4) was made by the Stover Creek Partnership, in which John Campbell and Glenn Kenney are the principals. The rezoning was to be the first step in making it possible for the Brooks-Dietz Development Company to proceed with plans for a 48-unit project on the property.

Last week, the Township Planning Commission's vote on the rezoning ended in a 2 to 2 tie due to the absence of Commission member Larry Porath, who submitted a letter supporting the rezoning. Planning Commission members John Haggard and Nancy Rajewski voted in favor of the rezoning and members Bunny Goss and Jan Glass voted against it.

Also last week, the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, which acts only in an advisory capacity, recommended the rezoning of the property in question. In his statement of recommendation, County Planner Larry Sullivan noted that "a need does exist for multiple-family housing in the greater Charlevoix area (and) the infrastructure for the most part exists at this location, and the R-4 use will provide a good buffer between the R-2 and C-3 uses that are currently in the area."

The property is located near the site of the proposed K-Mart store in an area which is rapidly being developed. The portion of the property presently zoned agricultural is the old railroad grade. The rest is zoned commercial. The only property in Charlevoix Township presently zoned R-4 is on the north side of Stover Creek, which is partially developed. The property owners may again request the rezoning because of the expressed need for moderate-income housing in the area. However, Township Planning Commission member Jan Glass reports that the updated Township Master Plan, due to be completed in early summer, will make more R-4 zoned land available. The preliminary site plan for the Stover Road property called for three separate buildings housing 24 one-bedroom apartments and 24 two-bedroom apartments.

Several months ago, Brooks-Dietz sought the rezoning of a parcel of property on Mercer Boulevard across from the Char-Ein Intermediate District School for a similar moderate-income housing project, but that request was not granted because of fears of traffic congestion on a narrow road.

At the public hearing prior to the Township Planning Commission meeting last week, traffic congestion was also mentioned as a problem with the proposed project, as were environmental problems. The latter included construction of a new bridge across Stover Creek, the removal of trees, and the lowering of the bluff.

The need for moderate-income senior citizen housing in the area has been a subject of concern for some time. Although several high-income condominium units have been built in recent years, only one moderate-income apartment complex has been completed, the Harbor View Apartments on Petoskey Avenue.

Brooks-Dietz has built several moderate-income apartments in Boyne City and financed them through the Farmers Home Administration. This agency lends money at a low rate, making it possible for the builders to pass on their savings to apartment renters.

Extension to conduct survey

During the week of April 16 through April 20, representatives from the Charlevoix County office of the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service will conduct a random sample phone survey. The purpose of the survey is to find out about how hazardous and other toxic substances are used and stored in the home, and also to get a better idea how these materials are being disposed of in Charlevoix County.

More than 1200 names have been chosen at random to participate in the survey. Answers to survey questions will be kept strictly confidential and will be used for survey purposes only. The phone call should take approximately five minutes.

Rural Electric Association opposes federal budget proposal

Michigan's rural electric cooperatives oppose Bush Administration proposals to terminate Rural Electrification Administration (REA) direct loans and to substitute them with partial guarantees.

"Direct loans from REA at low interest rates are very important to Michigan's rural electric cooperatives who average only six consumers per mile of line compared with 40 or more for urban utilities. Because of the disadvantages and higher costs of serving rural areas, access to low-cost capital is crucial," said Raymond G. Kuhl, executive vice-president of the Michigan Electric Cooperative Association (MECA). The co-ops passed the REA resolution at the MECA annual meeting April 2-3 in Lansing.

The MECA board also passed a resolution urging adequate state funding for energy assistance programs offered by the Department of Social Services (DSS) for 1990 and 1991, noting that severe reductions in DSS energy assistance funding during 1989 are putting undue pressure on utilities.

Under the current plan, DSS no longer reimburses utilities for unpaid bills of DSS clients over a specified amount. To recoup the losses, the utilities say they may be forced to raise their rates.

"The co-ops feel it isn't fair to levy a tax upon utility ratepayers, many of who are low to modest income but above DSS eligibility requirements. It is inequitable, and in fact, is a hidden tax," said Kuhl.

In another resolution, the co-ops urge they be exempted from the "onerous law and burdensome regulations" of the new Commercial Drivers Licensing (CDL) law saying it could handcuff their efforts to make line repairs and restore service during storms and other outages because of time-off requirements in the rules.

MECA is the Lansing-based statewide service organization for 13 electric cooperatives. These member-owned utilities provide power to 500,000 people in 58 counties.

Ostling and Ehlers cited for rural electric work

The Michigan Electric Cooperative Association honored State Sen. Vernon Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids, and State Rep. Ralph Ostling, R-Roscommon, with its "Legislator of the Year" awards during the group's 13th annual meeting April 2-3.

The Michigan Electric Cooperative Association honored State Sen. Vernon Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids, and State Rep. Ralph Ostling, R-Roscommon, with its "Legislator of the Year" awards during the group's 13th annual meeting April 2-3.

Sen. Ehlers was recognized for his "progressive and diligent work to improve the environment and the economy of Michigan; and (his) support of the consumer-owned electric cooperatives' efforts for an energy-efficient future."

Sen. Ehlers, 54, is in his second term. He is chairman of the Natural Resources and Environmental Affairs Committee, vice chairman of the Health Policy Committee, and is on the Education and Mental Health and Economic Development committees.

MECA recognized Rep. Ostling for his "special efforts to provide adequate energy assistance to rural electric member families; and (his) support of the cooperatives' concerns in this difficult issue."

Rep. Ostling, 61, is in his ninth term. He is minority vice chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

MECA is an organization of Michigan's consumer-owned electric cooperatives, which serve more than 500,000 people and cover half the state's geographic area.

Grant workshop offered

A basic grants writing workshop will be offered at the Traverse Bay Intermediate School District on May 9, 1990 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The workshop is open to individuals who have the responsibility for writing grants or are interested in improving their grant writing skills. At the end of the workshop, participants will have developed the major sections for one proposal suitable for submission. The grants writing workshop is sponsored by the Northern Lower Michigan Leadership, Teaching and Learning Consortium. Please call 922-0748 for enrollment information.

Grassfire danger increases

Editor's note: Grassfires as they are known locally, or wildfires as they are called by the Department of Natural Resources, are always overabundant in the spring. This past weekend local fire departments responded to grassfires to both the north and south of town. The following news release explains some of the problems caused by grassfires and some precautions which can be taken to prevent them.

Wildfires are a serious problem Michigan faces annually, especially in April and May before green-up of vegetation occurs and throughout the year when dry conditions exist.

During the past two weeks, DNR firefighters fought 16 wildfires that burned 456 acres in several counties, statewide. Careless burning of outdoor debris and sparks from faulty equipment were major causes of these fires.

"It's imperative each of us remember that state law prohibits open burning," said Hales, "unless we first obtain a burn permit from our local fire agency every time we burn debris, such as leaves, grasses and brush."

In some instances, local ordinances ban all open burning. To help safeguard a home from wildfires, the following safety tips are offered:

Two winning designs, selected from several thousand entries submitted by northern Michigan third grade students this past winter, will be reproduced as posters to help promote wildfire safety.

Use fire-resistant shingles and skirting around foundations and porches.

Provide easy access to your house for fire trucks; have the house number clearly visible from the street.

Keep roof and gutters clear of leaves and pine needles. Install a park arrester screen, with holes no larger than 1/4 inch, over fireplaces or wood stove chimneys. This will prevent sparks from igniting debris on the roof and gutters.

For further information regarding open burning regulations, contact the DNR Forest Management Division at 517-373-1275, or the DNR Air Quality Division at 517-373-7023.

Prune the branches off all conifers (spruce, pine) to 6-10 feet above the ground.

Store all firewood and other flammable materials at least 25 feet from any building.

Public hearing scheduled on Elm Street proposal

A proposal to shift the west end of Elm Street 130 feet to the south will be the subject of a public hearing at the April 16 city council meeting.

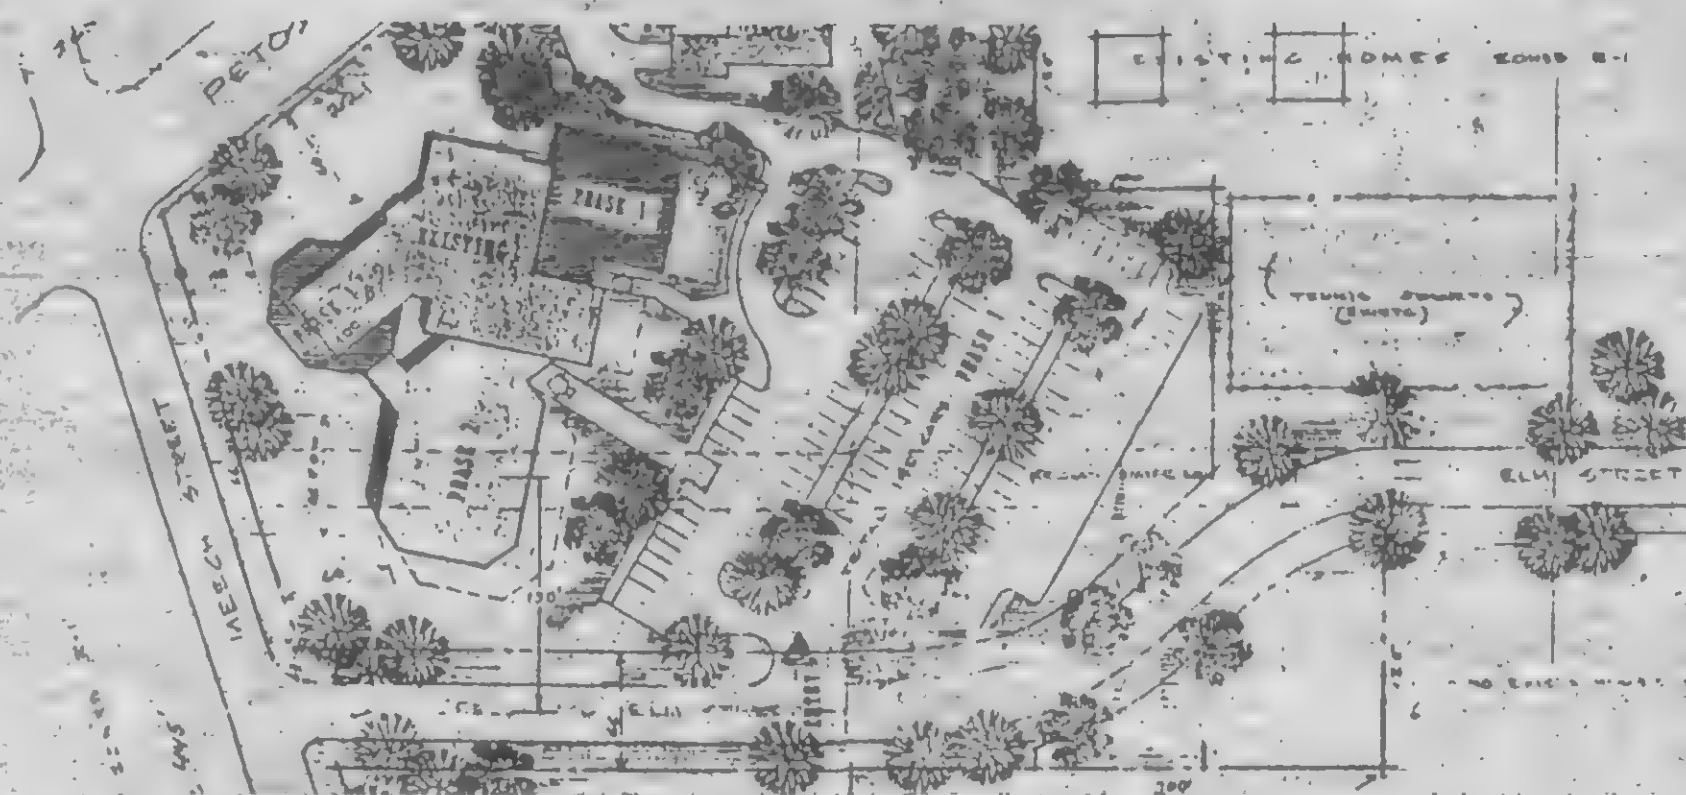

At the city council's Feb. 19 meeting, the council passed a resolution of intent to vacate a portion of Elm Street.

The Community Reformed Church wants to add to the southern end of the church where the end of Elm Street is presently located.

Last year, church representatatives initially requested the city consider closing the west end of Elm Street and leaving a turn-around near the city tennis courts. The city council did not accept that proposal.

The current proposal jogs Elm Street to the south between the tennis courts and Meech Street. If the proposal is adopted, Elm Street would intersect Meech Street approximately 150 feet north of the west end of Cherry Street.

A proposal to shift the west end of Elm Street will be the subject of a public hearing during the April 16 city council meeting.

Eagle population continues climb

Director David Hales of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) announced that Michigan citizens reported 350 eagles wintering in Michigan during the Jan. 4-18, 1990 census.

This is the largest winter eagle count since the survey began in 1979, when only 30 eagles were reported. Reports were submitted by 478 people from throughout the state. Last year, people reported 217 eagles during the two-week January census.

"We thank everyone who responded to our request for winter eagle sightings," Hales said. "We are pleased with the public support for eagles, and even more pleased that the number of nesting and wintering eagles is increasing in Michigan." Wintering eagles, which could be seen in any county, are most frequently sighted near areas of open water or scavenging on car-killed deer or other animals along the highways.

The eagles tended to winter farther north in 1990, with 206 eagles reported from the Upper Peninsula counties, 129 eagles were reported from northern Lower Peninsula counties, and the remaining 24 were from southern Lower Peninsula counties.

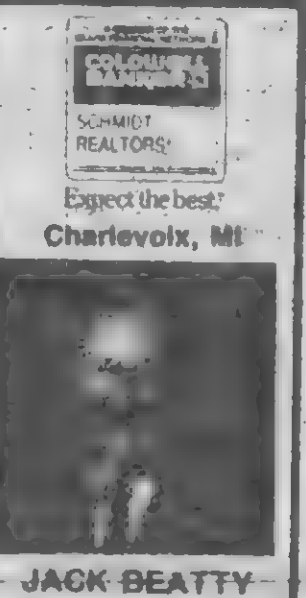

Despite the cold weather in December, most of the eagles remained in the northern parts of the state.

Much of the eagle work done in Michigan is financed through citizen contributions to the Nongame Wildlife Fund on the state income tax form. Michigan residents can help bald eagles and dozens of other non-hunted wildlife and endangered plants and animals by "Looking for the Loon" on their state tax form and giving to the Nongame Wildlife Fund.

Michigan is not the only state debating school finance

Editor's note: The following opinion story was supplied by the Heartland Institute, an Illinois based organization which authors stories on issues of public debate. Although the story refers to the educational funding debate in Illinois, a very similar debate is taking place in Michigan.

Several prominent spokespersons for Illinois' public education establishment have renewed an old campaign against local financing of schools. Reliance on property taxes to fund education, they say, violates the goal of equal educational opportunity for all children. Increased state funding is in order, they allege, to reduce the variance in spending levels between the state's wealthiest and poorest school districts.

We need to examine this criticism of local financing closely, if only because local financing has been so persistent in the face of such attacks. The closer we look, the more "spending equalization" shows itself as a red herring - a false issue thrown up to cloak the real motives of its advocates.

The goal of spending equalization, we are told, is equal educational opportunity. This is a noble goal in many ways. Certainly many children today are denied the opportunity to attend schools that might best meet their needs. And certainly the quality of some public schools is so terrible that the opportunity to learn inside their walls must be severely restricted.

But the advocates of spending equalization assume that equalizing spending will move us closer to the goal of equal educational opportunity. There are strong reasons to doubt whether this is true.

The educational process is complex and subtle. Its elements may vary dramatically from student to student, classroom to classroom, and school to school, even when funding is perfectly equal. This is because much of what influences student achievement is intangible: Strong instructional leadership, a safe and orderly climate, schoolwide emphasis on basic skills, high teacher expectations for student achievement, and intensive parental involvement are among the key factors identified by the many scholars who study such things.

Equalizing spending would affect only a few of these factors, and even then only the least important ones. Consequently, scholarly research has repeatedly found that spending and the factors most affected by spending are not related to student achievement. For example, a recent survey of 130 empirical studies by E.A. Hanushek found "the available evidence suggests that there is no relation between expenditures and achievement of students, and that such traditional remedies as reducing class sizes or hiring better trained teachers are unlikely to improve matters."

In light of this evidence, most proponents of equal educational opportunity now support other kinds of reforms that are more likely to improve the quality of schools. Such alternatives abound. Many states now allow parents to select which public school their child attends; others allow parents who contribute to or pay tuition at a private school to deduct the cost from their state income taxes. The City Club of Chicago recently endorsed a plan to give parents scholarships redeemable for the cost of tuition at any school, private or public. Similar plans have been circulating for many years and are endorsed by prominent educators and academics.

But the equalizers have little interest in such innovations as choice or vouchers. Indeed, most of them opposed Chicago's historic school reform aimed at empowering parents. Why do they cling to the cause of spending equalization when so many other, superior, options exist? There appear to be two reasons.

The first is simply self-interest. Spending equalization is often no more than a disguise for salary increases for its advocates or their constituents. All the advocates of equalization want to "level up," not down. This is hardly the first time a high-sounding principle was used to line a pocketbook, and it wouldn't be the last.

The second reason is that equalization would reduce local control over schools. Spending equalization invariably means having the state increase its share of school finance. When more decisions are made in Springfield, where teachers unions and the education bureaucracy are strongest, fewer decisions are left to be made by parents, principals, and teachers. This is good news for the administrators and bureaucrats who would get to distribute the new state dollars, since their share of total educational spending would undoubtedly rise.

But equalization is bad news for classroom teachers, principals, and parents who are more interested in educating children than in accumulating power. These educators and parents will lose the opportunity to try new teaching methods or curricula, and to reward success and move away from failure. Parents, especially, will lose because they will find themselves once again cut off from influencing the day-to-day operations of their local schools. Equal educational opportunity is a goal worth pursuing, and it makes sense to pursue it through reforms that reward good schools and penalize poor schools. Such reforms encourage the adoption of practices and methods proven over the years to be most effective.

The way to improve the education of all children in Illinois is through choice and local funding, not spending equalization. Now, why didn't the spokespersons for the education establishment tell us that?

Law Day activities planned

Law Day activities will take place this year on Tuesday, May 1. Various programs will be co-sponsored by the Emmet-Charlevoix Bar Association and the Emmet-Charlevoix Legal Secretaries Association.

In some area third grade classes, students will act out the mock trial "Goldilocks and the Three Bears". This format helps introduce the judicial process to young children through a familiar story.

Some students in area high schools will view a video tape of a drunk driving mock trial. District Judge Harvey Varnum will portray the judge in the video tape, and several area attorneys will be on hand at the schools to answer questions.

The annual Law Day Luncheon will be held at Stafford's Perry Hotel in Petoskey at noon on Tuesday, May 1, 1990. This luncheon, attended by the legal community from Emmet and Charlevoix counties, will honor this year's recipient of the Liberty Bell Award.

The theme of this year's Law Day is "Generations of Justice". Many programs will be presented across the country under the direction of the American Bar Association.

Drenth moves to William and Mary

Drenth, 30, a 1981 graduate of CMU, was named MAC "Coach of the Year" in each of the last two cross country seasons after guiding the Chippewas to league titles and appearances in the Named regional "Coach of the Year" last fall, Drenth also has led the Chippewas to three straight Central Collegiate Championships. Drenth has coached individual MAC champions Ron Johnson, Bill Taylor and Geoff Goolsby, while Taylor and Goolsby also achieved All-American status.

"When you think about the resurrection of cross country at Central Michigan, you think of Walt Drenth," CMU head coach Jim Knapp said. "He'll have an impact at William & Mary. I'm very happy for him and sad for CMU and myself. He's been a great friend and that certainly will never change."

"It's a little easier to leave knowing that there's a group of young guys coming up who are willing to succeed. They have a lot of potential," Drenth said. "I've had a great time at Central Michigan and I've gained a great deal of knowledge here. I've always had tremendous support and I appreciate Central giving me the opportunity to coach."

Following his graduation from CMU, Drenth coached high school cross country in Charlevoix, then Ypsilanti, before returning to his alma mater as a graduate assistant in 1985. A 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School, Drenth ran on the cross country and track teams at CMU.

Major League players who have not played in the Major League prior to this season should plan to attend try-outs from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. April 14 in the high school gym.

Elm Street shift approved by council

Following a public hearing, the city council voted Monday evening to shift the west end of Elm Street 125 feet to the south. The shift will affect the portion of Elm Street between Meech Street and the city tennis courts.

The Community Reformed Church requested the shift to allow them to build an addition onto the church. Jeff Ricks represented the church in discussions with the city council which began last year. The church will bear the cost of moving the street and the water line below the street.

People living in the neighborhood affected voiced both opposition and support for the proposal at the public hearing.

Connie Doan of 105 Oak Street said, "If you're going to make major changes, they should benefit the city. I don't see where this is going to benefit anybody but the church. I have a problem with that."

Warren Shapton of 107 Cherry Street said changing the street to accommodate the church sets a dangerous precedent. He said he felt the church's problems could be resolved by changing the church's design plans for expansion rather than by changing the street.

Curt Thompson of 204 Park Row said he had no problem with the street being shifted and noted that the church has been a good neighbor for many years.

First ward councilmembers Bill Haggard and Cheri Hoffman said they had talked to people in the neighborhood prior to the meeting and found the majority do not oppose the shift.

The motion to shift the street passed 4-0. Councilman Jim Potter abstained. Councilman Butch Russell was absent from the meeting because he was called to jury duty in Grand Rapids.

Students prepare for prom Saturday night

High school couples dress so fine that a peacock would feel humble in the midst of them. It's prom time.

Charlevoix High School's junior class will host the 1990 prom this Saturday evening at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Petoskey.

The theme of this year's prom is "Welcome to the Jungle," taken from the song of the same name by the musical group Guns and Roses.

"It's going to be different," Stacey LeCureux, Junior Class President, said of the prom theme.

In keeping with the theme, a prom king and queen will be crowned with wreaths made of flowers. A hut and palm tree are included in the prom decor.

The junior class is spending approximately $1,500 to sponsor this year's prom. They and their class advisors, Pat Drost, Charlie Bentley and Diane Dreyer have also spent countless hours getting things organized.

"It was a lot of work so it'll be exciting to see how it turns out," LeCureux said.

The prom will be separated into two segments. The dance, which will be deejayed by KHQ and last from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., will be followed by breakfast at Nannys from 2 a.m. to 4 a.m.

Tickets to the prom cost $25 per couple and that price includes breakfast.

Tickets are the low-cost item on the list of prom expenses. Ballpark prices for larger expenses include: $50 to $75 to rent a tux; $100 to $200 to buy a dress; $60 for dinner, but that can vary depending on where a couple goes.

Approximately 200 students and two dozen chaperones are expected to attend this year's prom.

New Rayder bus proposed carries $90,000 price tag

by WENDI WRIGHT

Transportation was the main topic of discussion Monday night, as the Charlevoix Board of Education met in regular session.

Representatives of the Sports Boosters proposed that the school board purchase a new activity bus, similar to the present "Rayder Bus," to be used to transport students to and from athletic events, band events, Performing Arts tournaments, etc. According to Gordy Russell, bus garage supervisor, the Rayder Bus, which currently carries students to most activities is 22 years old, and will have to be retired soon.

"We call it the Wonder Bus," he said. "You always wonder if it's coming back or not." He added that a number of parts on the chassis have had to be replaced in the past few years due to rust, and that the bus is overwhelmed with mechanical problems.

Dale Boss highlighted the benefits of the new proposed bus, which he had researched at the request of the Sports Boosters. Boss had been instrumental in the purchase of the Rayder bus 22 years ago. He told the board that the bus he was recommending would cost approximately $90,000, but would probably last 25 years. He added that the board could work out a payment plan; in thirds, for example, to ease the burden of the total cost.

Boss said he thought the purchase of a new activity bus was cost-effective, as it would spare the route busses wear and tear, and because the bus he was proposing was designed for highway driving, and therefore, would get better gas mileage than a route bus.

Russell added that if he were to use regular busses for athletic trips, he would have to send a second vehicle to carry the equipment, as regular busses do not

Fulton recalls early days of Charlevoix taxi service

by GEOFF REYNOLDS

With summer soon approaching in Charlevoix many local inhabitants are gearing up for the yearly arrival of tourists and resorters. In 1990 they will arrive by cars, busses, and airplanes. But in the early days of Charlevoix these people arrived by large passenger ships such as the South American or the train. After they arrived in Charlevoix they had local men deliver their luggage and themselves to the hotels or summer cottages for a quarter a ride. One of these local men was Myrtle O'Neill Fulton's father, Edward O'Neill.

"My father got into the taxi business while working for Henry Wood. Henry had bought George Burns' livery stable when it was still just horses and wagons for transportation. The stable stood where Bridge Park is now, next to the Martin Block Building. Mr. Block used to have a grocery and meat market. When George Burns owned it, he kept the horses downstairs at street level and also in the lower section, and he lived upstairs in an apartment. They used to bring the horses into the livery stable from the street level door and down some ramps, designed with cleats to prevent the horses from slipping. They also used to come into the lower level sometimes I think.

"Henry Wood started using cars for taxi service when he still had horses for this purpose. He had the dealership for Dodge cars, until he let it go to Ben Brown, after his health started to fail. That is why most of the cars and busses he used and later sold to my father were Dodges.

"In the winter, even when my father owned the business, they still used horses for the winter taxi service. They used the horses because the car and bus taxis couldn't travel in the snow and up the hills as good as the horses could, particularly the hill that led down to the train depot. So my dad had to get up quite early to get the horses ready to meet the early trains, loaded with passengers. They used sleighs to haul passengers and some baggage they might have had with them.

"In the warmer months they used cars and busses mostly, so they always took the horses back out to George Burns' farm, and he would keep them until the winter months returned. They then used the lower level of stable for storing the busses and car taxis.

"My dad's competition was across the street, down near the bridge. The man's name was Fowler. I don't think he taxied in the winter. He only used cars, no busses like my father did.

"My father also used to taxi people from the boat docks. He would pick the people up at the dock where the Beaver Island Boat Company dock is now. My father would leave the taxi building and go down the alley to pick them up and take them where they needed to go - either to the Beach Hotel, the Belvedere Club Resort, Chicago Club Resort, or maybe the Hallett Hotel. He also delivered people to their private homes if they lived there and were returning from a trip.

"My father also used to haul the bob sleds back up the south side hill on Bridge Street in the winter months. The people used to ride the sleds all the way to the bridge and then my father would tow about two sleds back to the tip of Bridge Street hill and the riders would walk back.

"In the summer time, usually on Sunday afternoons or in the evenings, he and the other drivers would taxi people out to Horton Bay for dinner. This was a big deal for the summer people to go out there to eat at the Dillworth Inn and the Red Fox Inn. The drivers used the Dodge busses and would haul about seven or eight people at a time to the inns. My father also would take the family to Horton Bay in the fall for dinner, when the summer people had left and the taxi business was slow, usually on Sundays.

"We also used to use the busses to travel to the local berry patches. We would collect some of the neighbors and head off to the patches with our lunches.

"Some of the men that drove the taxis for my father were Lynn Sheldon, Verell Seymour, Donald Swinton, and some others. They drove our five taxis and about three busses.

"One day, when a driver had parked on the hill next to the livery-taxi barn, one of the cars, a Studebaker, slipped its brake and it rolled down the hill and into Round Lake. We never used it again because of the fishy smell it took on while in the lake."

Sadly, along with the fish smell of Round Lake went the large O'Neill's taxi service and with it a simpler time in Charlevoix.

...new school bus proposed have room to store things above or below the seats, as the Rayder bus does.

Rich Kelly, school business manager told the board that the budget was not strong, and that with things like cleaning up the contaminated soil from the gas tanks at the bus garage, and the possibility of asbestos removal from school buildings coming up, he didn't think there was hope of improvement.

One person asked if there was any money left over from the transportation millage levied last fall. Kelly said that there was approximately $60,000 left after the purchase of eight buses earlier in the school year. He added that money has to be spent on transportation.

Max Novak, board president, turned the matter over to the transportation committee, and suggested that the committee meet with Kelly and Gordon VanWieren, school superintendent, to discuss the Sports Boosters' proposal. Bob Jess, president of the Sports Booster, requested that representatives of the Sports Boosters, the Band Boosters, and the Performing Arts Boosters meet with the committee as well. The board agreed.

While on the topic of transportation, the board approved $9,997.56 for the purchase of a two-way radio system for the bus fleet. VanWieren prefaced the discussion before the vote by stating that the system was "strictly for the safety of the students; something should be done and done soon." He said that there had been a number of instances this year in which the need for a bus radio system had been made very apparent.

In other business, the board approved $14,712.75 for the purchase of new carpeting for the public library. The bid was awarded to Bartlett's Decorator Center of Charlevoix.

Committee appointed by county to review allocated millage levy

A nine-person committee appointed by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners will meet soon to allocate millage to the political units and schools of the county for the next four years.

Serving on the committee are James S. Shepard and Richard Speck, representing the Char-Em Intermediate School District; Thelma Behling of Boyne City, representing county schools; Alan Deneau of Melrose Township, representing the townships; Ralph Richardson and Don Voison of Charlevoix, representing the public at large; and County Treasurer Joan Balch and County Commissioner Larry Matthew.

Millage was last allocated in 1986, when 15 mills were divided as follows: 4.7 mills for county government, 9.1 mills for public school operation, 20 mills for Intermediate Schools operation, and 1 mill for township governments.

This allocated millage is supplemented by political units and school systems through millage that is voted by residents of each school district and political unit.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Hoping for good behavior

We took the baby to church for the first time Sunday. This was not done, quail-free. The behavior of a five-month-old is predictable in that it's a fair bet it probably won't be too good.

Prior to the service, as I pulled up a pew next to my father, I gestured toward the baby and said, "We'll see how this goes. Being quiet isn't necessarily her strong suit."

"Did you tell her before you left home that she had to be quiet for an hour?" dad asked. "Sarcasm is something I come by honestly."

"No. I just went outside and spat into the wind. I figured it'd be about as useful," I replied, not to be out-sarcasted.

Before the service even began, the baby let out a few warning squeals. I believe there's a place in the Bible where it says something about "make unto the Lord a joyful noise." From past experience, I knew the type of squeals the baby was making weren't a prelude to a joyful noise. She was tuning up to wail.

We probably should have anticipated that the baby wouldn't like waiting for the church service to start. As an adult, you realize you're just going to have to do, and tolerate, a certain amount of waiting in life. Babies don't tolerate idleness. They demand nonstop action and entertainment.

Grandma, a.k.a. "the baby magnet," was holding the baby when the fussing began. She took the baby out into the lobby for a few minutes. Apparently, the baby either liked that or at least didn't holler loud enough so she could be heard in the church sanctuary.

After the service got started, grandma and baby returned.

The baby behaved fairly well as long as there were things happening that she could watch or listen to.

All of the people stood up to sing a hymn and that left the baby perplexed. Prior to the service, when she'd started to sing a little solo, dad and mom gave her sideways looks and Grandma picked her up and carted her out the door. Now, everybody in the place was standing up to sing. Kind of left the baby with a confused self-image? She didn't know whether to consider herself a troublemaker or a trendsetter.

After the singing, some fellows walked down the isles and passed some dishes around. The baby watched this with interest.

She'd seen dishes before at home, but these were a little different. These church dishes were kind of a cross between a plate and a bowl. People put stuff in these dishes, but nobody ate anything out of them.

As one of the dishes went past her, the baby tried to get at least a good look at what was inside. She wouldn't have minded even grabbing the edge of the dish and getting a feel for the thing. Or maybe even chewing on the edge of it a little. But it was not to be. Mom and Grandma made sure to steer the dish clear of her reach.

After some more singing, everybody sat down and a guy up at the front of the room stood up and started to speak.

The baby listened to the guy talking for a few minutes. Since he seemed to be getting the message across pretty well without her help, she figured it wouldn't hurt anything if she went to sleep. (A note of caution: this rationale only passes muster for babies and shouldn't be tried by adults.)

After a while the baby woke up, refreshed and ready to face the world. She decided she'd initiate a conversation with Grandma.

The baby let out a gurgle which Grandma ignored. The baby doesn't like to be ignored so she reached out and grabbed Grandma's nose to get her attention. A few more gurgles and some chattering and Grandma scooped her up and headed for the lobby again.

Once more, the baby found herself to be a trendsetter. A few minutes after she and Grandma went to the lobby, all of the people joined them there.

She sat on Grandma's lap and grinned at some people as they put on their coats. Then, mom and dad put on her sweater and bonnet and hauled her home.

This going to church for the first time had been an adventure. But then, for a baby, every day is an adventure.

Pool supported

Dear Editor:

I would like to write a letter in support of the pool project in Charlevoix. I believe that the unique location of this community on three lakes makes it imperative that swimming be a priority for our future needs. I learned to swim in Florida which has one of the longest shorelines in the United States, but also the most pools. People use the pools for instruction, pleasure and health. The citizens of Charlevoix need to come to terms with our swimming needs and a year-around program is a must. Safety is a special concern of mine. Anyone who has lived around the water as much as I have knows that you cannot plan on being safe all of the time. Weather, water conditions and proximity to the water put our lives at risk. How many people walk along the channel every day who do not know how to swim? I took a fall two weeks ago near the bridge. Thank goodness I know what to do, and I have no fear of the water, but I do have great respect for our lakes and of the dangers associated with them.

Charlevoix has a long swimming tradition. When I moved here in 1960, my parents insisted on a swimming program for me. I took private lessons from the lifeguard at Lake Michigan Beach and later I was certified in water safety by Joan Nelson, a local homeowner and graduate of Charlevoix High School. Joan is currently Senior Professor of Physical Education at Ferris State University. I taught swimming in Charlevoix for many years, as did Marilyn Novak, Sis Olmstead, and Coach Terrill. Saying that a person does not need to learn how to swim in Charlevoix is like refusing to wear seat belts in an automobile. You can get away with it, but it does not make sense.

The pool as proposed should be located at the elementary

Making sense of census

Despite the use of modern technology — including battalions of computers — the 1990 Census is shaping up as a monumental snafu.

Not only households but whole communities have been overlooked.

The town of Kinross in the Upper Peninsula was not included, because the Census people thought it was still an Air Force Base.

The Air Force moved out more than a dozen years ago.

Furthermore, the response to Census questionnaires has been disappointing, according to Barbara Bryant, director of the Census Bureau.

Only 57 percent of the Census forms have been returned by mail, which means that households that haven't responded will have to be contacted in person — at far greater cost.

"The effort has been plagued with reports of foul-ups, confusion, missed addresses, housing units that exist but are not on the Census list, undelivered forms and other problems," according to United Press International.

Why such problems?

Bryant blames several sociological factors, including dual-career couples and the proliferation of junk mail. I guess the members of a two-income family are too busy to fill out forms. As for junk mail, a lot of it must go in the waste basket without a second glance — including Census forms.

According to advance publicity, families who received the short Census form should be able to fill it out in 15 minutes. The longer 89-question form takes about 45 minutes.

The Census people weren't kidding. Judy and I got the longer form and it took us a good 45 minutes, including information on how much we spend a year on electricity. Fortunately, I had an electric bill handy and multiplied the figure by 12.

ADMITTEDLY, taking the U.S. Census is a gargantuan task. More than any other people in the world, Americans are constantly on the move and many maintain more than one residence. Just look at the number of Charlevoix residents who spend the winter in Florida and Arizona.

How do you count the number of fish in a dime store aquarium without going bananas?

I believe the Census would be progressing more smoothly if local units of government were involved in hiring enumerators and staking out districts to be canvassed. After all, this is their home turf.

Since state and national representation is based on the Census and since government funds are doled out on the basis of population, communities might be tempted to overstate their numbers in order to gain a bigger voice in government or more federal and state dollars.

But I think that that temptation would succumb to the average citizen's inclination to be honest — particularly if his neighbor is looking over his shoulder and counting along with him.

If mailed forms are a problem, perhaps we should go back to the old door-to-door canvass entirely. It probably would cost more and involve a lot of night work, but the results certainly would be more accurate — and hence more valuable to anyone who deals with Census figures.

Is the Census worth the cost and trouble?

Of course it is.

We live in a representative democracy and accurate Census figures are essential to equal representation.

But from here it appears that the 1990 figures are going to be under suspicion for the rest of the decade.

As expected, big cities already have filed notice that they are unhappy with the count of inner-city residents and minorities. They are going to ask for adjustments.

ASIDE FROM representation and revenue sharing, does the Census have any practical value?

Sometimes. Years ago my mother, who was born in Canada but who had derivative American citizenship, was asked by over-zealous immigration officials to prove her nationality or get out. Census data, laboriously hand-written in handsome Spenserian script, indicated that the family maintained a home in Detroit long before she was born.

The immigration people backed off.

Summer concert series scheduled

The Northwood Orchestra, under the direction of Don Th. Jaeger, will celebrate its 12th season with the opening of a new performance site near Charlevoix, Michigan. The Barn at Dunmaglas, located on Boyne City Road, will greatly expand the Northwood season. The highly successful concert series held at The Festival Tent at Black Forest Hall, in Harbor Springs, will continue. This year's festival runs from July 14, through August 4.

A distinguished roster of soloists includes Van Cliburn gold medalist; Alexei Sultanov of Russia, who will appear at the grand opening of the Barn (one night only) 8 p.m., July 14. Sultanov made his U.S. orchestral debut with the Northwood Orchestra last year.

Because of his high regard for Maestro Don Th. Jaeger and the orchestra and because of his love for the area, Northwood will be the only orchestra in the country to have Mr. Sultanov two consecutive seasons. This rising star's performance last summer in Harbor Springs received repeated encores. This season Sultanov will play the Tchaikovsky Concerto for Piano, No. 1 in B-Flat Minor, Op. 23.

Jazz legend Dave Brubeck and his quartet will appear Aug. 3, in Harbor Springs and Aug. 4 in Charlevoix. Northwood Orchestra's executive director Christine Goedert said "We are most excited to announce our expanded Music Fest Season" and that we are now able to present internationally acclaimed artists like Dave Brubeck.

Garfield will be the star of the family concerts in Harbor Springs and Charlevoix July 18 entitled, "Music is My Life." The performance features the larger-than-life sized Garfield and his pal Odie.

Back by popular demand is the New Reformation Dixieland Band, July 30 in Harbor Springs and July 21 in Charlevoix.

Completing the pops series will be a "Salute to the Boston Pops" July 27 and 28. The concert will feature the music of Arthur Fielder and John Williams.

The classic series will feature Northwood Orchestra musicians including Mark Ackerman, oboe; Frank Kuwalsky, clarinet; Berry Stees, bassoon; and Robert J. Hoyle, horn, performing Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante in E Flat Major, Tuesday, July 17 in Harbor Springs and Thursday July 19 in Charlevoix.

Catherine McMichael will perform the Franck Symphonic Variations for Piano in Harbor Springs on July 24 and Charlevoix on July 26.

The Northwood Orchestra is a professional orchestra composed of outstanding musicians from throughout the United States. Since its establishment in 1979, as the resident orchestra for the Northwood Institute Music Fest, a concert series held annually in Harbor Springs, and Charlevoix, the Northwood Orchestra has expanded its scope to include performances in major cities with celebrated guest artists.

Two New York appearances highlight the orchestra's impressive history. In 1981, Don Th. Jaeger, Music Director and Conductor, led the Northwood Orchestra and the critically acclaimed Canadian Brass in a concert of 20th-century music at Avery Fisher Hall. The Orchestra returned to New York in 1983 to perform in Carnegie Hall for the presentation of the Albert Schweitzer Music Award to Van Cliburn.

A number of internationally recognized artists have enjoyed appearing with the Northwood Orchestra, including Celeste Holm, Leontyne Price, Lorin Hollander, Jose Feghali, Yuri Egorov, and Alexei Sultanov. Led by Aaron Copland, the orchestra performed the television premiere of Copland's "Tender Land" on PBS "Opera in America."

school. My children learned to swim at their elementary school in Lafayette, Indiana. Having a pool located at the school gives every member of the community, young and old alike, a wonderful opportunity to interact with one another. It already is happening at the elementary school. It is a true community center right now. I am presently taking an aerobics class under a Vital Options program for teachers at the school and I am amazed at the activity that takes place there daily. I knew about voting and the dances there that my husband and I used to chaperone, but it was a revelation for me to see the walkers, the classes after school that take place, the sports (volleyball and basketball, not to mention the playground) and the friendly atmosphere at the school. Vane Smith has certainly created a feeling of welcome that extends to all members of the community. This is a school that never sleeps.

I know that we will get a pool in Charlevoix. It is a good idea and a responsible need in our community. I am willing to help pay for a resource that will enrich us now and be an important legacy for our children and grandchildren. Please join me in supporting the pool, and leave lane one open for me!

Thank you,

Drenth wins Medusa scholarship

Nicole Drenth has been named to receive a Medusa Corporation college scholarship. Drenth, a senior at Ellsworth High School, is the daughter of Chet and Marlene Drenth. Her father is a repairman at Medusa's Charlevoix cement plant.

Drenth is one of three students to receive Medusa scholarships this year. The other two students are from Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Along with an excellent academic record, Drenth was active in several high school extracurricular programs. She was Student Council president in her junior and senior years, president of Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD), her senior year and active in Campus Life, her church youth group, cheerleading and basketball.

Drenth is the third Charlevoix student to win a Medusa scholarship in recent years. Others were Jill Raecke who will soon graduate from Albion College and Daniel Staubin who is attending the University of Michigan.

Scholarships are awarded on a competitive basis by a committee of three people who are not employed by the corporation. This year the committee consisted of a university professor, a university admissions officer and a high school principal.

Scholarship awards are for $2,000 for the freshman year with annual renewals for the normal years of the college program, providing the student maintains high academic proficiency, a full schedule of classes and otherwise remains in good standing at the college or university of their choice.

Time to register kindergarteners

Kindergarten registration for fall 1990 classes is scheduled for May 8 and 9.

This year's registration will include a 90-minute mini-kindergarten class for the children to give them an idea of what a day at school will be like.

There will be four mini sessions during the two days: morning sessions from 9:00 to 10:30 and afternoon classes from 1:00 to 2:30. Parents must reserve a space in one of the four sessions by phoning the elementary school office at 547-3215.

While the children are in class, parents will meet in the gym to fill out the necessary paperwork for registration.

Parents must bring in the following information to register a child:

- A certified copy of the child's birth certificate, i.e. a copy from the county clerk's office with an affixed seal, not a church, baptismal or hospital record.

- Up-to-date immunization records.

- Social security numbers for father, mother and child.

- A photograph of the child. (The photograph will be returned at a later date.)

The Charlevoix Board of Education recommends that children entering kindergarten be five years of age by Sept. 1, 1990. If the child is to be registered and will not be living with the natural parents, it is required that guardianship papers or court placement papers be presented to school personnel at the time of kindergarten registration.

For additional information concerning kindergarten registration, contact the elementary school office.

School hosts goal-setting meeting

The Charlevoix Board of Education is inviting students, parents, teachers, administrators and any other interested people to a goal setting session which will take place from 9 a.m. to noon, Saturday, April 21 at the high school study hall. Anyone who would like to have input in setting goals for the Charlevoix school system is welcome to attend.

The diagram above depicts a side-view of a 16-unit residential complex proposed for 301 Michigan Avenue. The city council heard comments on the project during a public hearing Monday evening. The public hearing will be continued at the council's April 30 meeting. Josh Barnes, of the Dunes Condominium Association, contends the project may cut off pedestrian use of the beach. John Campbell who is working on the project design says the only on times of high water would pedestrian beach access be affected.

Michigan Avenue proposal discussed

A public hearing concerning a proposal to replace an office at 301 Michigan Avenue with a 16-unit residential structure will be continued at a special city council meeting at 7 p.m. April 30.

The property is owned by Thomas Pointner. John Campbell of Site Planning Development has spoken on the project's behalf before the city council.

At a March 19 meeting, the council voted 3-2 in favor of rezoning the property from professional office to multi-unit residential. However, the rezoning failed because a two-thirds vote (4 votes on the council) is needed for rezoning approval.

Council members Pat Gaskin and Jim Potter voted against the rezoning. As a reason for her opposition, Gaskin said that the amount of high density development Charlevoix has had exceeds what is needed for healthy growth.

At a subsequent council meeting, Gaskin indicated that after further review she was unsure that rezoning would hold up if challenged in court. Against that backdrop, she said she would be willing to reconsider the matter.

There was also some question concerning whether appropriate public notice had been given prior to the March 19 hearing.

This past Monday evening, the city planning commission discussed the proposal prior to the city council meeting. However, the planning commission made no recommendation either for or against the proposal and will take it up again prior to the April 30 council meeting.

With no recommendation from the planning commission, the council voted to continue the public hearing at a special meeting April 30.

Despite the continuation, there was a brief discussion Monday evening.

Josh Barnes, president of the Dunes Condominium Association, said he fears the public could lose the ability to walk on the beach between Mount McCausa and the north pier.

"People have walked that beach for years," Barnes said.

Campbell said there will be room on the beach between the western edge of the project and the waterfront except in high water conditions. He said people will be able to walk on the beach in front of this project just as they walk on the beach in front of the LaCroft and Dunes complexes.

William D. Taylor

Former East Jordan businessman William D. Taylor, 77, died April 13, 1990, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral was 2 p.m. Monday at the Paulin Funeral Home, East Jordan. The Rev. David Downton officiated with interment in Sunset Hill Cemetery, East Jordan.

Mr. Taylor was born Aug. 23, 1912, in East Jordan, the son of William and Elsie (Meyers) Taylor. He graduated from East Jordan High School in 1930 and on Jan. 29, 1940, he married the former Mary Ellen Johnson in Petoskey.

Mr. Taylor was owner and operator of the Taylor IGA in East Jordan from 1942-72. The business is now known as Carey's Corner Market IGA.

During the 1950's, Mr. Taylor was an East Jordan councilman. He was past chairman of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners and was a member of the East Jordan Chamber of Commerce and Snowmobiler's Club.

Mr. Taylor was a 32nd Degree Master Mason and a member of the Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F.&A.M. He was a member of Saladin Shrine Temple and Northwest Shrine Club.

Mr. Taylor was instrumental in starting the East Jordan Little League and he enjoyed music and all sports.

He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. James (Judith Kay) Vivian of Alpena; a daughter-in-law, Louise Taylor Bergmann of Charlevoix; five grandchildren, John Holcomb, Jim Vivian, Jodi Vivian, William J. Taylor IV and Douglas Bergmann.

He was preceded in death by a son, William J. Taylor III in 1963; a brother, Chris Taylor in 1958 and a sister, Audrey Taylor in 1915.

The family suggests memorials to the east Jordan Ambulance Fund.

Baptists to host special meetings

The Safe Harbor Southern Baptist Church will host a series of special "Spring Break" renewal meetings April 22-25.

BEACONS

by PASTOR JOE JOHNSTON

I've often wondered what is the significance of praying lengthy prayers. Jesus chastised the pharisees for praying lengthy, open to be seen, prayers in public. But in His example prayer in Matthew 6 He gets right to the point on every line.

Even though the Easter Holy-Day has come and gone, let us look back to one of the prayers that Jesus prayed on Good Friday. As He hung on the cross the very first understandable words were not words of rebuke, condemnation or reproof. They were not phrases to bring deliverance to Himself or excuses for His shame. His very first words were directed at His enemies in the form of a prayer, "Father, forgive them."

His enemies, those who accused him; those who crucified Him; these were the ones He wished to be forgiven for their crimes against God. He prayed for their welfare.

Three simple words with such power: "Father, forgive them." His prayer was a direct fulfillment of Isaiah's prophecy that the suffering servant would make "intercession for the transgressors" (Isaiah 53:12) and it puts his own teaching into practice. "Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you." (Matthew 5:44)

A new question comes into the picture. Did God instantly forgive these people? I think not! If he would have forgiven them He would have been acting against His own plan. "Without repentance there is no remission of sins." What then? Was Jesus, God's son, praying in vain? Not at all! I believe He was simply asking the father to withhold the immediate judgement these people so rightly deserved. Jesus was expecting them, in the future, to realize what they had done. The Bible tells us that God is not willing for any to perish, not even one, not even the enemies of His son.

Just as salvation has been promised to those who are obedient, judgement has been promised to those who willfully choose to live in disobedience. Let us be reminded that we must continue to pray, not so much for forgiveness for others, but for God to hold back His judgement,

The Charlevoix County Transit system is seeking entries for its annual poster contest. The entry deadline is 5 p.m., May 11. The competition is open to people of all ages and is broken into four age categories.

The winner in each category will receive a $100 savings bond. Second place finishers will receive $50 savings bonds. The grand prize, for the best overall entry, will be a $200 savings bond.

Rules for the contest include: all entries must have a theme, sites, points of interest or annual activities in Charlevoix County; any medium can be used, such as watercolors, oil paintings, photographs, posters, etc.; all entries must be reproducible; entry size shall not exceed 24 by 24 inches.

All entries should include contestant's name, address, phone number and age group.

The address for the Charlevoix County Transit system is P.O. Box 725, Boyne City 49712.

Church presents Easter drama

More than 900 people attended three performances of "The Victor," a dramatic Easter Cantata performed at the Assembly of God Church this past weekend.

The drama is a simple and short version of the life of Christ. It highlights the crucifixion, resurrection and ascension.

A total of approximately 60 people were involved in the show's choir and cast. Pam Kilander directed the cast while Steve Stargardt served as musical director. Each performance lasted about an hour.

Assembly youth pastor Joe Johnston said the church is planning to do future productions. "This is the first one (we've done) of this magnitude and we were very pleased with the turnout," he explained.

More people would have seen the show, but the church, which holds 300 people, was filled to capacity Friday evening and people had to be turned away.

In addition to the Assembly of God performance, the Praisemakers youth choir from Truro, England was in town for Easter weekend. They performed at the community Good Friday service, at Greensky Hill and at the United Methodist Church.

Sarah and Jessica Dominic portrayed two of the characters in the Assembly of God production of "The Victor." The girls are the daughters of Dennis and Bonnie Dominic.

CPI tax abatement approved by council

The city council has granted CPI Products Inc. a tax abatement for improvements and expansion at the plant.

CPI is located in the city industrial park and manufactures pressline automation system components such as rubber rollers and vacuum cups, cast urethane products and aluminum mounting arms and machine castings.

The tax abatement granted by the city is for 50 percent of the increase in State Equalized Value (SEV) due to the improvements and will be in effect for a 12-year period.

The end result of the abatement is that instead of paying taxes on an SEV increase of $208,750, CPI will, for the next 12 years, pay taxes on an SEV increase of $104,375. When the abatement expires, they will pay taxes based on the full SEV increase.

CPI is planning to make $417,500 (the $208,750 SEV figure cited above is half of that) in improvement and expansion at the plant. Of that $417,500, building improvements will account for approximately $150,000 and new machinery and equipment will account for $236,000. Land improvements, furnishing and fixtures account for the remainder. According to the abatement application, the plant currently employs 23 people and the expansion is expected to create six additional jobs within the next two years.

The city has a tax abatement policy which uses a point system in determining if an abatement should be granted and how much the abatement should be for. Among the items considered in the point system are: number of jobs created and retained by a project; project construction costs; installation of an automatic fire protection system; and beautification of the project site beyond zoning requirements.

Of a possible 210 points, the CPI project scored 135. According to city policy, anything more than 110 is eligible for a 12-year abatement.

All of the council members present at Monday evening's meeting voted in favor of the abatement. At an earlier discussion of the matter, mayor Gary Probert said he supported the abatement and said he hopes it will send a message to the business community indicating that Charlevoix is willing to work with business people in bringing new jobs to the community.

Grange plans activities for Grange Week

Members and friends of the Barnard Grange will celebrate National Grange Week beginning next Sunday, April 22, and continuing through Saturday, April 28.

At 7:00 Sunday evening, Grange Chaplain Jessie Cunningham will lead the group in singing popular hymns, and later in the evening the Grange's Community Citizen's award will be announced. This award is presented annually to a person or persons who have served the community with an extraordinary amount of volunteer time and effort. Last year's Community Citizen's Award was presented to Lou and Rita Orlovski of Charlevoix.

Grange officer Shari Jones is in charge of the presentation. On Wednesday evening, tables at the Grange Hall will groan under an array of potluck dishes prepared by members. After the 6:00 potluck dinner, the Junior Grangers will present a program on Mexico under the direction of Ginger Stevens. This will be followed by a presentation by Grange members of the history of the Grange from its founding to the present day.

The National Grange was founded in 1867 to protect farmers from some of the wrongs brought about by the Civil War. The Barnard Grange was founded in 1889 and will mark its 101st birthday in June with 205 members.

Saturday evening will be another night of entertainment for the Grangers, with Jasper and his Tag-a-Longs providing music for dances of all types and instruction in square dancing, the waltz, the polka, and "other steps."

"Everybody is welcome to attend all events," Grange Master Rod Stevens says of next week's festivities. They will all take place at the Barnard Grange Hall at the corner of Barnard and Klooster Roads.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

"Winter Warmth," and exhibition of paintings by senior Kathleen Buday, will be on display in the Gallery of the Night Fine Arts Building at Kalamazoo College through April 20. Gallery hours are 3-5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Admission is free.

Buday used settings from her native Charlevoix as the subject for her 12 oil paintings. An art major with a minor in French, Buday studied for six months during her junior year in Clermont Ferrand, France, under the College's foreign study program. She also completed a career internship at the Art Institute of Chicago. Following graduation, Buday plans on pursuing a career in commercial art. She is the daughter of Joan and Edward Buday.

School bands schedule concert

Instrumental music students from Charlevoix High School and Charlevoix Middle School Eighth Grade will present a Spring Band Concert at 8 p.m., Tuesday, April 24, in the high school gym. A variety of musical offerings will be programmed by the two school bands.

The eighth grade band will open the concert with the three selections which were performed at the junior high school band festival held in March. Also on the eighth grade program will be a selection of highlights from the musical "The Phantom of the Opera" by Andrew Lloyd Webber.

The high school band will begin their portion of the concert with the three selections which they will perform at the state band and orchestra festival in Lansing. The high school concert will also feature solos by trumpeter Matt Stargardt and flutist Jake Porath who recently received first division ratings at the state solo and ensemble festival held at Ferris State University. The concert is open to the public free of charge.

McDonald's March Crew Member of the Month ANGELA REICH

The Charlevoix McDonald's crew and management would like to congratulate March crew member of the month, Angela Reich. Angela has worked at McDonald's since July 1988. When asked what she liked most about her job her reply was, "The people I work with." Congratulations Angela!

Waste company concerned about county siting criteria

by PEG OHLE

A portion of the Charlevoix County Solid Waste Management Plan is being objected to by Waste Management, Inc., operators of the Cedar Ridge Landfill in Marion Township.

The company believes that the county's criteria for placing landfills within the county are "excessive when compared to Act 641 (Solid Waste Management Act), other counties' criteria, and are probably unworkable," wrote William J. McDonough to county officials.

Specifically, Waste Management objects to the 2,000 feet isolation distance for surface water ("20 times the distance required by Act 641") and 500 feet if the surface water body is an intermittent stream which would only carry storm water runoff.

"Requiring 500 feet of isolation from intermittent streams seems to make it impossible for a landfill to get rid of surface runoff after a rainfall," Waste Management believes.

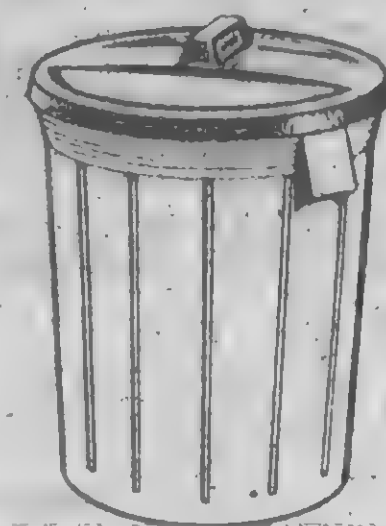

"We recommend changing the criteria to 2,000 feet of isolation from Lake Michigan, Lake Charlevoix, and Walloon Lake, and using the DNR regulatory distance for all other surface water," the company urges.

The final paragraph of McDonough's letter could be construed as a warning: "The landfill siting criteria which you have adopted could be interpreted as an attempt by Charlevoix County to prevent future landfill siting in the county. As you are aware, Cedar Ridge has 4-7 years of remaining life. The criteria you have adopted, along with the position the county commissioners have taken on inter-county waste transfer, could potentially leave the people and industry of Charlevoix County without a place to dispose of their waste after the currently permitted area at Cedar Ridge is filled."

Waste Management also does not like the requirement in Charlevoix County's Solid Waste Plan that landfills must comply with local zoning ordinances. "Act 641 placed responsibility for siting landfills at the county level. By placing landfill siting approval back at the local level, I think the county is shirking their responsibility for solid waste planning," McDonough states.

The Charlevoix County Solid Waste Management Plan, which contains the above recommended siting criteria, is in the hands of the DNR in Lansing awaiting that agency's approval.

The DNR has also received copies of Waste Management's letter to Charlevoix County.

Sean Ferguson and Timothy Plagge of Charlevoix are among more than 200 degree candidates eligible to participate in Alma College's 1990 commencement.

The commencement ceremony begins at 2 p.m., Saturday, April 21, in Cappaert Gymnasium. Dr. Cordell Wynn, president of Stillman College in Tuscaloosa, Ala., is the commencement speaker.

Ferguson is the son of John and Glenda Ferguson, 08354 Mercer Blvd., Charlevoix. He is a candidate for a Bachelor of Arts degree in history.

Plagge is the son of Dr. Merle and Mrs. Barbara Plagge, 02825 Barnard Rd., Charlevoix. He is a candidate for a Bachelor of Science degree in biology from Alma College.

Both are 1986 graduates of Charlevoix High School.

Albion College senior, Jill C. Raacke, daughter of Michael A. Raacke of 113 Eaton Avenue, Charlevoix, participated recently in the College's Eighth Grade Visitation Day. Albion College students served as "buddies" for the eighth graders to give them a taste of college life.

Raacke is a 1986 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Historical Society meets

The first regular, monthly meeting of the year of the Charlevoix Historical Society will be held at 7:30 p.m., May 1, at Harsha House, 103 State Street.

Members will hear the first report by the Historical Booklet Committee. There will be a question-and-answer session, as well as requests of all members for input for the publication. The booklet will be used for the Museum guests and as a guide for walking tours throughout Charlevoix.

Work on the restoration project of the Reception Room in Harsha House should be completed soon. All members are urged to attend this initial meeting of the year.

Island school selected for study

Beaver Island Community School has been selected as one of 50 schools throughout Michigan to participate in the Michigan Accreditation Program.

The Michigan Department of Education and the Bureau of Accreditation working with the School Improvement Studies at the University of Michigan are implementing an elementary and junior high-middle school accreditation system for statewide use.

Selected from over 250 schools which applied to serve as one of the first 50 schools, Beaver Island Community School will take part in a four-phase study which will include a visitation to the school by teachers, administrators and other educators April 16-18, 1990.

Specializing in elementary or junior high-middle school education, the visiting team members will serve as a validation team for the school. One of their tasks will be to review the school's self-study, part of the first phase of the study which is now completed. This involved the collection of basic school data and a self-evaluation which school faculty has completed.

The visiting team will also interview school personnel on topics such as instructional programs and materials, school facilities, community relations and a school improvement plan. The results of the self-study and interviews will be reported back to the school to allow local school personnel the opportunity to develop a list of strengths and weaknesses.

Early next fall, the faculty of Beaver Island Community School will then review the various kinds of indicators which they will use to demonstrate growth in the school program. Possible indicators are standardized test results, school attendance rates, school climate and community involvement.

Beaver Island Community School's faculty and staff will begin to develop a School Improvement Plan throughout the 1990-91 school year. Included in the plan will be measures for determining success in correcting a weakness as well as a plan for continuing to strengthen current outstanding programs within the school.

Equalization department to finish numbering program

by PEG OHLE

Perhaps the Charlevoix County numbering system has finally found the place where it belongs.

After almost 12 years of being bounced from department to department, completion of the system last week was assigned to the Equalization Department. The rationale for turning the job over to the Equalization Department was that the department has all the necessary descriptions of properties within the county, as well as detailed maps of property locations.

The numbering system has been under the jurisdiction of the Building Codes Department for the last several years, where it was brought near enough to completion to make the final touches and prepare the information for use by emergency services agencies and perhaps other organizations.

There are still some areas in the county where number changes will have to be made. There are also several hundred private roads where the houses have not been assigned numbers.

Since the Building Codes Department does not have the equipment, none of the numbering information has been computerized. That is now being done by the Charlevoix County Clerk's office, which will complete the work shortly and turn the information over to the Equalization Department.

According to Equalization Director Joan Blanchard, her department will spend the next couple of weeks reviewing numbering system files and organizing the material for future use. Eventually all house numbers will be transferred to maps showing the exact location of the houses.

School Carnival April 27

A night of family fun will be featured at the annual Charlevoix Elementary School Spring Carnival 5:30-8 p.m. Friday, April 27, at the school.

The carnival, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Organization, raises funds for special school projects. In the past it has funded the purchase of playground equipment and other special equipment for the school.

This year the carnival will feature games for children of all ages with new and improved prizes for all players. Pizza by the slice and salads also will be available along with hot dogs, popcorn, ice cream and cookies.

Grand Traverse County has a house numbering ordinance which sets forth the provisions of the system and explains how the system works. Maps are an important part of this system, too.

To make it simple for builders of new houses to receive a house number, Blanchard will use an application form which must be filled in with name of the deed holder on the property or land contract buyer, property code number or property description, and returned with a zoning permit and site plan.

Eileen McDonough, who did most of the work on the numbering system in the Building Codes Department, will spend part of each week in the Equalization Department helping to complete the project.

Fireside plan receives approval

A development plan which will allow a fast-food restaurant and carwash to be constructed on property currently occupied by the former Fireside restaurant received city council approval Monday evening.

The site plan which was presented by John Ferguson on behalf of William Boring and U.S. Appraisal and Research Corp. meets all city zoning requirements and previously received approval from the city planning commission and state highway department.

During a public hearing on the site plan, Tim Whippe of Town Carwash located on the corner of Bridge Street and Carpenter questioned the setback for the proposed carwash from the road. He said that water remaining on the cars after they're washed might create an ice problem at the end of the driveway and on Bridge Street.

That concern had also been raised at the planning commission meeting. Ferguson said he had discussed that question with Boring and that after the carwash drying process, less than a pint of water will be left on a car.

Other people owning property near the site said there have occasionally been sewer and water

City manager said the existing lines should be able to handle the flow, but that the city will check on the problems and correct them.

According to the site plan, the property owners planned to put sidewalks across the driveway portions of the property. The council requested that sidewalks be put in for the entire length of the property, Ferguson said. Boring is willing to do that.

A motion to accept the site plan passed 4-0 with Cheri Hoffman abstaining and Butch Russell absent.

Building increases in county

The number of building permits issued by the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection during the first quarter of 1990 totalled 105, compared with 89 during the same period last year. Construction costs of work covered by these permits is estimated at $2,450,396.

Fourteen permits, the largest number for any political unit, were issued for work in Bay Township. In descending order:

permits were also issued as follows: Hayes Township, 11; Eveline Township, 10; Wilcox Township, nine; Boyne City, eight; East Jordan, eight; Peaine Township, seven; Melrose Township, six; South Arm Township, six; Charlevoix Township, five; City of Charlevoix, five; Norwood Township, four; Marion Township, three; St. James Township, three; Boyne Falls, three; Hudson Township, two; and Evangeline Township, one.

So far this year, no building permits have been issued for work in Boyne Valley or Chandler Townships.

Forty of the above permits were issued during the month of March, for construction work amounting to $1,054,982.

In addition to the 105 building permits issued during the first quarter, the Department issued 92 electrical permits, 34 plumbing permits, and 92 mechanical permits.

4-H sponsors donkey basketball

The Charlevoix County 4-H Council will sponsor a donkey basketball game at 2 p.m. April 29 in the Boyne City High School gym.

The game will feature several local people including Charlevoix County prosecutor Kraag-Lieberman, attorney Robert Hoffman, county youth activities director Mike Davis, KHQ deejays Mark Cage and Tom Pluister and Courier editor L. Scott Swanson. District judge Harvey Varnum will emcee the event.

Advance tickets for the event cost: $3.50 for adults and $2 for children (sixth grade and under) and senior citizens.

Preschoolers will be admitted free.

Advance tickets are available at Charlevoix and Emmet County extension offices and at Moores Hardware in Boyne City.

Tickets at the door will cost $4 for adults and $3 for children and senior citizens.

District Health Departments No. 3 and 4 are warning parents of the continuing danger of childhood diseases and strongly urging them to make sure that all of their children are fully immunized.

Brian Youngs, M.D., Medical Director, is especially concerned at this time because of the measles (rubeola) cases reported in Michigan. Since January first, 265 cases of measles have been reported in Michigan. One case has been recently reported in a student from Charlevoix County.

Measles is an acute, highly communicable disease characterized by fever, cough, runny nose, red eyes, red spots in the mouth and a rash. Measles can be a serious illness complicated by middle ear infections, pneumonia, inflammation of the brain, and death.

The Health Department strongly recommends a series of immunizations that should be started at 2 months of age. The series of immunizations should be given to a child before entry into elementary school.

Health records in some schools reporting suspected measles cases have been reviewed and parents notified of immunization deficiencies. However, the review is not complete. Therefore, parents must review individual vaccination records to ensure their children have received all immunizations on a timely basis.

A routine two-dose measles vaccination schedule now is recommended. The first dose is given at 15 months of age for children. The second dose is administered at the time a child enters kindergarten or first grade. Individuals born in or after 1957 and have no history of measles or measles immunization are considered susceptible to measles. Medical personnel beginning employment and individuals in colleges and other educational institutions post high school should also receive two doses of measles vaccine. Please note that measles immunization is given as measles, mumps, and rubella vaccine (MMR).

Parents should realize that these groups at most risk of measles (high school and college-aged individuals) are not being protected by current immunization practices or recommendations. The primary reason is economic. The cost of the MMR vaccine is between $25 and $30 a dose and the cost of an office visit may be $20-$30.

Hold onto those census forms

Beginning March 23rd, most of Charlevoix county residents received census questionnaires in the mail. Those residents should complete the census form and hold it until it is picked up by a census taker. Census enumerators will pick up questionnaires now through early June.

Concerns regarding the questionnaires surfaced when it was reported that some households discarded their forms because a census enumerator had not arrived by April 1st. To clear up confusion, collection of census forms BEGAN April 1st, Census Day, and may continue for several weeks. Also, residents should be aware that two different census collection procedures are being used in some counties to accommodate local conditions. Additionally, the national news media has described collection procedures that do not necessarily apply to Michigan's northern lower peninsula.

Individuals who did not receive a questionnaire, or who have misplaced their forms, will be provided with a new form when a census taker visits their household in late April to early June.

The Census Bureau is still accepting applications. Employment for follow-up operations are expected to last until June. Interested applicants should contact their nearest MESC office for further details.

Residents needing assistance with census forms can contact the Bureau at 1-800-999-1990.

PUBLIC NOTICE

PUBLIC HEARING

Charlevoix City Council

Monday, May 14, 1990

5:30 p.m.

City Hall, 210 State Street

The Charlevoix City Planning Commission will hold a Public Hearing on the above date and time to receive public comments, written and oral on the following proposed amendment to the City of Charlevoix City Code: The amendment is as follows:

PROPOSED AMENDMENT

SECTION 5.222, RESTORATION AND REPAIR

Section 5.222, RESTORATION AND REPAIR, shall be amended to read:

5.222, Restoration and Repair. Such repairs and maintenance work as are required to keep a nonconforming building or structure in a sound condition may be made in the event any nonconforming building or structure shall be damaged by fire, wind, an act of God, or a criminal act, it may be rebuilt or restored provided the cost thereof shall not exceed fifty (50%) percent of the true cash value at the time of the occurrence, the true cash value to be the current true cash value established as of the last annual assessment statement prepared by the City Assessor. Structures having historical significance which shall meet the requirements for listing on the Michigan Register of Historical places, shall be exempt from this requirement.

The Zoning Board of Appeals may grant a variance from this requirement, provided the variance is granted upon a finding:

1. That such rebuilding or restoration will not substantially extend the probable duration of such nonconforming use, or

2. That circumstances are such that the land occupied by such nonconforming use cannot be advantageously used for a use permitted in the zone.

3. That denial would deprive the property owner of a substantial property right enjoyed prior to being so damaged.

Judge confirms Round Lake boathouse decision

An administrative law judge has sustained a Department of Natural Resources (DNR) decision prohibiting the second floor of a boat-house on the north shore of Round Lake from being used for residential purposes. Certain ramifications of the case are pertinent to lakes throughout Michigan.

Chris Shafer, Chief of the DNR's Great Lakes Shoreline Section, said the DNR does not support constructing buildings over public waters for residential purposes and has denied permits not only in Charlevoix, but in other areas of the state. Shafer said he is "delighted" with the ruling of administrative law judge Frederick J. Griffith.

"It validates decisions we (DNR staff members) are making and our interpretation of the statute (the Inland Lakes and Streams Act)," Shafer stated.

The Round Lake case, which began in 1988, involves a boat-house owned by Herbert Dow. Dow sought to tear down an old boat house near the end of Burns Street and replace it with a new one.

Plans for the new boat-house called for residential use of one section of the building above the boats. Brad Wilkins, the DNR official in charge of reviewing waterfront projects in the Charlevoix region, denied a permit for the project because the plan called for residential use over the water.

Dow, through his attorney Scott Beatty, contested that decision and the matter went before Griffith.

WATCH (the acronym for Water, Air, Team Charlevoix) was admitted as an intervening party in the case. WATCH supported the DNR decision to deny the permit.

Attorney David C. Coey, who docks a boat in Charlevoix, volunteered the services of the Howard and Howard law firm to assist WATCH in the case. Mark Canady, another attorney in the Howard and Howard firm, did the legal research and represented WATCH at the administrative hearing.

Dow indicated his intention to appeal the DNR denial in April of 1988. However, due to a backlog of cases, the administrative hearing didn't take place until October of 1989.

During the year and a-half between the appeal and the hearing, Dow submitted an alternate boat-house plan which called for a storage, rather than a residential area, over the water. The alternate plan moved all of the residential area back on shore. Wilkins approved that plan and issued a permit, but appeal of the initial denial remained in effect.

Nine witnesses testified before Griffith at the October hearing. Wilkins and Hal Harrington testified on behalf of the DNR. Jerry Puhl, Norm Probert and Robert Silver testified on behalf of WATCH. Robert Yvon, David Chryst, John Campbell and Traver Wood testified on behalf of Dow.

In a 23-page opinion issued April 16, Griffith indicated that a key question in the case was: "Did the Department of Natural Resources exceed the scope of its delegated powers, or abuse its discretion, in denying petitioner's (Dow's) permit for the primary reason that a part of the boathouse structure would be used for residential purposes?"

Neither side argued about

Group seeks intertown snowmobile trail

A movement is afoot, or in this case a track, to establish snowmobile trails linking Charlevoix to East Jordan and Boyne City.

There will be a meeting at 7 p.m., Tuesday, May 1 at Alexander's to begin laying the groundwork for the trail.

"It's something which has been talked about for years," said John Ferguson, who is one of the people working to establish the trail.

The May 1 meeting is open to the public and organizers are hoping several people, particularly local business people, will attend. Ferguson said Charlevoix is a natural destination for snowmobilers since there are plenty of accommodations available and snowmobiling could boost the community's winter economy.

A trail between Charlevoix and East Jordan would link Charlevoix in the Jordan River Valley trail system and other trail systems which extend all the way to Mackinaw City.

John Fiedorek of Paul Bunyan Lanes is also involved in the trail effort.

Hospital plans health day

Charlevoix Area Hospital is opening its doors for a health day on Wednesday, May 9.

It will be a day for a spring health check-up. There will be free pulmonary function tests, hearing screening tests, and blood pressure checks. For $5 a total cholesterol test will be available and, for another $2 diabetes tests will be included. During the week from May 7 to May 11, women may schedule mammogram X-rays for just $50.

The event is tied to the hospital's participation in National Hospital Week. Richard L. Krueger, hospital administrator says, "The theme of hospital week is 'Count on us to care.' So, we decided to go all out to show that we really do care about the health of everyone in our area. We hope to make people aware of healthy living habits and the importance of regular examinations."

The American Cancer Society and Northern Michigan Hospitals will be on hand to provide new information regarding health issues and problems for all ages. The hospital will also distribute free colorectal cancer kits that can detect the possibility of colon cancer within the privacy of one's home.

Hours for the tests are varied. Munson Medical Center's Ear Lab will be on hand from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The pulmonary function tests, cholesterol, diabetes and blood pressure tests will be available from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. Diabetes tests should be done no sooner than two hours after eating. Tests will be done for those 18 years of age or older.

Mammogram X-rays will be conducted by women technologists in the hospital's new mammography room. These should be scheduled for May 7-11 by calling the X-ray department at the hospital. Participants should call their physician to have him send an order to the hospital for the mammogram. Hearing tests will take about 10 minutes and can be scheduled during the day on May 9.

...rules on boathouse

whether or not Dow could construct a boathouse. Riparian rights (rights conferred to waterfront property owners) allow that. The question centered upon whether or not the DNR can deny a boathouse permit because the boathouse will include residential quarters over the water.

As summarized in Griffith's opinion, Dow and Beatty's major contention was:

"The Inland Lakes and Stream Act does not confer upon the DNR the broad power to regulate the use of a structure, providing that the structure meets physical environmental requirements in all ways. The Legislature has not delegated to the DNR the task of standardizing the use of wharfage structures."

"Here the sole issue before this Tribunal is the use to which the 'atlic' area over the boat slips should be put. There is nothing in the Inland Lakes and Streams Act, nor in common logic, which would permit the DNR to deny a project simply because that area was to be used for residential purposes."

Attorneys for the DNR and WATCH argued that riparian rights include rights of wharfage, but not the right to build residential structures on the lake.

As summarized by Griffith, the attorneys contended, "To do as petitioner suggests, is to modify the definition of riparian rights. A riparian owner's title is subject to the public trust and preservation of public rights." Further, the DNR and WATCH attorneys maintained that although riparian rights allow for boathouses, the Inland Lakes and Stream Act instructs DNR officials to consider possible consequences of projects over the water.

"Petitioner's right to wharf on navigable waters allowed for this invasion of the public trust. But residential use is another thing. It will add to potential pollution. A feasible and prudent alternative existed in the ability to construct upland. The public interest in the residential use was not greater than the public interest in avoiding degradation of the resource."

"Petitioner's argument ignores the language of pertinent legislation. Where a use of a structure goes beyond those uses associated with riparian rights, the Department (DNR) has authority to deny the permit."

Griffith ruled in favor of the DNR and WATCH. In his opinion, he wrote that when a use other than one conferred by riparian rights is involved, the DNR may consider that use on its merits. Griffith ruled that the DNR did not abuse its discretion in denying the permit.

...seek snowmobile trail

"I think there are a lot of businesses in Charlevoix that could benefit from it," he said of the proposed trail.

He said the first steps in establishing the trail are generating interest, determining where the trail should go and securing easements from property owners. He said a Department of Natural Resources (DNR) insurance program covers liability on established trails.

Piedorek is a board member of the Charlevoix County Snowmobiling Council. He said that once a trail is established, equipment and funding to keep the trail groomed shouldn't be a problem as they are presently available.

"Right now, the important thing is to get some bodies together," he said of the May 1 meeting.

They've taken the state, now bring on the world. A Charlevoix Middle School Futura Problem Solving team won the state competition in Ann Arbor this past weekend to qualify for the World Championships in St. Louis, MO June 8. Team members are (from left) Paul Henne, coach Tom Sothard, Ryan Smith, Mark Schairbaum and Chris LeButt.

Charlevoix problem solvers triumph in state competition

In a competition where complex questions and well-thought out answers are the norm, a simple answer in the form of a rhetorical question may offer the best explanation for a surprising outcome.

So what? A team of four Charlevoix seventh graders traveled to Ann Arbor this past weekend and competed in the Michigan Future Problem Solving competition.

Charlevoix's seventh grade team was in open-class (schools from the largest to the smallest) competition against some of the most intelligent seventh, eighth and ninth graders from across the state of Michigan.

So what? The mission, should they choose to accept it, for Ryan Smith, Mark Schairbaum, Paul Henne and Chris LeButt was to match wits with the other students. Mission impossible? Match wits? No and no. Smith, Schairbaum, Henne and LeButt not only accepted the mission, they went beyond matching wits. They outwitted all of the other teams and came away as state champions.

They will now advance to international competition in St. Louis, Missouri June 8. "This is incredibly thin air," said their coach, Tom Sothard. At the beginning of the year, there were 300 teams made up of 1200 seventh, eighth and ninth grade students from across Michigan entered in the intermediate division of Future Problem Solving competition. Now there is one team from Michigan made up of four seventh graders from Charlevoix.

Future Problem Solving is a program sponsored by the University of Michigan. It is designed to teach students to work as a team in researching and analyzing a problem and then to use logical reasoning as well as critical and creative thinking in suggesting solutions to the problem.

This year the teams addressed four problems: shrinking tropical rain forests; the arms race; poverty; and medical advances.

Recommended solutions to the poverty problem were judged to pare the teams down for state final competition. Charlevoix

Spiders find ways to survive

Four spiders scurried for cover as I cleaned out the basement Sunday evening. I stomped two, but the other two got away.

A step slower and they all would have been broomed to death. I sweep without mercy.

What were four spiders doing in my basement? That's a lot of spiders to come by in a single pass. One or two maybe, but four? Maybe I found a family—a daddy and mommy spider and some cute baby spiders.

My basement is an old stone basement, but it's not classic spider habitat. It has a cement floor and I clean down there when I get a chance.

Why do spiders want to live down there? It's dark. It's kind of dusty. And I'm by no means an amicable host. If I find a spider, I do what I can to squish its guts.

This is the question that really gets me thinking. What do spiders in the basement eat?

Outdoor spiders eat flies and bugs that they catch in their webs. But flies in the basement are few and far between.

The next time you go to knock down a web in the rafters of the basement, pause first and take a look at it. Bone dry. No bugs caught in that thing. A spider web in the basement is like a square tire—kind of interesting to look at, but of no practical use.

But basement spiders must be finding food somewhere. There wouldn't be so many of them if they weren't finding something to eat.

Maybe basement spiders don't catch food often, but when they do catch something, they catch something. Instead of catching little bugs like outdoor spiders, maybe basement spiders go after bigger game.

I haven't had much of a problem with mice getting into the house. Maybe the spiders nail 'em.

Like cave men surrounding a woolly mammoth and jabbing at it with their spears, a spider tribe snares a mouse in the basement. They swarm around it. The hunt. The kill.

Finally after the mouse is dead the spiders quarter it up and carry it home. Each spider uses two legs to throw a spider rump over its shoulder. That leaves six legs for walking with.

Once the mouse is back at the village, the spiders carve it up and the feasting begins. The feasting is accompanied by a celebration. All of the spiders gather around the pilot light at the base of the hot water heater and dance and make merry.

The pilot light is the center of both joy and tragedy for basement spiders. When the hunt is successful, spiders celebrate around the pilot light. When many days pass without catching a mouse, the spiders sacrifice a virgin spider in the pilot light flame.

Maybe spiders are more advanced. Maybe they aren't pagan pilot light worshippers.

Maybe spiders are advanced, highly organized and militaristic. What do they eat? How do they survive while living in a basement where food is scarce?

They plan and carry out daring, precision midnight raids on the refrigerator upstairs.

Late one night a man got out of bed for a midnight snack. He entered the kitchen and flipped on the light. When the light went on, the man heard his refrigerator door slam and saw 50 commando spiders wearing little berets running like mad toward the basement.

This foolish man did not believe his eyes. He told himself he had just imagined seeing 50 commando spiders wearing little berets running away from his refrigerator and toward the basement.

The man decided to go ahead and have his midnight snack. Fifteen minutes later the man was sitting at the kitchen table eating a slice of bread with jelly on it.

Suddenly he felt something tightening around his ankles. He tried to stand up and stomp or run. He could not. His feet were ensnared by the webs of commando basement spiders.

The next morning, the man's wife wondered what became of him.

Not before nor since has the pilot light of the hot water heater seen such a celebration.

Out of the Blue

The tabloids report at length the doings of Donald Trump and Maria Maples.

"I don't care what they do, so long as they don't do it in the street and frighten the horses," Mrs. Patrick Campbell, commenting on a much-publicized love affair of bygone days.

Put pond in park

Dear Editor:

I would like to see a lovely naturalistic pond put in our Round Lake Park. Not an elevated pool like we had with those silly islands sticking up in the air. I would like to see a graceful shallow pond with water lilies and fish, safe and beautiful.

I believe it would be better to put the band shell in the Park Avenue Park where there could be plenty of parking space for those who love a band and have the Bridge Street peaceful and serene.

Let's "Keep Charlevoix Beautiful" with its lakes, parks and petunias.

Thank you,
Mrs. Karl Erber

Hospital thanks volunteers

Dear Editor:

The week of April 22-28 is designated National Volunteer Week. All of the staff, board of directors, and doctors here at Charlevoix Area Hospital wish to take this opportunity to express our great appreciation to all of our wonderful volunteers and Guild members. Last year nearly 4,700 hours of service were logged by over 100 volunteers here at the hospital.

This hospital would not be able to function if it were not for this fine group of loyal volunteers. They provide important patient assistance through their floor duty service and chaplain service. Many of our equipment needs are met through their fund-raising efforts such as the Showcase Gift Shop and special sales. Every holiday is brighter because of their patient tray favors and holiday decorating. Newborn babies, unlike babies in most hospitals, have their own knitted "ski caps" immediately upon birth and during the Christmas holidays they go home in specially-made Christmas stockings. T.V. placement and hospital tours are also provided by Guild members. One group we want to give special thanks is the switchboard volunteers. For many years, Karen Bowman, Bill Bridge, Bev Plum, and Herman Izor have provided this very valuable service to the hospital. Their many hours of service do not go unnoticed as we now phase into making this a full-time switchboard position. The Guild will continue, however, to be an information source to patients and visitors through a new service. An information desk in the lobby will be staffed to provide this much-needed assistance.

We thank all the Guild members for their service and for their smiles and cheerfulness which help make this the personable hospital it is. We couldn't do without you!

Sincerely,
Richard L. Krueger

Middle school appreciates help

Dear Editor:

It is with much pleasure that we at the Charlevoix Middle School write to commend the community businesses, merchants, and individuals that gave so generously to our Middle School Extravaganza. There were so many that just their names alone would fill an entire page. Each one will be receiving a personal letter of thanks and it is our hope that the residents of our fair city will notice these letters and add their thanks to ours. Because of the helpful efforts of these caring people, our community remains an "awesome" place in which to live.

Waller-Bonar

SHARI WALLER AND TERRY BONAR

The engagement of Shari Lyn Waller and Terry Michael Bonar is being announced.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Arvid and Beulah Waller of Flint. She graduated from Grand Blanc High School in 1987 and is presently in her junior year at Anderson University, studying elementary education. Her fiancé is the son of Donna Bonar of Charlevoix and Stephen Michael Bonar of Laramie, Wyoming. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1987 and is also a junior at Anderson University, studying English and secondary education.

The wedding will take place May 5 at the West Court Street Church of God in Flint.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thorp of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter, Donna Jo Thorp, to Gregory John Cyr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cyr of Boyne City.

The bride-to-be graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1985 and from Ferris State University in 1989, with a degree in Medical Records Administration. She is a member of Phi Sigma Sigma social sorority and Sigma Alpha Epsilon Little Sister fraternity. Presently she is employed by Holy Cross Hospital in Detroit as a coder-abstractor in medical records.

Her fiancé graduated from Boyne City High School in 1982 and from Central Michigan University in 1987, with a degree in Education and a teacher's certificate. He is employed by Van Dyke Public Schools as a teacher of science and track coach.

The wedding will take place June 29 at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix, followed by a reception at North Central Michigan College.

Cancer Society begins drive

The American Cancer Community Crusade will kick-off May 1-15, 1990 at Charlevoix Area Hospital. For the next two weeks, volunteers will be spreading the word that proper nutrition helps reduce cancer risk.

Research is showing that a high-fiber, low fat diet of fresh fruits and vegetables help reduce the risk of cancer. Too many people over one million this year are developing cancer, and the American Cancer Society wants to put a stop to that. The best way to stop cancer is to avoid it entirely, and the best way to do that is to stop smoking and start eating right. Eat high-fiber fruits like oranges, apples, prunes and grapefruit.

ACS volunteers will be giving each household a Food Fight Brochure, How Our Dollars Are Spent Brochure.

Nursery school plans registration

The Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency is beginning 1990-91 recruitment for enrollment in the Charlevoix Child Development Center. The development center is preschool program, primarily for four-year-olds and operates out of the basement of the First Congregational Church on State Street.

The program is partially state-subsidized and family income is taken into consideration in determining enrollment eligibility and costs.

Enrollment for next year's program is will take place from noon to 6 p.m., Wednesday, May 2. Parents enrolling a child should bring the following information: child's immunization records; proof of income, i.e. 1989 tax return, paycheck stub; social security numbers for all members of household; insurance card (if you have one); food stamp card; birth certificate; the child you are enrolling.

Class size will be limited to 18 children. Classes will take place for three and a-half hours per day, Tuesday through Friday from September through May at the center.

For additional information, phone 347-9070.

Many people die of worry. Why not die laughing? You could come to the Buckeye Donkey Basketball game Sunday, April 29, at 2 p.m. at the Boyne City High School Gym and watch radio and television personalities play against area teachers and businessmen. The game will be played while riding on the backs of some really ornery and stubborn donkeys!

Presiding as the Master of Ceremonies will be Judge Harvey Varnum. On the celebrities' team is Mark Kage and Tom Pluister from WKHQ, Jerry Dugan from WLTD, as well as Cyndie Bobier and James Rabe from WMBN-WPZ. Steve Fouch and George Merideth from TV 7 & 3 will be playing, as will Scott Swanson from the Charlevoix Courier. These celebrities will play our teachers and businessmen from Charlevoix County.

Riding the home team donkeys will be Kraag C. Leiberman, prosecuting attorney from Charlevoix; Robert Hoffman, and attorney; and Mike Davis, the Charlevoix County Youth Director. Janet Rathke of the Charlevoix School Board-Chip Counseling, and Katherine Dillon also from Chip Counseling Service.

Tickets may be purchased at the Chambers of Commerce in Boyne City, East Jordan, and Charlevoix. Also Moore's Hardware in Boyne City, as well as WMBN-WPZ. Tickets may also be purchased at the Cooperative Extension Service Office in Charlevoix County (582-6232) and Emmet County (348-1771).

Tickets bought in advance cost: $3.50 for 6th grade to adult, $2 for Kindergarten to 5th grade and senior citizens. Preschool and under are free. At the gate tickets cost $4 for 6th adult, and $3 for Kindergarten - 5th and senior citizens.

Refreshments will be provided by the Charlevoix County Teen Club.

Edith F. Chamberlain

Edith F. Chamberlain, 84, of Charlevoix, died April 18, 1990, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral was 2 p.m. Friday, April 20, at the First Congregational Church, Charlevoix. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum, of the First Congregational Church, officiated and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

The former Edith F. Crandall was born Nov. 18, 1905, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Bert and Lillian (Newman) Crandall.

She was a lifelong resident of the Charlevoix area.

She attended Charlevoix High School and worked at Charlevoix Area Hospital from 1955-68 as a hospital aid.

She married Jeff Novotny on Dec. 19, 1923, in Charlevoix. He died on July 5, 1962. She then married Floyd Chamberlain on Oct. 2, 1965 in Charlevoix and he died on Feb. 4, 1980.

Mrs. Chamberlain was a member of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, the Order of Eastern Star Chapter

No. 72, Charlevoix; the Charlevoix Historical Society; the Charlevoix Women's Club and the Book Review Club; Charlevoix Area Hospital-Auxiliary and Grandview Medical Care Facility Auxiliary.

She is survived by a son and daughter-in-law, David and Diane Novotny of Charlevoix; two grandsons, Jeff of Southfield and Scott of Charlevoix; one stepson, Robert Chamberlain of New York, N.Y.; two brothers, Harley Crandall of Ceres, Calif. and Robert Crandall of Milton, Wash.; one sister, Joy Failing of Charlevoix.

Mrs. Chamberlain was preceded in death by a son, Jerry Novotny in 1940.

The family suggests memorials to the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix or Charlevoix Area Hospital. Envelopes for those purposes are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Nazarene hosts Chilean missionary

The Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene, located on N. U.S. 31 at Waller Rd., will be host to the Grand Traverse Zone Missionary Rally with Rev. Donald Cox Thursday, April 26. Rev. Cox will conduct two services at 4 p.m. for Kindergarten through Fifth grade and at 7:30 p.m. for the general public.

Rev. and Mrs. Cox, missionaries to Chile, are furloughing in 1990 and hosting services across the United States and Canada.

The Coxes were appointed to missionary service in 1975. After one year in language training in Costa Rica, they arrived in Chile in 1977. There Rev. Cox has taught in the seminary in Santiago and in the Theological Extension Program. He has been administrator of the mission and treasurer of the mission. Mrs. Cox has taught music in the seminary, worked with church choirs, and has a ministry to the pastors' wives of the Central District.

The services will reveal life in the beautiful country of Chile through slides, curios, and a message telling of the miracles in the lives of the people there. If you would like to attend or have any questions surrounding the services, please contact Pastor Duane Nelson at 547-5711 or 547-9293.

BEACONS

The U.S. military status may indicate we are at peace, but we are not. We are at war, or more accurately, we are fighting wars. The war on drugs. The war on poverty. The war against AIDS. The war against child abuse and neglect.

Are we powerless in these wars? Do we feel like we personally don't make a difference in the big picture? "Many feel left out of it all," says Louis Harris, whose polls report 60 percent of the adult public feel out of touch with the power centers making changes, "combating the ills of our country."

We are not powerless though. We can do more than contribute to cure the causes and effects of problems that plague our society and personal lives. We can do more than vote, pay taxes or write letters to congressmen. We can do more than rally the aid of our friends as hosts of a rock concert. We can do more than plead for more help from the federal, state or local government.

We can pray. We can talk to God in whom 95 percent of Americans profess belief. (This statistic is from the Gallup Organization.)

Prayer is not a practice reserved for the pious, the milquetoast moralist or the nearly 40 percent of Americans who regularly attend church (according to the national Harris Survey).

It's an open practice for those who believe, and even those who don't believe are invited to try. Prayer is simply talking to God.

OF BLESSINGS

We believe He is there. We talk to Him in our thoughts or out loud, and He responds. He is not silent.

God invites us to interact with Him on every issue, large or small. He answers particular prayers; when we ask specifically, we can see specific answers.

We can ask God, the Friend, to be involved in our lives. We can ask God, the Father; how He loves us. We can ask God, the Creator, to give us understanding of His creation. We can ask God, the Healer, to heal our broken hearts, bodies, relationships and families. We can ask God, the Absolute, questions of right and wrong, as well as for wisdom.

This prayer business is something one can do publicly or privately. We can pray on a special occasion, such as the National Day of Prayer, May 3, or at any other time—in the car, on the job, or at home.

I urge you to pray with others or in the quietness of your heart, coming before God with praise, thanksgiving and requests. And I urge you to decide to pray regularly—in good times and in bad.

The problems we face today personally and nationally will not be solved through the efforts of mankind alone. We need the involvement of the Creator, Healer, loving Father and personal Friend.

Though we feel helpless, we are not without a source of aid. God hears and responds.

Ellsworth Wesleyan hosts concert

Jim Clark and Earl Goolsby, formerly of the New Life Singers, will join the Triple Praise Singers from Cadillac to present a special concert of Christian music April 29 at 6 p.m. in the Ellsworth Wesleyan Church.

Triple Praise members are Cheerie Randolph, Gerri and Chris Ripplow. They are well-known and have performed extensively in the mid-Michigan area.

Also joining them will be Bobbie Sue Donaldson and Laura Warren of Ellsworth. There is no admission charge to the concert.

Soc. Services recognizes volunteers

In recognition of National Volunteer Week, the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services is once again thanking its volunteers, past and present, for their efforts in providing a better quality of life for those it serves.

Vasco Zucchiatti, Volunteer Services Supervisor, expressed Social Services' appreciation this way: "Volunteers provide that extra special service in helping our Department provide the needed services that would not be possible if it weren't for volunteers."

Among the services provided by volunteers, Zucchiatti pointed out, are transportation, money management, adult foster care activities and socialization, fund-raising, secretarial, on-going donations, parent aides, telephone assurance, supervision of parental visits, and extra help during Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

"Without the volunteers, most of these services would not be available. The volunteers deserve a very special 'thank you' and encouragement to keep up the good work," Zucchiatti added.

Doing business without promoting is like working in the dark—nobody knows how to find you when they need you.

Plans made for National Prayer Day

The Charlevoix community observance of the 38th Annual National Day of Prayer, Thursday May 3, is being sponsored jointly by Kiwanis, Rotary, Zonta, The Lions, and the Charlevoix Ministerial Association. This year's observance will be a luncheon held at the Grey Gables Restaurant beginning at 12:00 noon.

The program will include a presentation of the Flags by the U.S. Coast Guard Color Guard, the issuing of the Lay Person of the Year Award by the Kiwanis Club, and a four fold prayer emphasis led by various individuals from the community.

The full luncheon meal to be served by Grey Gables will be $5 per person. Members of the sponsoring service clubs are to make reservations by contacting their respective club leaders. Citizens of the community are invited to attend and can make luncheon reservations by calling the Community Church of God at 547-2875. All luncheon reservations are to be made by Monday, April 30.

Dan Pardee uses plastic blocks to construct the prescribed geometric shape.

Chelsea Gorkiewicz first uses a rubber band to make the geometric shapes described and then draws the shapes.

Elementary math teachers demonstrated new hands-on teaching tools to members of the school board and school enrichment foundation board. Shown (from left) are teacher Karen Pierce, superintendent Gordon VanWieren, enrichment board members Tom Dammann, Alyce Leasard and Lou Hollow.

Working with base-ten blocks are (clockwise from front left) Nathan Martin, Nicholas Bogart, Josh Miller, Steven Carland, Marc Jacobs and Scott Smith.

Students enjoy hands-on math

Elementary students get in touch with math

In elementary school math, as in many other things, seeing is believing.

Thanks to a $5,000 grant from the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundations Inc., Charlevoix Elementary math students are seeing, believing, and more importantly understanding mathematical concepts.

Charlevoix Elementary School recently purchased a package of hands-on learning materials (the technical term is "math manipulatives") which allows students to see why seven times eight equals 56 or why the square root of 16 is four.

The learning materials range in complexity from things as simple as small, yellow plastic blocks to a calculator which can be projected on the wall by an overhead projector.

"It's working literally with the hands. Developing (knowledge) on a concrete (level) prior to abstract," explained Jeanne Seymour, one of the teachers behind the program.

Little yellow blocks come in units of tens, fives and ones. When a student is asked to make a calculation, he not only makes the calculation in his head, but gathers up enough blocks on his desk to physically show how the calculation works out.

The yellow blocks are broken down according to the base 10 system. Not at all coincidentally, the metric system and decimal system also are base 10. Knowledge students acquire with the blocks easily transfers.

Children are still being taught their multiplication tables etc., but with the hands-on devices they can see what they're doing.

The projected calculator is more advanced, but it also allows children to use their hands and see what they're doing while they're learning. The teacher works on the calculator projected on the wall. The students follow along on their own calculators.

Another interesting tool is called the "geoboard." It's a small plastic board with pegs. The students hook rubber bands around the pegs to make described geometric figures. Some of the described figures are simple, i.e., "four sides and four right angles." Some are more complex, i.e., "four unequal sides and no right angles."

Teachers say the students enjoy learning with the hands-on tools.

Learning with the yellow cubes and geoboard is exploratory and not threatening. The student is given a question and has to figure out and experiment with ways to solve it.

The hands-on tools also enable students to learn without being afraid of making mistakes. With the geoboard, if a student makes a mistake and the shape she's making doesn't work out right the first time, she simply rethinks her strategy and shifts the rubber band around until she gets the correct shape.

Using hands-on math tools isn't completely new to the elementary school.

"We've had one set (of tools) that we've been passing around," Seymour explained. "It's now a matter of having the materials for constant use."

The concept behind the tools is also not new, but the thrust and emphasis which Charlevoix schools are now placing on the method are new.

"It's been coming on for years," Seymour noted. She then added, "Things like this take a while."

Foundation helps remove hurdle

A $5,000 hurdle was keeping the Charlevoix Elementary School from taking a major step forward in their math program. The Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation Inc. was able to help the school clear that hurdle.

The human resources were in place for Charlevoix students to benefit from some innovative math instruction. The teachers were motivated to teach. The children were motivated to learn.

Charlevoix has five math teachers who are very active in the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

Jeanne Seymour, Karen Pierce and Sue Tillotson at the elementary school along with Tori Fisher and Kay Fiedorek haven't been following improvements math instruction. They've been leading them.

Seymour and Pierce have given lectures to other teachers at state math conferences. Tillotson, Fiedorek and Seymour are preparing an instructional seminar for other Northern Michigan school teachers.

The teachers wanted to bring hands-on math instruction into the Charlevoix school system in a big way. But the equipment to do so is costly and money's tight.

Enter the school enrichment foundation. The foundation was established about two years ago. It is a nonprofit group. It is not directly affiliated with the school. It is supported by contributions, not through property taxes. The purpose of the enrichment foundation is to collect contributions and use those contributions to provide Charlevoix students with some educational opportunities above and beyond the basics.

Fourth grade teacher Mary Ann Chew serves as liaison to the foundation. Pierce, Tillotson and Seymour developed a purchasing plan for the math tools. Chew took the math teachers' to the foundation board.

The board reviewed the plan and came up with $5,000. It was $5,000 which dramatically reduced the size of the hurdle which stood between Charlevoix elementary students and a better understanding of math. A lot of comparative shopping, the teachers did in math supply magazines from across the nation eliminated the hurdle.

The new math supplies arrived earlier this spring. At an April 12 breakfast foundation members joined the math teachers and school board members in looking over the teaching materials and celebrating the elimination of a hurdle.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE
Default having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage made by Lealie E. Crain and Faye Ann Crain, husband and wife, of Box 3316, Boyne City, Michigan 49712 to Northwestern State Bank of Boyne City, Michigan 49712, dated January 12, 1981, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, in the State of Michigan, on January 26, 1981, at Liber 163, page 254 on which Mortgage there is a claim to be due at the date of this Notice for Principal and interest, the sum of Forty-Seven Thousand Four Hundred Nine and 44/100 ($47,409.44) Dollars; and no proceedings having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said Mortgage has become operative;
NOW THEREFORE, notice is hereby given that on the twenty-third day of May, 1990, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, on the steps of the Courthouse in Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place for holding the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder at public sale, for the purposes of satisfying the amounts due and unpaid upon said Mortgage, together with interest at 14.5 percent per annum, legal costs, attorney fees, and any taxes and insurance that said Mortgagee, Northwestern State Bank of Boyne City, Michigan does pay on or prior to the date of said sale; said premises are described in said Mortgage as follows, to-wit:

City of Boyne City, County of Charlevoix and State of Michigan, as follows:
Part of the Northwest Quarter (NW 1/4) of the Northwest Quarter (NW 1/4) of Section 36, Town 33 North, Range 6 West; commencing at the Northwest Corner of said Section 36; thence South 36 rods; thence East 10 rods, thence North 36 rods; thence West 10 rods to the place of beginning. Except for all coal, oil, minerals, gas and aboriginal antiquities lying or being on, within or under the aforesaid premises which have previously been reserved by the State of Michigan; and subject to all reservations and exceptions in favor of the State of Michigan. Also subject to any highways of record or in use over and across said lands.

The Redemption Period as provided by law is six (6) months from the date of sale.

Arsonists set several fires

Local fire and police departments are investigating a series of weekend fires which they believe are the work of arsonists.

Charlevoix city and township fire departments responded to 10 fires during the weekend. Arson is suspected in eight of them.

Five of the fires were in dumpsters. Three involved structures. One was on a tarp covering a boat and one was a grass fire.

At 12:58 a.m. Saturday, the city fire department was called to a dumpster fire at the Lodge. A few minutes later they were called to a dumpster fire at the high school.

Between 1 a.m. and 2 a.m. Saturday the Charlevoix Township Fire Department was called to an Irish Boat Shop storage yard to put out a fire on a tarp covering a boat.

At 2:25 a.m. the city fire department was called to a fire in a dumpster behind the Captain's Corner shopping complex.

After dawn Saturday morning, two more fires were discovered which had gone unreported due to dense fog. One was in a dumpster at the Argonne and a second burned a corner out of a cabin on the northside of town.

Saturday afternoon the city fire department was called to a fire at a structure on South Barnard Road. Arson is not suspected in that fire.

The township fire department responded to a grass fire south of town Saturday evening. Arson is not suspected in that fire.

At 1:07 a.m. Sunday, the city, township and Boyne City fire departments responded to a fire on Boyne City Road. That fire involved a small out building near a barn and is being investigated.

At 6:45 a.m. Sunday, the city fire department responded to a fire in the dumpster next to the Wharfside Market.

Charlevoix fire departments are working with the city police and county sheriff's department in investigating the fires. Arson is a felony in the state of Michigan.

City fire chief John Martin estimated the cost of the weekend fires to be in the thousands of dollars. He said each fire department run costs about $200. He estimated that each dumpster which has to be repaired will cost about $300 and the damage to each of the structures will exceed $1,000.

County property values exceed $1,000,000,000

by PEG OHLE

For the first time ever, the taxable property in Charlevoix County is computed to be worth over $1 billion.

That figure is derived from information in the 1989 preliminary Analysis for Equalization prepared by the County Equalization Department.

The report shows the assessed valuation of real and personal property as equalized by the county to be $581,620,442. Property is assessed at approximately one-half of its true cash value, so twice $581,620,442 brings the true cash value to well over $1 billion. Last year, the true cash value of real and personal property was listed at $992,236,951.

The county-wide increase in equalized property values is computed at 8.94 percent, about half of which is due to new construction and the other half to inflation.

However, the rate of increase differs considerably from one township and city to another. In places where there has been much new construction and several house sales at inflated prices, property values have increased dramatically.

One such area is St. James Township, on Beaver Island. Here, equalized property values increased by 19.63 percent from 1988 to 1989.

Increases in equalized property values of other political units, in descending order, are as follows:

Bay Township, 15.04 percent;

Boyne City, 14.87 percent;

Charlevoix Township, 14.36 percent; Chandler Township, 12.57 percent; Norwood Township, 12.03 percent; Hayes Township, 9.95 percent; Peaine Township, 8.23 percent; Marion Township, 7.97 percent; South Arm Township, 7.17 percent; Melrose Township, 6.47 percent; Evangeline Township, 6.43 percent; City of Charlevoix, 4.60 percent; East Jordan, 4.20 percent; Hudson Township, 4.11 percent; and Boyne Falls, 2.01 percent.

Boyne Valley township, in the eastern part of the county, showed a .06 percent decrease in property values.

Land owners in any one of the above political units should not think their own individual personal property has increased at the same rate as the township or city as a whole. These figures are an average of a comprehensive employee survey, Grandvue MCF will be offering workshops over the next several months in Stress Mgmt., Weight Mgmt. and Nutrition and Women's Health Issues; taught by Diane Liverance of d.e. Liverance & Associates.

"Stress Mess," the first class in the series, will be on Thursday April 26, 7-9 p.m.

County Equalization Director Joan Blanchard will present her department's recommendations to the County Board of Commissioners at their regular evening meeting at 7:30 April 25 in the County Building Annex.

Candidates file for seats on county board

To date, two newcomers and one incumbent have filed petitions for a seat on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

The deadline to file nominating petitions for the August Primary ballot is May 15.

James Behling of Wilson Township is seeking the District 2 seat now held by Ralph Harmon. This district includes Chandler, Hudson, Boyne Valley, and Wilson Townships, as well as the eastern part of Evelyn Township.

Lee Arnold of East Jordan has filed for the District 4 seat now held by Tom Breakey. This district covers the city of East Jordan and South Arm Township.

Phil Johnson has filed for his District 3 (Boyne City) seat.

All three have filed as Republicans.

The other county Districts are District 1, made up of Hayes, Bay, Evangeline, and Melrose Townships, now represented by Larry Matthew of Melrose Township; District 5, made up of St. James, Peaine, Charlevoix, Norwood, Marion, and western Evelyn Townships, now represented by Don Smith of Charlevoix Township; and District 6 (City of Charlevoix), now represented by Walter Hufford.

There is no limit to the number of persons who may file for a County Commission seat, be they Republicans or Democrats. Petitions are available at the office of the County Clerk in the County Building, Charlevoix.

Several men and women from Charlevoix County attended the "Roaring Twenties" luncheon Thursday at Shanty Creek. The event, sponsored by the Charlevoix and Antrim County commissions on aging, featured entertainment and music from the "good old days" and a buffet luncheon. (Photo courtesy of Bob Black.)

Charlevoix City Planning Commission

Monday, May 14, 1990,

5:30 p.m.

City Hall, 210 State Street

The Charlevoix City Planning Commission will hold a Public Hearing on the above date and time to receive public comments, written and oral on the following proposed amendment to the City of Charlevoix City Code. The amendment is as follows:

PROPOSED AMENDMENT

SECTION 5.222, RESTORATION AND REPAIR

Section 5.222, RESTORATION AND REPAIR, shall be amended to read:

5.222. Restoration and Repair. Such repairs and maintenance work as are required to keep a nonconforming building or structure in a sound condition may be made. In the event any nonconforming building or structure shall be damaged by fire, wind, an act of God, or a criminal act, it may be rebuilt or restored provided the cost thereof shall not exceed fifty (50%) percent of the true cash value at the time of the occurrence; the true cash value to be the current true cash value established as of the last annual assessment statement prepared by the City Assessor. Structures having historical significance which shall meet the requirements for listing on the Michigan Register of Historical places, shall be exempt from this requirement.

The Zoning Board of Appeals may grant a variance from this requirement, provided the variance is granted upon a finding:

1. That such rebuilding or restoration will not substantially extend the probable duration of such nonconforming use, or
2. That circumstances are such that the land occupied by such nonconforming use cannot be advantageously used for a use permitted in the zone;
3. That denial would deprive the property owner of a substantial property right enjoyed prior to being so damaged.

MAGISTRATE

The following cases were recently handled in the office of the Charlevoix County Magistrate:

Laurie Ann Petrie, 26, East Jordan, speeding, $70 fine and costs.

Gerald Wesley Boltz, III, 25, Ellsworth, snagging salmon, $130 fine and costs.

Evelyn Marie Gary, 34, Ellsworth, operating with expired license, $75 fine and costs.

Christopher G. Rauszer, 29, Boyne Falls, littering, $110 fine and costs.

William Donald Fitzpatrick, 22, Boyne Falls, trespassing, $70 fine and costs.

PUBLIC NOTICE

CHARLEVOIX CITY COUNCIL

Charlevoix City Council will hold a Public Hearing on Monday, May 7, 1990 at 7:00 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall for public comments, oral and written to consider the following amendment to the City Code:

ORDINANCE

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE CODE OF THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX BY AMENDING SECTIONS 10.83, 10.84 AND 10.91 OF CHAPTER 148 OF TITLE X OF SAID CODE.

WHEREAS the current wording of Section 10.83 of Chapter 148 of the City Code is to be completely eliminated with new wording to be adopted as set forth below so that parking regulations can be changed by traffic control orders rather than by ordinance amendment AND WHEREAS the current language of Section 10.84 designates specific fees for boat launching and parking permits and these specific amounts will be eliminated and in their place the City Council will set fees by resolution and provide that for certain events those fees may be waived by the City Manager AND WHEREAS the current language of Section 10.91 designates a specific fine for a violation of the ordinance and this will be eliminated with the new language to set fines for parking violations under the Uniform Traffic Code and all other fines to be set by resolution of the City Council and the City Council having held a public hearing on this matter,

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

1) That Section 10.83 of Chapter 148 of the Charlevoix City Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

10.83. PARKING. Parking in the Ferry Beach parking lot, including but not limited to the parking of vehicles and/or trailers, shall be regulated by traffic control orders issued by the City Traffic Engineer. The terms "traffic control orders" and "Traffic Engineer" are as defined in the Uniform Traffic Code as adopted in Chapter 145 of the City Code as amended.

2) That Section 10.84 of Chapter 148 of the Charlevoix City Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

10.84 PERMIT REQUIRED. Any person launching a boat from the Ferry Beach boat launch; or parking a vehicle with or without trailer or parking a single trailer shall be required to obtain a permit from the City of Charlevoix and display the permit on their vehicle. Charges for the permit shall be set by resolution of the City Council. The City Manager may revise or waive fees for special or public events. The term "special or public events" shall mean a tournament, festival or other type of event, whether or not open to public participation or observation, the occurrence of which will, in the judgement of the City Manager, benefit the City economically or by virtue of the publicity surrounding the event.

3) That Section 10.91 of Chapter 148 of the Charlevoix City Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

10.91. PENALTY. Any person violating a traffic control order regulating parking shall be guilty of a civil infraction with the amount of penalty to be set pursuant to Section 10.56 of Chapter 147 of the City Code. Any person violating a provision of this ordinance unrelated to parking shall be guilty of a civil infraction and the penalty for such violations shall be set by resolution of the City Council.

Back in the depression days of the 1930s, the Leslie T. Shapton Post of the American Legion issued what it called "American Legion Welfare Scrip." The scrip was sold for $1 and was redeemable at any Charlevoix store. However, its value decreased by five cents a week until the end of five months, when the scrip had no value. Its purpose was to increase business by encouraging the rapid circulation of idle money. Any part of the scrip that was not spent was put into the Legion's Welfare Fund. Weekend airplane crash kills two people

One person is dead and another presumed dead as a result of an airplane crash in Lake Michigan between Charlevoix and Beaver Island this weekend.

The body of Mary-Ann Eddy, 59, of Spring Arbor was pulled from Lake Michigan Saturday afternoon. The body of her husband Paul Perry Eddy, 75, had not been located as of press time.

Debris from the Piper Commanche was found floating about halfway between Charlevoix and Beaver Island.

The Eddy's had left Charlevoix Airport destined for Beaver Island, a 15 to 20 minute trip by air. Coast Guard rescue efforts Saturday morning were hampered by dense fog.

was one of 44 teams to qualify for state finals.

At the state finals, the students were sequestered in a room without their coach and given two hours to develop and write out solutions to a fictitious disease called Hal's Disease.

The team had to identify 20 problems associated with the disease, choose one problem to attack, identify 20 possible solutions to that problem, develop five criteria to evaluate the proposed solutions, rank their solutions and choose one solution which they felt would be the most effective.

The only reference materials the team could have with them in the room were a dictionary and a thesaurus.

Smith, Schairbaum, Henne and LeButt used the entire two hours they were allowed. In fact, they didn't quite complete the last sentence of their final solution.

Schairbaum said he intended for the final sentence to be along the lines of "This solution will work because..." and list reasons why the solution would work. But as he was writing, time expired and he had to end with "This solution will work."

Entering the awards ceremony the Charlevoix team had no idea where they'd placed. It could have been anywhere from first to 44th.

Due to their frantic conclusion, they weren't too optimistic.

When the announcer said first place was being awarded to Charlevoix, it didn't immediately ly register with the four seventh graders. Only when the announcer began reading individual names, "Smith, Schairbaum, LeButt, Henne" did the reality of the situation register. Hey, they're talking about us. We won this thing.

In St. Louis, the Charlevoix team will compete against teams from other countries as well as other states. The team will have to raise some money to cover the expenses of the trip. People who would like to help out are asked to call the middle school at 547-3206.

This is the seventh straight year that a Charlevoix team has qualified for state competition, but the first year a team has won at state. The Future Problem Solvers program is under the direction of Carol Elliott at the elementary school and Sothard at the middle school.

Council approves rezoning for Michigan Ave. project

A rezoning request and a site plan which will allow a 16-unit multiple housing complex to be constructed at 301 Michigan Avenue were approved by the city council at a special meeting Monday evening.

Several people spoke both in favor of and in opposition to the rezoning request at a public hearing which preceded the council decision.

The council approved the rezoning and site plan by 4-1 votes. Council members Pat Gaskin, Bill Haggard, Cheri Hoffman and Jim Potter voted in favor. Council member Butch Russell voted opposed. Council member Ken Whitley and mayor Gary Probert were absent from the meeting.

The rezoning request and site plan complied with the city's master plan and zoning code. No variances were requested.

Council members said they felt that since the request complied with all local regulations, they were legally compelled to approve it.

Gaskin referred to a legal opinion the council received from city attorney Jim Young and said, "I guess the realization has come to me that we do not have a choice up here...I, at this point, feel that we are required to approve the request."

The opinion from Young which Gaskin referred to said that a denial of the request would most certainly be overturned if it were taken to court.

Former council member Shirley Roloff was one of the people who opposed the rezoning. She asked Young how the city could be taken to court for denying the rezoning.

Young said that while courts allow cities to establish guidelines such as master plans and zoning ordinances, they also recognize a person's right to develop their property within the laws of the community.

Earlier in the meeting, Young explained that according to the city's zoning ordinance, if a project is found in compliance with city regulations then the rezoning application will be granted. If the application is denied, then a written application stating reasons for the denial must be provided to the applicant.

In response to Roloff's question, Young noted that courts are not reluctant to overturn a city's discretionary decision and that if an application is denied without justification, courts can and do award damages.

Earlier in the meeting, Young also noted, "If the frequency of R-4 (Planned Residential units) along the beachfront is a concern, the way to address that is to change the master plan."

Doris Lundteigen, a WATCH board member and one of the people who spoke against the application during the public hearing, said the master plan is currently being revised. She said

City receives bandshell bid construction to begin this fall

Charlevoix has received a bid for bandshell construction. City officials are now attempting to set up an August 20 start date for the project.

The city had hoped to approve a bid last month and begin the project this spring, but no bids were submitted last month.

Bids were solicited again with an opening date of last Wednesday. This time around, one bid was received. Goodin and Bigelow Construction, Inc. of Traverse City submitted a bid of $192,931.

That bid was approximately $17,000 above the city's estimated cost, but with eliminating a proposed sound system for the time being will bring the project more in line with budget estimates.

"I'm optimistic that we're finally going to get a structure built," city manager Mike Wiesner told council members at this past Monday evening's work session.

The bid was submitted with the intention of beginning the project immediately, however city officials don't want to have East Park torn up during the summer. The project has an estimated construction time of 12 weeks.

Currently there is approximately $110,000 to $120,000 available for the project. The city has committed $50,000 of Downtown Development Authority (DDA) funds to the project, but that money will not be available until next year.

The bandshell committee which proposed the project will be taking out a loan of $50,000 until the DDA money becomes available and will be raising the balance of funds.

Demolition of the former bandshell and fish pond and their replacement has been a source of controversy for almost two years.

The former bandshell and pond were demolished in the autumn of 1988. Following modifications to the proposed design for a new bandshell, the city first solicited construction bids last spring. Those bids came in between $50,000 and $80,000 more than what was estimated.

Since that time, the project has been scaled down and the city has authorized using DDA funds.

If construction begins this fall, the bandshell should be ready for use next summer.

Castle plans smaller concerts

Randy Travis and Aerosmith are among the performers likely to appear at Castle Farms Music Theater this summer.

Castle owner Art Reibel said that the Castle will be hosting concerts for the 15th year. However, he noted that this year there probably won't be as many large concerts.

Reibel said that although final agreements have yet to be signed, Travis and Aerosmith very likely will perform in Charlevoix.

"What they do is the band says 'hold a date for us,'" Reibel explained. He noted that there is a preliminary contract and then a final contract once all of the details are worked out.

Reibel noted that there also have been discussions with the people who book rock groups "Rush" and "Kiss."

Fewer big-name groups touring and an unwillingness among promoters to pay groups big fees were two reasons Reibel gave for the reduced number of big concerts. He said he feels there's a shift taking place in the music industry. There are more small concerts with 5,000 people and more large stadium concerts with 40,000, but fewer concerts drawing crowds in between those numbers.

Since it's not feasible for the Castle to host 40,000, Reibel is moving toward smaller concerts between 5,000 and 7,500.

"Very often, your smaller concerts do just as well financially," he noted, adding that smaller concerts don't have many of the costs associated with large concerts.

Several of the smaller concerts will take place in conjunction with specialized events. For example, there will be a Memorial weekend barbecue with entertainment from five northern Michigan bands. Summer plans also call for a Blues Fest, Country Music Fest and a day of Vintage Rock and Roll.

Reibel said he feels that country singers who have a blues or rock style are becoming more popular in the music industry and that's being taken into consideration in scheduling Castle concerts.

"The music is changing and we're changing with it," he said.

that the application came before the council after the revision is completed, it probably would be subject to requirements calling for lower density.

Hoffman noted that the council is compelled to vote according to the laws as they exist when the proposal is brought before it.

People who opposed the plan expressed concerns about traffic, the need for affordable housing and the proximity of the west edge of the building to the water.

People who favored the plan said a condominium creates less traffic problems than an office building, which is what the property is presently zoned for.

Proponents of the project said they agree that other types of housing are needed in the Charlevoix area, but noted that the last two proposals to build that type of housing were shot down.

In regard to proximity to the water and possibly cutting off the beach, John Campbell of Site Planning Development Inc., the company which is designing the project, said the edge of the project has been moved shoreward 20 feet from the original proposal. Following the redesign, there will be a small section of the building which will be two feet closer to the lake than the western edge of the Dunes Condominium complex to the north of the proposed project.

Syringes found on beach

Three syringes turned up on the beach north of the pier early last week, but it may not be anything to get too excited about.

"We're looking at it more as litter than we are as medical waste," Larry Levengood of the District 3 Health Department said.

The syringes were found by a man walking on the beach Tuesday, April 24. The health department was notified the following day.

Prior to a health department inspection of the beach, two of the three syringes disappeared and the third was picked up by a lady and turned in to the health department.

Only those three syringes turned up.

"We've walked along the beach and not found any others," Levengood explained.

Levengood said the syringes aren't necessarily medical waste. He said the syringes are common small syringes which can be purchased over the counter. Along with medical uses, the syringes are also used by fishermen, plumbers and gardeners.

It's also unclear if the syringes washed up from the lake or were dropped on the shore. They were found up on the beach away from the waterline.

"There are all sorts of possibilities," Levengood said. "The big thing with us is just to kind of monitor the situation."

Bike-A-Thon scheduled

The St. Jude Children's Research Hospital "Wheels For Life" bike-a-thon will take place from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday at Mount McSaubia. The event will raise money for St. Jude's, a hospital which helps children with cancer.

Charlevoix bike-a-thon coordinator Sandy Malewitz says children wishing to ride in the bike-a-thon may pick up pledge forms at the elementary school and at several local stores and banks. Pledges are to be made for miles ridden. There will be prizes for top fundraisers.

There will be a hotdog roast in conjunction with the event. For additional information, contact Malewitz at 547-0175.

School to host "Spring Expo"

The talents of Charlevoix students will be displayed this Thursday and Friday evening at the high school.

Rather than one large musical, this year a new "Spring Expo" format will allow different grades to perform at different times between 6 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. Thursday, May 4. The "Expo" will also include exhibits from middle and high school students in a walk-through, open house setting.

The theme of this year's musical will be animal songs and rain forests.

Performance schedules are: T.L.C. Theatre 6 p.m.; First and second grades 6:20 p.m.; Third and fourth grades 7 p.m.; elementary choir 7:30 p.m.; middle school band 7:45 p.m.; fifth grade 8:15 p.m.

Each performance will last approximately 15 minutes. Students should meet in the high school cafeteria 15 minutes before their performance. All children must meet in the cafeteria and enter the gym with their class.

Immediately following their child's performance, parents may pick up their child in the cafeteria.

Performances will take place in the gym, but exhibits will be set up throughout the high school. The exhibits will be projects the children have worked on in their classes during the course of the school year.

The Expo is being coordinated by a committee consisting of Marina LaBlance, Roxie Loding, Mary Beth McGraw, Mercedes A. Mathers and Debby McDowell.

REASONABLE TO ME
L. SCOTT SWANSON

Cultured to the limit

Although I try not to brag about it, I'm a pretty cultured guy. When it comes to being cultured, I'm virtually yogurt.

This past Sunday, my wife and I immersed ourselves in culture. In the afternoon we attended a social gathering which was not species-exclusive and, as if that wasn't enough culture for one day, in the evening we observed a cinematic performance.

In simpler terms, we went to the 4-H donkey basketball game Sunday afternoon and in the evening we went down to the theater and saw the movie "Ernest Goes to Jail."

Culture, culture and more culture. I participated in the donkey basketball game... as a player, not a donkey. I was a member of the victorious blue team. We won by a score of 9-8 after allowing a seemingly insurmountable 7-2 halftime lead to slip away.

Donkey basketball is not a high scoring game. Most of the donkeys are short and even the taller ones don't shoot the ball too well.

Prior to the game, our team discussed what type of defense we were going to play. Some preferred a zone while others felt we should play a donkey-todonkey.

As things turned out, strategy means nothing if the donkeys aren't inclined to go along with it. At one point in the third quarter, I found myself astride a spirited steed, clinging to the reins in one hand and the basketball in the other and making my way at a stern clip toward the basket.

A member of the audience, some self-proclaimed basketball expert, offered a bit of advice as I rode past.

"You're headed toward the wrong basket," he shouted.

"I know that," I called back. "But tell the donkey."

The donkey basketball game was played under protest. About a half dozen animal rights people stood out in front of the gym and held up signs protesting animal cruelty.

Before playing in the game, I read the rules for the game and looked over the donkeys. I couldn't see where those donkeys were being in any way mistreated.

Although the protest was, to my way of thinking, ill-informed and unfounded, I didn't begrudge the animal rights folks their right to a peaceful protest. But I also think the 400 or so other people and myself who either watched or played the game were within our rights in ignoring the protest and having a good time.

"Ernest goes to jail" may not be a classic of the Ernest movie genre, but anything starring the ever-suave and dashing Ernest P. Worrell can't be all bad.

For those of you who aren't familiar with Ernest P. Worrell, he's the guy who does the Country Fresh dairy product commercials. He often talks to his friend Vern, "you know what I mean."

Ernest movies, while not Shakespeare, tackle pressing social issues of the day. In "Ernest goes to jail," Ernest addresses the social and moral ramifications of the American judicial system with particular emphasis on juries and incarceration.

He also bites into an ink pen and gets ink smeared all over his face.

Playing in a donkey basketball game might not be an afternoon at the opera. And watching an Ernest movie probably pales in comparison to a tour of an art museum. But in combination, they were all the culture I could stand for one day.

and doors in order to hear their televisions, visit with friends or relatives stopping in even to try to get some sleep.

To suggest going to the animal owners, police, administration even one's councilman, is folly. It has all been done with no results. Since this has been going on for over two years, with all avenues to any relief apparently closed, it would be commendable of the city to amend and alleviate this unnecessary, intolerable situation.

Thank you,
Anne Wilber

Letters to the Editor:

Barking dogs are a problem

Dear Editor:

It is no small shame, in a city like Charlevoix, that many of its people are so insensitive to their neighbors, particularly in the vicinity of the Pine River apartment building, State Street, between Garfield and Carpenter Road, has become a haven for barking dogs.

During the hot summer months a number of residents in the apartment dwelling are forced to close their windows

Adding a battle scar

Hello, again. I've made my second trip through the carpal tunnel and am slowly regaining the use of my left hand.

The trouble is that my fingers sometimes jerk involuntarily and my super-sensitive computer keyboard responds accordingly.

I read the other day that with so many folks using keyboards, carpal tunnel syndrome will be the "disease of the 90s."

I may be in on the ground floor of something big.

Actually, I already have a lot of company on the ground floor. While my left hand was trussed up in gauze last week, total strangers would stop me on the street to show me their carpal tunnel scars.

Welcome to the club!

I SEE BY THE papers that British Prime Minister Maggie Thatcher may back down on her controversial "poll tax," which had virtually assured her expulsion from No. 10 Downing St. in the next election.

The tax, which would be levied by local units of government depending on their financial needs, was about as unfair as a tax can get, since the lord of the manor would pay the same amount as his scullery maid. The well-heeled bachelor living alone would pay only a fraction the tax of a fellow with a household of dependents.

Will the British ever learn anything about taxation?

Apparently not. If Great Britain hadn't imposed taxes so unfairly 215 years, the Revolution might never have happened.

American taxes, by and large, are based on income, property holdings, sales or use—which is as it should be. If you want to duck the last two taxes, don't buy anything—including gasoline.

It is interesting to note that Ms. Thatcher tried to impose the same tax on Scotland last year and the Scots almost died laughing. Nobody paid and apparently nobody was arrested for non-payment.

JIM WATERS of Bay Shore attended his daughter's wedding in Georgia recently and sent me some interesting clippings from the Georgia press.

One told about the chief tax appraiser of Clayton County being sentenced to 40 hours of community service for violating a judge's ban against levying higher property assessments.

Another reported that the First National Bank of Jackson, Tenn., has been authorized to operate a mobile bank—out of a converted armored car. Starting this month, the traveling bank will visit customers in rural Madison County.

A third item concerned the Hershman County Board of Education. The board changed the school calendar so that faculty—but not students—will have to make up a fifth school day missed because of snow this winter. Georgia law only permits four snow days. The extra day will be added to the faculty's post-planning session June 4-7.

WORN OUT? Whipped? Fatigued? Beat?

If you live in Grand Rapids, the medical community would like to know why.

Grand Rapids, Atlanta, Reno, Nev., and Wichita, Kan., have been selected for a study of a new disease called Chronic Fatigue Syndrome, or CFS for short.

CFS surfaced about three years ago when 300 otherwise healthy persons told their doctors they were so tired all the time they could hardly get out of bed.

Now the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta would like to know why and has earmarked $1 million for an in-depth study of the disease.

If you think you might be suffering from CFS, here's what to look for: A sore throat, swollen lymph nodes, unexplained muscle weakness, muscle pain, 24 hours of fatigue after mild exercise, generalized headaches, painful joints without swelling or redness, sleep disturbances and such neurophysical complaints as forgetfulness, excessive irritability, inability to concentrate and depression.

Take away the aches and pains, and I'd call it spring fever.

Vineyard train is controversial

Napa, Calif.—We've had our share of railroad-controversy recently in northern Michigan. Should the train connection between Charlevoix and Petoskey be restored to promote tourism or not during the summer months?

Partly because of this touchy brouhaha, and partly because the thought of enjoying a gourmet lunch on the Napa Valley Wine Train sparked both my inquiring mind and appetite, I quickly accepted an invitation to ride through the exquisite vineyards of California.

As a frequent viewer on T.V. of "Falcon Crest," I was familiar with the verdant Napa landscape. In April, white and lavender wisteria are in full bloom. Pink plum trees are in flower. Iris and poppies are carelessly scattered wherever they decide to grow.

What I was not prepared to see everywhere along the route were signs, "NO WINE TRAIN!"

What? No wine train? Who objects to six meticulously restored dining cars, 1909, leisurely travelling at 20 miles per hour carrying adults willing to pay $50 per person to ride for three hours over 36 miles round trip, while gazing through velvet curtained windows at neat rows of vines? Beyond are rolling hills crested with villas with a backdrop of mountains, blue sky and puffy clouds.

We dine at tables set with white linen, bone china and three forks. We're served chicken paté with truffles, a delicate green salad, a superb chicken filet or salmon entree, and for dessert, a fourteen layer gâteau. No faux gourmet meal this! All accompanied by the wines of your choice.

The answer to my stunned question by an official representative of the Napa Wine Railroad Company is, "We don't know why some people object to the train."

The rumor mill, however, suggests several reasons. 1.) Local wineries lose tourist dollars when motorists don't stop to taste and buy their wines. 2.) Local residents are inconvenienced because the train holds up traffic (just like getting bridged). 3.) Posh new settlers resent an influx of tourists sharing the pristine quality of life in Napa Valley. 4.) Environmentalists object to the smoke from the train.

Does the battle between industry vs. tourism vs. environment sound familiar?

Too bad I can't stay around long enough to fathom the real reason for all the fuss. Could it be that the land reverts to the landowners along the railroad right of way, if and when the train is abandoned?

But I stayed long enough to sip a cold glass of Clos Pegase Chardonnay en route, and to enjoy one of the loveliest, scenic, no clickety-clack, train rides of my life. Even better than the Super-Chief days!

Sincerely,
Joan Witting

Support expressed for pool

Dear Editor:

As a part time Charlevoix resident (my husband and I spend weekends at our cottage year-round), I've been reading with great interest about the possibility of Charlevoix building a community swimming pool.

As the community continues to consider the pros and cons of this venture, I thought it might be helpful if I provided my thoughts on the subject, since I have been involved in swimming as an instructor and administrator for the past 40 years—the last 18 years with the East Grand Rapids community swimming program. As a Red Cross Instructor Trainer for infants (three months), preschool children, all ages and disabilities of handicapped, the elderly and fourth grade downproofing (classes taught at the centrally located elementary school pool), I have personally seen the enormous benefits that a program such as this brings to a community.

With Charlevoix truly being a water orientated community, it seems to me all of the above benefits I've cited that a pool has brought to East Grand Rapids would be doubly beneficial to Charlevoix.

Shop thanks volunteers

Dear Editor:

We were just a little remiss in not checking the calendar last week in which was noted "VOLUNTEERS WEEK," but our most sincere "thank you" to all our nice volunteers, both men and women, who give of their time and talent to the Rainbow Shoppe. Our thanks is also extended to the community for their donations and patronage. By your serving us, we are able to serve the less fortunate.

Greatfully,

County Post store names manager and opening date

Robert Rosenfeld has been named the store manager of the new County Post store being built at 06675 M-66 North in Charlevoix.

Rosenfeld was promoted from his position as sales manager of the Quality Farm & Fleet store in LaPorte, Indiana. He joined Quality Stores, Farm & Fleet's and County Post's parent company, eleven years ago. He received most of his training at Farm & Fleet stores in LaPorte, Goshen, and Warsaw, Indiana as well as spending time with the company's Portage, Michigan store.

"I'm very excited to be in Charlevoix," he said. "This is a strong tourism area and our market research shows that the area continues to expand. We plan on drawing customers from 20 miles out or so." He added that the official ribbon cutting is scheduled for noon, Wednesday, May 16.

"Approximately 10,500 products will be available in our store including agricultural, automotive, hardware, home improvement, pet supplies, salts, feeds, energy items, lawn & garden, paint and basic work clothing. Thousands of products will also be available through manufacturer's special order catalogs in the store," Rosenfeld said.

Charlevoix will be the fifteenth County Post location. Quality Stores, Inc. currently operates a chain of 47 Quality Farm & Fleet stores and 14 County Post stores throughout Michigan, Indiana and Ohio.

New officers join board of County Growth Alliance

It was announced at the Thursday, April 27, board of directors meeting that Cheri Hoffman, Keith Moore, and Willard VanderArk have been appointed to the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance Board of Directors. Hoffman will represent the Charlevoix City Council, Moore was appointed to represent the Emmet County EDC, and VanderArk will represent the Antrim County Commission. They replace outgoing members Earl Muma, Bill Kuchnicki and Bob Mierka.

The board also approved a proposal from Bob Boldrey, board member representing North Central Michigan College, to apply for a Michigan Department of Commerce grant which would help fund the creation of a Business Development Center (BDC) in conjunction with the Economic Alliance. The BDC's goal is to stimulate job creation through local counseling to existing businesses, owners and managers who need assistance to survive and expand, as well as to entrepreneurs starting businesses. Services will include individual counseling and training on business plans and financial management. The tentative goal is to have the BDC in operation by fall of this year.

Boys track team places first and third

Along with Miller, other first place finishes for the Rayders

Other Rayders—who placed well at the Chip relays were: Meier, sixth in the 1600; Paul Wakulat, seventh in the 1600; the 400 meter relay team of Brian Livingston, Hedi Maki, Lance Emig and Luke LaBlance, third; Tony Warchol, fifth in the discus; Matt Gibbons, fifth, in the long jump.

Girls track team finishes second

Other firsts were recorded by Sandy Fershee in the high jump and freshman Angie Lambert in Fershee followed Thursday's performance with a fifth place high jump finish at the Chip Relays in Mount Pleasant Saturday. Fershee was the only Rayder girl to place in the meet.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE
Default having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage made by Leslie E. Crain and Paye Ann Crain, husband and wife, of Box 3310, Boyne City, Michigan 49712 to Northwestern State Bank of Boyne City, Michigan 49712, dated January 12, 1981, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, in the State of Michigan, on January 26, 1981, at Liber 162, page 254 on which Mortgage there is a claim to be due at the date of this Notice for Principal and interest, the sum of Forty-Seven Thousand Four Hundred Nine and 44/100 ($47,409.44) Dollars; and no proceedings having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said Mortgage has become operative;

NOW THEREFORE, notice is hereby given that on the twenty-third day of May, 1990, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, on the steps of the Courthouse in Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place for holding the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder, at public sale, for the purposes of satisfying the amounts due and unpaid upon said Mortgage, together with interest at 14.5 percent per annum, legal costs, attorney fees, and any taxes and insurance that said Mortgagee, Northwestern State Bank of Boyne City, Michigan does pay on or prior to the date of said sale; said premises are described in said Mortgage as follows, to-wit:

City of Boyne City, County of Charlevoix and State of Michigan, as follows:

Part of the Northwest Quarter (NW 1/4) of the Northwest Quarter (NW 1/4) of Section 36, Town 33 North, Range 6 West; commencing at the Northwest Corner of said Section 36; thence South 36 rods; thence East 10 rods; thence North 36 rods; thence West 10 rods to the place of beginning. Except for all coal, oil, minerals, gas and aboriginal antiquities lying or being on, within or under the aforesaid premises which have previously been reserved by the State of Michigan; and subject to all reservations and exceptions in favor of the State of Michigan. Also subject to any highways of record or in use over and across said lands.

The Redemption Period as provided by law is six (6) months from the date of sale.

Dated: April 18, 1990.

New group formed to protect Jordan River area

A group is forming to stimulate support for conservation efforts in the Jordan River Watershed.

"What we're shooting for is a citizens' group that will develop an interest in, and awareness of, conservation needs in the watershed and then provide support for efforts to enhance and protect the river and the entire watershed," explains acting chairman Jim Young, former Antrim County Prosecuting Attorney.

Antrim County Director, MSU Cooperative Extension Service, Burton Stanley adds: "We are hoping to build a broad-based, rather informal and very flexible, vehicle for public discussion of issues and needs. We are talking about everything from basic clean water and trout populations to camping, logging and wildlife."

"Anyone who is in any way interested in the watershed will be encouraged to participate. In fact, we intend to do our best to get people interested. We are confident this will lead to support for maintaining and improving the quality of the river and the watershed."

Recently retired Antrim County Soil Conservation Service District Conservationist, Warren Studley, another founder of the embryo group, points out it has been working with the Department of Natural Resources and other agencies since the idea started taking shape nearly a year ago.

"The townships, counties, DNR and other government agencies should be deeply involved," Studley says. "But they will not dictate direction. We want to support them when they need help to obtain funding for worthwhile efforts. We want the public to get involved so citizens can help set priorities and assure that we leave the watershed to our grandkids in better shape than it was when we inherited it."

Other leaders in the group, which may be named "Stewards of the Jordan," include Antrim County Road Commission manager John Pemberton and Bud Jones, of Alba, a former chairman of the Grass River Natural Area board.

About 20 people attended the group's last meeting April 4, at the Alba Sportsman's Club - as guests of club president Bob Wicht - to determine the organizational format. It was decided to draft bylaws and incorporate.

A public meeting is expected to be held in early summer with a second in August.

Creating an alliance of citizens, sportsmen, businessmen and government officials as advocates for conservation in the watershed was proposed by Jones more than a year ago, with encouragement from former DNR director Gordon Guyer, a longtime Jordan fisherman and bird hunter.

Jones and a small group of sportsmen have been raising money and working with the DNR, Road Commission, Michigan Civilian Conservation Corps and Soil Conservation Service for more than four years to halt erosion into the river and remove the bedload of sand from the river that biologists say is suffocating its trout habitat.

About $300,000 has been invested in the project. Much of it came from the Harder Foundation, a national environmental foundation based in Detroit, and Trout Unlimited.

Thanks to the foundation, TU, Road Commission, DNR, Dr. Guyer, and others, we have the most serious erosion under control above Graves Crossing," explains Jones, who owns Electronics in Alba. "We are starting to see progress in reducing the sand and reclaiming the river's natural bottom. It is exciting."

"But we realized it must be maintained by future generations and that Jordan is bigger than our trout fishing. Guyer convinced us we have to get the public involved as custodians of the watershed. That it belongs to all citizens and that they, ultimately, must take responsibility, but can only do it if they are informed and invited to participate."

Choral concert scheduled

"Spring Rhythm" is the theme of a concert to be presented at 3 p.m. Sunday, May 6, at First Presbyterian Church, 207 Williams Road, East Jordan.

The Jordan River Community Chorus will sing "A Sentimental Journey through the Forties" with some Broadway show tunes and such well-remembered songs as "You'll Never Walk Alone" and "Rhythm of Life." They will also present a medley of spirituals, including "Who'll Be a Witness?"

The chorus is directed by Margaret Thomson, East Jordan, and Fran Tollas, Charlevoix, for Jordan River Arts Council. A $2 donation is suggested.

Resource Conservation and Development Council.

Funding for a wooden bridge at Graves Crossing has been obtained from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, DNR, State Department of Transportation and Antrim County Road Commission. It will replace the culverts, which have caused massive erosion to the river, burying fish spawning gravel and habitat and food critical to trout.

Dr. Guyer worked with the director of MDOT to obtain the funding and Haveman coordinated the effort.

Persons interested in the organization and Jordan can contact Young, Stanley, Studley, or Jones. They can call Stanley at 533-8818, or write him at P.O. Box 427, Bellaire, Mich. 49615, to be placed on the mailing list to receive notices of meetings.

County considers 5 mill courthouse request

The photo above is of an artist's rendition of a proposed new courthouse for Charlevoix County. The county commissioners' May 9 agenda included consideration of placing a request for five mills to fund the courthouse before voters this year. The courthouse would be located on Grant Street, next to the jail.

Following at least two years of discussion and study, members of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners will decide at their meeting today whether or not to put a five-mill building proposal on the August 7 primary ballot.

The proposal would cover a new Court House building to house the staffs of the District, Circuit, and Probate Courts, as well as the office of the County Prosecutor and the Law Library. It would be built on county-owned land adjacent to the Sheriff's Department and Jail on West Garfield Street.

All of these offices are now located in the County Building on Street Street, which has been over-crowded for some time.

If the court system were moved from the County Building, that building could be renovated to make room for the Building Inspection Department and the Recreational Activities Department which are now housed in make-shift offices in an old house on Mason Street.

There has also been talk of using some of the millage for an auxiliary building in Boyne City to house the Cooperative Extension Service, Soil Conservation Service, and Agricultural Conservation Services' offices. These are now all located in the Boyne City City Hall.

If a decision is not reached by the Board of Commissioners today, the millage will not appear on the August 7 ballot but could be proposed at a later date.

School will seek 1.4 mill increase in June

by WENDI WRIGHT

At its regular meeting Monday night, the Charlevoix Board of Education voted to place two millage proposals on the school election ballot June 11. The two proposals, if passed, would increase school operational funds by approximately 1.4 mills.

The first proposal asks the voters to approve renewal of 17.05 mills for the 1991-1992 school year. This amount has already been approved for 1990-1991. Also included in this proposal is a request for voter authorization to override the Headlee amendment rollback, which, if passed, would allow the school to levy the full amount of all approved millages for the 1990-1991 school year.

The second proposal is a new request for an additional .9 of one mill for one year to be used to upgrade and improve computer programs and other technology in the classroom to maintain the present education programs. According to Rich Kelly, school business manager, however, the school could use the money to improve the school in any way; it would not be required to use the money solely for the stated purpose, unlike the transportation millage approved last year.

According to Kelly, the 17.5 renewal is the same amount that has been levied for the past two years. He said also that the second part of the first proposal will allow the school to levy the full amount of the millage already approved, rather than impose the rollback mandated by the Headlee amendment. Kelly said that this would allow the school to levy .5023 of 1 mill, or an additional $114,000.

Although the second proposal is for a new millage, Kelly said that the debt retirement millage for .3 of one mill was retired this year, therefore, the net increase if the second proposal passes would be .6 of one mill for one year.

If both proposals pass, the school could levy 28.34 mills for the 1990-1991 school year; a 1.382 mill increase over last year.

The school board will hold a public "Truth in Taxation" hearing May 21 to discuss the ramifications of both proposals on taxes.

Speech team wins state title

The warm tranquility of Charlevoix's Sunday afternoon was broken with the wail of police and fire sirens and blaring horns, as the Performing Arts students were welcomed home with the C-D Championship trophy in speech competitions.

Charlevoix won the title at the Michigan Interscholastic Forensics Association two-day tournament this weekend at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo. This returns home the three foot tall speech trophy last won by Charlevoix in 1980.

Golf tournament benefits Drug Abuse Resistance Education

Area golfers will be taking a swing at clubbing the nation's drug problem into submission Friday, May 18 when they participate in the Michigan DARE Celebrity Golf Tournament on the Monument Course at Boyne Resorts USA.

Celebrities scheduled to compete in the tournament include: Detroit Red Wings Rick Zombo and Joe Kocur, along with Wings broadcaster Dave Strader; Detroit Lion kicker Ed Murray and former Lions Jeff Chadwick and Rob Rubick; retired Michigan State University athletic director Doug Weaver; Detroit Pistons broadcaster George Blaha; and two astronauts from the space shuttle program.

DARE is the acronym for Drug Abuse Resistance Education. The DARE program focuses on reducing the demand for drugs by educating elementary and middle school students about the problems caused by drugs.

Proceeds from the May 18 golf tournament will benefit DARE programs in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties which are under the direction of four area police officers.

Tickets to golf in the tournament cost $65. The ticket price covers the cost of the cart, 18 holes of golf and lunch and a shot at several prizes.

Tournament organizers hope to have 100 players participating in the tournament. To order tickets, golfers should send their entry fee and handicap to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, attention Debbie, 1000 Grant Street, Charlevoix MI 49720.

Prizes at the tournament will include: an autographed poster of Jack Nicklaus; several clubs autographed by Tom Watson; and a variety of weekend passes and dinners at area resorts and restaurants.

For additional information about the tournament, contact the sheriff's department at 547-4461.

Yes, new bandshell will be built

Yes, there will be a new bandshell in East Park prior to the turn of the century. With any luck, there will be a new bandshell in East Park prior to the new year.

At Monday evening's city council meeting, the council approved a contract which will allow construction of the bandshell to begin in late August.

The decision to begin in August followed several minutes of debate over whether construction work should begin as soon as possible or wait until after the peak of the tourist season.

Chamber of Commerce executive director Jacqueline Merla asked for construction to be put off until after the summer season. She said construction would disturb boaters docked in the municipal marina adjacent to East Park and might also disrupt downtown business. She recommended having the bandshell construction take place in the fall at the same time as sidewalk construction which is scheduled for the east side of Bridge Street.

Former councilman Norm Probert spoke in favor of construction beginning as soon as possible. He said the construction would be as much of an attraction as a distraction as "sidewalk superintendents" would probably stop to watch the builders.

Councilman Ken Whitley expressed concern that if the project goes too far into the fall and the weather gets cold, the quality of the work will suffer.

Waiting until fall will also increase the cost of the project by $4,000, making the total price of the project $189,431 rather than $185,431. However, audience member Charles Papineau noted that money lost due to construction disruption of the crafts fair, art fair, Venetian Festival and other events would more than offset the $4,000.

Councilmembers unanimously approved beginning the project in August.

While the majority of funding for the project is in place, the bandshell committee will have to raise approximately $21,000 more to complete the bandshell.

Reverend Bruce Hamilton (right) of the Charlevoix Church of God was honored by the U.S. Coast Guard last week for his efforts in helping the crew of the Mesquite following the grounding of the ship in December. Admiral Richard Appelbaum (left) praised Hamilton for offering the church as a meeting site and counseling crewmembers following the incident. Two merchant marine captains from the merchant ship Mangal Desai, which picked up the crew of the Mesquite, also received awards. The ceremony took place Thursday, May 3 at the Coast Guard Lifeboat station.

Service groups sponsor 9th annual field day

More than 125 area students from trainable mentally impaired, severely impaired and preschool programs in northern Michigan will be in Charlevoix Friday, May 11 to participate in the 9th Annual Invitational Field Day sponsored by three local service groups.

During the course of the day, the students will participate in an opening ceremony, sports events, an award program and a dinner where entertainment will be provided by Jasper and the Tag-Alongs.

Activities the students will compete in include: relay races, wheelchair races, kickball, softball throw, 50-yard dash, and a peanut hunt for the preschoolers.

The field day is a cooperative effort of Charlevoix's Knights of Columbus, Masons and Oddfellows.

Students are from programs operated by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, Antrim-Kalkaska Industries, Bergmann Center and Little Traverse Enterprises.

CROP walk planning begins

The first organizational meeting of the Michigan Church World Service CROP Walk took place May 2 at the Presbyterian Church in Boyne City. In 1989 Church World Service-CROP had its most successful fund raising year in its 42-year history. There were 106 local community walks raising over one million dollars with 31,791 volunteer participants. Walkers from Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City join together in a unique county-wide community walk in an effort to combat world hunger. One fourth of the money raised is returned to the community. In 1989 East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix each received checks in the amount of $480.37 for their food pantries. According to Kay Smith, Charlevoix Co-ordinator, this year's Walk for Hunger is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 15. For further information contact Smith at 537-2920.

...speech team wins state title

Charlevoix's 18 member team earned the highest number of points of all 20 C-D School competing. Their total score was 106 points, 60 points more than second place finisher Westwood, an Upper Peninsula school.

Not only did Charlevoix win the C-D Championship, but, Coach Connie Ford reports, "because of the outstanding work of our students, we finished 11th of all 93 schools, class A through D."

Top individual awards went to Sophomore David Hunter, who placed 5th overall in "Story Telling," and senior Chrissy Dillon, who placed 6th in Dramatic Interpretation.

Junior J.P. Haneckow placed 7th in Poetry, a "superior performance by a student originally designated only as an alternate competitor and who stepped in at the last minute," Ford stated.

In the "Multiple" competition, where several students present dramatic interpretations, Charlevoix's entry "What If," performed by Tammi Felton (senior), Megan Bickersteth (freshman), Amber Phillips (freshman), Brian Coolman (sophomore), Will Wildman (junior) and Jarrett Moreno (junior), placed 8th. Charlevoix's other Multiple, "Runaways," based on the Broadway play of the same name, performed by Chris Felton (senior), Jake Smith (senior), B.J. VanLoe (sophomore), Jeff Warner (sophomore), and Julie Gengle (freshman) finished 13th.

Ford noted that two freshmen, Bickersteth and Gengle, learned their parts in the two weeks between regionals and state finals when the original competitors, Junior Michelle Carlson and freshman Lori Darrah had to drop out because of scheduling conflicts. "All four deserve credit for the team's success."

In "Impromptu," a spontaneous speech competition using current events topics, freshman Nancy Dammann, "came very close to making the semi-finals. I was really pleased with her performance in the junior-senior event," Ford commented.

OPINIONS

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

The tentworms must die

"Will you go out and kill those worms tonight?" the lady asked her husband.

She'd discovered a couple of tentworm nests in one of the trees in the back yard and she was all for an immediate tentworm extermination.

"Nope," he answered. "I've given them a reprieve."

"Don't give me this gibberish about a reprieve. Just go out and put some poison on them before they start eating the yard."

"I'm going out, but I ain't taking any poison with me. I'm just gonna have a little talk with those tentworms. Speak to 'em man to pest."

"Poison would work better," she said. "Save your little man to pest talk to spread on the garden. It'll make things grow better."

"I'm going out there and look those critters in their little tentworm eyes and tell 'em, 'All right, you scoundrel worms. I'm a givin' you 'till sunrise to hightail it out of these here parts.'"

In frustration, she rolled her eyes toward the ceiling.

"You should really get out there and kill those things while it's still daylight," she said.

"Oh no. Oh no," he countered. "There's quite a passel of those desperados in that tree and there's only one of me. If I go on a killing mission, I'm goin' in under the blanket of darkness. That way, I can utilize the old elephant of surprise."

"And this year, I ain't using poison to kill tentworms. I'm taking stronger measures."

"What do you mean, stronger measures?"

"Maybe I'll use fire. It's what I call the Smith-Barney philosophy of tentworm control. I'll kill them the old fashioned way. I'll burn them."

The wife grimaced as she envisioned an out-of-control fire burning down the neighborhood.

"Isn't fire a bit simplistic for a man of your considerable extermination skills?" she asked sarcastically.

"That may be true," the man conceded. "And fire's kind of slow too. I like to get rid of tentworms in a way that's quick and lethal."

He stopped speaking for a moment and wrinkled his face in deep thought.

After a moment, his face lit up. "I know what I'll use," he said. "I'll fetch my shotgun."

His wife cringed. "No you're not. No you're not," she said emphatically. "I'm not about to have you trying to take tentworms out of a tree with a shotgun."

"Why not?" he said indignantly. "A shotgun will take those things out of a tree. It works fine for cats, doesn't it?"

"You're not funny," his wife said. "You know I don't appreciate cat jokes."

"Well, maybe I won't take the shotgun," the husband conceded. "But shooting tentworms with a rifle is going to be a tricky business. I'll have to hold real steady and it'll probably take quite a few bullets."

"You're not shooting the tentworms. Not with a shotgun and not with a rifle," the lady yelled in exasperation.

"How about dynamite?" he asked. "Those tentworm nests aren't too big. I'm sure just one or two sticks would handle the job."

"No dynamite."

"Granted, dynamite has its drawbacks, but every method does. Dynamite might not do the tree a lot of good, but I'm pretty sure it would kill the tentworms."

"No dynamite. And that's final."

"I can't use fire. I can't use a shotgun or rifle. No dynamite. You're pretty particular about how I kill those tentworms. I'm beginning to think you might not want them killed at all."

"Yes I do," she said. "I want them killed and I want them killed now. There's bug poison out in the garage. Go get it and put it on the tentworm nests."

The man got up from his chair, put his jacket on and got the powdered bug poison from the garage.

He walked to the tree and shook some powder on the tentworm nests.

Poof. Poof.

"What a boring way to kill tentworms," the man thought to himself. "Next year, if my wife makes me poison these things, I'm going to find a more exciting way to do it. Maybe I'll slip some poison into their little tentworm drinks."

Letters to the Editor:

O.M. board offers thanks

Dear Editor,

I am writing to express appreciation to all who made possible the participation of the five Charlevoix Odyssey of the Mind teams in the 1990 Regional and State OM Competitions.

Congratulations to all the team members for all your hard work in coming up with such creative solutions to some very difficult problems.

Look for some new OM problems to solve starting next fall.

Hospital says thank you

Dear Editor,

We wish to express our appreciation to the many Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild members who helped make the Craft and Baked Goods Sale on Friday, April 20 a success. Once again the teamwork that is the hallmark of the Guild was very apparent. We thank everyone who made things to sell and those who organized the event and worked during the sale. A special thanks to Patti Moore and Rebecca Haney, chairmen for the sale. Over $670 was realized making the sale a big success.

Sincerely,
Richard L. Krueger

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

There's a split in Quebec

Ten years ago, in the summer of 1980, I was dismayed by persistent news reports that French-speaking Quebec Province was on the verge of breaking away from the rest of Canada.

Rene Lavesque, a hot-headed francophone, was prime minister of Quebec at the time and had called for a referendum on separation, a move I was sure would destroy one of Canada's chief charms — its dual cultures.

When I was growing up in Detroit, I was always impressed that my peers across the Canadian border were largely bilingual. English-speaking kids studied French and French-speaking kids studied English. They seemed to "get along" fairly well in both languages.

Although English was the language of Windsor, the city was surrounded by a number of charming French villages — Puce, Belle River, Tecumseh.

Although bilingualism didn't become Canada's national policy until 1965, the two languages always coexisted in parts of Ontario. I envied my Canadian cousins who had their money and their cereal boxes printed in both tongues.

Then things started to change. French-Canadians decided the rest of Canada was treating them like second-class citizens. "Quebec Libre" graffiti began appearing on weathered barns on the French side of the Ottawa River. Every time the movement faltered, something would happen to give it new life.

In 1967, the aging Charles de Gaulle, then president of France, paid a visit to Canada to open Expo '67 in Montreal. De Gaulle couldn't let the occasion pass without stoking the fires of separation with his inflammatory rhetoric. "Liberte, egalite, senilite," sniffed the English press after de Gaulle returned home.

Shortly before the Quebec referendum 10 years ago, I packed my family in our old Chevy wagon and headed for the wilds of Quebec to find out what was going on. We struck out east out of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., crossed the Ottawa River into Quebec at Temiscaming and then headed north into such far-flung mining outposts as Rouyn, Malartic and Val-d'Or.

At every roadside park, at every gas station, at every motel and restaurant I made it a point to broach the subject of separation with the local population using my best fractured French.

The consensus surprised me. With one exception — a renegade bush pilot — the folks I talked to said they were Canadians first, Quebecois second. They had no intention of breaking away from Canada and losing all their benefits as Canadian citizens.

That is precisely what happened in the referendum: Quebec remained a Canadian province.

Now, 10 years later, I wish I could say the same sentiment prevails, but apparently it doesn't. Quebec no longer is dependent on the wealth of English-speaking provinces for survival. Quebec has one quarter of Canada's population and accounts for one quarter of Canada's national economy.

During our 1980 trip, we noticed a major highway heading north from the vicinity of Louviers. It was closed to general traffic, but was open to trucks carrying heavy equipment and materials to several huge hydroelectric projects near James Bay.

It is fairly safe to assume that some of the power plants are now in operation and Quebec has all the energy it needs to fuel further growth and prosperity.

In 1987, at Meech Lake north of Ottawa, the prime ministers of all the Canadian provinces gathered to draft an amendment to Canada's constitution granting greater protections to all provinces. But the Meech Lake Accords also give preferential treatment to Quebec, declaring it a "distinct society" with special permission to "preserve and promote" the French language.

The hitch is that all of Canada's 10 provinces and the Canadian Parliament must approve the amendment by June 23 or it is a dead issue. So far, parliament and seven provinces have concurred. The holdouts are Manitoba, New Brunswick and Newfoundland. The Newfies actually approved the amendment and then reneged last month.

The chance of passage at this late date now appears remote. Without the Meech Lake Accords, another Quebec referendum on separation is almost a foregone conclusion.

Judge Pajtas to seek reelection

Circuit Judge Richard M. Pajtas has announced his candidacy for reelection to the 33rd Circuit Court for Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. Judge Pajtas, age 47, is running for his second six year term of office. He was first elected to the bench in November, 1984. The current term of office expires January 1, 1991.

In announcing his candidacy, Judge Pajtas stated: "My first term of office has been both challenging and satisfying. I hope to bring to a second term of office the wealth of experience gained in the first six years of handling a vast caseload, growing both in terms of numbers and complexity."

"It has been a real challenge keeping the docket current in one of the busiest circuit courts in the State. We have been able to do so by implementing state of the art principles of caseload management. However, the rate of increase is fast becoming exceedingly difficult for one person to handle. The need for an additional judge in the Circuit and for additional facilities in

Judge Richard Pajtas

Charlevoix county is eminent.

"It has been very gratifying over the past several years to see the success of such innovative programs as the Victims Restitution Fund, Victim's Impact Statement in presentence investigation reports and the utilization of procedures designed to lessen the impact on child witnesses in criminal sexual conduct cases.

We have also reorganized certain aspects of the Friend of the Court's offices and initiated stepped-up child support enforcement procedures. A new mediation system is successful in resolving 75 percent of the general civil litigation.

"I look forward to tackling new challenges, such as developing a fair and efficient system of providing assigned counsel, financing the courts and reorganizing the jury system to make it more convenient for people to serve and save the counties money."

Judge Pajtas obtained his Doctor of Law degree from the Detroit College of Law in 1970. Before serving as Circuit Judge, he engaged in the general practice of law with emphasis on trial practice. He is a member of the Michigan Judges Association, American Judicature Society, American Bar Association, State Bar of Michigan and the Emmet-Charlevoix Bar Association. He resides in Charlevoix with his wife, Dana, and their two sons, Jason and Zachary.

Band boosters to discuss plans

The Charlevoix High School Band Boosters will have their spring meeting Monday, May 14 at 7 p.m. in the high school band room.

Matters on the agenda include: election of officers; an update on the uniform purchasing schedule; a report on spaghetti dinner proceeds; future fund-raising plans.

All parents of middle and high school band students are asked to attend. For additional information, call Linny Arnold at 547-9030.

Middle school bands to play

At 7 p.m. Tuesday May 15 more than 100 eager band students from the sixth and seventh grades of Charlevoix Middle School will assemble at the Charlevoix High School gym to present a concert of instrumental music.

The sixth grade band, under the direction of Evelyn Wojcik, will play several musical selections which will show the instrumental skills which they have learned in the eight months since they first began playing in September.

The seventh grade band, directed by Terry Isenbarger, will present a variety of music, including marches, overtures, and "just for fun" music. The concert will be about fifty minutes in length, and is open to the public free of charge.

Island recycling begins

GTP Industries Recycling is pleased to announce new dropoff sites soon to be opened on Beaver Island and in the Villages of Fife Lake and Empire, Michigan. All three sites are scheduled to open in May of 1990 and will accept all materials: GTP collects, including old newspapers, cardboard, glass, tin, aluminum, used motor oil, office paper and plastics. Semi-trailers, funded through a grant to GTP Industries, through the Quality of Life Bond Program, will be set up in Empire and Fife Lake.

CORRINA MARKS AND STEVEN TROOST

Debbie L. Marks of Howard City announces the engagement of her daughter, Corrina Marie, to Steven Benjamin Troost. He is the son of Connie L. Troost, also of Howard City.

The bride-to-be is also the granddaughter of Jake and Ruth White of Charlevoix.

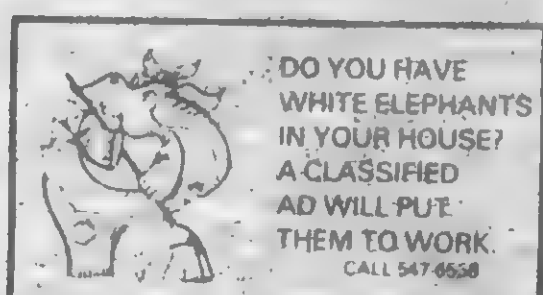

Both young people are graduates of Tri-County High

Suicide survivors group forms

A new group is forming for people affected by a suicide death. Survivors of Suicide (SOS) is a group to help those who are affected by a suicide death rather than those who have survived a suicide attempt.

The group will meet for the first time at 7 p.m., Wednesday, May 16 at the Church of God on Hurlbut Street.

For additional information, phone 547-5331 or 347-8060.

Nancy Anne Korn and Dr. James Michael Zelch were married recently at Congregational Shaarey Zedek in Southfield.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Monte M. Korn of West Bloomfield and Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Zelch of Farmington Hills. Rabbi Irwin Groner, Rabbi Harold Loss, Cantor Sidney Rube, and Cantor Chaim Najman officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was attended by her sisters, Linda Diem and Joanne Rowe, who served as matrons of honor; her sister-in-law, Lynne Brooks-Korn; the bridegroom's sisters, Linda Rouff and Wendy Zelch; and Lorraine Brennan, Denise Cohen, Debbie Gordon, Sylvia Kranin, and Monica Suleski, all of whom served as bridesmaids.

David Rouff, the bridegroom's brother-in-law, served as best man. The ushers were Lawrence Korn, Howard Brooks-Korn, Stephen Korn, and Richard Korn, brothers of the bride; Mark Diem and Michael Rowe, brothers-in-law of the bride; and Jack Folbe, Richard Kovan, Michael Simmons, and Stephen Winkler.

The bridegroom's grandfather, Burt Seiden, also participated in the ceremony.

Northern Michigan play debuts

What do three middle school students and a computer services director from Charlevoix have in common with a barber, a sign maker, and a middle school principal from East Jordan? The same thing they have in common: with a groundskeeper, a massage therapist and a hardware store clerk from Bellaire. They're all involved with the world premiere of "Hocus Pocus," a joint production of Antrim Regional Theatre and Jordan River Arts Council.

The two-act comedy will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, May 11 and 12, at Bellaire High School and Friday and Saturday, May 18 and 19 at East Jordan High School. Tickets are $5 for adults and $2 for students and seniors.

The script, written by East Jordan's Lenore Bechtel and directed by Charlevoix's Jim McKinney, revolves around a fun-loving hypnotist whose unorthodox methods of helping clients lead to some hilarious entanglements. The hypnotist is played by Bellaire actor Michael J. Eddy, who recently entertained Antrim County with his engaging portrayal of Marshal Ryan in "Mixed Nuts."

One of the hypnotist's clients is Patty Vein, who heads a punk rock group called The Pulsettes, played by three Charlevoix Middle School students and an East Jordan tenth grader. They are Ellen McKinney, Eleonora Frey, Jamie McKinney and Darcie Dietrich.

Most East Jordan cast members are making their acting debuts, including Jeff LaRoux, East Jordan Middle School principal who portrays a client who thinks he's invisible; Linda Pinney, East Jordan High School senior, who portrays a weight client; Ronald Postma.

The project is partially funded with a mini-grant from Michigan Council for the Arts and Cheboygan Area Arts Council to establish a Charlevoix County community theatre group which will cooperate with Antrim Regional Theatre for future productions.

Bechtel, the playwright, drew upon seven years' experience as a hypnosis program developer to plot the light-hearted comedy. An award-winning journalist and co-author of two self-help books, she has been a teacher, a behavior counselor, a public relations consultant and a reporter for several newspapers.

McKinney, the director, has 34 years experience with theatre and television as a playwright and screen writer, stage and TV actor, stage manager and set designer. A former associate producer of CBS-TV's "Captain Kangaroo Show," he was producer-director of five plays and seven musicals for Thomas Wolfe Playhouse, he directed "Hello, Dolly," which became the first production OGP took on the road.

Tickets are available at Busy Bridge in East Jordan, Lake Street Trading Company in Boyne City and Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

BUSINESS

Katrina and Jim Tripp are now operating Tripp's Paint and Wallpaper shop on the corner of Antrim and State Streets.

New paint and wallpaper store opens for business

There's a bright, new shop in the building next to Judy's Restaurant on Antrim Street.

Jerry, Jim, and Jerry, Jr. Tripp have opened Tripp's Paint and Wallpaper to service contractors as well as the general public with high quality paints and wallpapers and all the accessories and tools needed to use them.

Father Jerry Tripp has been in the painting and decorating business in the eastern Upper Peninsula for almost 40 years, and his sons have followed in his footsteps. They recently completed a major job for the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island, a long-time customer.

Now, Jim and his wife, Katrina, have come to Charlevoix to help "Keep Charlevoix Beautiful." They are selling Pratt & Lambert paints and Sanitas and Millbrook wallpapers and providing helpful "how-to" suggestions.

For the do-it-yourselfer, there are stepladders, drop cloths, brushes, rollers, sandpaper, steel wool, masking tape, dry wall, putty, and many other items on the well-stocked shelves.

Besides the usual interior and exterior paints, Tripp's carries a supply of specialty paints, including boat paint and pool paint. If a special order is required, it can be filled within two days, according to Jim. Also, home delivery will be made on larger orders of all kinds.

The shop is open from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday; phone 547-0811.

Chamber of Commerce plans Dinner Dance

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce will host its annual Dinner Dance May 19 at the Belvedere Casino. Two bands will provide entertainment; the Northwood Corporate Brass and Everlife, a band from the Detroit area.

Tickets for the event are available at the Chamber office and cost $30 per person.

CHURCH

Hugh J. Lambert

Hugh J. Lambert Sr., 65, of Charlevoix, died April 30, 1990, at Little Traverse Division, Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Funeral was Thursday, May 3, at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. The Rev. Cecil Drost officiated with burial in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Lambert was born June 23, 1944, in Cherokee, N.C., the son of Paul L. and Evelyn (Shields) Lambert Sr. The family moved to Charlevoix in 1956 and Mr. Lambert graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1963.

He married the former Patricia Ann Breakey on June 10, 1967, in East Jordan. They have made their home in Charlevoix.

Mr. Lambert was owner and operator of Charlevoix Excavating, Inc. for the past three years. He was a member of the Charlevoix Flying Club and was a student pilot. He was also a member of Charlevoix Archery Club and participated in competitive archery statewide. He also enjoyed hunting.

He is survived by his wife Patricia; two daughters, Mrs.

Todd (Tammy L.) Eisenberg of Ellsworth and Angela L. Lambert of Charlevoix; one son, Hugh J. Lambert Jr. of Charlevoix; his parents, Paul and Evelyn Lambert of Charlevoix; his grandmother, Ava Lambert of Brevard, N.C.; two brothers, Barry Lambert of Atlanta, Ga. and Paul Lambert Jr. of Wolverine; three sisters, Mrs. Everett (Tahnyah) Wilkins of Rudyard, Mrs. Jim (Kathy) Cooley of Portland and Mrs. Richard (Ellandah) Wolfe of Colleville, Texas. Memorials to the family are suggested.

Ruth M. Shapton

Ruth Matchett Shapton, 76, of Charlevoix, and Zephyrhills, Fla., died Feb. 15, 1990, in Zephyrhills, where she has lived the past 18 winters.

Funeral service will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, May 12, at the Barnard United Methodist Church, Charlevoix.

The former Ruth Matchett was born Dec. 12, 1911, on her parents' farm in Barnard. She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1929.

After attending County Normal School in Charlevoix for one year, she taught at the Advance and Nowland schools for six years.

Mrs. Shapton later graduated from Central Michigan College (now Central Michigan University) in Mount Pleasant and began teaching in Lansing public schools. She completed her career as principal at Kenden, and finally at Foster Avenue schools.

She married Lee S. Shapton on June 29, 1940, at the Barnard United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Shapton was a member of Delta Kappa Gamma, an honorary sorority of women educators. She was also a member of the Barnard United Methodist Church and the Michigan State Holiness Camp Meeting.

In recent years, she and her husband, Lee, have spent summers at their home in Clipper View, Charlevoix.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by three children, Dr. William Shapton of Houghton, Mrs. John (LeRue) Werner of St. Louis, Mo., and Mark Shapton of Hudson, Wis.; several grandchildren; one brother, Sandy Matchett of Charlevoix; and one sister, Margaret Hurd of Jackson.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Barnard United Methodist Church. Envelopes for this purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home, where friends may call from 7-9 p.m. Friday, May 11.

William F. Habel Sr.

William F. Habel Sr., 63, of Charlevoix, died May 2, 1990, at Little Traverse Division, Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Funeral was 2 p.m., Saturday, May 5, at Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. The Rev. Lowell Anderson of the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church officiated with burial in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Habel was born June 18,

1926, the son of Frank and Jennie (Nowland) Habel Jr. He was raised by his stepfather, Albert Stanley Houghton and his mother, Jennie, and has been a lifelong resident of Charlevoix. He was a truck driver most of his life and retired from Rex Transportation in Flint in 1988, after 10 years. He also owned and operated a farm.

Mr. Habel served in the U.S. Army from 1947-48.

He married the former Leona C. Warner on Jan. 14, 1949, in Charlevoix.

Mr. Habel is survived by his wife; three sons, William F. Habel of Charlevoix, James L. Habel of Charlevoix and Allen S. Habel of Bay Shore; one daughter, Mrs. David (Sandra Kay) Santure of Charlevoix; nine grandchildren; two brothers, Robert Houghton and Albert Houghton, both of Charlevoix; two sisters, Mrs. Garrett (Bertha) Potter and Mrs. Bill (Bernice) Macy both of Charlevoix.

The family suggests memorials to the American Heart Association. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Lillian Hull

Gravestone service for Lillian Hull, who died March 6, 1990, will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday, May 10, at Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix. The Rev. Fr. James K. Gardiner will officiate.

Bernard (Bernie) Matchett

Bernard (Bernie) Charles Matchett, 57, died April 19 in Cottonwood, Arizona. Matchett was born in Charlevoix and raised on a farm south of the community.

Matchett married Katherine McLain Jan. 12, 1951.

He worked as a telegraph operator for the C & O Railroad and later worked as an office worker at Dow Chemical Company's Metallurgical Lab. He also taught at Whiteriver Elementary School on the Fort Apache Indian Reservation and at Longfellow School in Mesa, AZ.

Matchett was an avid pilot and a member of the Civil Air Patrol. He was also active in the Wayside Chapel church.

He is survived by his wife Kathie; son Bryan and family; two granddaughters and five sisters.

Clarissa L. Knapp

Clarissa L. Knapp, 64, of Charlevoix, died April 30, 1990, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility, East Jordan.

Funeral was Wednesday, May 2, at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. The Rev. Benton Heister of Charlevoix United Methodist Church officiated, with burial in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Miss Knapp was born Nov. 19, 1925, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Justus and Neva Coleman Knapp. She lived with her parents until 1955 when she moved to Grandvue Hospital with her father. She resided there and then at Grandvue Medical Care Facility until April 21, 1979. At that time she moved into the Dubin Adult Foster Care Home in Boyne City. She lived there until November 3, 1986, when she returned to the supervised residential section of Grandvue.

Miss Knapp had worked at the Bergmann Center in Charlevoix since 1979 and always enjoyed going to work and participating in bowling and parties sponsored by the center.

Miss Knapp has no known survivors.

Memorials are suggested to the Grandvue Medical Care Facility. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Wayne H. Babcock

Burt Lake and Lake Charlevoix summer resident Wayne H. Babcock, 73, of Sylvania, Ohio, died April 26, 1990, at his home near Toledo.

Mr. Babcock was a longtime summer resident and had resided on the west side of Burt Lake and more recently on Lake Charlevoix at Hemingway Point.

Funeral was April 30 at Pilgrim's Church of United Church of Christ in Toledo. The Rev. Al Irby officiated and burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery, Toledo.

Mr. Babcock was born April 3,

1917, in Toledo, the son of Roy W. and Ruth Probeck Babcock. He started coming to Northern Michigan with his parents in 1924 and had spent his summers in the area ever since.

He operated the family dairy business in Toledo for many years before retiring.

His wife, Donna, preceded him in death four years ago. Mr. Babcock is survived by one son, Chester W. Babcock of Milwaukee, Wis.; two sisters, Betty Brown of St. Louis, Mo., and Peggy Harris of Alanson; one brother, Roy (Bill) Babcock of Fresno, Calif.

Garfield R. Russell

Garfield R. Russell, 80, of Charlevoix, died May 3, 1990, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility, East Jordan.

Funeral was Sunday, May 6, at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. The Rev. Cecil Drost officiated with burial in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Russell was born Oct. 19, 1909, in Charlevoix and grew up here. He married the former Genevieve Barker on Jan. 19, 1931, in Petoskey. They made their home in Petoskey from 1933-64, and then returned to Charlevoix. Mrs. Russell preceded him in death on Oct. 6, 1984.

Mr. Russell was a truck driver for Fochman Motor Co. in Petoskey, retiring in 1970. He then worked at the Belvedere Club in Charlevoix from 1972-86.

He enjoyed outdoor activities including hunting, fishing and camping.

Survivors include three sons, Thomas J. of Oden, Bud G. of Charlevoix and Donald D. of Middleville; one daughter, Mrs. Jack (Luana) Camburn of Boyne City; 16 grandchildren; 21 great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to Grandvue Medical Care Facility. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Students spend break in Spain

Nine Charlevoix students and their teacher spent two weeks in Spain during spring break. While in Spain, they not only took in the routine sight-seeing attractions, but stayed with Spanish families and attended schools with Spanish students.

The nine Charlevoix students were: Heather Keller, Kallie Washburn, Jenny Puhl, Kasha Barrette, Lisa Schneider, Sonja Carlisle, Jenny Kelly, Julie Bush and Mike Ochs. They were accompanied by Spanish teacher Theresa Rumsey.

"I went to an all-girls-Catholic school," Keller said. "It wasn't too different from an American private school, but the times they went were different. They go from 10 to one, then they come home from one to three, then go back from three to five."

The Charlevoix students went to different Spanish schools and their reports on the schools varied.

"School was so different than American schools," Schneider stated. "The classrooms were very noisy and they (the students) didn't get in trouble for talking while the teacher was lecturing. They did not use books. The teacher always lectured."

While in Spain, the students visited several different cities. Each student had their own favorite among the cities.

"My favorite was Sevilla," said Kelly. "I thought it was so pretty, especially with all of the palm trees and the river. Even though we stayed overnight, I wish we would have stayed longer."

"The best part of the trip was going to Madrid," according to Keller. "I got a real taste of Spain, being there."

Putting their knowledge of the Spanish language to the test proved to be a challenge, but things worked out.

"I found myself 'thinking' before I spoke," Kelly noted.

Keep holding onto your census forms

If you're getting tired of looking at the census forms you filled out several weeks ago, just put them in a safe place for another few weeks.

That is the advice of the people in the Census Bureau office in Traverse City.

"Don't mail them in. Somebody will be around to pick them up before the end of June," they say.

They also say there is no need to wait around for the census people to call on you. If they go to your house and you are not at home, they will leave a note or contact you later by phone.

Ione S. Smith

Ione S. Smith, 76, of Central Lake died May 4, 1990, at Meadowbrook Medical Care Facility in Bellaire.

A resident of Central Lake most of her life, she worked as a principal and teacher for Charlevoix and Petoskey schools for 22 years, retiring in 1974.

She received her master's and bachelor's degrees from the University of Michigan. She was a member of the Central Lake Congregational Church, the Church Congregators and the Women's Fellowship.

She was born Oct. 25, 1913, in Central Lake, the daughter of Harry and Orpha (Kummer) Smith. On Aug. 25, 1940 she married Max Smith in Central Lake.

She is survived by her husband, Max; three sons, Brook of Iron River, Hugh and Clark, both of Petoskey; one daughter, Meryl Schoon of Howell; and 13 grandchildren.

Funeral was held Monday, May 7 at the Central Lake Congregational Church. The Rev. Robert R. Harrell officiated and interment took place in Southern Cemetery, Central Lake.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Central Lake Congregational Church.

Arrangements were handled by the Central Lake Chapel of the Mortensen Funeral Home.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE
Default having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage made by Leslie E. Crain and Faye Ann Crain, husband and wife, of Boi 3318, Boyne City, Michigan 49712 to Northwestern State Bank of Boyne City, Michigan 49712, dated January 12, 1981, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Charlevoix, in the State of Michigan, on January 26, 1981, at Liber 162, page 254 on which Mortgage there is a claim to be due at the date of this Notice for Principal and interest, the sum of Forty-Seven Thousand Four Hundred Nine and 44/100 ($47,409.44) Dollars; and no proceedings having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said Mortgage has become operative;

NOW THEREFORE, notice is hereby given that on the twenty-third day of May, 1990, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, on the steps of the Courthouse in Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place for holding the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder, at public sale, for the purposes of satisfying the amounts due and unpaid upon said Mortgage, together with interest at 14.5 percent per annum, legal costs, attorney fees, and any taxes and insurance that said Mortgagee, Northwestern State Bank of Boyne City, Michigan does pay on or prior to the date of said sale; said premises are described in said Mortgage as follows, to-wit:

City of Boyne City, County of Charlevoix and State of Michigan, as follows:

Part of the Northwest Quarter (NW 1/4) of the Northwest Quarter (NW 1/4) of Section 36, Town 33 North, Range 6 West; commencing at the Northwest Corner of said Section 36; thence South 36 rods; thence East 10 rods, thence North 36 rods; thence West 10 rods to the place of beginning. Except for all coal, oil, minerals, gas and aboriginal antiquities lying or being on, within or under the aforesaid premises which have previously been reserved by the State of Michigan; and subject to all reservations and exceptions in favor of the State of Michigan. Also subject to any highways of record or in use over and across said lands.

The Redemption Period as provided by law is six(6) months from the date of sale.

Developer files suit against city

Developer Lester Turner has filed suit against the city of Charlevoix. The suit is the result of a city council decision to deny Turner's rezoning request for property on the corner of U.S. 31 and Mercer Blvd.

The property is currently occupied by the Wayside Motel. Turner is seeking to purchase and develop the property through a land contract. Rezoning for a portion of the property in Charlevoix Township has been approved.

The key question in the suit is how much information can the city require a developer to provide with an application for rezoning.

During the past year, in meetings concerning the rezoning request, Turner contended that the city can only require limited information for a rezoning decision.

City planning commission and city council members have taken the position that they need more information than Turner has been willing to provide in order to make a decision on the rezoning request.

The property is currently zoned M-H (Motel/Hotel). In June of 1989 Turner filed to have the property rezoned from M-H to R-4 (planned residential).

When Turner filed for rezoning, city planner Gerry Harsh informed him that the rezoning request would not be put on the planning commission agenda until the project received preliminary site plan approval.

Turner then filed a request and accompanying information seeking preliminary site plan approval and went before the planning commission.

When planning commission members reviewed the preliminary site plan, they decided they wanted additional information prior to making a recommendation to the city council.

The information they requested was: whether the density of the proposed plan can be modified for less density; a discussion of excluding a portion of the property zoned (SR) Scenic Reserve from the rezoning plan; information regarding the percentage of woods the site would lose from development; a more detailed landscaping plan; illustrations of elevations as the property would be viewed from US 31 and Lake Charlevoix under the proposed plan; the effect of the proposed plan on water quality.

Turner refused to provide the planning commission with the requested information and the request went before the council without a favorable recommendation from the planning commission. At the Sept. 18 city council meeting, the council voted to send Turner back to the planning commission and indicated the preliminary plan would be rejected if the requested information was not provided.

The information was never provided and at the council's Feb. 5 meeting, councilmembers voted to deny the rezoning request.

In the suit, which was filed May 8 in 33rd Circuit Court, Turner contends that requiring that a rezoning request for R-4 property be filed simultaneously with a request for site plan approval is illegal because it is a "device used by the city to enter into an illegal agreement, i.e. contract zoning" and places an improper and illegal burden on a property owner to "require architectural and engineering costs and other expenses for building design and site development prior to the property owner having the necessary zoning."

In a Monday afternoon telephone interview with the Courier, city attorney Jim Young said the city's position in the case will be that the information the planning commission and council re-

City manager seeks pay raise

The city council is considering a proposed 33 percent pay increase for city manager Mike Wiesner. The increase would raise Wiesner's annual salary from approximately $39,000 per year to $52,000 per year. Benefits add at least $5,000 to the total package.

Councilmembers discussed the increase at Monday evening's council work session. They indicated they will vote on the proposed increase at their May 21 meeting.

Based on a straw poll taken at the work session, the vote will be close. Councilmembers Pat Gaskin, Bill Haggard and Cheri Hoffman spoke favorably of the increase. Councilmembers Butch Russell, Jim Potter and mayor Gary Probert spoke less favorably of the increase. Councilmember Ken Whitley was absent from Monday's work session.

Much of the discussion focused on Wiesner's engineering abilities and comparisons to the salaries of school administrators. Wiesner is an engineer and uses those abilities in working on city projects. Wiesner estimated that he uses his engineering expertise at least 50 percent of the time in his role as city manager.

Other engineers in the audience said Wiesner's engineering abilities save the Groundwork laid for petunias

Between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m., Thursday, May 24 the people of Charlevoix will plant 50,000 petunias.

Colors this year will be red, white, lavender and three shades of pink. And those are just the colors of the faces of all of the hardworking planters as they huff and puff to get those flowers in the ground. The petunias will be pretty too.

Block captains will oversee Operation Petunia and validate each planter's ticket which allows the planter to enjoy the petunia picnic in East Park beginning at 6 p.m.

Rotarians will be providing the staple food at the petunia picnic. That is to say they'll be grilling hot dogs. Potato chips, ice cream, Tom's Mom's cookies and Coke will supplement the Rotary dogs. Student planters will also receive tickets redeemable at the Dairy Queen.

Middle school students Tim Terry and Jill Dreyer have been named 1990 Petunia prince and princess. Theirs will be the only type of reign allowed during the planting and picnic. In fact, there's going to be so much sunshine that a big tent furnished by Kirby Dipert will provide shade for the picnic.

Oleson's is donating hot dogs and buns to the picnic for the ninth year with Coca Cola supplying the beverage.

Bruce MacArthur is coordinating the planting. Steve Stargardt will provide enter-

Fire department orders new truck

A new rescue truck has been ordered by the Charlevoix City Fire Department. With any luck, it will arrive in Charlevoix in time to be displayed in the Venetian Parade.

Ordering the truck capped off a fundraising drive which began in 1988. The truck carries a $109,000 price tag. Fundraising contributions will pay all but $13,500 of that amount. The $13,500 will come from the city budget and pay for special equipment on the truck - an electric generator, foam system and winch.

The truck's primary purpose is to carry rescue equipment such as the Jaws of Life, airbags for lifting cars, chains, prybars and a variety of other odds and ends to accidents and fires.

Fire Chief John Martin said the truck will also carry approximately 250 gallons of water which would allow it to be used on a limited basis for fighting grass fires.

The foam system will be used at accident scenes where there are flammable liquids present. An example of such a situation would be a car accident where gas is spilled on the roadway.

Car accidents also might provide occasion to use the winch. Martin said the front-mounted winch can be used to stabilize tilted vehicles.

The generator on the truck will provide electrical power for lights, fans and other fire equipment. The fire department has several large lights so firemen can see what they're doing when fighting fires at night. Fans are used to clear smoke from buildings and decrease smoke damage.

Martin said the generator also gives the department added electrical capacity to handle any new electrical equipment which is developed for fighting fires.

A deck gun capable of pumping up to 1,250 gallons of water minute will be mounted on the top of the truck. Water pumped through the gun would generally come from hydrants or other trucks rather than from the rescue truck's own 250 gallon reserve.

"We would always run other equipment with something like this," Martin said of the rescue truck. The truck is a four-wheel drive International. The cab and chassis were ordered from Zaremba Equipment in Elmira. The remainder of the truck will be constructed and assembled by J-D Fire Apparatus, a company based in Shawano, Wisconsin.

Prior to arriving in Charlevoix, the truck will be exhibited at the Michigan Fire Chiefs Convention, July 7-9 in Lansing.

requested generally is reasonably related to the decisions which they (the planning commission and council) are required to make under the zoning ordinance.

In the suit, Turner asks the court to enjoin the city from enforcing the M-H zoning to prohibit Turner from developing the property with condominiums and townhouses. He also seeks a declaratory judgement authorizing the construction of the condominiums and townhouses.

Barbara E. Turner and Sandra B. Turner are listed with Lester Turner as plaintiffs in the suit. Lester Turner is the plaintiff who has appeared at city meetings on the rezoning request. The plaintiffs are represented in the case by attorney W. Richard Smith of Petoskey.

The city has 21 days to file a response to the suit. Young said he expects the city to file a response within the next two weeks.

Block captains on the south side will be Nancy Allison, Laurie Keller, Jim Block, Tom Bergmann and Troy Bonar. Captaining the north side will be Ty Conklin, Tansley Stewart, Don Moggison, Frank Zednick, John Kurtz, Bonnie Mundell and John McKown. People wishing to participate in the planting should contact a block captain.

Monday evening, the city council expressed a desire to have the entire week of May 18-26 be a time to emphasize community clean-up.

Petunia truck to become limousine

A combination limousine and watering truck?

"Yessiree," says Dale Boss, who has driven Charlevoix's petunia watering truck up and down Bridge Street in the early morning hours for several summers now, and steered the same truck through 17 parades around the state last year.

As Boss explains it, there hasn't been enough room in the cabin of the truck to accommodate relief drivers and other help necessary in carrying out the jobs of watering petunias and publicizing Charlevoix, so something had to be done.

His solution was to find a manufacturer who could produce a limousine-type body for the watering truck cab. He found one in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, and last weekend Boss drove to Lancaster, had the new cab body installed, and returned home with the new limousine.

watering truck.

To make this transformation, the tank of the watering truck was removed and the chassis lengthened by five feet. It is now all back together with the new cab, complete with a seven-person U-shaped couch in the rear and seating space for two more people up front.

"Now, when the Governor comes to town like he did last year, we'll have a limousine for him," Boss promises with a grin.

The cost of transforming the petunia watering truck will amount to about $9,000, to be paid for by Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and the Charlevoix Visitors Bureau.

The new truck will get its first workout next Wednesday evening, when 14,000 gallons of water will be poured on the petunia beds prior to petunia planting the next day.

Sportsman plan annual rendezvous with past

The Jordan River Sportsmen's Club will host their annual Cabin Fever Rendezvous the coming Saturday and Sunday at the club range on Advance Road.

The Rendezvous will feature people in 18th and 19th century period dress competing in black powder shoots, knife and hawk throwing contests and other events from yesteryear.

The public is welcome to attend the events and watch the events free of charge.

Although it may have been mid May, the weather was more like mid February last Thursday as northern Michigan suffered through a late-season snowstorm.

Local chef named soup finalist

Chef David Phillips of Charlevoix's Wharfside restaurant has been named one of 10 finalists in the Michigan "Souper Bowl" contest and will serve his soup to a panel of final judges on Thursday, May 17, at Kalamazoo's Black Swan Inn.

Phillips' recipe for "Michigan morning fruit soup" includes apples, peaches, cherries, pears and blueberries.

The second annual "Souper Bowl" contest highlights the state's many agricultural products during Michigan Week, May 18-26. Finalists were chosen from nearly 150 contestants, and entered such selections as carrot vichyssoise, cold apple soup, Michigan harvest soup and asparagus soup with grilled salmon.

One winner will be named in both the professional and amateur categories and each receives $500.

Final judges, who will rate soups on taste, originality, ingredients and appearance, include Mark Griffin, Michigan Restaurant Association vice president; Leonard R. Barnes, AAA Michigan Living magazine editor-in-chief; Louis (Ned) Legg Jr., chairman of Michigan Week and chair of the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce; and Edward Edwardson, chief of public safety for the city of Kalamazoo.

Preliminary judges were Jean Sarna, Detroit Free Press test kitchen director, food writer and home economist; Ethel Simmons, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers Inc. food editor, and Evelyn Cairns, Heritage Newspapers food editor.

Charlevoix has been called by many names — Charlevoix the Beautiful, the City on Three Lakes, the Town with the Prettiest Harbor, but never "Little Leningrad." Not until now.

But that's exactly what Alexai Sultanov called Charlevoix as he toured the area. Why does he refer to Charlevoix as "Little Leningrad?" Because of the bridge that goes up and down!

Alexai in case you've forgotten, is the winner of the 1989 Van Cliburn Gold Medal competition. He gave his first United States concert last summer with the Northwood Symphony, under the direction of Don Yaeger. Those of us who heard this charming 20-year-old Russian play the piano were enamored by his graceful performance. (Wherever did the expression "play the piano" come from anyway? It seems to me Alexai tames the piano with his fingers.)

You can be sure we will be back this summer to hear him play again for Northwood, but this time closer to home at the new facility on the Boyne City Road. The Barn at Dunmaglas. (Formerly known as the Mill.) The date for this Gala Grand Opening is Saturday, July 14. His popular selection, Tchaikovsky's Concerto for Piano, No. 1 in B-flat minor, Op 23.

When Alexai made his debut at Carnegie Hall this spring, he told fans that he loves to play for Don Yaeger and the Northwood Symphony and is eagerly looking forward to his return to Northern Michigan, and so are we.

In case you haven't heard the details, Northwood-Symphony is going to divide its time between Tent Concerts in Harbor Springs and Barn Concerts in Charlevoix. It will also divide its program between the classics on Tuesday evenings and pop concerts on Saturday evenings. Charlevoixians who missed the New Reformation Dixieland Band when it played here at the Congregational Church will have another chance to hear it on Saturday, July 21. "A Salute to the Boston Pops" is scheduled for Venetian Weekend, Saturday, July 28 and "An evening with Dave Brubeck," the jazz legend, will take place on Saturday, August 4.

If your summer calendar, like mine, is beginning to fill up with family house guests and friends, an evening under the stars with great music right at our back door is a lovely way to entertain visitors of any age. I'm looking forward to this!

I'm also looking forward to a special Charlevoix treat at the Boston Pop Concert. Some lucky person will be the recipient of a quest conductorship with a 50 piece orchestra. If you would like to salute your favorite amateur conductor, here's the opportunity to give that special someone an outstanding birthday or anniversary gift. The prize will go to the highest bidder. don't worry, there will be a rehearsal with the Northwood Orchestra prior to the performance. In order to have the name of the winning conductorship printed in the official program, please contact Chris Goedert at 517-832-4364 in Midland before June 18.

REASONABLE TO ME
L. SCOTT SWANSON

Giant pumpkins go high-tech

This year the giant pumpkins have gone high-tech. Their cultivation now involves an old piece of rain-gutter and a big stone. Later this summer, I may even procure a hypodermic needle and bring that into play.

For several years now, I've been trying to grow giant pumpkins. Each spring, the seed catalogues arrive in the mail and the pictures of the giant pumpkins look so inviting. The catalogues always show a picture of a smiling little kid seated next to a pumpkin that's about four times his size.

These pictures bring out the little kid in me. I want to grow a giant pumpkin that's about four times my size. One that weighs about 680 pounds should do nicely.

Given my previous record of success in the giant pumpkin field, or should I say patch, a 680 pound pumpkin may be a goal which is a bit lofty. Thusfar, I've never grown a giant pumpkin larger than a basketball.

Perhaps I should set my sights on growing a pumpkin four-times the size of my kid. The baby's only about six months old and weighs about as much as a bowling ball. There's a chance that I could grow a 64 pound pumpkin.

Given my patch record, even a 64-pounder might be hoping for a lot, but it's a bit more realistic than a 680-pounder.

Last year, the giant pumpkin prospects looked good early on. I had some huge plants going. Leaves as big as elephant ears and vines Tarzan would have been proud to swing on.

The nourishment these giant pumpkin plants received was something to behold. I poked some of those little plant food stakes into the ground near the base of the plant. I put some peat moss around the pumpkins. I mixed some plant food stuff with water and sprayed that on the pumpkins. Delora Richardson, one of the community's veteran gardeners, heard I was trying to grow giant pumpkins and gave my mom some special fertilizer tablets to convey to me. I put them around the pumpkins along with everything else.

Those giant pumpkins were pampered to the point where it caused dissension in the garden. The corn and peas grew jealous. They got their chlorophyll all worked up and became green with envy.

Midway through the summer, the plants began to produce pumpkins. The pumpkins, like the plants got off to a good start. They burst out to the scene as big as grapefruit and began growing by leaps and bounds.

Of course, I was just as proud as could be.

Then, disaster struck. The giant leaves and vines turned brown. The pumpkins which held so much promise stopped growing and died.

Fat, white hideous grubs turned out to be the problem.

They'd burrowed into the base of the pumpkin vines and eaten them, cutting off the pumpkins supply of vital pumpkin juices. I took out my trusty pocket knife and surgically removed the vile grubs and squashed their guts. But the pumpkins had already been destroyed.

Despite last year's failure, I'm giving giant pumpkins another try. This year I'm using advanced scientific measures.

I found an old piece of rain gutter. I propped one end up on a big rock and ran the gutter beneath some dirt where I planted a couple of pumpkin seeds. I figure I'll be able to pour water, plant food etc. into the high end of the gutter and drain it down to the roots of the plant.

It's the L. Scott Swanson version of hydroponic gardening. I tried explaining it to my wife. She just shook her head and went over to the other side of the garden to tend to the radishes.

I've also got plans for those little grubs. I'm getting a needle, which I'm going to use to shoot grub poison into the center of the pumpkin vines. I'll either kill those grubs with the poison or addict them to it.

Out of the Blue

Man thinks he's the center of the Universe.
But this is a mere mis-projection.
From the fact that he's not seen the edge of it,
Though he's searched in every direction.

It pays to pedal

You probably missed it, but yesterday, May 15, was National Bike-to-Work Day.

If the day slipped away without your participation, not to worry. The sponsor — The League of American Wheelmen — plans to make National Bike-to-Work Day an annual event.

Maybe by next May you can get your tires pumped up and your sprocket lubricated with WD-40.

Why bike to work? For one thing, there are too many cars on the road causing too much air pollution and fostering too much highway sprawl.

Furthermore, the automobile is one of our deadliest weapons.

The National Safety Council says that from 1776 through the end of the Vietnam War in 1975, the United States suffered only 1.1 million war fatalities. Yet from the advent of the automobile about 1900 through 1976, some 32.1 million Americans lost their lives in traffic accidents.

John Cornelison, a bike advocate, speaking for the Wheelmen, says Americans waste three million hours a day in traffic jams — arriving at work frazzled from contending with highway traffic.

Furthermore, a typical American works two hours a day to support his automobile, Cornelison says.

If that's not enough, half of all Americans live "less" than five miles from work — a fairly easy bike ride.

There is no arguing that Americans probably would be a lot healthier if they rode bicycles to work rather than cranking up the family jalopy.

But I am afraid Cornelison is fighting a losing battle, particularly in Northern Michigan and other frigid climes.

I, for one, would like to ride my bike to work and I have done it from time to time over the years — even the 17-miles between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

I can attest to the fact that unless the weather is well nigh perfect — warm, dry and windless — bicycling is not much fun, particularly along the Lake Michigan shore. Sure, you see things along the road that you never see from an automobile, but on cold, wet, windy days a bicycle leaves a lot to be desired.

It may be "The Queen's English," but at least one of the Queen's subjects murders it every Sunday night.

I am talking about the British announcer who reports at the end of every episode of "Masterpiece Theatre" that the program is brought to us through a grant by "The Mobil Corporation" who invites you to join them in supporting Public Television.

"THEM?" The only possible antecedent for "them" is Mobil Corporation, which is not a "them" but an "it".

If the guy spoke American English I could understand the gaffe, since Americans aren't that particular about grammar. But this guy is a full-blown li-mey judging from his accent. It sounds strange to hear a born and bred Englishman playing fast and loose with the Queen's English.

I also was a little surprised at the language in a recent ad by Michigan Bell.

"If you make less than 50 long-distance phone calls a month..." the ad started.

"Less than 50?" Miss Battersbee, my 10th grade English teacher at Northwood High School in Detroit, said that when you're dealing with numbers you should use "fewer" not "less."

That is, unless your numbered items can be considered a lump sum. "He earns less than $50 a week."

But phone calls? Hardly. Miss Battersbee! Where are you when we need you?

The trouble with English is that it's not an easy language to learn. By comparison, French and Spanish are a snap.

But English is a very precise language, with a vocabulary large enough to cover almost every shade of meaning you want to convey. That is why English is the preferred language among the educated people of the world.

For that reason alone, those of us who were born into English-speaking families should try to use it properly, as difficult as that may be at times.

Approximately 280 students interviewed for summer employment at the second annual Job Fair which took place in the Charlevoix High School gym last week.

Job fair helps students find jobs

Approximately 280 area high school and college students met with 30 area employers Thursday, May 10 at the second annual Charlevoix Area Job Fair.

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Michigan Youth Corps and Private Industry Council cosponsored the event which is designed to simplify the problems students have in seeking summer employment and that employers have in interviewing and hiring summer employees. This year students from Charlevoix, East Jordan, Ellsworth, Central Lake and Boyne City had interviews with employers assembled at tables in the Charlevoix High School gym.

"All in all, it was really successful," said Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Jacqueline Merta. "I hear a lot of good comments from employers. They said the kids were very polite."

Although students could register for interviews on the day of the fair, most registered in advance. Students who registered in advance were told what type of employment was available and allowed to request interviews for the kind of employment they were interested in. Students registering in advance received a packet when they walked in the door with a list of scheduled interviews.

Merta referred to the job fair as "one-stop shopping for summer youth employment."

Letters to the Editor:

Town loses appeal

Dear Editor: 50 years later, and Ho-Hum. What's another condominium or two? The Charlevoix that I remember had no high-rises, smelled a bit of fish, and was a pleasant place to spend a summer. Local businessmen were friends, not corporations.

Dinner success

Dear Editor: The Charlevoix Trout Tournament would like to thank the many area people and businesses who donated prizes to this year's benefit dinner. Dave & Gayle Phillips did a wonderful job on the catering and thanks to those who helped us set up and clean up the American Legion. Thanks to Bryan VanLoe for bartending and Ralph McRae's group for serving the food. We truly appreciate the volunteers and the community involvement.

Sincerely,
Sherry Withers, for
The Charlevoix Trout Tournament Board of Directors

Sooner or later, your voters will wake up to find the Charlevoix they loved is gone. As a 50-year summer resident, I find I'm taxed to promote development. That's not why I'm in Charlevoix. Someday, your City Council will have to wake up and limit the City's growth. Growth is nice when you can levy the tax burden on non-residents, but Charlevoix is no longer the place I once knew. Charlevoix the Beautiful has become Charlevoix the Condo. Your tourist shops are tacky, and the traffic is impossible. Forgive me, but Charlevoix ain't what it used to be.

Sincerely,
Scripps Downing

Bible school registration open

It's getting to be time to register for Charlevoix's Community Vacation Bible School. The school will take place June 18-21 and is open to children who will be at least five years old by Sept. 1 through those who are now finishing up fifth grade.

Registration fee is $3 per child or $10 per family. The registration deadline is June 1 and forms are available at local churches.

The theme of this year's Bible School is "Bible Times Marketplace." A marketplace from Biblical times will be set up at the First Baptist Church. From 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. June 18-21, children will relive biblical events, exploring the occupations and experiences of the time period. Children in family clusters with a mother figure will go into the marketplace where they will participate in the activities of the shops.

In addition to the marketplace, children will sing

Bible songs and hear Bible stories. Bible school will conclude with a celebration for the entire family on the evening of June 21.

Begrows wed

Former Charlevoix resident Janet Begrow writes from Downingtown, Pennsylvania with news about her sisters Beth and Ann Begrow, also former Charlevoix residents.

Beth Begrow was married March 14 to Thomas Intoccia in suburban Philadelphia. Sisters Ann and Janet were in the wedding party.

Ann Begrow will be married November 10 to Fred Martelli in West Chester, Pennsylvania.

Beth is a graduate of Penn State University and Ann is in graduate school at the University of Pennsylvania and will be a nurse practitioner when she graduates in the fall.

Janet, Beth, and Ann grew up in Charlevoix. They are the daughters of Charlevoix architect Jack Begrow. Their mother, Mrs. Frank Fox, lives in Callao, Virginia.

Piano recital scheduled

The students of Jeanne Jensen will give a piano recital at 3 p.m., May 20 at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church on M-

66. There is no charge for the program. The public is invited and refreshments will be served.

Randy Wurst is getting used to a desk in preparation for studying at Lake Superior State University, which he will enter next fall. Wurst is the recipient of an $800 scholarship from the Oddfellows of Charlevoix. Behind Wurst are Oddfellow officers David Arnold (left) and John E. Barber.

Motorcycle safety course offered

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department will conduct two sessions of a motorcycle safety course June 23 and 24 and July 21 and 22 at East Jordan High School.

All 16 and 17 year olds must take and pass the course before applying for an initial cycle endorsement on their driver's license. The course takes between 15 and 20 hours to complete. To be eligible for the course a person must be at least 15 years old as of the course date.

Rena Edwards recalls Ferry Ave.

With recent developments occurring near the Ferry Beach area of Charlevoix comes an interview with one of Charlevoix's original "Southsiders," Rena Edwards' family came to the Ferry Beach area from the little town of Undine, Mayes Township, around the 1890s. Arriving in a scow, the family soon established a sawmill and began their life in Charlevoix.

"My father, Roy Cram, and his brothers left Undine and sailed to the Ferry Beach area and bought some land for their houses and the new sawmill. They bought it from Medad Thompson and began building soon after. The Cram brothers ran that sawmill until my father had an accident in the mill and passed away soon after. Sometime after he died the mill was abandoned and the brothers went their separate ways.

I also remember this area was beginning to create businesses for the surrounding area.

Mostly agricultural businesses like the D.M. Ferry Seed Warehouse. The farmers would raise the beans and the peas, then the local girls would come to work in the fall and picking them over. Our neighbors, the Colters, managed the warehouse year round and I became keenly aware of warehouse activities.

"The sugar beet factory was also a good business for the local farmers. I was involved in this business because my mother, a widow, rented rooms to workers and I carried lunches to men in the factory. Then I was in high school a specialist, originally from Germany, but sent from Colorado, was sent to Charlevoix to help at the factory. He stayed with us and this was how I kept up with my German at school. I was taught to speak the language at the dinner table by this man until he left our house.

I also remember the trains that traveled past our house below the bluff. The John freight trains had extra engines so that they could get up the long grade south of town. I remember our house trembling as they crept slowly up the grade. The sugar beet factory also had use for the trains, especially around the end of summer when the vegetables were harvested and brought to town by the local farmers. The trains had to switch near the factory so that they could load, then they would switch back to the main train track to continue on their way.

"We also had a passenger train called the 'dummy'. This train had an engine and a few cars for trips back and forth between the Belvedere station and the Bayview Station Petoskey. In Petoskey, the train would turn around at the switching house, a large building where the engine was literally turned around one hundred and eighty degrees and pointed toward Charlevoix, again with its passenger cars being reattached soon after. When the Rena Edwards is the subject of this week's Charlevoix Memories. She recalls the Ferry Avenue area and early trains which ran between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

train got to Charlevoix, the train would drop off its passengers and then continue south until it reached a 'Y' shaped set of tracks designed to turn the entire train around again and head it back toward Charlevoix and Petoskey soon after. We used to love a trip to Petoskey to see a play or just to travel by train for the fun of it."

DNR to restrict ORV use on lands

Director David Hales of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has issued an order to close a number of sites on Michigan state forest lands to off-road vehicles (ORVs).

The closed areas are located in parts of Dickinson, Mackinaw, Charlevoix, Clare, Iosco, Kalkaska, Lake, Missaukee, Ogemaw, Alcona, Roscommon and Wexford counties.

Use of ORVs has resulted in erosion and stream sedimentation in certain areas on state forest lands. Some sites have received so much use by ORVs that they are often mistakenly identified as forest roads open to use under the current rules.

The order, designed to discontinue use of these sites, will provide an opportunity to restore any natural resources damaged by improper ORV use. For detailed information on the location of these sites, contact the DNR Forest Management Division, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing 48909; phone 517-373-1275.

Meoma Ward

Meoma Ward, 82, of Charlevoix, died May 12, 1990, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral was held at 1 p.m. Tuesday, May 15, at the First Baptist Church, Charlevoix. The Rev. Thom Black will officiate and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

The former Meoma Hall was born June 8, 1907, in Prestonsburg, Ky.; the daughter of Newton and Molly Alley Hall. She grew up in Cincinnati, Ohio, area and on Nov. 30, 1926, she married Bernie Ward Sr. in Toledo. The couple moved to Charlevoix in 1926 and Mr. Ward preceded her in death on Dec. 4, 1980.

Mrs. Ward was a member of the First Baptist Church in Charlevoix and was very active in church affairs. She was a devoted mother and grandmother.

Survivors include two sons, Bernie Ward Jr. of Charlevoix and William H. Ward of Birmingham; one daughter, Mrs. Harry (Joan Mae) Goldberg of Grand Rapids; one brother, Jack Hall of Thousand Oaks, Calif.; eight grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by two brothers, Bill Neeley and Kenneth Groth.

The family suggests memorials to the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix. Envelopes for that purpose are at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Vivian Visscher

Vivian Visscher, 76, of St. James, Beaver Island, died May 12, 1990, at Little Traverse division, Northern Michigan Hospital.

Burial services were held Sunday, May 13, at the Beaver Island Cemetery, St. James. The Rev. Lander Carter officiated. Miss Visscher was born Nov. 5, 1913, in Holland, Mich., the daughter of Raymond and Ann (Vandersluis) Visscher. She graduated from Holland High School and attended Presbyterian Hospital School of Nursing where she received a bachelor's degree and nursing degree. She then attended the University of Michigan where she received a master's degree in nursing.

She had worked as a registered nurse most of her life, and also was involved in public health nursing and taught nursing at the University of Michigan Hospital.

She was a summer resident of Beaver Island for many years and had made her home permanently there since 1961.

She is survived by one brother, Robert F. Visscher of Holland; one nephew, Paul Visscher of Holland; four nieces, Karen C. Sorensen of Jakarta, Indonesia, Robin Flournoy of Atwater, Calif., Susan Conley of Woodside, Calif., and Vian Cafaro of Modesto, Calif.

The family suggests memorials to the Beaver Island Episcopal Church or Holy Cross Catholic Church, Beaver Island.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

OF BLESSINGS

can move mountains, do we spend so little time with our heavenly Father.

A friend I know did a little arguing with the Lord over her prayer time. She said, "Look at my schedule, Lord. I'm booked from 6 a.m. to midnight. You fit it in!" He impressed it on her heart to get up at 5 each morning. She has and the difference in her life shows.

Think about something else, do you know some people whose prayers always seem to be able to reach the gates of heaven? Ask them how came. I guarantee you they spend more than three minutes a day at it.

"One of the quickest ways for your faith to take on new power and to really mean more to you is to spend more time in prayer. Prayer in its simplest form is talking to a close friend. Time spent in prayer is never wasted. It is always invested.

If you will begin even today to spend more time with the Lord, I promise you that your peace, assurance and confidence will increase right away. There has never been a substitute for daily, intimate communion with God. Opening your heart to His presence is what prayer is all about.

Fern A. Taylor

Former Charlevoix resident

Fern A. Taylor, 77, of Mount Pleasant, died May 7, 1990 in Central Michigan Community Hospital in Mount Pleasant.

Funeral service for Mrs. Taylor was held at 2 p.m. Thursday, May 10, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton of the Community Church of God officiated with burial in Brookside Cemetery.

She was born May 26, 1912 in Ithaca, the daughter of Floyd and Louise (Lyman) Black. She was preceded in death by her first husband, Allen Pease, in 1964.

She lived in Charlevoix until her marriage to Lewis Taylor on July 16, 1966 in Mount Pleasant. She then moved to Mount Pleasant.

Mrs. Taylor was a member of the Isabella County Senior Citizens and the American Legion Auxiliary in Mount Pleasant. She is survived by her husband, Lewis, of Mount Pleasant; two daughters, Bonita McWaters of Hudsonville and Angel Bears of Charlevoix; one son, David Bruce Pease of Jenison; two step-children, Veronica Gregg and Michael Lewis Taylor, both of Mount Pleasant; 14 grandchildren; six step-grandchildren; 21 great-grandchildren; five step-great-grandchildren; two brothers, Loren Black of Traverse City and Stanley Black of Schoolsection Lake; three sisters, Hazel Stephens of Uniontown, Ohio, Gladys Davis of Charlotte, and Vivian Wilson of Pretty Lake. She was preceded in death by two sons, Leon and Ewart.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Commission on Aging, 3480 South Isabella Road, Mount Pleasant, Mich. 48858.

Annabell Comfort

Annabell Comfort, 86, of Charlevoix died May 8, 1990 at West Bloomfield Nursing and Convalescent Home in West Bloomfield.

Funeral service was at 1 p.m. Friday, May 11, at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Raymond Giffin of the First Congregational Church officiated with burial in Brookside Cemetery.

Miss Comfort was born Aug. 12, 1903 in Charlevoix, the daughter of Louis H. and Metta (Irwin) Comfort. She graduated from Charlevoix High School then studied piano and composition in France.

She returned to the United States and lived in New York and Chicago where she taught and composed music and was a concert pianist. She then moved back to Charlevoix.

She was a member of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

Memorial contributions are suggested to the First Congregational Church or to the Interlochen Arts Academy. Envelopes for either purpose are available at the Winchester funeral Home, Charlevoix.

The Corporate Brass is one of two groups which will entertain at the Chamber of Commerce spring Dinner Dance May 19.

Chamber plans Dinner Dance

One sure sign that Spring has arrived is when the Chamber sponsors its annual Dinner Dance. This popular event is always held in May and this year it has been scheduled for May 19th at the Belvedere Casino. Stafford's Weathervane will be catering a dinner featuring roasted host two bands to provide a variety of musical entertainment. Dinner Music will be provided by the Northwood Corporate Brass. Their repertoire ranges from the majestic to the spontaneous, with popular favorites, jazz segments, classic masterworks, and their own special arrangements. Renaissance or Ragtime, Bach or Basie, the inspired programming, exuberant style and infectious enthusiasm of the Corporate Brass make every performance a triumphant event.

The Corporate Brass was established in 1982 with key players from the Northwood Orchestra expanding their musical association. Individually, the musicians are acclaimed and are associated with orchestras and universities nationwide. Together, their special talents and instrumental mastery make the jubilant sounds of

Cotton Jacq's opens

"All the colors of the rainbow, and many more." That could be the description of the resort wear found in Cotton Jacq's, the new shop on Bridge Street next to the Clothing Company.

The shop features a full line of one hundred percent wash and wear cottons, including jackets, shirts, blouses, sweaters, skirts, slacks, shorts, and jumpsuits that will brighten the lives of wearers, young and old. And everything comes in sizes small, medium, and large.

The crinkle cotton, smooth cotton, and cotton knit garments can be worn in matching or mixed colors, creating all kinds of "new look" possibilities.

For the added touch, there are belts, scarves, handbags, hats, and jewelry that will go with all garments, and eventually there will also be a line of shoes in the same vibrant colors. "This is a new line, and we're the only shop up here in the north that sells it," says Tracy Fedus, manager of the shop. "Everybody loves it, young people and older people."

Fedus grew up in Petoskey and has returned to the area from Florida, where she managed another women's wear shop. "I just love it—the shop, the merchandise," and Charlevoix," she said enthusiastically.

Cotton Jacq's (pronounced "Jack's") will have a Grand Opening open house this coming Saturday, May 19, from noon to 5:30 p.m., but the store will be open Saturday morning as well. Refreshments and flowers for the ladies will be available during the open house.

Regular store hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday.

Senior citizen center renovation progresses

Buoyed by a gift of $10,000 from the Frey Foundation, the Charlevoix Senior Center is continuing its efforts to renovate the old Charlevoix Township Hall on Norwood Road for use as headquarters of Senior Citizens activities.

Local architect Lou Orlowski has prepared a drawing of a proposed addition to the building, and representatives from the Senior Center board are seeking zoning variances from the Township as well as the City of Charlevoix to allow for parking spaces.

The Township Hall was deeded to the Senior Citizens by the people of Charlevoix Township two years ago, and since that time, there have been many fund-raising activities as well as grants from the State of Michigan to help pay for the addition and renovations.

Charlevoix Senior Citizens are looking forward to moving into their new quarters some time next fall.

...council discusses pay hike for manager

city money and that an engineer with Wiesner's background would make more money in the private sector than Wiesner is making with the city.

Haggard said he feels Wiesner should be compensated for extra work he does for the city and for his engineering expertise.

Russell noted that in recent years the city has given Wiesner the same salary increase as the city's other employees. City employees recently signed a contract calling for a four percent pay hike this year. Russell argued that if the council gives the manager a larger raise than the employees, a can of worms will be opened making future contract negotiations difficult.

Wiesner drew comparisons between his salary and the salary paid to local school officials. According to figures cited by Wiesner, the school superintendent is paid almost $64,000 per year, the high school principal in the mid $50,000 range and the middle and elementary school principals in the high $40,000 range. Wiesner said that of the four school administrators, his responsibilities as city manager are most comparable to the school superintendent.

Gaskin said that in making a decision on salary, the council should look at the level of responsibility demanded by the position.

When the city budget was adopted earlier this year, Wiesner requested that the council set his salary.

Although the subject of Wiesner's salary had been discussed in council meetings and work sessions at least twice prior to Monday, no figures other than the four percent increase city employees received had been mentioned.

At Monday evening's meeting, Wiesner and council members were asked if they had a dollar amount or percent increase in mind.

Wiesner said, "I have discussed what I feel is an equitable salary position with several council members." He added that he was comfortable with a figure of $52,000 plus fringes and benefits.

CMU offers summer classes on Island

Central Michigan University is offering science, art and theater classes for credit at Beaver Island this summer.

"General Botany" (BIO 203) and "Biology of Spiders" (BIO 597) will be taught June 25 through July 13. "Chemistry of Natural Waters" (CHM 513) will be taught July 16 through Aug. 3. "Watercolors" (ART 597), "Ceramics" (ART 597), "Papermaking" (ART 597) and "Theater Improvisation for Performance" (TAI 578) will be taught Aug. 11-20.

All classes will be taught for three credit hours at the CMU Biological Station on the east shore of Beaver Island in northern Lake Michigan, about 32 miles northwest of Charlevoix.

Students should be enrolled at least 14 days prior to the beginning of the courses they select. Enrollment is limited, and paid registrations will determine priority. For registration and lodging information, call James Gillingham, (616) 448-2325.

Young smokers concern health department

In many Northern Michigan areas young people have been able to get tobacco products just as easily as giving candy to a baby. Under the provisions of Michigan's Youth Tobacco Act, tobacco may not be sold to persons under the age of 18. The act passed in 1988 also established fines for vendors and for minors engaging in these activities; and requires tobacco retailers to post a sign at the point of sale that warns against the sale of tobacco products to minors and the purchase of these products by minors.

According to Dr. Neal Benowitz (UC-SF), one of the nation's leading authorities on nicotine addiction, a child who smokes just one pack of cigarettes will develop a substantial tolerance to drug effects of nicotine. This is the critical first step in the addiction process.

The Michigan Department of Public Health has just published recent information that indicates that 90% of smokers begin before the age of 20; 60% begin before the age of 16; children as young as 7 and 8 are experimenting with tobacco products.

Children and adolescents most often get their tobacco products from retailers, not parents or friends. Studies show that minors who attempt to buy cigarettes over the counter are successful at least 70% of the time. Dr. Brian Youngs, Regional Medical Director for District Health Department No. 3 and 4 was very concerned that "while the state and local government take a vigorous approach to keeping alcohol out of the hands of children and adolescents, there is no similar effort for tobacco products, although tobacco may ultimately be more dangerous to health."

"In Michigan, the tobacco industry must recruit approximately 126,000 new smokers each year to replace smokers who die or quit the habit. 90% of these new smokers, or approximately 100,000 per year, will be children and adolescents. Tobacco is the single most important preventable risk factor underlying Michigan's and the nation's chronic disease death rates. It is responsible for 16,544 lives lost each year in Michigan including 8,304 heart disease deaths, 5,217 cancer deaths, 2,808 respiratory deaths, 127 infant deaths, 88 fire and other deaths.

Dr. Youngs feels that "the use of cigarettes and smokeless tobacco products poses a dangerous threat to our children's future health. We can help to protect them by making sure that no retailer in Northern Michigan will sell these products without ensuring that the buyer is over the age of 18."

Last week's late season storm left local sailors in no mood for sailing. But by this week, the weather was beginning to come around.

Doing business without promoting is like working in the dark—nobody knows how to find you when they need you.

Commissioners rethink courthouse funding

By Peg Ohle

After studying the cost estimate for the proposed Charlevoix County Court House on Garfield Street, the County Board of Commissioners last week decided not to proceed with a millage request at the Primary Election in August.

Board members were not only surprised, but seemingly overwhelmed by the cost of the project—$3.5 million—as submitted by Gove Associates of Kalamazoo.

The minimum cost of the unfurnished building was estimated at $2,475,000, to which was added $38,000 for "additions" (clocks, emergency lighting, intercom system, smoke detectors, etc.); $631,000 for "allowances" (contingency for incidentals, architecture-engineering fees, bonding attorney fees, phone system, etc.); and $356,000 for "furnishings" (23,422 square feet at $15.20 per square foot) bringing the total to $3.5 million as noted above.

Perhaps more than anything else, it was the quality and cost of "furnishings" that rubbed County Commissioners the wrong way. As proposed by Doubleday Bros. & Co. of Kalamazoo, the judges' chambers would be furnished with a 72-inch by 36-inch cherry veneer wood desk with brass decorative pulls and credenza, table, and bookcase to match. The chairs would have leather backs.

Each judge's secretary would have smaller 66-inch by 32-inch cherry veneer desks, cherry veneer filing cabinets, and leather back chairs.

Specifications for the prosecuting attorney's office indicate only "wood veneer" desk, credenza, and table, but the chairs would have leather backs.

Other court employees would have only "wood veneer" furniture and chairs covered with fabric instead of leather.

County Board members now hope that with a little more time to pare down what they consider excessive cost items, they will be able to construct the new court house for a "more reasonable" sum, and do it on a "pay as you go" basis.

To that end, they are considering a two-mill tax levy for three years, with the money being deposited in a sinking fund as it is collected. On the basis of present land values, a one-mill levy in the county would raise about $500,000 a year, so the board's proposal would raise about $3 million over a three-year period.

The need for a new court house facility was again brought to the attention of County Board members last week by Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas, who cited not only crowded conditions but unsafe conditions for court personnel.

County Prosecutor Kraag Lieberman is head of the committee working on plans for the new court house, and County Board Chairman Larry Matthews suggested to Judge Pajtas that he and the other judges get together with Lieberman to expedite the matter.

When plans are finalized, the millage request will be put on the ballot for voter approval.

Play combines talents of East Jordan and Charlevoix people

Hocus-Focus, a play born and raised in northern Michigan, made its world premier in Bellaire this past weekend. People who missed the opening two shows need not fear. They will be able to see the show this Friday and Saturday evening in East Jordan.

The play was written by East Jordan resident Lenore Bechtel and is directed by Jim McKinney of Charlevoix.

Three Charlevoix Middle School students, Ellen McKinney, Jamie McKinney and Eleonora Frey join East Jordan sophomore Darcie Dietrich to form the punk rock group called The Pulsettes.

The play centers around a hypnotist who has some unusual methods for treating his patients. His patients include the leader of the Pulsettes, who thinks her mother's trying to poison her food and a man who's sure he's invisible.

The curtain will rise at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday for Hocus-Focus at the East Jordan High School. Tickets are $5 for adults and $2 for students and senior citizens. Tickets are available at Busy Bridge in East Jordan, Lake Street Trading Company in Boyne City, and at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Scott Howard (facing camera) of Charlevoix interviews with Lynn DeGow of the Beaver Island Boat Company during the Job Fair at Charlevoix High School.

Bikes restricted in state parks

The use of bicycles, including mountain bikes, has been restricted in state parks and recreation areas where environmental problems and users conflicts have occurred.

The new orders, which take immediate effect, restrict bicycle use to roads and parking lots in most state parks and recreation areas. Bikes will be allowed on trails in 27 state parks and recreation areas where their use has been determined to be environmentally appropriate and not in conflict with other trail use.

"Bicycling is a legitimate outdoor recreation activity," DNR Director David Hales said, "and the state should provide appropriate places for that use."

Hales added that the increased use of mountain bikes during the last two years created problems when they were used on environmentally sensitive state park trails or in areas where they conflict with other existing recreation users.

Baseball team swept by Boyne

Charlevoix's baseball team was swept by Boyne City in a doubleheader at Boyne City Monday. A lack of hitting caused the Rayders downfall as they scored but one run in each game.

Ferris State University athletic director Dean Davenport was the guest speaker at this year's sports banquet.

Charlevoix lost the first game 5-1. Guy Gengle took the pitching loss in relief of Dan Terryberry. Jason Corwin doubled for the Rayders, while Pat Elliott, Cory Ostrum and Luke Porath singled.

In the second game, a 3-1 loss, Charlevoix could muster but one lonely hit. That belonged to Corwin.

Elliott had a good outing on the mound to keep things respectable. He struck out seven while walking five in taking the pitching loss.

The losses left Charlevoix with a 9-11 season record. Wednesday, May 15 the team travels to Rogers City for a pre-district qualifying game.
